"I am extremely sorry to see this curtailment in timber and newsprint," he said, adding that reductions in this field would be made among other countries by Australia and South Africa.

Other Markets Needed

He said Canada will have to start looking for other markets for wheat, but declined to speculate on possibilities.

Over and over again he stressed that the essential trading principle is that "products must be produced at a price that is right."

Danger of curtailing imports was that each cut tended to raise production costs as markets contracted. At the same time, everyone agreed that full multilateral trade is not immediately possible.

In reply to questions, Abbott said:

1. Canada, as the third greatest gold producer, would benefit if the price of gold increased from the present level of $35 an ounce, but does not feel it appropriate to suggest an increase.

DENNIS

At the same time, it was learned Dennis had been sharing a west-coast apartment with Betty Ritchie, former Toronto schoolteacher. Miss Ritchie, 24, was charged with receiving stolen property after thousands of dollars worth of jewelry and furs were found in the apartment.

Miss Ritchie was acquitted on the charges of receiving stolen property and charges of theft were dropped. She was deported to Canada, however, for having entered the United States illegally.

Miss Ritchie said ..at her trial that she and Dennis had lived as man and wife. Asked whether there had been a marriage ceremony, she replied: "Just between the two of us."

The ""Lothario-Raffles," however, had been married earlier. In 1937 in Toronto he married and fathered two children. He left his wife several years before their divorce in 1947 and lived with Eleanor Harris of Toronto. They moved to Montreal and later to New York, where she used the name Eleanor Farrell.

Dennis, nattily dressed in a tan summer suit, stood handcuffed to a deputy sheriff, with head bowed as Judge Gallagher pronounced sentence.

Gallagher told him he never could hope to be released from prison unless the state parole board was convinced he would behave himself.

Dennis' lawyer, Joseph F. Gagliardi, pleaded for lienency, saying Dennis was the victim of a broken home and had been imprisoned with hardened criminals after his first conviction in Canada at the age of 16.

"In my opinion he was doomed from the very start," the lawyer said.

The district attorney's office produced records showing Dennis was convicted of 14 crimes in Canada, ranging from breaking and entering to assisting in an abortion, before he transferred his activities to the United States.

During his confinement while awaiting trial, Dennis expressed remorse for his past life and indicated he wished to help police recover all possible loot so that he might have a chance to start his life over. He co-operated in leading police to pawnshops where much of the stolen property was recovered.

MADOC

Madoc.—Madoc Branch of the W.I. were hospitably entertained at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Forestell on Friday afternoon for their July meeting. In the absence of the president, vice president Mrs. Will Stewart, had charge of the meeting.

The roll call 'Some place I would like to visit this summer", was well responded to with several suggestions being made, but "A visit to Toronto Exhibition" won out very decidedly. Minutes and correspondence and business arising from the same were dealt with. Mrs. G. Hill and Mrs. Henderson reported on the canvass for the fair prizes and gave gratifying results. It was decided to leave the Institute grant to prize list, to the discretion of the directors in charge of ladies' departments.

Interesting current events were given by Mrs. Morley Nickle giving the highlights of the previous month. Mrs. Kenneth Caskey, convener of Agriculture and Canadian Industries, gave a fine talk on the manufacture and sale of footwear, mentioning the names of familiar manufacturers such as Bata, Batawa, and Savage Shoe people of Preston. Also mentioned was the first shoemaker who came to this continent, supposed to have come over on the "Mayflower", emphasizing the caution in buying children's shoes and care of the feet.

Miss Vankleek expressed the thanks of the members to the hostess and to Mrs. Caskey for her fine address. A contest concluded an enjoyable meeting.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Caskey and Mrs. Wallbridge. The response to the appeal for white cotton for bandages for the Cancer Society Fund was well responded, but it was decided to leave the appeal open for another month.

BROCKVILLE CELEBRATION

Brockville has been celebrating its centennial as a town and the Recorder and Times has been marking at the same time the 128th anniversary of the founding the Recorder which was first issued in January 1821 and is the oldest publication of its kind without change of name in the Province of Ontario.

The ceremonies attending the celebration were graced with the presence of Their Excellencies the Governor-General Viscount Alexander and Lady Alexander.

The town can looks back proudly on its history, its great figures, its progress and on that basis can scan the future with confidence its growth of service and opportunity in the development of the Dominion. Students of Canadian history know something of the place that Brockville has held in Ontario and its present day distinction is understood by every other community.

As a mark of this historic occasion, the edition of the Recorder and Times has made a contribution of great importance in the gathering of historical data, which makes the past live to an unusual degree. Having been so long the expression of the life and spirit of the people of Brockville and the district the Times and Recorder is well fitted to present such a panorama of events.

The anniversary has made possible the collection of a great body of facts on local history which indicate the development from the earlier days to this present time in this prosperous town along the historic St. Lawrence River.

The growth of the community life and an insight into the traditions which inspire her residents are shown in the historical articles in the anniversary edition of the Recorder and Times. Such insights are to be found there as the history of the Brockville Rifles, a military organization which dates back to the year 1796 with the formation of a military company, the Leeds Volunteers, which crossed the River St. Lawrence in 1812 at Odgensburg and attacked the camp and stores there. This organization played its part in the Battle of Chrysler's Farm.

Figures in the life of the town are brought before the readers of the paper which has been contemporary with the entire growth of Brockville. Its first printer was Chauncey Beach and its first editor John Stewart, afterwards of Stratford and Belleville, while the inaugural editorial was written by a law student Norton Buell, who was a son of the loyalist and founder of Brockville, William Buell.

It was a sad loss which the Recorder and Times and Brockville sustained recently in the sudden death of Hamilton Richards Morgan whose writings have been of great assistance in the preparation of the anniversary edition.

The centennial edition traces the progress of the town of which every resident may be proud. The growth of Brockville is seen in its fine business establishments and industries and in the co-operation of the enterprising business men of Brockville in planning the anniversary.

PROGRESS

The march of progress is seen on many sides here and in other places but in none more than in the advance in the fire-fighting protection which Belleville has guaranteed the citizens by the building of a new fire hall and by the use of modern fire-fighting equipment. Official stamp on the progress was given the other evening when the new fire station was officially declared open as Edward Beavis, chief of the Fire Service of the Ontario Fire Marshall's Department, pronounced it the finest fire station in Ontario.

That is high praise but it is deserving.

No branch of municipal service has advanced more in general in these latter years than the means of battling fires. It is most important for it can save untold wealth which might otherwise be destroyed with the possibility of loss of life. There is no more insidious foe of man and his work than fire when it gets out of control. Under control it is one of the greatest means of the advance of civilization. Modern industry makes tremendous strides with the aid of fire but when fire gets on the rampage life and property are in danger.

It is therefore a matter of supreme satisfaction to the people of Belleville that their fire department is so well equipped to meet any fire emergency. Erection of the new hall is a sign of the progress of the times and recognition of the work which firemen perform.

MEMORY OF MERTON RICE

The Reverend Merton Rice and I
Oft wore a different coat and tie.
Alike, it seemed, we seldom guessed
For banquets how we should have dressed.
When I wore tails that touched the floor
His business suit the Reverend wore;
When he was garbed in black and white
My suit was wrong and his was right.
But whether right or whether wrong,
The Reverend Merton thrilled
the throng,
While some in proper dress arrayed
The dreariest of speeches made.

Add nothing to the worth of man.
Far more important oft we find
Than coat and tie are heart and mind.

The rules of dress for night and day
Let all who can and will obey,
But no tuxedo ever spoke
A word man's courage to invoke;
And Merton Rice would heartening be Though dressed in overalls were he.
So who'd have speech worthwhile to quote
Should ask the man and not his coat.
Tuxedo, tails, or suit of tan

NO MORE CORNERSTONES

Very few buildings today have cornerstones. The steel structure of the modern building is such that the cornerstone has practically disappeared. Ceremonies are held today not over cornerstones but over date-stones. Architecturally, cornerstones are out of style and no longer considered necessary.

Moraly, the cornerstone has gone out of fashion also. One of the characteristics of modern times is that so many people have given up the idea that there is anything substantial and eternal upon which to build one's life. Science is supposed to have rendered untenable most of the claims of Christian doctrine. The Ten Commandments are all right if they can be observed without too much infringement of personal liberty. People used to believe in a heaven beyond the skies and a hell for the wicked, but people "in the know" regard such beliefs only as superstitions.

So declares the modern worldling, the modern skeptic, the disgruntled and frustrated folk who have been weakened by modern comforts, deceived by a superficial education, and intoxicated by too generous drafts of the philosophy of freedom.

No more cornerstones! Maybe that is why the most comfortable generation in human history is far from being the happiest group of people that the world has yet produced.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

There are two styles of argument: the boxing style and the wrestling style. I listened last night to two clever men involved in a lengthy and shrewd argument.

One was a boxer in argument. He threw punches. With experience, skill, clever foot-work, he threw punches of argument at his opponent, hitting him in every vulnerable spot.

The other used the wrestler's technique. He never threw a punch all evening. He took holds on his opponent. He manoeuvred around him, in argument, waiting for an opening for a good hold. The minute he got that hold, you could see him, metaphorically, closing in and clutching. Slowly, heavily, bearing down with all his weight, he increased his grip and cautiously shifted his hold in order to improve it, imperceptible inch by inch.

The boxer style of arguer began to throw his punches with greater vigor, more intelligent placing. But the wrestling arguer merely absorbed the punches with a grin and slowly wrapped the arms of his argument around his opponent, gradually bringing a leg hold, a scissors, into play in order to trip the puncher.

I had never seen these two simple principles of argument in such clear opposition before. The argument had not gone on ten minutes before anybody could have seen who would win.

The wrestler style won. There is a patience and a plan about wrestling that does not enter into boxing to anything like the same extent. A boxer spars for an opening and hopes for a quick decision. He depends on the telling, the knock-out blow. The wrestler bides his time for the perfect hold: and when he gets it, he proceeds with a plan.

Where authority is on the side of one of the arguers, he uses the boxing technique. Authority has the knock-out power. But when men are evenly matched, a wrestler in argument will beat a boxer nine times out of ten.

ASSIGNS BILLIONS TO HOUSING

While a group of U. S. Congressmen and Senators looks on, President Harry S. Truman is pictured in the White House as he puts his name to the multi-billion dollar long-range housing bill. Subsidizing of housing in the U. S. has been a subject of bitter criticism in Congress for many weeks.—Central Press Canadian.

Mackenzie's Column

Bolshevism May Break Self Open In War on Faith

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Newspaper headlines about foreign affairs which impress me most are those emphasizing the swelling of the battle between Communism and religion.

Developments strengthen the views ventured in this column: "The world-wide ideological conflict between Communism and democracy, involving a life and death struggle between religion and the red ism, is intensifying. We have reached a crucial period."

It has reached a point where we are justified in saying that the outcome of the war of the isms may turn in large degree on this question of religion or no religion—of God or no God.

Europe Target

Not only Catholicism but all other forms of faith come under the Red edict that religion must be exterminated as the dope of the masses.

Only last Sunday the leading Communist newspaper of Russian-occupied Germany, the Neues Deutschland, denounced Lutheran Bishop Otto Dibelius of Berlin as a war monger and an instrument of American aggression.

I'm an old cowhand and don't intend to rope anything I can't handle. I don't claim to be a theologian.

Faith Most Cherished

It doesn't take a theologian to understand that since the dawn of history mankind has believed in a god or gods. Maybe everybody can't be right in their beliefs, but the big point is that they have 'em, and those beliefs are the most cherished things in their lives.

That's why we are entitled to say that Bolshevism may break itself wide open in its determination to destroy all religions. Strong evidence of this possibility is to be seen in the terrific fight being made by Czechoslovakian Catholics to defend their faith.

Pope Pius, viewing this situation from the actual battlefront, has declared that no government which denies God can survive.

Letters to the Editor

Appreciates Band Music

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I trust that you will grant space in your paper that I may show appreciation for a very enjoyable evening spent in your city.

I wish to refer specifically to a wonderful musical experience I and my wife had on Thursday evening and all quite by chance.

We had just seated ourselves on the outside of one of your hotels when we heard the strains of your band, being both interested in music, and frequenting Dr. Goldman's summer concerts, we went to the enclosure that we might hear further.

I assure you, gentlemen, we never appreciated a concert more, the variety of the concert left nothing to be desired, and our old favorite, 'On the Mall', was greatly appreciated.

The one thing we could not understand was the entire lack of public support to the efforts of this wonderful band. Are your citizens not conscious of the wonderful musical organization they have?

In closing I would like to thank the conductor and members of the band for a very enjoyable program.

An American Visitor to your city.

Barber Has Fed Mysterious Cat Tidbits Often

St. Catharines, July 19 (CP)—Fred Barker, a barber, reports that he knows the mysterious cat which has been seen in this area recently.

He describes the cat as being three feet long, golden color, with a fox face and web feet like a duck. The cat eats vine leaves. Barker says that last summer he made friends with the cat and often fed it tidbits. Others who have seen the animal said it resembles anything from a wildcat to a mountain lion.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LITERARY TASTE

A liking for books and readings is one of the great forces that contribute to human happiness. If you read a great deal and select books that suit best your own individual taste, you will find that soon you will become very selective as to writers whose style and beauty of composition are a great help in forming your own expression.

There are certain books that are read largely because of their beauty of expression and clearness of thought. To read a book just for its story is not enough. Fine characterization and natural description are often like meeting people in the flesh, and experiencing the joy and wonder of the writer. We form our own literary taste by reading such books. And this taste, once acquired, never leaves one!

I keep thinking of that man, who is a tollbridge keeper near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, who once wrote me that he had acquired a taste for reading by purchasing many of the books mentioned in this column. He once wrote me that he had accumulated a library of 400 books. I have often wondered what books he selected. It is always interesting to note the books that different people choose as their companions. The greater the variety the joy of their companionship. There are those in my library of almost every variety written—history, fiction, science, poetry, art, medicine, philosophy, biography.

Our literary taste can be very democratic and "choosy." And when we make these books our genuine friends we have something of which we can well be proud, for we can go to any of them, in any mood that may be ours at the time. I always keep a few favorites near at hand. And anyone can do the same. It is a habit worth the effort.

It is interesting to study, and read about, the early beginnings of literary taste in different countries, and also among different writers. The first books of a writer are often crude attempts. But to follow the progress of a writer is a personal inspiration to any of us. An author's first book, however, has a certain nearness to him or her that none that follows may have, no matter how defective in style or composition. Often, too, it becomes the rarest—because no one wanted to buy it!

Personal Health Talks

NOW IT'S BABY ASPIRINS

A young woman who should know better—I mean she should if our public schools gave future citizens a fair break—tells me that her pediatrician instructs her to give the baby, about two years old, a baby aspirin whenever the baby becomes cross or upset in any way. Further the brass specialist advises her that if the apirins fail to quiet the baby she may give him a spoonful of whiskey every so often to keep him quiet.

What this country needs is a law prohibiting doctors from passing themselves off as "specialists" until they have had at least 10 years of private general practice. It is because the way to specialism is so easy under present conditions that young doctors scramble to begin practice as "specialists" as soon as they complete their medical school course and internship, and if I were one of them I'd want to make a quick buck that way, rather than serving time in general practice. It seems that the very people who complain most about the high cost of medical service scorn to employ an "ordinary" doctor when they have the price of a "specialist." They must keep up with the Joneses.

In the medical profession there are specialists and "specialists." Real specialists and brass specialists. The young woman who was advised to feed her baby aspirin and whiskey is typical of the Yankee Snob class—her husband makes not less than $100 a week and therefore their baby requires the constant care of so-called "pediatrician," who, in their unsophistication, must know more and have greater skill than an ordinary doctor or else the government or something would prohibit him from foisting himself on innocent customers as a "specialist."

No law in this country and virtually no formal or recognized principle of ethics prevents any licensed physician from practicing as a "specialist" in whatever field he or she may choose. It is entirely the doctor's own privilege or will to begin practice as a "specialist" the moment he or she receives a license to practice medicine and surgery (which every doctor must have) or to spend more time and money for post-graduate training and advanced study in the field he or she elects as a specialty.

Aspirin — acetyl-salicylic acid ester—is aspirin (patent on it expired long ago and the medicine is the same no matter who manufactures or distributes it) is the least dangerous of all the pain-killers or sense-deadeners, in my opinion. I do not say the drug is safe. I would not take a dose of it myself for any ordinary ache, pain or distress. I would not risk taking it for a severe ache or pain unless I could sit or lie at rest for at least two hours after the does. I'm as cowardly in enduring ache, pain or distress as any of you refined, sensitive persons, but I am afraid to monkey with dope as many of you do.

You "specialist" customers generally think you know better than I do about ordinary doctors and "specialists." All right, in this free country we can agree to disagree about this or that point. I think I know more about the effects of aspirin, acetanilid and the barbiturates than you do—but ours is still a free country and no one can prevent you from doping yourself or your helpless child with such drugs or with alcohol if proper care of the child is beyond your capacity.

From the authoritative textbook of Pharmacology (Bastedo) I quote:

> Aspirin has the disadvantage that, even in small doses, it produces nausea and heartburn in certain people, particularly those with highly acid gastric conditions. From idiosyncrasy, there are many reports of feelings of weakness, collapse, angioneurotic swellings of face and throat, skin rashes, major urticaria and rarely death.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Chewing Coffee

Mother seems to have a craving for coffee grounds and is always chewing them. She says she can't stop it. Is something lacking in her system? (R.K.)

Answer—Probably she doesn't get enough vitamin B complex. She should switch to plain wheat, a handful of which makes a fine chew. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet Wheat to Eat.

No Amendments

Your recipe for dry scalp and dandruff, in the booklet The Hair and Scalp, would so-and-so be an effective substitute for the .... And would a hot towel applied over this treatment three times a week for four weeks... (MJ)

Answer—I recommend only the recipes given in the booklet. For copy of the booklet The Hair and Scalp, which deals with dandruff, falling hair, prematurely graying hair, superfluous hair, etc., send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Wild Teen-Agers' Parties Disturb N.J. Mayor

Vallette, N.J., July 19 — (AP) —Drunk and disorderly teenagers have been "raising holy hell," with parades of naked girls and all-night beach parties topping the list of "immoral" activities, Mayor William Chandler has charged.

The mayor said Monday that close to 1,000 boys and girls from 16 to 18 years old invade this tiny beach resort each summer, renting houses and staging a round of parties " completely without morals and without restraint."

Chandler said one large house was rented this year by a high school fraternity group and a sorority, which were supposed to occupy separate floors of the house. He said noise at the house prompted him to stop in, where he found a "brazen parade" of naked girls heading for the show-

Find Live Bomb Shortly After Nehru Arrives

Lucknow, India, July 19 — (Reuters) — A live bomb was discovered Monday on a Lucknow airport runway shortly after the arrival of Indian Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, police announced today.

Police experts who examined the bomb said it was a "highly dangerous type."

Five days ago Nehru escaped unhurt when a bomb was thrown while he was addressing a meeting in Calcutta.

Justice Murphy Of U.S. Supreme Court Dies

Detroit, July 19 — (AP) — Justice Frank Murphy of the United States Supreme Court died today in hospital. He was 59.

Doctors said his death this morning was due to coronary occlusions, a heart affliction.

Murphy was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1940 by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Prior to that, he had served a two-year term as governor of Michigan. He was defeated for re-election.

Before running for governor, Murphy served as the last governal-general of the Philippines. He was also attorney-general of the United States.

The Justice had been ill here for some time but his condition was not regarded as serious.

He never married. For many years he was regarded as one of Washington's most eligible bachelors.

Australian Pilot To Become First "Flying Pearler"

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Darwin, Australia — (CP) — Eric McIlree, a former Royal Australian Air Force pilot of Sydney, is making plans to become the world's first "flying pearler."

McIlree bought two Walrus amphibian planes from the Australian government to fly out over the Indian Ocean in an effort to discover the rich pearl beds known to exist off the northwest coast of Australia.

He will operate from here down the coast to Broome, the famous pearling station on the West Australian coast. His crew will watch for clumps of dugong grass on the sea bed which usually indicate the presence of pearls.

Gasoline and food dumps are being made along the coast so that the aircraft may refuel and head for the open sea without returning to base.

The planes will alight on the sea near dugong grass patches and expert divers will make preliminary search of the area. If pearls are found a radio message will bring waiting luggers with their full equipment to the spot.

Japanese Hold Secret

In the past the Japanese did most of the deep-sea pearling off the Australian coast. They took the secrets of their pearling beds back to Japan with them when war broke out. The Australian government has been trying to obtain the location of their richer beds but so far they have not been successful.

Most of the better known beds were practically stripped out by 1939, but the war years gave them time to grow again.

Some Australian luggers are at sea again with divers combing the old beds with considerable success. The industry's main trouble is the absence of good divers.

The Japanese were the only divers who could go down in the deep waters and the federal government refuses to allow them to return.

Immigration minister Arthur A. Calwell stated he was prepared to see the industry die out rather than re-admit Japanese divers to Australia.

The government, however, knows the industry to be a great potential dollar earner and is doing everything possible to boost it.

Dallas, Tex.—(AP) — A bug got in the second act of "Bloomer Girl" Sunday night and stopped the show.

Star Nanette Fabray had hysterics when the bug fell into her costume. She was unable to continue and the operetta was called off.

Charles R. Meeker, Jr., managing director on the State Fair Casino, explained to the closing night crowd that Miss Fabray had a deep-seated fear of insects, ever since a childhood encounter with a swarm of locusts.

He said all of her costumes had been sprayed with DDT for the open-air shows. No insects had interfered with six shows.

Meeker said that since "Bloomer Girl" was cancelled, the audience would be given admission to another show later this season.

London, —(AP)—Movie actress Michele Morgan is in Britain today on Marlene Dietrich's passport.

When she arrived at a London airport last night after a flight from Paris, she looked at her passport photo and exclaimed:

"That's not me. The hair is all wrong."

Customs men let her in anyway. They recognized her from the movies.

Michele and Marlene both are making films in Britain. They flew to Paris together last week and got their passports mixed up going through customs at Le Bourget Field.

Marlene is due back in London tomorrow—on Michele's passport no doubt.

Gronant, Flintshire, Wales — (CP)—Mrs. A. W. Harris didn't notice the word "Canada" stamped on two eggs she put down in her hen-run because her hen, Bridget, was brooding.

When Bridget got up two chicks were pecking their way out of the shells. They had black-tipped wings.

"They're not a bit like our chicks," said Mrs. Harris. "There's something of the game fowl in them. The eggs must have been at least six weeks old when I got them."

Washington, — (AP) — If a United States Navy anti-rolling gadget from ships works out, sailors won't need sea-legs to walk the decks and gunners can shoot better.

The Navy announced Saturday night a ship stabilization system, designed to reduce the rolling motion of a ship by as much as 80 per cent, is being installed in the minesweeper Peregrine at the Norfolk, Va., navy yard.

The Peregrine will go out into the stormy weather area off the Virginia Capes next month to try out the device.

In the experimental device aboard the Perefrine, two pairs of large tanks are mounted on opposite sides of the ship. High speed pumps, operating automatically, transfer water from one set of tanks to another as the ship starts to roll. The roll thus is partly offset.

Shanghai,—(AP—Chu Liang is a popular Shanghai comedian who performs under the stage name of "Jolly Little Fellow," but the Communist authorities decided today his act was not very funny.

For a skit entitled "Everybody Wants to Eat," he was berated in the press as a reactionary propagandist and has been eliminated from the executive committee of the Actors' and Movie Association.

Eden Says Cuts Harsh on Canada

London July 19 (CP)—Anthony Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative party, said yesterday in the House of Commons he thought it "harsh" that further cuts should be imposed by Britain on imports from Canada.

Continuing a debate on economic affairs he asked how large a proportion of the 15-per-cent reduction in imports from the dollar area, announced last week by the government, will fall on the Dominion.

The reduction was announced by Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, as a means of halting the drain on the gold and dollar reserves of the sterling area.

"I ask deliberately," said Eden, "because we must all feel the greatest reluctance to stop any purchases from Canada at all.

"No country in our history has ever treated us more generously."

Sir Stafford said last week the cuts will not affect the existing food contracts between Britain and Canada, under which the Dominion sends Britain wheat, bacon, cheese, eggs and salmon.

$20,000 Intake From Parking Meters Seen at Sarnia

Sarnia, Ont., July 18 — (CP)—Pennies and nickels dropped in parking meters here this year are expected to give city council a healthy nucleus to start a plan of establishing new parking lots to relieve traffic congestion. Treasurer W. W. Simpson has estimated the 1949 "take" at $20,000.

A master scheme envisaged by a town planing expert a few years ago envisaged a three-storey combined market and parking building, but on account of its cost it has not found much favor in civic circles. The old style parking lot still has the preference.

Boy Carrying Gun As Protection Against Bear, Wounded

Sudbury, Ont., July 18—(CP)—An 11-year-old farm boy is in hospital here in critical condition from wounds in the abdomen after a shotgun accidently discharged yesterday.

Fernand Brosseau, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Brosseau, who farms near Chelmsford, 12 miles north of here, was bringing in the cows when the shooting occurred. He was carrying the gun as protection from a bear which inhabits a wooded area near the farm. There was no explanation how the accident happened.

Strange Charge Puzzles Police

Brantford, Ont., July 19 — (CP) — One of the strangest charges in the annals of police here was laid against a Cainsville youth on Sunday. Sgt. Jack Rowcliffe said that Harold Neeb, 22, of R. R. 2, Cainsville, was caught driving a car which had a red light on the front.

The Highway Traffic Act was searched to find a possible section under which the charge could be laid. Finally one was found which said it was unlawful to have red lights on the front of a private vehicle. On the rear it's OK.

INDIA INCREASES SCHOOL

New Delhi—(CP)—The Hyderabad state government has started a seven-year plan for the expansion of primary education in rural areas. As a start 200 schools with two teachers each and 600 experimental schools with one teacher each are being opened immediately at a cost of $270,000.

WEDDINGS

LEAVITT—WILEY

A pretty noon wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 16, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert L. Wiley, Frankford, when their daughter, Jean Edith, was united in marriage to Homer Allan Leavitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle E. Leavitt, of Wooler.

The ceremony was performed before a background of fern and summer flowers by the Reverend George Nickle, of Toronto.

Miss Marion Free, of Frankford, played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a street length dress of Laurie blue sheer, with matching shoulder length veil, caught with a halo of white flowers. She wore a corsage of white and pink roses.

Miss Anne Nickle, Madoc, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, attired in a street length dress of grey taffeta and lace, with a halo of flowers and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

Little Miss Sharon Wiley, niece of the bride, was flower girl, looking sweet in a white and yellow organdy frock with a yellow taffeta sash and matching hair rosettes. She carried a nosegay of summer flowers.

Mr. Austin Leavitt, Wooler, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

The bride's mother received the guests in a gown of grey flowered crepe with a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in a gown of grey sheer with a corsage of pink roses.

After the reception the happy couple left amind showers of confetti and best wishes, for a motor trip to the United States.

BOYCE—MAXWELL

In Christ Church on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, July 16, the marriage was solemnized by Canon N. R. Stout, Gananoque, of Shirley Allene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Maxwell, to Donald Bertan, son of Mrs. Boyce, and the late Mr. J. B. Boyce.

Mr. Dana Cook, organist of Christ Church provided the wedding music and Mr. Harold Williamson, soloist, sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her imported gown of slipper satin, molded bodice with pearl trimming, full shirt slightly hooped with train. The chapel length veil of silk illusion was caught to a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a white satin prayer book crested with gladioli petals and streamers of white satin ribbon and bouvardia.

The matron of honor was Mrs. John Whalen, sister of the bride, attired in a gown of apple green organdy over taffeta with large matching picture hat. She carried a Colonial bouquet of sweetpeas and roses.

The three bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Boyce, Mrs. Roy Robinson and Miss Catherine Wright, were similarly attired in shades of yellow and green.

The diminutive flower girl, Diane Deyell, cousin of the bride, wore a Juliet frock of white flowered marquisette and she carried a nosegay of sweetpeas and roses.

Robert Boyce, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers were John Whalen, Jack Fetterman of Cleveland, Ohio, and James Crawford, New York.

The reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club, where the mother of the bride, received in a gown of mist grey crepe and lace, with corsage of Pinochio roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing a French gown of titian rose crepe and lace with a corsage of Joanna Hill roses.

For a wedding trip to Chicago, and points west, the bride chose a suit of ivory gabardine with blue accessories and corsage of pink gladioli petals and bouvardia.

After a three weeks' honeymoon, they will take up residence at the Boy-Mor apartments, Belleville.

WILLIAMS—SWEET

Marmora.—The marriage took place in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, at 3 p.m., on Monday, of Wilma Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Sweet, of Marmora, and John Wesley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Williams, of Peterborough. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with hydrangea, blue delphinium and snapdragons. The Reverend G. D. Young, B.A., B.D., pastor of the church, officiated.

The wedding music was played by the organist, Mrs. A. F. Fraser, as the bride entered the church.

Mrs. E. C. Prentice sang "O Father All Creating", and while the register was being signed "I'll Walk Beside You".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was daintily attired in a satin floor length gown, and wore a veil of tulle caught in coronet effect. Her bouquet was of red roses and maidenhair fern.

She was attended by Miss Norma Gray, of Peterborough, as bridesmaid, who wore moire taffeta, a yellow mesh veil with matching mitts. Her bouquet was Sitting Down To Housework Saves Energy

New York, (CP)—In Denmark the women aren't lazy but they do their housework sitting down.

"That's because they're conscious of the need to conserve energy," explains Ellen Heje, homemaking teacher in the public schools of Gentofte, near Copenhagen. "They have so much to do and it is hard to get a maid. Also, it is expensive."

Another reason, says Miss Heje, is because Danish women haven't labor-saving devices. "In my country we would like to have the fine things you have," she said, admiring new models of sinks, ranges, washing machines, refrigerators and other gadgets. "But most of the women do the family washing by hand in tubs in their kitchen. Only the newest apartment houses have automatic washing machines and rentals in those buildings are too high for young couples."

Bills a Problem

Miss Heje plans to stay in this country for two months to visit schools and study the methods of teaching homemaking.

The biggest problem to a Danish housewife is the same as any other housewife's —only more so —where to find the money to pay the rent, food and clothing and medical bills.

Because relatively few women continue to work after marriage there is no dual income on which to depend.

In Denmark even small children in cooking classes are taught to sit down to do as many tasks as possible.

"We all sit down to peel vegetables, make pastry or iron," said Miss Heje.

Boys also are taught cooking, nutrition and home furnishing in the schools and seem to enjoy it, stated Miss Heje.

She was surprised at the number of cars on the street. "In Denmark everyone rides on bicycles. Do they not like bicycles here?" she asked.

erborough, was the groomsman and Robert Sweet, brother of the bride, and Ivan Lavender, acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of sand rayon mesh with white accessories and corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother, who assisted, wore a gown of figured jersey with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

The happy young couple left on a trip to Wasaga Beach, and points west, the bride wearing a blue eyelet embroidered dress with white accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fisher, Rochester, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. William Tinsdill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Southworth, Miss Helen Southworth, Mr. David Southworth all of Toronto; and Mrs. George Holsgood and daughter, Susan of Fort William.

MELROSE

Melrose—Church services in the United Church are discontinued until August 14th when Rev. L. Scott returns from his vacation.

Misses Jean McLaren and Marcia Blatherwick spent the past week at Oak Lake.

Mrs. Tom Eadie and Doothy of Montreal, spent several days with relatives here. Mrs. Eadie was the former Mrs. Bruce Macfarlane.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tripp spent the weekend with Mrs. A.W. McLaren.

Mrs. Wm. McMechan spent the weekend in Belleville at the home of her sister Mrs. John Macfarlane.

Many from here attended the July 12th celebration in Belleville.

Mr. Marshall, cheese maker at Melrose factory was indisposed for a few days last week. Mr. Don McLaren relieved in his absence.

The Reverend and Mrs. Conrad, former Presbyterian minister on the circuit visited the Misses McLaren and renewed acquaintances in the community recently.

Miss Betty Bates has taken a position in the C.D.S Belleville for the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Badgley spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Badgley.

W.M.S.

The July W.M.S meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Badgley with 15 in attendance. The Rev. L. Scott and Mrs. Scott were present and were introduced to the members, this being the first meeting following their arrival to the circuit.

The president opened the meeting and conducted the worship period after which the leader Mrs. J.C. Milligan, acting for the hostess, took charge.

The Missionary Monthly program was followed with a solo by Mrs. Arnold Reilly.

Subscriptions for "Growing With The Years" were taken.

The offering amounting to $4.45 was received.

Hats, Parasols Sprout in Glow Of English Sun

My MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Parasols have returned to milady's wardrobe with the summer heat.

With the thermometer flirting between 85 and 90 —which is really hot for Britain—London outfitters report an unprecedented demand for the saucy summer sunshade. One dealer said he sold 50 in one week—as many as he sells during an entire average season.

Prices run from £2 2s. to as much as £10 10s. and one fashion reporter wrote that so many were carried at Lords during one match as to make the venerable cricket ground recall "an old Victorian print."

The milliners' current campaign to make Britons—male and female—hat-conscious apparently is bearing fruit, for the same event brought out enough straw headgear to elict similar comment.

Women's straws were in a variety of styles ranging from the rather snug beret-type, to broad-rimmed panamas.

A Norwegian visitor gave British designers something to think about with a fetching wide-brimmed affair in lacquered straw, a pastel-tinted ribbon across the crown, over which was tightly stitched a crimson mesh.

Men's Hats

Men's straw tribles boasted brightly-colored, and wide sweatbands, while others of summer-weight white felt had green linings to their brims.

And what the heat has done to the women's legs! Not a stocking in sight where half a century ago nothing of the lower limb was revealed above the tip of the toe. Even the vogue for leg make-up seems to have faded before the strength of 1949's sun.

A new note in ornaments has been introduced by film actor Robert Montgomery's family, here while the United States star is on location with a British production.

Mrs. Montgomery and 16-year-old daughter Betty, wear gold replicas of their pet dogs. Mrs. Montgomery's is a poodle and Betty's a Mexican chihuahua.

Asked by reporters why he'd no similar ornament on his lapel, 14-year-old son, Robert Jr., fingered it thoughtfully before announcing that he was holding out for a Great Dane!

Women's Activities

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Miss Lena Watt opened her home on Wednesday last for the W.M.S. meeting of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Bailey, the president, opened the meeting with call to worship. Miss Spencer read the Scripture lesson taken from Mark's Gospel and Mrs. Bailey gave a talk on the reading "Fishers of Men".

Roll Call was answered with the keyword "Prayer". Minutes were read and business discussion followed. Mrs. Johnston invited the ladies to hold their August meeting at her home. Miss Watt gave a missionary quiz on missionaries and Mrs. Bailey a contest on the Bible. Miss N. Bell gave a reading from the "Glad Tidings" from one of the missionaries. Offering was $2.55. Miss Watt served delicious refreshments.

PLAINFIELD

Girls' Homemakers' Club Entertains Plainfield W.I.

Plainfield—A very interesting meeting of the Plainfield Women's Institute was held on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Harry Harrison, July 14th, when the members of the Girls' Homemakers' Club put on the program. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Violet Elliott, Mrs. Chas. Beatty presided at the meeting. After the usual opening exercises, and business, Mrs. H. Harrison, one of the club leaders took charge.

Mrs. Don Harrison read her club story telling of the highlights of the club unit, "The Club Girl Entertains." She said, "one special event was the banquet the girls held at which our Home Economics Coach, Miss Elsie Irvin was the guest speaker."

There was an exhibit, "a table set for two," which was commented on by Dorothy Hodgen who said, "The table should look attractive. The rules for table setting should be followed. The menu should contain nutritious food with attractive combination of color, flavor and texture. It should be suitable to the occasion and season."

Betty Chumbley gave a demonstration, and some hints on making introductions. "Always introduce a gentleman to a lady; a young person to an older one, and a less distinguished person to a more distinguished person. The correct response is always 'How do you do'."

A demonstration on setting a tea table for afternoon tea was given by Marie Reid. The table looked very attractive with lace cloth, blue and cream colored appointments and silver tea service.

Another interesting exhibit and demonstration was given by Marilyn Meeks on "Flower Arrangements." She said, "flower arrangements should not only be beautiful and artistic, but interesting as well, and demonstrated several ways of arranging flowers."

"Packing a Weekend Bag" was a demonstration very ably given by Muriel Chumbley. She pointed out several valuable hints to the ladies while doing a very quick neat job, thanks to what she learned in the Girls' Club.

The girls' program was concluded by singing their Club Ode.

A hearty vote of thanks was given to the girls for their interesting and helpful program after which refreshments were served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

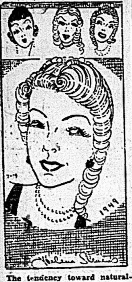
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

What's Your Make-up Rating Lady-

Make-up and perfect grooming are an important part of every woman's life, or they should be. A woman may have a fine mind and a charming personality, but she dates herself if her attire is not up to the mode, if she is careless about appearance. The truth is that the smarter she is the more she realizes that good looks are a passport everywhere. She desires to step along with the pageant keep within fingertouch of her youth. It is senseless not to give heed to these matters that are stimulating and create self-respect.

When hair styles change she does not hang onto the same old arrangement. She is not one to say "I wear what is becoming rather than what is the present fashion." She understands — having a brain that functions — that a coiffure that is a has-been is not becoming; it transforms her into a dud and a frump.



The tendency toward natural-looking loveliness is apparent.

The tendency toward more natural-looking loveiness is apparent. Weird zig-zaggy eyebrows have gone into the limbo of forgotten beauty fads. Widening lips with the rosy glow is no longer being done. Joan Crawford and Katharine Cornell could get away with it, but the run-of-the-mill girls couldn't.

Just what are you doing with your face, my friend? Have you put your mind on the subject? Are you doing your best with the items in the beauty box, getting satisfacory results? Even so, there may be something more to learn about the technique of glorifying the complexion, laying on the dull finish, the rosy blush, the crimson lip smear.

A famous make-up artist says "The mouth is the most mobile feature; the eye the most active; the brow most expressive."

Vivid lipstick accents the mouth and that is why the mouth should have nice smiling manners. Keep the lip-ends lifted. Pulling down the corners is a silly habit, robs the face of radiance.

The beauty of the eyes is increased by the sparkle that comes from an active mind, animation and good nature and sometimes, the discreet use of mascara on the lashes.

The forehead is not up to par if there are little railroad tracks streaking across it or if frown lines have become established. Eyebrows contribute to its charm, hence the need of finding a pattern that is harmonious. They should, rightly, follow the shape of the eyes.

We offer a few suggestions: If you use a compact rouge, apply powder, then rouge, then powder again. If you prefer a cream rouge, which is best for a dry skin, put it on in dots, blend the dots together, apply powder lightly; never grind it in with a pad.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

"All Aboard" . . . With Your Train Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Famous Authority on Good Manners and Good Taste

Don't push your way into a train. Enter quickly, of course, if there are passengers behind you. But don't shove your manners and the other passengers aside in your grim determination to capture the best seat . . . or else.

If someone is occupying part of a seat, the polite traveller asks, "Is this seat taken?" It's one of those small acts of grace that show our mannerliness.

Don't be a seat-hog. Don't monopolize an entire seat when you can see . . . you can see, can't you? . . . that other passengers are looking for seats. Don't make believe that you are asleep or so engrossed in a book or in looking at the scenery that you just don't notice that the train is filling up and that the place in your seat is needed . . . so to make some traveller as comfortable as you are. Don't be so selfish as to force a passenger who is entitled to a seat, to ask, "May I sit here?" or "Is this seat taken?" Before you're rated as a selfish grump, instantly remove your belongings from the seat that doesn't belong to you.

Don't put your feet on the cushion of the seat in front of you. This is an obvious discourtesy to the next occupant of that seat.

Don't greedily turn the seat over and place your belongings on it. Another trick of the seat-hog!

If, in getting to your seat next to the window, you have to pass in front of a passenger in the aisle seat, courteously ask, "May I pass, please?" and say a courteous "Thank You" when you have passed. A man sitting in the aisle seat should rise to let a woman pass in or out. A woman needn't rise, but she may, if she sees that this will make for better comfort, both to her fellow passenger and herself.

Windows and window-shades are often a courtesy-problem on trains. The polite passenger seated next to the window is regardful of the comfort of the person seated in the same seat, and of those directly behind or in front. Considerate questions, such as "Do you mind if I open this window?" or "Would you mind if I put down this shade?" are, naturally, appreciated and usually consented to.

Have a considerate regard for other people's nostrils! Don't pack a lunch box with odoriferous foods. Don"t eat bananas or juicy foods on trains. And don't use heavy perfumes when you are travelling.

Don't smoke at times or in places when you are not supposed to. When you are smoking in a dining-car or lounge car, be sure to press out your cigarette or cigar when you have finished smoking . . . don't, please don't, leave it smouldering. And for an ash-tray, use an ash-tray . . . not your plate or a saucer, or, worst of all, don't dunk your cigarette in your cup.

Don't be a monopolizer. Don't, when with a group, monopolize the platform of an observation car, or the radio in a lounge or club car. Don't monopolize the chairs-for-smokers in the smoking compartments in the new air-conditioned cars . . . when you've finished smoking, don't continue to occupy a chair when you see that other passengers are looking for places in the smoking compartment. Don't monopolize the mirror or washbowl in the dressing-room.

Be a "neat and tidy" traveller. Don't leave, anywhere in the train, evidences of your disregard for others. "Other-fellow-ism" is a wonderful creed!

When you make inquiries, make them of the proper official or attendant.

And say a pleasant "Thank you" to a trainman or porter, or anyone else who does you a service.

The Mixing Bowl

By ANN ALLAN
(Hydro Home Economist)

To a small boy it doesn't make much difference whether it's jam, jelly, a preserve or a conserve. He likes toast and whatever goes with it. To mother, the true flavor, the color and the consistency of these mixtures must be just right. A perfect jell must be made from the correct proportions of pectin, acid sugar and water. Fruits do not contain all these in the necessary proportions. They vary, especially in the amounts of pectin and acid as well as sweetness and moisture. Only the juice of crabapples, sour apples, cranberries, currants, gooseberries, sour plums, and grapes have good jelly properties (to make other fruits into jelly a recipe should be followed). Measured quantities of sugar and extracted juice, 3-4 cup sugar for each cup of juice, usually produces a shimmering jelly. The boiling syrup is tested every three minutes. When allowed to run off the edge of a metal spoon two drops form and then flow together to form a "sheet", and the jelling point has been reached. Remove from the electric element and skim. Longer boiling will produce tough jelly.

Fill hot, sterile glasses to within 1-4 of an inch of the top. Using a slightly moistened clean cloth, carefully remove any jelly clinging to the inside of glass above the jelly level.

When partially cool, pour a thin layer of melted wax over the jelly. When this has hardened, add a second layer of wax, tipping the jar so that the wax will adhere to the sides of the glass. Do not put on a lid if the wax is over the rim, since the lid in pushing the wax down breaks the seal and fermentation may result. Label and store in a cool place.

TAKE A TIP

1. To extract juice, water may be added to crushed or cubed fruit. For apples or crabapples, use enough water to cover and boil 20 minutes. For 8 cups of currants or berries, add 1-2 cup of water and crush. Stir and boil 10 minutes.

2. Do not boil more than 8 cups of drained juice at one time. Measure each lot accurately to determine the amount of sugar to be added.

3. A large, deep saucepan is best for such mixtures which tend to froth.

4. The pectin test should be made before the sugar is added to the juice. Mix 1 teaspoon fruit juice and one teaspoon rubbing alcohol and in a matter of few seconds the mixture should begin to cloth. If it doesn't clot add a tablespoonful of lemon juice to the 8 cups of liquid and a little more sugar—this test mixture must be put down the sink as it is poisonous.

5. Syrup should be boiled quickly for best results.

6. It is easy to skim scum with a silver fork.

7. Weepy jelly will be the result if jars are sealed while too hot.

RED CURRANT AND RASPBERRY JELLY

Crush 1 quart raspberries and add 1-2 cup water. Boil for 10 minutes, or until fruit is soft and mushy. Drain through moist jelly bag. (Approximately 1 3-4 cups of juice.)

Mash 3 cups red currants and add 1 cup water. Boil for 10 minutes or until fruit is soft and mushy. Drain through moist jelly bag. Yield: approximately 1 3-4 cups.

Combine 1 3-4 cups each of red currant and raspberry juice and boil 10 minutes. Add 2 1-2 cups sugar and boil until it reaches the jellying stage — approximately 6 minutes.

GOOSEBERRY JAM

Wash and top and tail gooseberries. To 4 cups fruit (1 1-2 pounds) add 1-4 cup water. Cook till berries are tender. Add 1 1-8 pounds sugar and stir until dissolved. Boil 5 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal with parowax.

THIMBLEBERRY JAM

- 1 cup mashed berries
- 1-4 cup water
- 1 tablespoon lemon jectin
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 3-4 cup sugar

Add water and lemon juice to berries. Cook slowly until soft. Add lemon, pectin and sugar. Mix thoroughly and boil to the jellying point.

CITRON, MELON PRESERVES

Remove the green outer rind and cut the melon in 1-inch cubes. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender and transparent. Drain carefully. For each pound of melon, make a syrup of 3-4 cup sugar and 1-2 cup water and skim thoroughly. Then add the melon and 1 lemon, cut in slices and 1 oz. of preserved ginger for each pound of fruit. Cook all together 20 to 30 minutes. Carefully remove the melon to hot sterilized jars. Boil the syrup till rich and thick and pour over the fruit in the jars. Seal.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Husband Takes An "Occasional" Drink

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have always been taught that drinking any kind of liquor was a "must not."

About six months ago, I married a man whose family is more modern, and thinks nothing of drinking. We quarrel quite frequently about this, and every time he comes home from his mother's or after work, I keep thinking that he has been drinking.

I knew, before we were married, that my husband took an occasional drink, but it didn't matter then. Lately, it annoys me very much, and it turns me against him, even though I love him very much and wouldn't want anything to happen to our marriage.

Can you help me?

Mrs. P. P.

Dear Mrs. P. P.:

If you knew this about your husband before marriage, and "it didn't matter then," then I don't think you can logically or fairly nag him about it now. You accepted this while you were engaged; you can't turn around and make an issue of it just because you're his wife. Were you, perhaps, one of those misguided women who overlook a fault in a man with the idea of reforming him once they're married to him? Such a plan is never successful.

I think you should take yourself in hand and resolve to stop making both yourself and your husband miserable about this matter. If you don't look out, you'll have your marriage on the verge of disaster before you know it. Your husband is much more likely to want to please you if you're reasonable and pleasant about things than if you scold and mope. After all, a man who takes an occasional drink is entirely different from a drunkard who abuses and mistreats his family.

Her Boy Friend Admires Other Girls—She Resents It.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My problem seems very childish, but here it is.

I have been going with a boy for a year and a half, and he has told me he loves me and has proved it in many ways. I know he is very true to me, but when we are out together, he always looks at other girls, and if they are nice-looking and have a nice figure, he says something about it to me. I am built big, and naturally I feel very self-conscious.

Is it only natural for boys to look at other girls, or am I just jealous and very silly? I don't want to be unreasonable.

P.

Dear P.:

Yes, I think you'll have to accept the fact that it's a masculine trait to enjoy looking at a nice figure, even though it belongs to another girl than the one in whom a man is actually most interested. On the other hand, it's only natural, too, for his real girl friend to feel a bit hurt by this sort of thing.

But men aren't going to change in this way, I'm afraid, and since you feel so sure this chap is true to you, and you've been going together for a year and a half, you'd better just be satisfied that you come first with him, and laugh the rest off.

Fine Vacation AT LAKE NIPISSING

For a grand fishing holiday, follow the trail blazed by Champlain—by No. 17 highway from Ottawa. Or travel No. 11 from Toronto. A day's driving will bring you to North Bay, Ontario's trans-Canada rail, plane and highway centre—gateway to Lake Nipissing. The waters of this lake are recognized as the finest pickerel fishing spots in North America—truly a fisherman's paradise. There are daily steamer trips from North Bay to French River—famous for muskie, pike and bass fishing. You can bring the family along too. They'll enjoy the lake's many beaches and resorts—Sturgeon Falls, Cache Bay and Callander, home of the Quintuplets. The Board of Trade, North Bay, Ont. will be glad to send you full details of holiday accommodation in the district.

In Ontario we have a holiday paradise . . . let's do all we can to encourage visitors from across the border. Published in support of the tourist business by John Labatt Limited.

Raspberry Jam is Wonderful made the Easy "Sure-Results" Way... with CERTO

1. You'll be amazed how QUICK it is . . . how EASY. First you crush 2 quarts fully ripe berries (Yes! RIPE fruit — not under-ripe as in old-fashioned recipes). Measure 4 cups prepared fruit and 6½ cups sugar into large saucepan or kettle. Mix well, bring to full rolling boil over high heat. Stir constantly before and while boiling.

2. Boil hard one minute only. (The boil is so short it cannot dull the natural colour or spoil the lovely fresh-fruit taste. They stay right in your jam.) Remove from heat and stir in half-bottle of Certo. Stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Then ladle into glasses and paraffin quickly.

3. You get 10 glasses instead of 6. Because you don't have to "boil down" your jam to make it set, practically no juice can waste away in steam. So you get about 10 glasses instead of the 6 you'd expect from long-boil recipes (Certo helps ALL fruits to jell perfectly with an average yield of 50% more jam or jelly).

Certo is nothing but fruit pectin — the natural substance in fruit which makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell"—extracted and concentrated for easier, quicker, better jam and jelly making. The name "Certo" is a trade-mark.

THIS IS YOUR CERTO RECIPE BOOKLET
CERTO

Look for book of 78 tested Recipes under the Label

A POUND OF JAM OR JELLY MADE WITH CERTO CONTAINS NO MORE SUGAR THAN A POUND MADE THE OLD, LONG-BOIL WAY.

4. No guesswork — sure results. With Certo Fruit Pectin you get 78 kitchen-tested recipes — a different one for each fruit. While the season lasts why not make several kinds of jam and jelly for those long winter months? But be sure to follow the Certo recipes exactly . . . don't change a thing . . . and your jams and jellies will always turn out right.

Old Country Letter:

Unofficial Strikes Cause Growing Impatience With U.K. Union Leaders

By H. P. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 19 — (CP) — Unofficial strikes are casting a deepening shadow across the British labor scene, threatening industry with serious disruption at a critical time.

Britain has not had a major official strike backed by a union since the war. But the incidence of unofficial work stoppages in defiance of union leaders has been steadily on the increase.

Last year strikes occurred in the coal fields contrary to the advice of the National Union of Mine Workers. Dock workers strike tied up the port of London for more than one week at a cost of millions of pounds despite union pleas to the men to return to work. This year there have been unofficial "go-slows" on railways and more stoppages on London docks, all without union consent.

Union conferences have ignored recommendations by executives. Some top labor leaders such as Arthur Deakin, secretary of the General and Transport Workers Union, have been heckled by the rank and file.

No Split Admitted

Union leaders themselves will not admit there is any "split" between the union hierarchy and workers. Men such as Sir William Lawther, once a coal-pit boy and now president of the N.U.M., say Communist agitators who get into the uninon are to blame. They gain the confidence of a disgruntled few and spread dissatisfaction.

The Labor government, watching the situation closely, also blames Communist agitators. It has told dock workers involved in the current Canadian-born dispute, that they are dupes of Communist elements.

But Whitehall shows growing irritation with the inability of union heads to check unofficial stoppages. Labor Minister George Isaacs recently scolded two dockland unions for failure to make their stand clear against the dockers' walkout and to take action to end the dispute.

There is an apparent belief in Whitehall that union leaders should get closer to the rank and file.

The Times said in a recent editorial that the dock dispute of a year ago demonstrated the meagre influence exerted by union leaders.

Too Easy for Reds

"Too often it is absurdly easy for Communists to lead stupid or irresponsible men astray on any pretext without the figure heads of trade unions or labor minister being able to do anything about it," the Times said.

"This Achilles Heel of the labor movement, with all that it might mean, is in for still sterner times and has not been cured in the past 12 months . . . The gap between the leaders and men remains so large that it is always possible for work to be stopped at a vital point in the nation's life suddenly and without excuse or regard to obligations which the men have contracted.

"Beneath the surface of British industry there is a steady and perilous undertow of irresponsibility — and dissatisfaction."

Ocean Scientists Will Probe Pacific's Secret

Vancouver—(CP)—The Pacific Ocean will come in for some close study in the near future.

The University of British Columbia has decided to submit plans for an institute of oceanography to the university senate.

The plans call for close liaison with government departments to "develop an intensive study of the ocean."

President N. A. M. MacKenzie said "we are glad that it seems possible to begin this work in oceanography. The study of ocean currents and the chemical, physical and biological aspects of large ocean areas have come to play an increasingly vital role in the welfare of this nation in peace as in war.'

Col. H. B. Hachey and Dr. J. P. Tully, scientists with the Dominion Fisheries Board, conducted extensive oceanic studies during war service with the R.C.N. The two men may again be prominent in the post-war study of oceanography.

Already the university is going ahead with its plans for the specialized training required in this field.

Graduate students are to be given instruction immediately, with the introductory courses included in the fall schedule.

Radar operators during wartime discovered large bodies of ocean water nearly impervious to radar waves. Scientists believe that temperature and degree of saltiness have an effect on the radar signals.

Dr. G. M. Shrum, head of the physics department, said, "It is quite possible for schools of fish or other objects to lie undetected in such a body of water. There are many such areas in the Pacific.

"We want to chart them and learn how to overcome the radar problem involved."

Isle of Manx is Taxation Shangri-La

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Douglas, Isle of Man, July 19—(CP) — Manxmen lost little sleep over income taxes. But they keep a wary eye on Sir Stafford Cripps.

Although part of the United Kingdom, this island in the Irish Sea is a taxation Shangri-La compared with the heavily-burdened mainland.

Manxmen want to keep it that way. But they concede the "prophet of austerity" in London could spoil it all.

On the mainland a married man with two children earning £10 ($40) a week pays an annual income tax of £22 10s. On the Isle of Man he pays only 10s.

On top of that there is no entertainment tax, no death duty, no excess profits tax. Beer sells for fourpence a half pint.

The 227-square-mile island, whose main business is the tourist trade, is governed by one of the most ancient legislative assemblies in the world, the Tynwald, whose lower chamber is called the House of Keys.

Direct taxation is low because the island government relies on customs revenue for the bulk of its income. Customs duties, along with purchase tax, are collected by British revenue officers, the treasury paying the Manx government a percentage of the amount collected.

Manxmen know their taxation paradise could be quickly wrecked if the British treasury decided to get tough. Every now and then a hint comes from the mainland that the island's life is too privileged.

But the islanders argue their taxes are low because they manage economically. They remind the mainlander that during the last 10 years the Manx government has made free gifts to the British government totalling £1,250,000, and has loaned another £1,000,000 free of interest.

In addition, the island has been making an annual contribution of £10,000 to the British budget. Recently the treasury suggested that this amount be increased to £100,000 a year.

Some fear this proposal might be the first of a series of unpleasant fiscal changes. But meanwhile the Manx are busy entertaining the season's tourist influx — 650,000 visitors, expected to leave close to £10,000,000 in the tight little island's cash boxes.

Thousands in North Shown First Movies

Winnipeg — (CP) — The airplane and radio have become routine in Manitoba's lonely northland but many thousands of Indians and a few white people have yet to see a motion picture.

The Canadian Forestry Association, as part of its educational program of forest fire prevention, recently undertook to send sound movies to northern inhabitants.

The images that move and talk are to many of the natives one of the most amazing types of "black magic" to come out of the white man's cities.

In several communities 1,000 miles north of here, Indian audiences packed churches, schools and halls to witness their first movie. They travelled for many miles by canoe to see the show which was advertized by poster and moccasin telegraph. Whole families came, from the smallest papooses to tribal patriarchs.

Kiwanis Tag RCAF Flyers With 14-3 Loss

Tagging R.C.A.F. hurlers for three hits, a walk and four runs, Kiwanis Juniors romped to a decisive 14-3 victory at the Fair Grounds Monday night. Kiwanis using two pitchers for a total of ten strike outs and six walks, held the Flyers scoreless for six innings of play.

The Juniors started their scoring in the second frame when Soules turned his free ticket into a run. The total jumped to three when Wright and Gilmour crossed the plate.

Kiwanis strengthened their lead in the third when three more runners reached home, led by Strahan. Soules and Wright followed with their second runs in as many innings. At this point Scott replaced Charron on the mound for the Fliers and took the next three in order to retire the side.

Bush scored one in each of the fourth and sixth to bring the Juniors' lead to eight.

The Fliers attempted a comeback in the seventh as they scored three runs on three hits, a walk and an error. Scott started away for the under-dogs with Maracle and Dunning getting in on the play to chalk up three runs for the R.C.A.F. boys. Here they stayed until the end.

The Juniors came back strong in their half of the seventh adding five runs to their score. Doing the honors for the Juniors in this inning were Wright, Schrieder, Brown, Semark and Bradshaw with Schrieder pinch-hitting for Gilmour.

Wright scored the final run in the eighth on a single.

Nolan started at the mound for the victors striking out eight, walking six and offering up only two hits. He was replaced in the seventh by Semark who struck out two and gave up three hits.

Charron started for the losers striking out two, walking one and giving up three hits. Scott came in to the mound in the third striking out five, walking four and giving up eight hits. Dunning relieved Scott in the eighth to take the third out to retire the Juniors.

Waste Oil Fouls Five Miles Shoreline

Toronto, July 19 — (CP) — Greasy waves of oil rolled up along five miles of Lake Ontario shoreline near here Monday night and police said they received complaints from several cottagers and bathers. Origin of the oil still is undetermined.

Two large refineries (British American and Trinidad Leaseholds) disclaimed responsibility. Some cottagers suggested that a tanker was piping sludge somewhere near the shore. Officials estimated that several thousand gallons had been released.

Aussie Davis Cup Team Likes Canadian 'Grub'

Montreal, July 19—(CP)—Daylight saving time is biting into the slumber of Australia's Davis Cup Tennis Team, now in training for the North American Zone Cup tie matches with Canada here this week.

That's what Cliff Sproule, team manager, said Monday. But he added that he and his charges are "very comfortable here and the food is great—just like home."

Sproule said his players, ambidextrous John Bromwich, 30, Frank Sedgman, 21, and Billy Sidwill, 29, are in splendid shape and that they manage to get to bed nightly by 10:30 p.m.

In any trainer's book, such hours would be considered tops. But Sproule, a banker by profession, said it could be better.

"They would retire earlier if it weren't for daylight saving time," he said. "In Australia, where there is no daylight saving time, it gets dark at 7:30 p.m. Here it's daylight almost another two hours."

(It now is winter in Australia which is why it gets dark so early).

Both the Australians and Canada's four-member squad of Henri Rochon and Brendan Macken, both of Montreal, and the Vancouver pair of Lorne Main and Walter Stohlberg missed their daily workout Monday because of rain.

"We'll have to make up for lost time today with two practices," said Sproule. "In tennis, you can't have too much practice and, while we're confident of winning this round, we're not under estimating the merits of the Canadians. They're a good team.

Gordon MacNeil of Montreal, non-playing captain of the Canadian squad, also thinks he has a good team—the best Canada has produced in years. He is hoping to spring a surprise on the Aussies.

Waterloo Tigers, Kitchener Wage Battle for Lead

(By the Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers and Kitchener Legionnaires are waging a bitter battle for top spot in the Intercounty Senior Baseball loop.

Last night the Tigers pulled into a first-place tie with the Legionnaires by building up a four-run lead in the first two innings and then coasting to a 4-3 victory at Kitchener.

In the second Intercounty game of the night, London Majors uncorked an eight inning rally to defeat the St. Thomas Legionnaires 7-5.

In the Nickel Belt Loop, big Bill Soliski paced his Coniston Buzzers to a 9-1 win over the Garson Greyhounds.

At Kitchener, a crowd of some 5,000 fans saw the two clubs play nip-and-tuck ball. In the eighth inning Kitchener had the bases loaded with one man out, but a pick-off play at third and a strikeout ended the rally.

Cy Bricker started on the mound for Tigers and was credited with the win. He was relieved in the eighth with two men on bases by Jack Griffen. Griffen got one man out on an infield fly but walked one and threw wildly to third to allow a run. Al Dumouchelle then took over. He passed manager Bobby Schnurr and struck out Roy Tredgett with the bases loaded.

Remember Lefty?

At St. Thomas, Lefty Garton of the Legionnaires hurled a steady game until the fatal eighth inning when the Majors scored five runs on five hits and a walk. He was relieved by Jack Cabot, who in turn gave way to Bill Wagner. Russ Getsingers finished up in the ninth frame.

Ken McFadden with three hits in five trips at bat led London hitters. Joe Bechard, Russ Evon and Gil Robertson hit doubles.

At Sudbury, the Buzzers combined for one run in the third, four in the fifth, three in the seventh and added one in the eighth. Soliski struck out five batters and issued two walks while opposing pitcher Sid Forster gave up four hits but allowed seven walks.

One game is scheduled in the Nickel Belt League tonight. Copper Cliff Redmen meet Creighton Cubs. In the Niagara District League, St. Catharines meet Niagara Falls Fords, the Kicks clash with Welland and the Bugays meet Nort Tonawanda, N.Y.

Cleveland Flagpole Sitter Ready to Descend as Tribe Surges Upward to Top Slot

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

That Cleveland flagpole sitter had better get ready to come down.

Seven weeks ago, one Charles Lipuca climbed atop a 16-foot wooden flagpole over his drug store and vowed he would not come down until the Indians climbed to first place in the American League.

At the time, the Indians were mired in seventh place.

But what a difference the next 49 days made! The Tribe did an about-face and went on to win 31 of their next 47 games to rush past five opponents into second place.

Today, the Indians are in their best spot since May 10. Following Monday night's 1-0 victory over Boston Red Sox, the Redmen are only 4½ games behind the Yankees. The Yankees helped the Indians also by blowing a 6-5 decision to the White Sox in Chicago.

The Tribe's latest hero is rookie righthander Mike Garcia, who beat Mickey McDermott, the brilliant Red Sox rookie, in a brilliant hurling duel.

Tribes New Rookie

The only run of the game came in the last half of the fifth when Lou Boudreau beat out an infield hit and scored on a long double by catcher Jim Hegan.

A single with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th inning by George Metkovich scored Fred Hancock and Steve Souchock with the runs that gave the White Sox their victory over the Yankees. The rally wiped out a two-run lead the Yankees had built up in their half of the 10th.

Philadelphia Athletics wrested third place from the Red Sox by outlasting Detroit Tigers 13-8 in a 10-inning struggle. The A's blew an 8-1 lead when Detroit's Johnny Groth blasted two homers, each with two mates aboard, but rallied for five runs in the 10th. Brooklyn Dodgers increased their National League margin over St. Louis Cardinals to 2½ games, beating Chicago 3-0 while New York Giants downed the Redbirds 7-4. Lefty Joe Hatten pitched the shutout for the Dodgers, limiting the Cubs to five hits. Jackie Robinson starred for the Brooks. In the sixth he swiped home for the third time this season, and in the eighth, he tripled to score Gene Hermanski with Brooklyn's final run.

Lefty Monte Kennedy lifted the Giants out of a three-game tail-spin with the help of home runs by Sid Gordon and Bobby Thomson.

Cincinnati Reds, behind a combination three-hitter by Ewell Blackwell and Eddie Erautt, whipped the third-place Boston Braves, 6-1.

Held scoreless for seven innings Pittsburgh Pirates erupted for seven runs in the eighth to defeat the Phillies in Philadelphia, 7-2

Yanks Invade Field for Tennis Title

Halifax, July 19 (CP) —Tennis fans take a squint at the galaxy of United States stars scheduled to invade these parts for the Canadian Lawn Tennis championship Aug. 1-6 and shake their heads. "It'll be the same old story," they fear.

Entries close July 27 and so far nine Americans have filed applications. Canadian players are going to have plenty of trouble keeping the championships they won last year under Canadian registry. All but one of the major championships now are held by Canadians.

The exception is the men's singles title won in Toronto last year by William J. (Billy) Tully of Bronxville, N. Y., and he'll be back to defend it.

Heading the Dominion's Contingent, which hope to keep more than just the playing of the championships in Canada will be Davis Cuppers Henri Rochon and James Macken of Montreal and Lorne Main and Walt Stohlberg of Vancouver.

TAKING NO CHANCES

Lindsay, Ont. — (CP) — Mayor R. I. Moore objected recently to paying theft insurance on the town's new fire pumper truck. He changed his mind when Alderman R. Butler commented: "I read recently where somebody stole an airplane."

Four Teams in 2nd Place Tie In Int. Loop

By The Associated Press

There is a red-hot four-way race going on in the International League- -for second place.

With Buffalo Bisons currently showing their heels, second place appears to be the prize goal for four clubs- -Montreal, Jersey City Rochester and Toronto, the later a game and a half behind.

Jersey City moved into the triple tie for second Monday night by outscoring Baltimore 9-7 while the Royals and Red Wings were dividing doubleheader. The Royals won the opener 3-0 and the Red Wings took the nightcap 12-10.

Pete Pavlick's two-run triple in the eighth inning capped a four-run rally to give the little Giants the victory.

Johnny Van Cuyk outpitched Cloyd Boyer as the Royals tallied three eimes in the eighth inning to win the opener. Chuck Connors broke up the scoreless duel by hitting a homer with Al Gionfrido on base. Gearge Schmees followed with another circuit clout.

Ed Mierkowicz' second homer of the game, with one on in the eighth inning, enabled the Red Wings to win the nightcap. Steve Bilko followed with another homer to provide the clincher.

Sammy Meeks drove in five runs with a home run and single to lead Syracuse to an 11-2 triumph over the hapless Bears.

Wants More Cash Jackie Robinson Tells Rickey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Third-seeded Don Hooper of Kingston Monday entered the quarter-final round of the Ontario closed Junior Tennis Championship with a convincing 6-4, 6-0 victory over Dick Ring of Toronto. In other Junior men's singles matches Grant Logie, Toronto won from H. McGillicuddy, Woodstock 2-6, 8-6, 6-3; and Pat Davis, Aurora, downed Sandy McLeod, Whitby 3-6, 9-7, 7-5.

Three contestants for the women's singles title eliminated their opponents in straight sets. Mary Randall, Hamilton, defeated Jane Corriere, St. Thomas, 6-1, 6-2; Daphne Cross, Woodstock, defeated Barbara Proudfoot, Toronto; 6-3, 6-4; and Gloria Stanford, Toronto defeated Ann Hilliard Windsor, 6-2, 6-3.

Thirty-seven players from 12 Ontario clubs are entered in the tournament.

Chet Gladchuck, 250-pound former head football coach of Bridgeport, Conn., University Monday signed a contract to play for Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four. He was an All-American in 1940.

After suffering a deep gash over his left eye early in the first round, Rockey Graziano, 159 ½, of New York, knocked out Joe Agosta, 159 ½, of Brooklyn, in 2:19 of the second session before their scheduled 10-round feature boxing bout Monday night before 4,5000 at West Springfield, Mass.

Jackie Robinson, in a roundabout way, Monday served notice on boss Branch Rickey of Brooklyn Dodgers that he wants more money in 1950. The negro star, leading hitter in the National League and top candidate for the most valuable player award, used an appearance before a congressional committee in Washington to break the news. Robinson told the members, among other things:

"It isn't very pleasant for me to find myself in the middle of a public argument that has nothing to do with the standing of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the pennant race- - or even the pay raise I am going to ask Mr. Branch Rickey for next year."

The Cincinnati Boxing Commission Monday formally petitioned the National Boxing Association to suspend Ezzard Charles and Gus Lesnevich if they go through with their 15-round bout in New York City Aug. 10.

Sam Becker, Cincinnati proto a contract calling for a return moter, has Lesnevich's signature bout with Joey Maxim for the N.B.A.'s American 175-pound title Sept. 19. The contract prohibits the former world's light heavyweight champion from engaging in either a contest or an exhibition before tht bout.

At Cowes, Isle of Wright, Great Britain Monday took a commanding lead in the British-American cup competition for six-metre yachts by scoring its second victory, 21¼ points to 14. Britain now leads 2-0, and needs only two more victories to win the cup.

New York Yankees Monday night announced the optional release of pitcher Frank Shea, freshman hero of the 1947 season with 14 victories, to Newark of the International League. Shea won the 1947 all-star game for the American League. Lately, he has had an ailing right arm and a sore neck.

Jaroslav Drobny and Vladimir Cernik, the two Czechoslovakian tennis exiles, Monday visited the United States Consulate here to discuss the possibility of obtaining visas for the United States. They drove here from Gstaad, Switzerland, where they appeared last week in the Swiss tennis championships and defied an order of the Communist-dominated Czech government to return home. They announced they will become political exiles and seek refuge in the United States.

Our Time Monday night captured her fourth major harness stake in three weeks at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., as she led from wire to wire to take the $5,000 Ash Grove race for two-years-olds. The filly never surrendered the lead in the feature Grand Circuit race. The time was 2:09 1-5.

Venue of the Mann Cup lacrosse play-offs may be switched to Vancouver Island, Lyle Barr, President of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, said Monday. He was commenting on a Toronto report that Ontario would be unable to send its squad west before Sept. 25. Original play-off date was Sept. 18.

"This forces us to look elsewhere," said Barr. "Our contract at Vancouver Forum expires the end of September."

Bob Hamilton of Landover, Md., Monday earned the last place on the United States Ryder Cup team when he finished in a fourth-place tie with five other players in the Dapper Dan open tournament at Pittsburgh. The team, which will play a British side at Canton, England, Sept. 16 and 17, was named immediately after the end of the tournament Monday by the Professional Golfers' Association. The make-up includes Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Johnny Palmer, of Badin, N.C., E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Richmond, Va., Stewart (Skip) Alexander of Lexington, N.C., Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N.C., Chick Harbet of Detroit, and Hamilton.

Sammy Snead Monday responded to pressure by shooting a one-under-par 71 on the final round to win the Dapper Dan open golf tournament at Pittsburgh with a 72 hole total of 274. Snead finished one stroke ahead of Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, who fired a brilliant 67.

Neil G. Mendelson, veterinary surgeon, Monday was denied privileges on Ontario race tracks under the jurisdicton of the incorporated Canadian Racing Association. The ruling was made following further investigation of reports that Cheek, winner of a race at Fort Erie track last Thursday, had been stimulated. The matter is expected to go before the I.C.R.A. Board soon for final decision.

Plans to test a ban on Sunday sport in Toronto will be shelved until next month if the North Toronto Baseball Association is unable to obtain Maple Leaf stadium for a game next Sunday. Don North, Association president, said Monday. Sunday sports are not banned under the Lord's Day Act but by a city by-law of 1915. A delegation will visit city hall, he said ,to study the restricting by-law and obtain legal advise concerning its validity.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Groundwork for an Eastern Ontario Baseball Tournament was laid at a meeting held in Kingston the other day by members of the Kingston Baseball Association and representatives of other leagues and teams. The proposed tournament dates were set for August 15(16-17 and 18 with all games being played at Megaffin Stadium, Kingston. Arrangements have been completed with stadium officials and the tournament executive is now sitting back awaiting entries.

Bob Nesbitt, mentor of the Kingston Athletics Club proposed that 8 or 10 games be played with the top team guaranteed a percentage of the gross receipts. Entries will be invited from Belleville, Napanee, Brockville, Batawa, Gananaque, Picton and other district centres. Ponies and Athletics, Kingston senior squads will enter the tourney.

* * *

Ed. Watts, well-known Kingston sportsman was named head of the tournament executive, Nesbitt is vice-president; Maxie Jackson, secretary and Barney Curran, treasurer. Executive members are Glenn Brennan, George Little and Jim Fowler.

Entry deadline was set for August 1 and the fee is $10. At the present time, according to a Kingston despatch, a double elimination series is contemplated with two games each evening starting at 7 p.m. It is possible that one or two games may be played on the Wednesday afternoon. Consideration, it says here, was also given to holding a straight elimination series with nine or ten teams in all.

It's a cinch that one of two things has happened insofar as Sammy Mulholland, hockey-baseball star formerly of Kingston is concerned. Either Sammy has slipped but badly in his diamond game or the Inter-County League entry from Kitchener is far mre powerful than reports would have one believe. However, Sammy has been given his release by the Kitchener Club as it appears the outfielder-pitcher was not "making" with the class of baseball desired to maintain a spot on the Western Ontario club.

Mulholland was voted the most valuable player to his team in the COBL last season when he played with the Kingston Locos. From what this corner saw last season, the youthful star could hold his own with any senior club in the province—so Sammy must have slipped considerable—or Kitchener seniors are a mightly ball club. Mulholland played pro hockey with the Philadelphia Rockets in the American League before the Detroit Red Wings purchased him.

Sergt. "Mike" Kelly postcards this corner from what he dubs the land of the "herring, cod and lobsters" plus the produce of Jamaica, which "aint" sugar chums, although a close relative. "Mike" is stationed at Summerside, "Spud"—pardon—Prine Edward Island where baseball is king and harness-racing the favorite of the islanders next to herring and jacketed spuds. Kelly was, as sports fans hereabouts recall, the "Jack of all Sports" at Trenton Air Station for quite some time. In fact, he will be back sometime in September if he's not clawed to death by those ferocious crustaceans, or gobbled alive by oversize cod or upholstered herring beforehand.

What should be one of the best double headers of the current softball season comes up tonight when Provincial Engineers tangle with Shell Oil in the first game and Northen Electric meets Corbys in the nightcap.

Both the Engineers and the Oilers are battling for a playoff spot and tonight's game will probably decide it one way or the other for both teams. The Engineers have played eight games and come off with an even 4-4 split having dropped some tough ones along the route. Shell will be playing their final scheduled game having taken five of nine to date. Both teams are expected to be at full strength and the game shapes up as a dandy.

In the second game Northern Electric lays its eight game undefeated record on the line against Corbys who trail the league leaders by the loss of one game. Should the Electrics fall to the Corbys squad, and there are many who think they will, there will be a three way traffic jam for first place in the league standings with Houstons "Knotholers" completing the trio. However, should Corbys falter, Northern looks like a cinch to romp in undefeated. In any case there should be action aplenty along the softball front tonight. The first game gets away at 6.30 at the Alemite Field.

A wrestling plum that many cities have been clamoring for has been signed for Friday night's mat feature at the Memorial Arena, when Fred Atkins, the British Empire and Australian champion, will defend his empire crown against Whipper Billy Watson, the former empire titleholder and former world champion.

Atkins showed he's a Gibraltar-like ring personage in disposing of Hi Lee, the bashing giant from the Ozark hills, last week. Watson has long been seeking a match with the man who wrestled the crown from his brow and it looks like only an opponent of Watson's standing is going to have a chance to upset the rock-ribbed Aussie. Along with World Champion Lou Thesz and Wild Bill Longson, Watson is one of the sport's top three stars and he has high hopes of regaining the world title he once held. A win over the substantial Mr. Atkins would be a great boost towards that objective.

Larrupin' Lee will be back, this time in the semi-final, against Ed. Meske of Akron, Ohio, the wrestling chiropractor. Meske is a past-master at applying bends and hitting pressure-points and is expected to make the still-bombastic Lee squirm.

Pat Flanagan and Tom Rice, the well-built recent arrival from San Francisco, will clash in the opener.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

When the weight is mainly on the straight, but not locked, right leg at the top of the backswing, the left knee, as pictured, has moved in toward the right knee, but both knees should remain on the same horizontal line to prevent a left-side sag which all too easily moves over into a right-side sag. Then you hit the ground back of the ball before you hit the ball. When the left knee moves in toward the right in the backswing, the left heel should rise to keep both knees on the same horizontal line. This helps keep the head fixed and immovable in the address position. Our pictured player has swung a little too far over in the backswing for the average golfer to imitate. Most golfers who, carrying the backswing this far are too late with the club impact, unless they start their downswing very, very slowly. Of course, all good players are slow at the top. This is one of the essentials of a good swing, but like all other parts of a golf swing, it is best not to overdo it since rhythm may be lost.—(Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

Pittsburgh, July 19—(AP)—A number of University of Minnesota football players are working this summer in Columbus, O., for the company that turns out those fancy pre-fabricated houses There's no room for gags about a guy lifting a complete house to prove he's strong enough for the gophers...but the boys are living at Fraternity houses at their "enemy" college, Ohio state...Art Rooney, boss of Pittsburgh Steelers, has three horses named for one of first pro football players, Harp Vaugh...they're "little Harp," "Lucky Harp," and "Big Harp."

Triangle Topics

Skip Alexander has a new game - - or at least a new name for it- - to play on the practise green. Skip calls it "horseshoes" and scoring is based on the putt that steps nearest the hole. "It's horseshoes if I get one in," Alexander explains...the dapper dans figure Sunday's rainout of the golf tournament cost them about 10,000 admission. But it was only the second time in some 10 years of sports promotions that they've been seriously troubled by the weather.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By PIERRE DUBOIS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 19—(CP)—This is Davis Cup week and tennis fans this way all have a yes-I-know-don't-tell-me ring in their voice when they ask: actually, old fellow, have the Canadians any chance against the Australians?

Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien says the blunt report he received from an expert assigned to appraise Canada's chances was "a bit shocking."

Andy's expert reported: "Australia should win five matches to none, perhaps without the loss of a set."

(In four previous meetings with the Aussies since 1914, teams from the land of the kangaroo with the tropical, all-year tennis climate, always have whitewashed Canada.)

"Sounds like an old refrain," says Andy. "....of course, we should all turn out to root for our team (but) it's regrettable that our candidates always seem to have uphill fights.

"This team, in particular, has a generous guts supply but it needs more than an annual splurge to boost junior tennis interest and thus feed the teams of tommorrow with talent who have the benefit of long-term training."

Bax (Montreal Star) O'Meara views the picture from another angle. Says he: "it could be that Canada has at last come up with a color man.... who might go a long way. Lorne Main (of Vancouver), is the boy who is attracting wide attention from enthusiasts as the team tunes up for the games against the formidable Aussie entry. Main is a youngster, a two-handed prodigy in a way.

"He has been going great guns recently, is showing more maturity than is warranted by his years. Gordie MacNeill (team captain) thinks he has a "sleeper" in the hard working youngster. Gordie isn't one to go overboard, and while he is a bit cautious in his predictions, It is evident that he thinks that he has an attractive performer to pit against the Aussies......

"Henri Rochon (of Montreal) has plenty of color as well, so this year's team is going to be one that will give the gallery plenty of thrills, you can't claim any victories on the evidence of quality shown by the team to date but certainly Canadian tennis is on the upgrade. This is a young hard trying troupe."

Five matches to none....

CAR OCCUPANTS MAKE QUICK DISAPPEARANCE

Barrie, Ont., July 19 — (CP)— Witnesses reaching the scene of an automobile accident south of here Monday were mystified when they failed to find either driver or passengers in the wrecked car.

They said they reached the car seconds after it bounced into the ditch and rolled over but found nobody in the car or within a 150 yard radius of it.

Shown here is The Whig-Staneard trophy for which outstanding golfers from all over Ontario will compete on Aug. 6. The match will be played over the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club course. Representatives of clubs from Toronto, Hamilton, London, Brockville, Belleville, Ottawa, Cornwall, Oshawa and many other centres will take part in the day's play. The trophy is held at present by Col. J. K. S. Manuel of the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club, Kingston, who won it last year. Previous winners include M. Currer of Summit Club; J. C. Boesch, York Downs; F. Horrigan, Chaudierre; C. R. "Sandy" Somerville, London Hunt; H. A. Bruce, Rivermead, and J. H. Sharpe, Bay of Quinte, Belleville.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Dear Sir:

In your column recently you asked "What is wrong with baseball in Belleville's Exhibition Park? You followed up this question with the thought that maybe the lighting system is not up to par. This I am no authority on. But there is one thing I am sure about and that is that there is not enough being done for the younger boys to make them into good ball players of the future. In plain words I think a city of the size of Belleville should support at least four midget teams and at least one juvenile team.

You must agree that in this way a fellow who knows nothing of ball can work himself up and if he is good enough can attain great heights in the sport world. We owe this to the youth of our city. I do not wish to bring any discredit to the ball players on our Kiwanis Juniors team, but I think if such a scheme were to be adopted (that of supplying a source of players from which to pick a real snappy junior team we would not always be in fifth place but up around the top of the loop.

I am also aware of the fact that in supporting such teams a certain amount of money is needed. Perhaps our local merchants would support them or better still why not set up a "Youth Recreational Fund" operated by the Belleville City Council?

I sincerely hope this letter goes to press and perhaps the sports-minded citizens of Belleville will take up the task to get better ball players for the future.

Hoping this matter will be dealt with I remain a baseball fan who believes
"We Can Get to the Top and Stay There."

Senior A Ball Leagues Lay Playoff Plans

Hamilton, July 19 (CP)—The play-off pattern for Ontario Senior A Baseball Clubs was established Monday night at a special meeting attended by representatives of all the affiliated senior leagues and the Ontario Baseball Association sub-committee.

Early in September, Windsor and the winners of the Intercounty League will open an Ontario play-off series and at the same time the champions of the Central Ontario League will start a round with the Toronto winners.

The Niagara District was given a first-round bye but it was stipulated that the Niagara District must declare a winner by Sept. 26. At that time, the senior play-off convener will call a meeting of the representatives of the surviving clubs to determine the draw for the remaining games in the championship series.

It was decided that all senior A clubs will be able to use the rosters they declared by July 15 in the O.B.A. playoffs.

O.B.A. President Fred Bradley of Hamilton and Fred Young of Chippawa, chairman of the sub-committee, were in charge of the meeting.

Latta Defeats Shannonville 10-2 In Semi-Final

Latta defeated Shannonville by a score of 10-2 in the first game of the South Hastings Baseball League semi-finals playoffs.

Lefty Hall gave up five hits in coasting to the win. Hart with four for five and McCreary with three for four were the leaders of the winners' 15-hit attack.

Hall and Glass were the battery for Latta with Read, Barberstock and Hill toiling for Shannonville.

Village of 400 Finances Floodlit Field

Hillsburgh, Ont., July 19 (CP)— This community of 400 persons is putting finishing touches on a floodlit ballpark. How it came to have such a city-style attraction is a success story of co-operation between small-town business men and district farmers.

The idea of the floodlighting originated with Ed Cox, who farms about six miles from this Wellington county village, 20 miles northeast of Guelph. He saw that most ball games played without artificial lighting ended long before farmers had finished their chores.

The Hillsburgh Business Men's Association, headed by Tom Hope, took it from there. The association arranged for 60 farmers and business men to back $50 notes made out to the Association. On the strength of the notes, the bank here made credit available.

As a model, an Association committe in charge of planning took the flood lit park at Owen Sound, considered one of the best in Ontario. With farmers and merchants donating labor and materials and hydro crews speeding the work, the job took seven weeks. Twenty-four 1,500-watt bulbs were placed atop 60-foot poles and tests showed that they could light up the farthest corners of the field.

It was decided to charge ball teams a percentage of receipts from games here, plus the cost of power used, until the cost of the project is met. Other orginizations will pay a small rental.

Monday night, the lights were tried out at a ball game between two teams of the Grand Valley League. The official opening of the floodlit park is scheduled for July 28, when two girls' softball teams from Toronto are to play.

Gar Lacey, chairman of the Association's Community Betterment Committee in an interview called the project "a good example of co-operation between farmers and business men." He added:

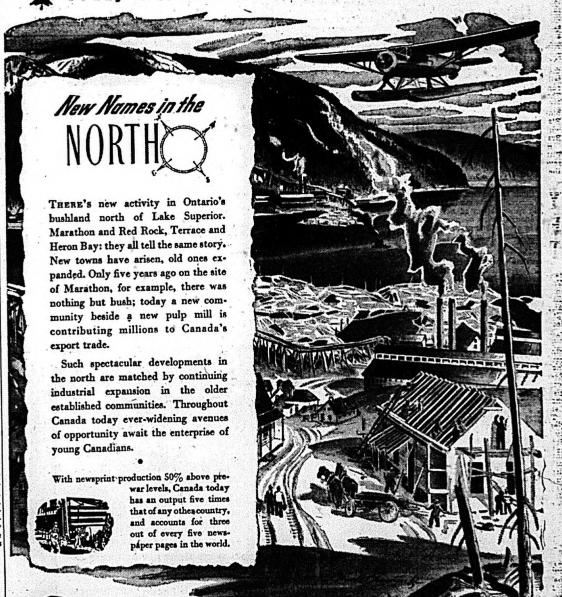
Today we Live in a Greater Canada



New Names in the NORTH

THERE's new activity in Ontario's bushland north of Lake Superior. Marathon and Red Rock, Terrace and Heron Bay: they all tell the same story. New towns have arisen, old ones expanded. Only five years ago on the site of Marathon, for example, there was nothing but bush; today a new community beside a new pulp mill is contributing millions to Canada's export trade.

Such spectacular developments in the north are matched by continuing industrial expansion in the older established communities. Throughout Canada today ever-widening avenues of opportunity await the enterprise of young Canadians.

With newsprint production 50% above pre-war levels, Canada today has an output five times that of any other country, and accounts for three out of every five newspaper pages in the world.

"Canada is a land of opportunity... There is a field for almost anything one can think of, and anyone with a willingness for hard work has a good chance to achieve success", says Donald J. Smith, President of Hornet Industries Limited, Guelph, Ontario.

Hornet Industries Limited, which was founded in 1945, has in this short time achieved remarkable success in the manufacture of chain saws and combustion engines. More than half the production of the plant reaches markets outside Canada. From a staff of only a half dozen men in 1945, Hornet Industries Limited has expanded to three plants in Guelph, employing 296 workers.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Where some players get their bridge bidding ideas will always remain a mystery. Most of what they do seems to make sense to them. To me it seems mixed with too much nonsense.

In a recent tournament came the pair of partnership hands you see here.

SOUTH
♥8 6 4 2
♦A J 4 3
♣K 7

♥A K Q 9
♦None
♣A Q J 8 6 4 2

I am asked to comment on the bidding at one table that went like this:

South	North
Pass	1 C
1 D	1 H
Pass

Grand slam in either hearts or clubs is a laydown and this pair stopped at one heart. If they were beginners or even intermediates, there might be some excuse. But these were local topflighters.

Technically, south was forced to bid once more. A takeout to a new suit is forcing for another round if the chain of new suits has not been broken. The south player admits knowing this rule.

His alibi for passing was that he saw no future in it and hearts looked like their best spot. You never win an argument from such guys. He can prove that he did not think his partner had much.

What really gets me is the fantastic conservatism of north. He has enough for an opening bid of two in a suit. This much is a fact in any language known to man or beast.

So he will give you an argument that he was keeping the bidding low until he could find out the kind of a slam they had. Even such a fanatic should jump on the second round, at least.

He failed to show strength. He failed to show his distribution. He failed, period. He should have failed to come to the party.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

Friends, Neighbors Honor Young Couple With Many Gifts

Whites District—A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones to spend a social time with their daughter Marion prior to her marriage on Saturday July 23rd at White's Church.

After a social time together, Mr. Bill Dudley called the gathering to order and asked Marion and Bill to take seats of honor under a white bell and streamers. Miss Marjorie Mallory a cousin of the bride-to be, read the address, following which the bell was tipped and a shower of confetti fell on the young couple.

A large decorated basket of gifts was brought forward, with an overflow on the centre table of glassware, china, silver, linen, towels and other lovely gifts. Marion and Bill both thanked their friends for their kindness and asked them to visit them at their new home in Belleville.

"For They are Jolly Good Fellowe" was sung, followed by several popular songs with Mrs. Dudley at the piano.

Refreshments were served and all departed for their homes after a happy time together.

Hollywood, July 19—(AP)—A multi-million-dollar item called "quo vadis?" is holding up Elizabeth's Taylor's marriage.

Flashing a large diamond engagement ring, the dark-haired actress said the date of her wedding to Florida's Bill Pawley, Jr., hinges on the M. G. M. epic. It was postponed from this year until next spring, when a full company is slated to sail for Italy.

"There's no sense in getting married if I have to leave and spend nine months in Europe," says Liz. However, if the picture is called off—and rumors continue to fly—you can look for an early marriage for the 17-year-old beauty.

Elizabeth now is separated by a continent from her fiance, who works in Miami. "You surely have the far-flung romances," I said, recalling her England-to-Korea love match with football star Glenn Davis.

"Isn't it awful?" she agreed. I must be fated."

Tuesday Tidbits

Gene Tierney leaves here the day after she finishes "Whirlpool" and sails for England this week. She'll make "Night and the City," in which she plays a bad woman.

Ah, these superstitious Irishmen. I watched while Spencer Tracy did the last scene of "Adam's Rib." He wouldn't say the last line in rehearsal. Claimed it's bad luck.

Joan Crawford is the gal most mentioned to play in "Newspaperwoman," if and when it reaches the screen. That's the current boo by Agnes Underwood, city editor of the Los Angeles Herald and Express.

AT THE CAPITOL — A girl's got to have something to hold on to in the spring .. at least, that's what Jean Peters is thinking as she nestles up to Ray Milland in this scene from "It Happens Every Spring," hilarious new 20th. Century-Fox comedy coming Wednesday to the Capitol Theatre, for its first Belleville showing. Paul Douglas, who shares star billing with them, is not quite so enthusiastic, but then you can't blame him, can you?

ONE THING LACKING

Wheaton Ashton, Straffordshire, England—(CP)—This little village has 6,000 population, 300 cows, 700 pigeons, a maypole and street lighting. It also has a fine musical reputation, but in living memory there has never been a good tenor in the local choir.

HOPE FOR BIG HARVEST

Peaks Downs, Australia—(CP)—Nearly 1,000,000 bushels of grain will be harvested at the British Food Corporation's farms near here, for shipment to Britain for livestock feed.

IF I'M GOING TO SEND THIS SUIT TO BE PRESSED I'D BETTER TAKE THE STUFF OUT OF YOUR POCKETS
SURE, THANKS GO AHEAD
WELL OF ALL THINGS! HERE'S THE LETTER TO AUNT ELLA I ASKED YOU TO MAIL!
I CLEAN FORGOT IT!
I SHOULD SAY YOU DID, ISN'T THERE ANY DEPENDENCE TO BE PLACED ON YOU AT ALL?
I DON'T OFTEN SLIP UP LIKE THAT WHAT IS WORSE THAN A HUSBAND WHO FORGETS TO MAIL HIS WIFE'S LETTERS?
IT'S WORSE IF HE LEAVES IN HIS POCKET A LETTER HE'S FORGOTTEN TO BURN!

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were breething hard on Shorty Judge's frunt steps on account of having been running about 2 hours playing different games, and Sid Hunt said, Heck, we must be big fools for chasing around till we're all wore out and exhawsted without even being payed for it.

Sure, gosh, we must be ignorant, Shorty said. Good night, we would not be half this tired if we'd been werking all morning for a good salary, maybe 25 cents a hour, he said, and I said, Sure, jimminies, we must be dopes. I bet we could get a job at the market just standing around and dusting shelfs and helping ladies out to their cars with little bags of stuff. Oh boy, it would be a cinch, and we'd have all that money to spend and save, I said.

We could deliver newspapers, too, Glasses Magee said. Just walk around easy and practice our aim by banging them agenst peoples frunt doors. I bet I could hit the door nob every shot in less than a week. That would be a cinchy way to make money, he said, and Skinny Martin said, Sure, we must be nutty getting out of breth free of charge.

Oh well, we been having fun though, Sid said, and I said, G, that's rite. Think of all the yelling and laffing we been doing. I bet half my tiredness comes from pure laffing. I bet if we worked in the market we'd even be afraid to whissle because the manager would claim we were taking breth away from our werk, I said.

Sure, and if we delivered newspapers we'd be libel to throw our wrists out of joint seeing how hard we could bang them, Glasses said, Sure, what the heck, money aint everything.

And we got our breth part ways back and ran a relay race around the block to prove our independence.

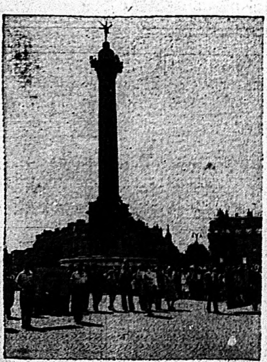
NEWS OF THE WEEK TOLD IN PICTURES

Tinker Bell, a golden hamster, twitches his nose in disdain at Chanel No. 5, the newly acquired pet of Mrs. Lawrence Batty of Vineland. The young skunk takes the place of two chocolate mice which she lost the night before.—Sentinel Services.

In recognition of his heroism in saving the life of a young Sault Ste. Marie boy, Larry McCauley, with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel McCauley, looks over citation sent him by Viscount Alexender, Chief Scout of Canada. He is the first Soo boy and only Northern Ontario lad to receive the coveted Governor-General's Medal for Meritorious Conduct for some time.—Piner.



COMMUNISTS CELEBRATE BASTILLE DAY

On the 160th anniversary of the fall of the bastille and the founding of the French republic, thousands of Communists and sympathizers in Paris paraded before the monument to the "founders of the republic who stormed the bastille." The Communists spotlighted huge pictures of Stalin, Lenin and Georgi Dimitrov, late Bulgarian prime minister, as shown in this scene during the demonstration. They waved red flags, denounced the Atlantic Pact, and sang the praises of Stalin.—Central Press Canadian.

SANTA CLAUS IN UNIFORM

Most popular of Berlins airlift pilots is U. S. pilot Ted Williams, who has made a habit of dropping chocolate and candy for kiddies as his plane came in to land at Templehof airfield, Berlin. However, so much of the sweets went astray, dropping on trees and in inaccessible spots that he decided to hand some over in person, and paid a visit to hospitals in the U. S. sector of Berlin. Here he distributes candy to delighted children in the garden of one of Berlin's children's hospitals.—Central Press Canadian.

COWS MISS HERDSMAN

Ellingham, England — (CP)— Farmer A. Parravani is wondering if cows are sentimental. When their herdsman was away recently the cow's milk yield dropped; now the herdsman is back, and the milk yield is normal.

FAST FINISH

Bob McFarlane, who doubles as a University of Western Ontario football star in the fall, is shown breaking the native Canadian record for the 880-yard dash at the British Empire Games trials in Toronto Saturday. The London, Ont., speedster nipped Vancouver's Bill Parnell in the stretch to finish in one minute, 54.6 seconds, shattering a mark set by Phil Edwards of Montreal in 1933.—(CP Photo.)

EXPELLED BY C.C.F.

The Manitoba section of the C.C.F. party has expelled from the party Berry Richards, left, and Wilbert Doneleyko for public utterances made by the two against the Atlantic Pact and the Marshall Plan. Mr. Richards represents The Pass in the provincial legislature. Mrs. Doneleyko represents St. Clements constituency.—(CP Photo.)

BEAVER PATROL

DOUBLE THEIR GOOD DEEDS

Attending the first Canadian National Boy Scout Jamboree at Connaught Park, Ottawa, are twins from Toronto. In front are Jim and Charles Milne, 15, of 95 Eastwood Ave., Toronto, and at back are Bud and Pal Sumsion, 16, of 101 Edgeley Ave. S., Toronto.—Newton.

INTERNATIONAL TREAT

HOLIDAYS THE HARD WAY

Rev. Ariel Harkness, 63-year-old Vicar of Gillingham, Kent, England, who arrived in Quebec City aboard the Cunard White Star Liner Ascania recently to renew old friendships in Canada and the United States. Due to dollar restrictions in England, Mr. Harkness plans spending two weeks picking fruit in the Niagara Peninsula to earn pocket money for his tour.—(CP Photo.)

IT'S A SAD TALE

Two-year-old Phil Edmond shed real tears when he heard a move was underway to order all dogs and cats from Uplands Emergency Shelter on the outskirts of Ottawa. He didn't want anyone to take his dog, Pete. The tears soon dried when the general eviction order, a sanitary measure, was tempered to mean only stray dogs would be taken by the dog-catcher. There are 42 dogs in the compound which houses 450 families.—(CP Photo.)

PANDIT NEHRU GETS AROUND

Pandit Nehru, Prime Minister of India, recently flew over some of the highest mountain ranges in the world in a plane specially fitted with oxygen apparatus, to visit the monastry of Sankar Gomps, near Leh. The Head Lama of Ladakh (second from left) is shown welcoming Pandit Nehru on his arrival by presenting him with a shawl, the traditional gesture of welcome among the people of Ladakh. Standing at left is Brigadier Atal.—Central Press Canadian.

ACTOR'S QUALIFICATIONS

Ottawa — (CP) — Floyd Caza says an actor in Canadian theatre must be prepared to do any work which will allow him to eat when his company folds up — including truck-driving, boot-blacking and bar-tending. Caza, a member of a local repertory group and a graduate of England's Sandhurst Military College, appeared in Brian Doherty's production of "The Drunkard" in Chicago last summer.

GRUELLING RIDE

Vancouver —(CP)— A motorcycle trip from Vancouver to Edmonton in two days is quite a feat —especially when it is done by a 14-year-old rider. Richard Klatt made the trip in two days but his reluctance to sleep almost cost him his life. He dozed off on the road and "woke up just in time."

RESTORE IRON MINE

Oslo,—(CP) — A crew of 700 men are engaged in rebuilding mines and processing plants at Syd Varanger, Norway's largest producer of iron ore. Retreating German forces destroyed the mines and as a result, ore production dropped from 1,475,000 tons in 1938 to a mere 300,000 tons in 1948.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"I'd like to be in a play some day when everyone had to wait until the last act."

"You like it, don't you, Fan?"

"I love it! Everything about it." She told him she could sometimes get tickets for unsuccessful plays. "And flops are often darned interesting, Chris. You see what not to do."

"Where'd you get the lovely coat, Fan?"

"Salvage Shop—thirteen dollars."

"It couldn't be."

"But it is. Those rich Jewesses have the handsomest things in the world, and they send them there." He spoke steadily, but with a litle rising color.

"Men's coats, too?"

"Racks of them!" She understood, and flushed too, as she smiled at him. "Want to go there some day?"

"Yes," Chris laughed in his turn, thickly. "But not with you," he said. And then later, "You seem to have crept into this town through some obscure channel of your own, Fan, like a mouse. I believe you revel in these things that scare everyone else."

"Maybe I do!" she said, and suddenly she knew that she was in for it. He was going to talk.

Propped in pillows, he was lying on his bed, and she sat in her big chair, relaxed and resting. It was a matinee day, but Fanny could be home at an early hour, and need not leave again until after their early supper. She thought of this supper with satisfaction; everything was in the house: tomato soup, corn muffins, cherry tarts from the bakery. And Chris was well enough now to walk slowly with her to the theatre, or at least to the surface car afterward.

But meanwhile he had begun.

"Move your chair over here, Fan, as you did last night, so I can hold on to you."

Fanny obliged; surrendered her hand, looked down at him smiling.

"He has to have his mama's hand."

"He has to have his mama's hand. Fan——" Christopher began in sudden difficulties with voice and lips, "this is something I have to say to you. It's the hardest thing I ever said to anyone."

"Don't ——don't say it," said Fanny, very low.

"I've got to say it; you know I have. I was days getting onto it Fan," Chris said, not looking at her, "I was days thinking that it was just — dreaming. I'd rouse up, and see you——outlined against the windows, in your blue apron————"

He stopped. Fanny did not speak. She felt his hand patting her hand.

"Well," he began again, after a space, "then I began to realize what had happened——that you'd tracked me through the laundry ——climbed up these stairs, gotten a doctor——ice——missed your opening night————"

"And I laughed at you because you 'forgot' your first chance."

"Oh, shut up!" said Fanny, her eyes dazzled with tears.

"Listen, I'll begin it this way," Chris presently commenced.

"Begin it? You've finished it. Why, Chris, I know how you feel!" Fanny broke in.

"No, you don't. I'll begin it this way," Chris repeated, slapping gently at her hand. "Some day I'll have something——someday I'm going to make good. Something to offer you. And then——" He stopped.

"And until then, Fan, there's nothing to say," he recommended. "I can't —— I haven't even a job. But other men have been down and out——

"Perhaps what I'm trying to say is that I'll remember it all——and that there'll never be any other woman——any other woman fit to black your shoes, as far as I'm concerned——

"You've got me crying again. I'm so — so weak——"

"How do you mean about—any other woman? Fanny asked, clearing her throat.

Chris was looking at her now; looking straight at her. His thin fingers were still holding her hand.

"You know what I mean."

Quite suddenly Fanny seemed to lose all her bearings. She slid to her knees beside him, and Chris put an arm about her.

"Oh, what are you afraid of, darling?" she whispered. "Why need we wait? Why wait until you've made a lot of money that I don't want——why lose all this wonderful time? I can't leave you now, Chris; I'd only worry about you.

"You'll find your job, and I'll go back to mine, and it'll be days —weeks before we see each other; it'll get less and less, as it did before. And everything I'll be doing will be cut in half, because you're not there; everytime I find an old bookstore, or look at a view, or get up early to see the sun rise, or every time there's thunder —— or snow——"

"Why Fan, you complete little fool," Chris said slowly, gently, as she stopped, ashamed and breathless, with her face against his hand. "You complete little fool, what are you talking about?"

"Us!" she said recklessly. It's been so wonderful, being here with you, Chris——even sick! It's where I belong."

"I haven't a job; I havent' a cent, Fan," he began slowly, his thin brown hand stroking her hair.

"But you will have. Why not take a chance?"

"You don't think I'm looking forward to living here without you, do you? It's killing me to think of our not breakfasting together, of your not coming up these stairs every night."

"Well———." Fanny laughed triumphantly, but her lashes were wet.

"Look what you've done for me Fan! How could I take advantage of you now, let you marry me, and run the risk of God alone knows what hardships?"

"But don't you see, if we were together, Chris, there wouldn't be any hardships."

"Here——you don't mean in this place?"

"Why not? I've come to love this room, Chris. I don't mind the faucet being out in the hall, and the candles. We'll buy a student lamp, with a green shade; we'll get things in second-hand stores. It'll all be wonderful— if only I don't have to be lonely again."

There was a pause.

"Fan, isn't it just your incredible sweetness, my dear, your generosity? It used to be Mack, didn't it?"

"Mack! Chris, you poor sap," Fanny said, smiling with wet eyes, blowing her nose, "it was always you! You used to talk of the four of us, and I used to marvel that you could carry it just so far, and then stop. You'd say that Mack loved me, and Madge loved Mack, and you loved Madge, and you never went on——you never finished it and said 'Then who's left for Fanny to love?' It's always been that way, Chris — from the beginning. I can't think when I ——when I didn't."

"Didn't what, Fan?" Chris asked, a little hoarsley, in the silence.

"Love you, my dear," Fan whispered, her fingers tight in his, her eyes very close to his own.

"Oh, you can't Fan, Chris said thickly. "You're such a ——such a star; you've everything! You've a job, you're a success——"

"This time next week I may not have a job. The notices are up," Fanny told him.

"You're the most wonderful woman I ever knew." Chris said, watching her, thinking aloud.

"As wonderful as Madge?"

"Madge!" He smiled, his eyes narrowing as he looked away. "Doesn't all that seem long ago ——kid stuff?" he asked musingly. "Sundaes at Sticky's, picnics up on the hills under the oaks gosh!"

"You knew she was marrying Mack this month after all the delays, and the fuss her mother made?"

"Yep. She wrote me it was all straightened out."

There was a long silence. Then Chris smiled at her the smile she loved, and asked simply:

"How much money have we, Fan?"

"I have about fifty dollars, and salary Saturday night thirty-five more. What have you, Chris?"

"About six, I think." Suddenly he laughed. "Fanny," he asked, will you marry me, dear? We seem to be the only survivors—we've got to hang together."

"Oh, Chris I'm so happy!"Fanny laughed, her wet face against his.

"You mean you'll be here——belong here, getting breakfast with me, staying at night?" Chris marveled, still in the tone of one dreaming. "It's—it's crazy, I guess But, Fanny. I'll be able to start looking for something to do tomorrow. How soon afterwards can we get married?"

"Oh, we'll be married today," Fanny told him, sitting back on her heels, drying her eyes.

It was happiness, complete happiness, yesterday, today, tomorrow, and Fanny never thought beyond these three. She had been happy all her life; she told Chris that she needed new words for what she felt now. Her gayety of mood infected him, and the days of his convalescence, the first of their marriage, were a time of iridescent beatuy——of quivering lights and exquisite discoveries almost too sweet for human hearts to endure.

In the beginning Chris was still her invalid; she made him obey orders. After his first hard days of job-hunting, when he came back exhausted for dinner; she made him go to bed, ran to theatre, leaving him busy with his supper and his book. They had a green-shaded lamp now, and a rug; Chris had a tobacco jar from the "dime." and Fanny a sewing basket. And for the present the cot had come back.

For the moment," Chris conceded, weary and content in his pillows. "I'll presently take it over."

"I suppose so." She was very busy, with her supper preparations, her plans. "We'll have a bookcase put up here, Chris, and when the show closes I'll sit here sewing in the evenings, and you can read aloud."

"Library books."

"Well, and books from the second-hand stores."

"When the show closes," he thought, "you won't have any job." But he did not say these things any more. It was too good to get well, to watch her moving about in the mellow light of the summer afternoons to hear the kettle singing, and the mourning doves outside the window on the slanting roof.

"We could live for six weeks on what we have, so why fret?" she said calmly.

"How do you mean live for six weeks?"

"Well———!Our rent is ten dollars," she figured, "our food, at present, about a dollar a day; that's on account of your milk."

"How could it ever be less, Fan?"

"Less than a dollar a day——food?" she would demand, with widened eyes. "It could be half that! There's a Russian woman in the next house, Chris," Fanny told him one night, when she was lying idly watching her busy at the dish pan, and Chris rounded young arms, the curve of her neck where the tawny hair was bunched, the fine straight line of her chin. "There's a Russian woman next door who boards thirty men at five dollars a month."

"Week, you mean."

"Month."

Chris was amazed. "What do you suppose she gives 'em?"

Soup. It looked very good. It had beets and beet greens and beans, and everything you ever heard of in it. And they have black bread, and cheese, and weak tea in thin glasses."

"Well, you could live on that."

"They do live on that!"

"But we haven't come to that yet, Fan."

She loved the "we" She loved everything that reminded her that she and Chris were one now. When he had gone obediently alseep in his broad bed, on their wedding night, she had lain wakeful, steeped in unutterable peace. After a while she had held up her left hand, and the moonshine that came in through the open window had touched the plain ring with a glint of light.

The days went by, and he was well. The happy afternoon came when he could come home rather sheepishly grinning over his new job: fourteen dollars a week and hard work, but it was a job.

GLAD TO CONTINUE WORK

Steel workers at the Carnegie-Illinois steel plant in Gary Indiana rejoice in continuing to work. The U. S. steel strike was averted, or deferred when companies accepted the President's recommendation and agreed to await the finding of a fact-finding board which will study the steel wage dispute during a 60-day truce. The crippling shutdown was avoided when the United States Steel Corp. accepted the President's peace plan.—Central Press Canadian.

HIS FEET HURT

Because of sore feet, Walter Fedorick switched from marathon running to the six-mile event this season. PICTON

Clarence Mallory Well-Known P.E. Resident Dies

Picton (Special)—One of Prince Edward County's best known and respected residents in the person of Clarence Mallory passed away in Prince Edward County Hospital on Sunday. He was in his 72nd year. He had been ill for several months.

Clerk of the township of Hallowell since January 1935, Mr. Mallory had a long and outstanding career in municipal and public life.

Born in Athol township, on the East Lake road, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Mallory, he had resided on a farm on Picton-Bloomfield road in Hallowell township for 59 years before moving to Bloomfield village a few years ago.

Successful Farmer

A successful farmer, Mr. Mallory was a pioneer breeder of Holsteins and was in demand as a cattle judge many years.

After several years as councillor in Hallowell council he was elected deputy-reeve in 1911 and in the following years became reeve and was honored by being chosen county Warden.

In 1935, he succeeded the late E. B. Yarwood as township clerk and his long municipal experience contributed to his fine record in this office.

Temperance Worker

Mr. Mallory was a keen advocate of temperance and served as president of Prince Edward Temperance Union. He was a devoted worker and member of the United Church being a member of the Official Board of Bloomfield Church, active in the Men's Association and in other organizations.

During the war years Mr. Mallory was active in Victory Loan campaigns. He served as treasurer of HMCS Hallowell Fund which provided comforts for the frigate named after Picton and Hallowell. He was active in remembering those in the services and the war effort generally.

Mr. Mallory was a Past Master of Prince Edward Lodge No. 18 A.F. & A.M. and of the R.A.M. Chapter.

Keenly interested in reforestation, he was one of those instrumental in the reforestation work done at the Sand Banks.

In Real Estate Business

In recent years, he had engaged in the real estate business. In earlier years he was a member of Prince Edward Agricultural Society and of various other farm organizations.

A man of high principles and Christian character, Mr. Mallory was a man who enjoyed the respect of all who knew him. Able and willing he was generous with his services in many capacities, and has left behind him a record of service that will live on.

Mrs. Mallory died two years ago. Survivors are a son, John, Bloomfield road and a daughter, Mrs. E. F. Webster (Helen) of Picton, and two sisters, Miss Edith Mallory of South Pasadena, California, and Miss Bertha Mallory of Toronto. There are six grandchildren.

Masonic Funeral

The funeral, under Masonic auspices, was held Tuesday afternoon at Bloomfield United Church with interment in Glenwood cemetery, Picton.

A very large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last tribute. A message of hope and comfort was delivered by Rev. S. Spurrell, minister of the church assisted by Rev. A. E. McCutcheon of Picton United Church. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes. At the graveside, the beautiful Masonic service, which Mr. Mallory had often conducted, was performed by fellow brethren.

Pall bearers were B. R. Baxter, Charles Fraleigh, Arthur Rightmyer, Elmer Vader, Harold Carman, Homer White.

YOUNG MOTHER DROWNS NEAR ACTINOLITE

Two Men Captured After Spectacular Robbery of Bank

Unsuccessful Attempt Made to Flee in Seaplane

Kirkland Lake, July 20 (CP).—Two men are in jail here charged with armed robbery, assault, theft of an automobile and of an airplane after the daring bank robbery Tuesday at Larder Lake, 18 miles east of here.

The men are: Leo Martial, 24, and Victor Dasmarais, 23, both of Noranda, Que.

Dasmarais surrendered to an armed posse near Larder Lake. He had $1,500 on his person.

Captured In Short Time

Martial was captured Tuesday a short time after the pair had commandeered a seaplane at gunpoint, taxied it across Larder Lake and crashed into the shore.

Police searched him and found $525. He told them that his companion had drowned getting from the aircraft to shore.

The strange story of Canada's first airplane-holdup began Tuesday morning, police said.

Jack Lamont, 33, a pilot for an aircraft-rental establishment on Larder Lake received a telephone call to have a plane ready at 3:30 p.m. to fly two men to Val d'Or.

Later two men hired a taxi in Kirkland Lake and told the driver, Tony Giovanni Antoniazzi, to drive to Larder Lake.

One mile outside the town they ordered the taxi stopped, beat the driver and left him tied to a tree.

Drove To Bank Branch

They then took the car and drove to Larder Lake where they robbed the Imperial Bank of Canada, holding the staff at bay with pistols.

After locking Albert Gary, manager of the bank, Eileen Hill, accountant, Helen Salo, ledgerkeeper, Jack Tranter, teller, and a customer in a vault, the men headed for the seaplane base in the stolen taxi.

Lamont was waiting beside the plane when he saw the car approaching at break-neck speed.

"They had guns in their hands, pointed them right at me and asked if I was the pilot," he said.

"They said I was to fly them away immediately. There were three of four children playing nearby and one of the men pointed a cocked gun at them and told them to beat it.

"At gun-point, they forced me into the plane and got in with two club bags. I couldn't get the engine started and they thought I was deliberately flooding it."

Headed for Second Plane

Lamont said the men jumped out in disgust and headed for a smaller seaplane parked at the dock a few feet away.

Keep Democracy Strong, Healthy, Pearson Advises

Montreal, July 20—(CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson today flayed "our Moscow Canadians" but warned that "their strength rests on our indifference."

He told the Montreal Rotary Club the domestic threat of communism must be met "by strengthening , if necessary, our criminal code against actions which threaten the security of state."

But, he said in a speech prepared for delivery, it must b met "even more by keeping our democratic society so healthy and strong that the germs of communism cannot breed in it."

"The communist party in Canada is extremely small and we may be tempted to feel that it is not able to do very much harm in this country or to weaken our position abroad. Let us never forget, however, that it gets support from and acts on orders from Moscow. That is its strength and our danger."

The test of any repressive action by government "must always be whether the safety and good order of the state is in immediate danger....this is a test which must be constantly and conscientiously applied to determine the point at which further measures against communism must be taken."

In the International field, "I do not think that in the long run if we stick to our convictions and act on our belief we really have much to fear."

Says Men in Tights Would Turn City Into Midway

Windsor, Ont., July 20. (CP)—Ald. Herman J. B. Bradley doesn't like to see people in tights—especially men.

The Ward Five Council representative opposed)a recreation committee recommendation that a group of west-end citizens be permitted use of city-owned property at Mill and Peter Streets for staging boxing and wrestling shows.

Ald. Bradley said he is convinced that people in Windsor do not want to walk along the street and have to pass an exhibition of "a couple of men in tights".

He charged that open air sport shows would turn the city into a "midway".

DIES OF LOCKJAW

Sarnia, July 20 (CP).—William L. Hodgins, 38, for whom a relay of provincial police patrol cars rushed a supply of anti-tetanus serum from London a week ago, died in hospital Tuesday from lockjaw. He stepped on a rusty nail a few weeks ago while repairing a house, but felt no effects until some time later. He had been in a coma for the last few days.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 20— Synopsis:—Sunny skies cover all Ontario except the northern portion and here too the sun will shine in the late afternoon as the cloud dissipates. A disturbance over Nebraska will bring warmer temperatures on Thursday with scattered thundershowers in the western regions in the late afternoon and evening.

Gambling Czar, Bodyguard And Two Others Wounded by Gang

Los Angeles, July 20. (AP)—Gangsters' bullets early today cut down gambling czar Mickey Cohen and three other persons—including a state-appointed bodyguard for the dapper hoodlum—as the party left a smart Sunset strip cafe.

None of the party was killed, but all were in serious condition. Harry Cooper, a special bodyguard assigned to Cohen by the California attorney-general, was most severely wounded.

The other victims were Miss Dee David and Edward (Neddie) Herbert, a Cohen henchman.

Cohen is a key figure in the grand jury inquiry into police vice tie-ups which already has resulted in a wholesale shake-up of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Attorney General Fred Howser assigned Cooper to guard Cohen, presumably because Cohen expressed fear that eastern gangsters were in town to assassinate him.

Doctors said that Cooper had a 50-50 chance to pull through. He received two shots through the abdomen. Cohen, who got it in the shoulder ,was reported in serious condition. Herbert also was reported in critical condition, one shot severing his spinal cord. The girl was shot four times in the back but her condition was reported the best of the four.

The arrest and quick, secret release of seven Cohen henchmen last April in an assault case touched off the current grand jury investigation which has rocked the Los Angeles Police Department.

The henchmen were arrested by two rookie policemen soon after they were seen leaving the scene of a beating of a radio-shop owner. Higher-ups in the police department are charged with ordering their "hushed-up" release.

Cohen and the henchmen are under indictment for conspiracy in the beating and for plotting to obstruct justice. His trial is pending.

The grand jury then delved into the affairs of Brenda Allen, Hollywood call-house madam. She testified that she had paid off members of the vice squad for "protection" for her prostitutes. Recordings of conversations between the Bordello queen and a vice-squad officer were aired before the jury.

Police Chief C. B. Horrall recently resigned.

RUSSIA CHARGES ITALY VIOLATED PEACE TREATY

Says Big Three Got Italy to Sign Pact

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

London, July 20 (AP)—Russia today accused the three big western powers of causing Italy to violate her peace treaty by inviting her into the North Atlantic Alliance. Britain denied it and an Italian foreign office spokesman said the Russian charge was "absurd and ridiculous."

Moscow radio announced Russian notes have gone to Italy and the big western powers making the complaint, at a moment when the Italian parliament is debating ratification of the pact.

In a swift rejoinder, the foreign office declared the western powers have no intention of building up Italy's armed forces beyond the limits laid down in the treaty.

Russian Complaint "Invalid"

A spokesman termed invalid Russia's complaint that Italy, by joining the pact, unlawfully had entered an alliance pursuing aggressive aims.

"The North Atlantic pact is essently a defensive undertaking, not directed against anyone," the spokesman told a press conference.

The swift retort presumably is designed to counteract any effects the Soviet charges may have on the course of the debate in the Italian Chamber of Deputies. Swift ratification has been expected.

In the Italian Senate, the Christian Democrats, largest group in that body are expected to gain enough backing from Liberals and anti-Communist Socialists to insure ratification.

The Soviet note charged that the North Atlantic treaty is an aggressive instrument aimed at Russia and the "Peoples' Democracies."

Italy signed a peace treaty with the Big Four and 16 other countries in Paris, Feb. 10, 1947. She signed the North Atlantic pact in Washington last April 4 along with Britain, the United States, France and eight other countries.

The Russian note said that in joining this alliance Italy broke the peace treaty clauses which (1) pledged her "to abstain from undertaking any actions directed against states with which that treaty was signed and consequently not to join any alliances or other groupings pursuing aggressive aims" and (2) which limited her army, navy, air force and war industry.

The Atlantic pact cannot be justified because none of the signatory nations is threatened with attack. the communication said.

Second U.S. Conference On Sharing A-Bomb Secrets Sets Washington Talking

Washington, July 20—(AP)—A second high-level conference of sharing the United States' atomic weapon secrets set Capitol Hill buzzing today.

Does the government propose to share fully the post-war atomic secrets and "know how" of the United States with Great Britain and Canada?

Will such a step, if undertaken, be done through executive agreement, or by action of Congress?

Questions Circulate Freely

Is there a "squeeze play" on involving the supply of uranium in the United States—the lifeblood of the atomic enterprise?

These and other questions circulated freely as the joint Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Committee prepared to sit down with State, Military and Atomic leaders to explore the "continuing problem" of relations with Britain and Canada in the atomic field.

The conference was announced Tuesday by Chairman Brien McMahon (Dem. Conn.) as a sequel to the closed meeting here last Thursday night.

McMahon partially lifted the secrecy veil on that meeting by saying that the 16 State, Military, Congressional and Atomic leaders had at that session discussed with President Truman British-Canadian relations in the atomic field.

The joint committee threshed over the problem for an hour and a half Tuesday, following which McMahon told reporters only that the committee "discussed our international relationships and policy with regard to atomic energy."

Meanwhile, the government was reported to have sounded out lawmakers on the question of sharing atomic secrets with Britain and Canada by executive (Presidential) agreement.

Such a course would (A) bypass Congressional action and (B) undoubtedly raise a furious row on Capitol Hill. Congress members are extremely jealous of what they regard as legislative prerogatives.

Senator's View

Indicative of the feeling is that expressed by Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep. Iowo), ranking Republican member of the joint committee. He insists that the present Atomic Energy Act bans giving away secrets to anyone by anyone.

One Democratic Senator noted that the late President Roosevelt entered into an executive agreement with former Prime Minister Winston Churchill which gave Britain and Canada access to wartime atomic development work. He said Truman would have this precedent should he choose to go ahead with an agreement of his own.

Boy And Would-be Rescuers Trapped in Swift Waters Are Saved by Human Chain

Alvinston, Ont., July 20—(CP)—John Myers, 14-year-old district youth and his two would-be rescuers had narrow escapes from drowning when trapped in the swift waters of the Sydenham River where it flows through a drain under No. 79 Highway near here.

The drain, five feet in diameter, was installed to divert river water while road repairs were being made.

Myers, Fred Braithwaite, Sr., and his nephew Robert Braithwaite finally were saved by a human chain.

But water pressure was so great in the funnel that Myers lost the new bathing trunks he had received for his birthday, while Robert Braithwaite lost his trousers.

Myers and a friend Bobby Field, of Forest, went to the river to swim and Myers was the first to dive in. Unaware of the force of the current he was swept to the mouth of the drain, but he managed to seize the top and retain his hold.

Field ran for help and the Braithwaites came to the rescue. Robert dived in fully clothed and he, too, was swept to the drain. However, he grasped the top and saved himself from being forced among the timbers that supported it.

Fred Braithwaite waded into the stream and managed to get close to the drain. He managed to stay on his feet, but the current was so strong that he was marooned in one spot.

In the meantime, the Field youth brought several other district men who linked themselves with a rope and formed a chain to pull out Myers and the two Braithwaites.

Vote on Granting Two 'Test' Dates For Sunday Ball

Toronto, July 20 — (CP) — A Board of Control recommendation that the North Toronto Baseball Association be granted two "test" dates to play baseball in civic parks on Sundays will be voted on at a special City Council meeting next Monday, it was announced today.

The controversial Sunday baseball issue was discussed at a posed only by Acting Mayor John posed only b yActing Mayor John Innes.

The recommendation supports recent attempts by Don North, Association President, to "test" a civic by-law concerning sports. North contends the by-law does not specifically mention Sundays, but states that the Parks Commissioner must first approve any match games to be played in civic parks.

SIX NEW POLIOMYELITIS CASES IN TORONTO

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Six new resident cases of poliomyelites were admitted to isolation hospital today and civic health officials said it is "too early" to determine how serious the cases are. A total of 20 Toronto residents now are in hospital with the disease, compared with 11 at the same time last year.

Lucky Hunch Lead to Arrest Of Three Men

Ottawa, July 20 (CP).—A Provincial Police Constable's "lucky hunch" Tuesday night resulted in the arrest of three Montreal men, charged with stealing a Montreal taxi cab earlier today and holding the driver prisoner for four hours.

The men were picked up by Constable Lyle Smith at South March, 14 miles west of here.

Being held for Montreal police are: Emile Provost, 29, and his 23-year-old brother, Harve, and Onela Perron, 50, all of Montreal.

Police said they will be questioned in connection with an early morning break-in at the Canada Packers Company plant at Finch, Ont., 10 miles from Cornwall.

Const. Smith said he noticed a car parked beside a service station near South March when he was on a routine patrol. When he realized the station was closed he investigated. In the trunk of the car he found Quebec licence plates and a luminous taxi sign.

The cab driver, 24-year-old Rene Lanciaux of Montreal, said the men picked him up early today, then took control of the car. He escaped four hours later at Lancaster, 17 miles east of Cornwall.

8 KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES AT SEATTLE

One Motor Fails During Take off

Seattle, Wash., July 20—(AP)—A non-scheduled, two-engined C-46 airplane carrying 28 passengers and a crew of four, sputtered on one motor seconds after taking off late Tuesday night and smashed into a thickly populated residential district, killing at least eight.

Seventeen passengers were taken to hospital with injuries; eight others were treated and released; two were unhurt and five were unaccounted for.

In addition seven residents of at least five houses damaged by the crash were injured.

Houses Damaged

The second and third stories of one house were sheared off by the wobbling plane as it finally crashed into another residence.

Three and a half hours after the crash, which occurred about 10 P.M. PDT, three firemen trying to pull a gasoline tank from the plane's wreckage were shaken up when the tank exploded in front of them. They were rushed to hospital.

Fire Chief William Fitzgerald said two bodies were picked up in the street near the crash, and six more were taken from the wreckage. They were not identified immediately.

The plane, owned by Air Transports Associates, Incorporated, struck power lines while limping into the air on only one engine, and crashed into a thickly-populated section of the Georgetown district, demolishing "two or three houses," an eye-witness estimated.

Armed Forces Personnel

Most of the persons aboard were army, air force, coast guard and navy personnel going home on furloughs.

Seven houses were set afire when the craft exploded within three or four minutes after striking a power line and plummeting to earth.

The plane buried its nost between two houses, and ripped off the roof of a third.

Many of the survivors escaped by jumping through a hole they made by the sheared-off tail.

Flames were visible for miles. Live electric wires writhed in the streets and hampered firefighting operations.

It was the second crash of a chartered airline plane here within the last seven months. Eleven Yale University students and three crew members were killed in the crash of another craft during the Christmas holidays.

Jerry Buchanan, 25, a Boeing pre-flight mechanic working at the north end of the field, gave the following eye-witness account:

Burst of Flames

"I saw him taking off and he seemed to barely clear the end of the runway. I remarked to my partner: 'Boy, he's really taking off late. . .' Then we saw a series of sparks from the electric wires. Then there was a tremendous burst of flames.

"The plane's motors sounded like they were 'lugging' hard under a heavy load.

"My partner, Joe Ulrich, thought his house might have been hit. We jumped in my car and drove over and there were two or three houses already in flames, but none of them was Joe's."

He said firemen were doing a heroic job.

"I saw one fireman dash into the flames and pull a man right out from under the burning plane. He came out with the man over his shoulders. The man looked like he was terribly burned."

Several Explosions

"I ran outside and flames were shooting high into the air. I got up as close as I could to where the plane piled up. There were two or three explosions. Then police pushed the crowd back and there was another explosion. A group of soldiers were helping to keep people out of the way."

Corporal Lubic, a passenger on the plane who was going home on furlough from the Aleutians where he was stationed with the United States Air Force, gave this eyewitness account of the crash:

"The power in one of the engines cut as we were starting down the runway. Then the pilot gave full throttle, but apparently didn't have enough runway to make it over the power wires.

"The plane burst into flames when it hit the ground, then exploded after burning about three or four minutes.

"If the tail end of the plane hadn't been torn off, we probably wouldn't have gotten out. The tail was 10 feet off the ground, so we had to jump."

He said the plane was about 75 feet up when it started to crash.

Roofs Torn Off 50 Buildings As Cyclone Cuts 1,000-Foot Swath

Cheneville, Que., July 20 — (CP) — Savage winds of near-cyclone force pounded this Quebec village for a scant three minutes Tuesday leaving damage estimated at nearly $150,000.

The storm cut a swath 1,000 feet wide through the village of 600 persons, tore the roofs from some 50 buildings, toppled a church steeple and left Cheneville without power or telephone communications.

The village is approximately 50 miles northeast of Ottawa.

There was no indication how widespread the damage was. The storm rushed on to the southwest. Some crops in the district were flattened but the nearby summer resort of Lac Simon was not damaged.

A few minor injuries from falling tree branches were reported.

The steeple of the parish church of St. Felix de Valois was torn off and Rev. Henri Belanger, the parish priest, said damage to the church alone was at least $15,000.

"The wind came up quite suddenly," he said. "I have heard of no damage to neighboring parishers, so I suppose we are the only one badly hit."

A saw mill was demolished. The second storey of a convent was damaged and the foundations of the newly-renovated town hall were weakened

(In Ottawa, meteorological officials said there were no indications that the storm was very widespread They assumed it was a cyclone, seldom found this far north, but which carries with it winds of up to 55 miles an hour.)

A slight fall of hail accompanied the storm but caused no damage.

Mrs. B. LaBarge Believed Victim Of Cramp Seizure

Had Gone for First Swim Of Season in Nearby River

Tweed, (Special)—Brother and sister of less than two ears of age are motherless today as the result of a drowning tragedy which early Tuesday afternoon claimed the life of pretty 19-year-old Mrs. Bernard LaBarge of Actinolite.

During the noon hour on Tuesday the young Actinolite mother had gone for her first swim of the year in the nearby Skootematta River when in the middle of the stream she seemed to choke and sank into 12 feet of water. The opinion was expressed she may have been overtaken by cramp seizure.

She leaves her young husband to look after 21-month-old Leon and his baby sister Rose Marie, just eight months.

No Swimmers Nearby

A 20-mile race with death failed to save the life of the young mother who was described as a good swimmer. When the alarm was given there was no one to dive into the 12 feet of water to bring the body to the surface. A telephone call to Marmora brought two strong swimmers, John Abrams and James "Bud" Pidgen, both of Actinolite. They brought the body to the surface 35 minutes afer the accident occurred but efforts at artificial respiration failed.

Mrs. LaBarge had been swimming in the river with Mrs. Gerald Wood, of Kingston, who was visiting in Actinolite.

"She was swimming when all of a sudden she seemed to choke and sank just beyond my reach," related Mrs. Wood. "It seemed like ages and ages but I must have turned in the alarm within five minutes.

Vain Effort Made

A crowd quickly gathered but no one seemed to have the courage to dive into the water in an effort to bring the body to the surface and it was not until the two men from Marmora arrived that the body was recovered. Miss Jean Lajoie, 16, Actinolite, swam out into the river but could not dive.

An inhalator brought from Belleville by the fire department proved fruitless in reviving the young woman.

Pigeons Try To Hatch Out Electric Bulb

Montreal, July 20 — (CP)—Montreal pigeons, apparently tired of forever offering themselves as sacrificial bait to the peregrine falcons who live atop the Sun Life Building, are looking for new offensive weapons.

At least one couple is. A group of workmen who have been watching the couple for three weeks reported today that Mr. and Mrs. Pigeon are trying to hatch out an electric light bulb.

In the corner of a roof of a three-storey building, on midtown Mansfield Street, the female sits patiently atop her "electrical egg' while the male stands guard.

TELLS POLICE WHERE TO FIND ABANDONED CHILD

Toronto, July 20 (CP)—Police said today they found a baby girl abandoned in a second-floor room of a downtown hotel shortly after an unidentified woman telephoned headquarters. The woman, who had registered at the hotel under a "false" address in Barrie told police where to find the child.

Fishermen Drag For Bomb Casings

St. Thomas, July 20 (CP). — Fishermen are dragging for more than their usual haul near here—they're also fishing for exploded bomb casings. The bombs, practice ones used by the RCAF, have brought a reported $14,000 to one boat owner. One fisherman is reported to have salvaged about 200 bombs a day.

REAR-END CRASH CAUSES $300 DAMAGE

Front end damage amounting to approximately $300 resulted yesterday to a borrowed motor car when an auto driven by Auele Lacasse, Trenton, R. C. A. F. bumped into the rear of a standing vehicle on the Lower bridge.

Stan Hartleib, 36 Ridley St. had stopped his car in the line of traffic waiting for the traffic signal when the Lacasse driven vehicle crashed into the rear. Most of the damage was done to the Lacasse vehicle which was owned by Lionel Desjardins, also of the R. C. A. F. at Trenton.

PANHANDLER HELD ON VAGRANCY CHARGE

Despite comparatively good times our old friend the panhandler is still with us and occasionally persists in making a nuisance of himself annoying pedestrians in the busines section of the city.

This was true yesterday when an officer of the law on his patrol beat came upon a panhandler plying his trade seeking handouts of "a dime for a cuppa cawfee."

The panhandler who gave his name as Gordan Kitchen of no given address, was bundled off to the police station where he is being held on a vagrancy charge.

Hastings County Will Mark One Hundredth Anniversary, Warden Issues Invitations

Formal invitations from Warden of Hastings County, S. A. McCarey of Tweed, are going out through the mails inviting attendance at the centennial celebration at Tweed on August 1st, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the County.

The celebration is being held at Tweed Memorial Park, the Tweed site being chosen in honor of Warden McCarey who is the reeve of Tweed village.

A really bang-up basket picnic with meals served on the grounds is planned for the occasion. There will be motorboat races, softball games and sports for kiddies and grown-ups. There will be prizes, treats for the children and fun for all. The entire family and friends will be welcome at the picnic which falls on civic holiday, giving the rural folks an opportunity to observe the holiday in keeping with their city cousins.

Mrs. McGuire's Uncle Identified As Former Furniture Manufacturer

Toronto, July 20 (CP).—Robert James Mulligan, retired New York furniture maker, was identified today by a relative as the wealthy uncle reported to have left a $1,250,000 inheritance to Mrs. Grace McGuire of Belleville.

Felix Lalonde, 40-year-old gas-house worker and brother of Mrs. McGuire, told reporters he was the only member of the family who had met their uncle, whom he identified as a furniture manufacturer who once operated a plant at Potsdam, N.Y.

"I met him at a family reunion in Quebec before the war," he said. "Then, when I came back from overseas after the war, I heard he had retired from business and had moved from Potsdam, where he had his factory, to New York City."

Mrs. McGuire said at Belleville Tuesday that she was to inherit $1,250,000 left to her by the uncle.

Upside-Down Lunch Enjoyed? by Kiwanis

It was the Upside-Down Day at the Kiwanis Club Tuesday luncheon with the members being thoroughly scrambled in the proceedings. The meal started off with ice cream and tea, went through the main course and wound up with bread and tomato juice. The sergeant-at-arms failed to collect fines, there was no sing-song, and the gathering was dismissed before 1 p.m. Things were topsy-turvy.

Sid Rose thanked the speaker, Dr. Reg Anderson, and was followed by the speaker who entertained the club with several humorous anecdotes before being introduced by Kiwanian Dick Kuntze.

John Black won the attendance prize donated by Ken Graham.

Neil Van Allen Wins Acclaim As Pianist

A former Belleville boy who for the past ten years has been living with his parents at Halifax, is winning wide acclaim as a concert pianist and has been heard in programs over CBC Trans-Canada and in the Voice of Canada short wave broadcasts.

He is 20-year-old Neil Van Allen, son of Karl C. Van Allen and Mrs. Van Allen, the former Marguerite Coulter. He was born in Belleville in 1929, but since 1939 has lived in Halifax where his father is principal at the school for the deaf.

Predict Bright Future

Musical critics and everyone who has heard the young artist perform have nothing but the highest praise and predict great success for him in his chosen field.

In 1947 he graduated from the Maritime Academy of Music and obtained his Licentiate of Music from Dalhousie University. For the past two years he has been carrying on advanced studies at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto under the internationally famous teacher, Alberto Guerrero.

Is Composer Also

The young artist has acquired an enviable reputation as a technician and has a large repertoire inclining to Bach and contemporary composers. He has written a number of entrancing compositions for the piano.

Parents of the young musician are well known in Belleville, the father having gone to school here and later was teacher at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

MOBILE CANTEEN BLOWS UP

Guelph, July 20 (CP).—Frank Solinski stepped on the starter of his mobile canteen here Tuesday night and ended up on the pavement. His machine blew up when Solinski attempted to move it from the amusement park. The blast was heard a mile away. Solinski suffered burns to his hands and head bruises.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 20 (CP) — A slightly firmer tone appeared over early irregularity on the Toronto stock exchange today. Industrials moved in a firmer trend, base metals continued strong and golds were mixed.

Key industrials moved slowly upwards on fractional gains. Canadian Car A gained 1-4 in a firmer steel list. A few liquors and constructions brightened while foods tended lower. Price changes were generally held to fractions as activity continued slow.

Base metals were the most active group climbing steadily from an irregular opening. Noranda and Consolidated Smelters, two of the big four in the base metal industry, gained 1-2 in moderate dealings. Sherritt Gordon featured the list following the drill results from the Lynn Lake Ontario property announced yesterday. The stock turned actively but profit-taking pulled the price slightly lower from yesterday's gain.

Golds were about balanced. A few juniors slipped and took losses up to five cents.

CHEESE BOARD

Napanee.—A total of 2,134 cheese, including 137 white, were offered on the Napanee cheese board. The colored cheese sold at 30 1-4 with 310 white bringing 30 1-8; 80 selling at 30 1-16, and the balance at 30 cents.

Girl Saddened When New Bike Broken by Truck

Nine-year-old Jean Muirhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Muirhead, 55 Emily Street is ruefully viewing the wreckage of her week-old bicycle today after it was completely smashed by a truck which Tuesday afternoon backed over the bike.

James Smith, of Gibson's Lane, driving a small truck at the intersection of Emily and Bleecker had stopped his vehicle to ask directions from the Muirhead girl. When he started to go the truck rolled back, the girl just having time to jump away from her bicycle before it was crushed beneath the wheels.

Mrs. Muirhead said the bicycle had been purchased new a week ago as a present for the young girl.

TWO MEN

"John Clark of Englehart and J. R. Young, a student pilot from Boston Creek, were standing by it and the men told Clark to help them hoist the bags into the plane. When Clark was slow in doing so one hit him on the head with a gun and they threw the bags in themselves."

The men started the engine on the second plane and gunned it in an effort to take off. However, the engine was cold and the aircraft did not become airborne. Instead, it headed across the lake and rammed itself against the rocky shoreline.

Meanwhile, a passer-by freed Antoniazzi and he hitched a ride to town and notified police.

Desmarais Surrenders

A posse of armed civilians was formed to aid police and a search of the bushland bordering the shore of Larder Lake resulted in capture of Martial.

Desmarais gave himself up to three men early this morning as they sat in the rain near a little railroad shack not far from the scene of the hold-up.

"I am the man who robbed the bank," he told them and surrendered.

SPEED WORST OFFENCE

To find out how much the average driver knows about avoiding traffic accidents, the Department of Highways has been conducting a public opinion poll among drivers, says Canadian Opinion Research.

One fact stands out: the public and the experts are agreed that excessive speed is the most dangerous action that drivers indulge in. The poll asks the question: "Which of the following bad driving practices, in your opinion, is the worst?" In the results, "Excessive Speed" headed the list of six bad driving faults, with 41% of the votes, 17% more than any other single fault.

This checks with official provincial accident statistics for the last year, which show "speed too fast for road or traffic conditions" as an accident factor one third more often than any other reported violation.

On the other hand, the poll shows the experts that the public is not as concerned as it should be about another dangerous driving practice, driving on the wrong side of the road. Only 5% of the answers to the poll rated "Driving on the Wrong Side" as the worst offence, whereas in actual accident records, this dangerous practice ranks second in rural accidents and third in the combined figures of rural and urban accidents.

"Cutting In" was picked as the worst offence by 24% of those polled, while 22% picked "Passing on Curve or Hill." A positive way to avoid these two offences, as well as the offence of driving on the wrong side of the road, is to "Stay in Your Own Traffic Lane." Appropriately enough, this same rule is one of the current themes in the Department of Highways' newspaper advertising campaign at this peak period of dangerous summer holiday traffic.

DEER POPULATION

A survey of conditions in South Eastern Ontario is being carried out to learn conditions affecting the deer population by the Department of Lands and Forests. R. C. Passmore, biologist with the Fish and Wild Life division having been studying conditions in the Trent, Quinte and Rideau districts in the past few weeks, giving special attention to the cause of the fluctuations in population and its relationship to winter browse and winter deer yard environment.

It is said that the survey may offer valuable information on the reproduction of the favored deer browse in the areas under survey and indicate whether or not present food supplies would be able to support a larger population of deer.

It is stated that some thought has been given to changes in the hunting season to encourage a possible increase.

There have been patrols of the fishing areas on an extensive scale as there have been reported smaller catches by a number of anglers, but this is not unusual for this time of the year.

CHILDREN'S APPRECIATION

An incident which cannot fail to thrill the spirit of anyone and most of all of the young and their parents and the doctors of the land is the subject of an editorial in the Christian Science Monitor. It is a story which points to the spirit which governs childhood and the profound spirit of thankfulness a child can feel and express. And the object of this demonstration of gratitude is a doctor. The article is as follows:

"The boys of Seventeenth Street in Brooklyn, equipped with old stockings, frayed curtains, hot water, and wax, gathered around the doctor's car after he went into his office. When he came out at noon, there stood his car, washed and sparkling, and a group of boys shouting enthusiastically: 'Two, four, six, eight, who do we appreciate?—Dr. Gardner.'

"It was a simple act of spontaneous gratitude. A day or two before, Dr. Gardner had run out of his office to the rescue of their 10-year-old chum, Patty Ryan, when Patty was run over by a truck. Anyone who could have helped would have done the same. But gratitude doesn't stop to philosophize about such things, any more than mercy does. A 'great guy' is a 'great guy,' and how about making that car of his really shine?

"Anyone who needs to have his faith in human nature shined up a little might pay attention to the boys of Seventeenth Street in Brooklyn."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

With a pipe between your teeth, you are likely to leave unsaid many things you would have spoken if you had merely been smoking a cigaret.

This is one of the important recommendations of pipe smoking. Men who have the habit of speaking impetuously should take up pipe smoking. Hardly a week goes by, in the lives of most men that they have not reason to regret having spoken when they should have shut up. A good pipe between the teeth is a first class curb on the tongue. Some men can talk with a pipe in their mouths; but the majority have the habit, in conversation especially, of removing the pipe for each considered utterance.

A pipe induces reflection. In bygone days, the big, curved Peterson pipe, made in Dublin—a pipe almost the size of a young saxophone—was advertised as "the contemplative man's smoke." With such a pipe in your teeth, you are inclined to sit and listen. The pipe rests comfortably against your collar bone. It hums almost. It is fat, full and somnolent. Incense rises from it, close to your half-closed eyes, you. If speak you must, you have to remove the big curved pipe with almost as such protocol as you would remove your hat. So, instead, you are inclined to doze and listen to your friends and keep your own counsel.

Cigarets, actually, incite speech. A cigar is nearer to a pipe in its oral obstructionary character. After a good big dinner, when conversation is a burden, a good fat cigar neatly filling the hole in your face through which nine-tenths of your troubles emanate, is a fine, aromatic stop-gap.

Some of the worst talkers in the world are cigar smokers. But they clamp the cigar in their molars, allowing it to project belligerently out of their cheek. A cigar so worn gives a man a sense of mastery, of authority. He must talk incisively, because it comes through his incisors.

But a pipe is peace.

Mackenzie's Column Makes Inspiring Declaration Of His Faith

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWS ANALYST

A salute to Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodgers' star second baseman, for his inspiring declaration in his country before the Un-American activities committee of the House of Representatives.

It was a difficult task for this young hero to take the stand and voice an opinion regarding Paul Robeson's statement in Paris that United States negroes wouldn't fight against Russia because they love that country so much.

Robinson in his straight-forward way told the congressmen he guessed "it boils down to a sense of responsibility."

Jackie said that if Robeson made that statement it sounded "very silly". The witness said that "most Negroes—and Italians and Irish and Jews and Swedes and Slavs and other Americans—would act as all these groups did in the last war. They'd do their best to help the United States stay out of the war; if unsuccesful they'd do their best to help their country win the war—against Russia or any other enemy that threatened the United States."

Expression of Faith

Under it all appeared to be an expert on communism or any other kind of political ism.... but you can put me down as an expert on being a colored American, with 30 years of experience at it. And just like any other colored persons with sense enough too look around and understand what he sees, I know the life in these United States can be mighty tough for people who are a little different from the majority—in their skin, color or the way that they worship their God, or they way they spell their names."

Robinson went on to relate how he had been used as "the laboratory specimen" in introducing Negro players into organized baseball when he was signed by Montreal Royals. Since then some six other colored players have been signed up—— "A start has been made, and progress goes on." and then:

"We're going to make progress in other American fields besides baseball if we can get rid of some of the misunderstandings and confusion that the public still suffers from....I can't speak for any 15,000,000 people any more than any other person can, but I know that I've got too much invested for my wife and child and myself in the future of this country, and I and other Americans of many races and faiths have too much invested in our country's welfare, for any of us to throw it away because of a siren song sung in bass."

"But that doesn't mean," Robinson said, 'that we're going to stop fighting race discrimination in this country until we've got it licked. It means that we're going to fight it all the harder because our stake in the future is so big. We can win our fight without the communists and we don't want their help."

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR THE GOOD OF ALL

We would all be so much happier in this world if every effort community, our country, and the toward the betterment of our world at large, were made with the idea in mind of the greatest good to the largest number. We confine ourselves to too many groups—usually in the minority—and try to force our ideas upon the many. That is the way it is in politics all too often. For the good of all is a fine idea for all of us to keep in mind.

The scientist works long and late at his experiments. He does not even spare his body. He keeps thinking of the good of all as he works and tries this and that for long periods of time to benefit all mankind if the major efforts are put forth so that the world may benefit and not be destroyed by it.

We can well afford to give in to others, and reasonably compromise, if the good of all is the objective. No bitterness should ever follow a major decision. If that decision is bad and not for the good of all, it can soon be corrected. We should all the great benefits that follow good sportmanship in all walks and experiences of life.

Not only for the good, but the happines of all, should be our objective. Great organizations would not run smoothly, and important things be acomplished, without the hearty co-operation and willingness of all to contribute their share. A few "trouble makers" can bring about a serious situation in any great group that may mean the unfortunate loss to many, as well as to all. We are of all makes of birth and circumstance, but if we keep in mind at all times the good of all, we ourselves will be happy and the best progress made.

If we were all made alike this would be a very uninteresting world. We need the knowledge and ingenuity of the many to give us incentive and ambition. It has been said that two heads are better than one. Well a thousand heads or more working together for the good of all, can accomplish wonders. We ought to be considerate of the feelings of others, and we ought to respect the ideas and suggestions of others. That is the way to learn. And that is the way to get on!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FRIENDS WHO HURT US

You say you don't like such an such a person. Have you ever stopped to ask the reason why? You may say that you dislike his selfishness, his stubborness his insincerity his vacillating and unstable disposition. But how about this for a reason—he doesn't feed your ego.

We can be quite tolerant of people's faults, but what we can't stand and what makes us clinch our fists and tear our hair and stamp our feet and declare we won't stand it, is the fact that certain people do not feed our ego. They do not defer to us. They do not flatter us. They do not slap us on the back every time we pass them and declare that it's a swell day, even though it may be the most wretched day imaginable.

We like the people who cheer us, who tell us we are better than we really are, who by their attitudes give us a sense of self-sufficiency. But all such people are bad for us. What we need to do in this life is face the truth, and the friend who is a friend indeed often holds a looking-glass before our faces and calls upon us in the name of God to take one look and grow sick with revulsion and shame.

Good friends often leave scars, and these scars are the badges of their friendship. The cheerful fellow who carries with him plenty of ingredients to lubricate every situation and make life easy is Satan's most sinister messenger sent to devastate our souls.

GET OUT IN THE GARDEN, GRANDMA

We recently moved into a new home where there is a beautiful garden or the beginnings of one. I enjoy getting out and pulling weeds and digging around and all the work goes into the making of a garden. I am 60 and in healthy condition as far as I know, although a bit on the nervous side. A friend who visits me often has told me repeatedly that a woman my age should not get down on hands and knees to do the work I do in the garden. She says it causes high blood pressure to bend over ......she has made me worry... So I ask your advice. I enjoy every bit of the garden work, but if you say it is harmful of course ....(Mrs. S. D. C.)

Your friend perhaps envies your hedonism. She is a victim of anhedonia—incapacity to enjoy life, to be happy.

A great many persons past middle age do not experience the joy of living, of being life, notwithstanding tolerably good health and good fortune. They are too ignorant. Ignorant because of bad education. Their education never reached below the neck. They may not be ignorant in the common sense of the world but they are not right-minded. Perhaps an analysis of many human lives will clarify the distinction:

Right-Mindedness	Anhedonia
Motion	Emotion
Play	Sport
Work	Business
Diversion	Thrill
Recreation	Excitement
Relaxation	Boredom, ennui
Pleasure	Vice
Contentment	Restlessness, yearning
Venerable Old Age	Degeneracy, Suicide

Study the comparative analysis for a few moments and decide for yourself which your own life fits.

If it doesn't seem worth while to think any more about it now, at any rate cut out the table and keep it to examine later when, perhaps, you may take more interest in self-analysis.

Mrs. S. D. C.'s friend who thinks it "causes high blood pressure to bend over" and that a woman of 60 should not get down on hands and knees is an example of the sad effect of faulty education in the common schools of the country.

I hope Mrs. S. D. C. will keep right at her gardening, on all fours whenever that may be the obvious way to play the game. Bending over frequently in the course of one's daily work or play is fine medicine for the arteries and of positive prophylactic or preventive value so far as premature hardening of the arteries in concerned.

If Mrs. S. D. C. is not already a roller I hope she will write and ask for Invitation to the Somersaultauqua—the pamphlet which tells how to roll somersaults (my kind, not Webster's) and why every one past thirty should roll 'em every day. After a little practice to perfect her technique Mrs. S. D. C. may have a lot of fun watching her ancient friend's dismay as Mrs. C. rolls a few for her.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Creaks in the Chassis

My husband and I both have pains and creaks which we suspect, from your teachings, may be due to calcium deficiency. Please send your pamphlet on Adult Tetany and Growing Pains. As a girl I attended school in Penn Yan—but I imagine you were in your high chair then.... I knew Mr. Parks the carriage maker there, but he turned out no such de luxe job as you had for your sorrel horse Topsy! (Mrs. L. H. B.)

Answer—Topsy was as proud of the Whitfield nera-Stanhope with rubber tires, patent leather dash and nickel plated hub caps as I was. Please write again and tell me how much better your chassis sounds, after you have taken your calcium and D for a month or two.

Brother and Sister Entertain Little Friends at Party

On Sunday afternoon at the summer home of their parents, Master Larry MacPherson and his sister, Sharon, entertained their little friends to a party; Larry celebrating his third and Sharon, her second birthday.

Some time was spent playing in the water after which Larry and Sharon opened their many lovely gifts. A very dainty tea was served on the lawn, the table being decorated with a birthday cake at each end, fancy crackers and little baskets of candy.

After playing a few games, the little ones returned to their homes, tired, but happy.

WEDDINGS

JOHNSON—GARRISON

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed, on Saturday, July 16, when Margaret Millicent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Garrison, Tweed, became the bride of William Elmer Johnson, son of Mrs. Florence Johnson, Tweed and the late Mr. James Mathew Johnson. The Reverend F. Downing officiated before an altar banked with sweetpeas and baby's breath.

Before the ceremony, selections from Mendelssohn were played and Mr. Merrill Dales, soloist, sang "Bless This House" during the signing of the register.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was demure in her bridal gown of white satin with lace inserts. She wore a white lace mantilla and carried a white prayer book with white satin streamers and red roses.

Miss Lois Way, of Tweed, was maid of honor and Miss Jean Johnson, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Both wore similar gowns of blue taffeta and lace with headdresses of pink carnations and baby's breath, and carried bouquets of pink gladioli.

Little Miss Ann Downing, of Tweed, was flower girl, also wearing a dainty dress of blue taffeta and lace with matching bonnet. She carried a nosegay of white, pink and blue summer flowers.

Mr. John Johnson, Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and Mr. James Jeffrey, and Mr. Lorne Reid were ushers.

At the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated with white and pink gladioli blooms, the bride's mother, gowned in grey sheer, over taffeta, with corsage of pink roses, was assisted in receiving the guests by the mother of the bridegroom, who wore a brown flowered mesh gown, with corsage of cream roses.

After the reception, the young couple left for a wedding trip through the Thousand Islands, and points east, the bride wearing a green checked jersey two-piece dress with white accessories.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a silver choker and matching earrings; to his groomsman and ushers, leather wallets.

The bride's gifts to her maid of honor and bridesmaid, gold necklaces; to her flower girl, a gold locket and chain and to the bridegroom, a camera.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. Donald McQuade; Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Reid, and Mr. and Mrs. Peacock.

Upon their return the young couple will reside in Kaladar, Ontario.

SUMMERS—WORFOLK

Blue delphiniums, white snowballs, and ferns, the pews decorated with white satin bows, formed the setting in Whitby United Church, on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Wilma Ilene Worfolk, of Whitby, was united in marriage to Orville Keith Summers, of Belleville. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Worfolk and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Summers, all of Whitby. The Rev. Charles Malcolm performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Vernon Rowe, of Whitby, presided at the organ, and Miss Marion Wannop, of Whitby, sang "I'll Walk Beside You" at the commencement of the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin fashioned with a fitted bodice and richly gathered skirt which swept into a long train edged with lace. The bodice was designed with a round neckline inset with a lace yoke which was highlighted with a satin bertha accented with lace. The long sheath sleeves were pointed over the hand. Tiny clusters of lily-of-the-valley caught up the skirt revealing tiers of lace petticoats. A white satin coronet embroidered in pearls and sequins, crested her full length veil of embroidered tulle illusion. Her flowers were a cascade of red roses.

Miss Helen Worfolk, of Whitby, was maid of honor for her sister, and wore a gown of mignonette blue taffeta and Chantilly lace. The bodice, having a deep portrait neckline and cap sleeves was fashioned of the lace, with a bouffant skirt of taffeta. She carried a cascade of pink roses, gladioli and blue cornflowers tied with blue ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Miss Joan Jones, of Whitby, and Miss Norma Bull, of Toronto, and wore identical frocks of flowered peach organdy designed with fitted basques and very full skirts. The bodices were made with cameo necklines, finished with an organdy frill. They each carried a cascade of pink gladioli, roses and blue cornflowers with peach ribbon ties.

All the attendants wore flowered headdresses and long matching gloves.

Mr. Wilmot Gates of Whitby, performed the duties of best man. Mr. William (Bill) Worfolk, brother of the bride, was usher.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 207 Byron Street, South, Whitby. A variety of summer flowers and pink and white streamers decorated the room. Mrs. Worfolk, the bride's mother, who received the guests on the lawn, wore a two-piece dress of pink flowered crepe fashioned on tailored lines, with bracelet length sleeves and a white picture hat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Summers, the bridegroom's mother, who assisted, chose a fitted dress of chartreuse crepe designed with short sleeves and having soft gathers at the back. A wide brimmed white hat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow and pink roses, with pink ribbon bow, completed her ensemble.

A three-tier wedding cake, crested with sweetpeas and flanked with white tapers in silver holders, centred the bride's table, which was laid with a white linen cloth.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. Mr. Malcolm and responded to by the bridegroom. The toast to the bridesmaids was proposed by the best man, Mr. Wilmot Gates and responded to by Dr. Fred Harding. The father of the bride also voiced his good wishes to the newly wedded couple.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Summers left by motor for the Muskoka district and will also visit points in the United States. For travelling, Mrs. Summers wore a grey and fuchsia printed crepe dress, a wide brimmed hat of grey lace straw, having an open crown, and a corsage of summer flowers.

On their return they will reside in Belleville, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barnum; Oshawa, Ont.; Mr. George Slater, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilson, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Simkin, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Gates, Cherrywood; Mr. Bill Morrish, Cherrywood; Mr. and Mrs. B. Handscomb, Toronto; Miss Patricia Bowes, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. D. Wiseman, Brooklin and Miss Ann Brown of Pickering.

MURPHY—ENGLISH

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized on June 29th., at the parsonage of St. Andrew's Wesley United Church, Vancouver, B.C., when Bessie Margaret, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew R. English, of Thomasburg, Ont., was united in marriage to John Lester Murphy, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. William Murphy, of Vancouver, with the Rev. Dr. O. W. S. McColl, officiating.

Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Murphy, brother and sister-in-law of the groom.

The bride wore a gray gabardine suit with white accessories and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white stephanotis.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Elsie Johnson.

Mr. James Hood, as toastmaster, proposed a toast to the bride, which was responded to by the groom.

Later, the happy couple left by boat to Nanaimo and other places of interest on Vancouver Island.

Upon their return they will reside in Vancouver, where Mr. Murphy is with the police department in that city.

Thinks Waxed Paper Ruins Bread Flavor

Worthing, England, (CP)—Elizabeth Wegmann of Toronto would rather starve than eat "dreadful" British cakes. But the bread? It's wonderful.

Back in her native England, she wrote a newspaper that loaves baked from Britain's standardized flour are the "nicest tasting" she's had since she left Britain 30 years ago.

"In Canada, the bread is all wrapped while hot in beastly waxed paper, which gives the crust a horrible taste of paraffin wax," she wrote.

Two Nurses Excited Over New Experience

Vancouver, July 20. (CP)—It's into the trunk with the crisp white uniforms and on with the dungarees for two west-coast nurses off on an adventurous 10-month trip in icy northern waters.

A few days ago Evelyn Hunter and Doreeen Pendray had never met. Now they will spend almost a year on a small United States medical mission vessel, visiting settlements along the Alaska coast. They leave at the end of July.

Miss Hunter, a Vancouver nursing graduate, labels herself a "Prairie sailor". She comes from Lacombe, Alta., and says that as a little girl she dreamed of living near the sea.

During a year's nursing at up-coast Pender Island she spent all the time possible on the water, "in any kind of a small craft—even fishing boats." She heard of the medical mission and decided to dedicate her life to it.

Miss Pendray, while anxious to serve her profession, is agog with the call of adventure.

"I've lived in Victoria all my life," she says, "so you can't blame me for being a bit excited."

She joined the crew after a meeting with Dr. Lindsay McClenney, head of the mission and the ship "Willis Shank".

Both girls are shopping for comfortable shoes, and are in the market for hip boot and mukluks (Eskimo boots).

"We'll certainly need them on this voyage."

As for sea-sickness, Miss Hunter feels she has enough sea experience to avoid it. Miss Pendray shrugs her shoulders.

"That may be my first big adventure," she says.

Shoplifting Lures

London, (CP)—Women indulge in shoplifting because "the risk of being caught is little and the fascination of getting something for nothing is great," Magistrate E. R. Guest said in sentencing a woman offender.

A person's financial position has little to do with it.

"Sometimes it is the very rich, sometimes the very poor," the magistrates said: "All unit in being people of good character until they art caught."

Canadian Women Best Dressed in World Stylists Say

Montreal, July 20.—(CP)—Five Canadian fashion experts who recently shepherded the work of Canadian designers in a series of showings in Paris returned home Tuesday more Canada-conscious than ever before.

"Why the average Canadian woman is a better dressed person than her counterpart in any other part of the world—even Paris," they said, defending the Dominion to the last ditch.

The five "brains" on the trip were Betty Hughes-Koren, Ben Cossman, the Marquis de Roussy de Sales, a temporary resident here, Iona Monahan and Sam Getz.

As one of the party summed it up: "Canadian merchandise can hold its own on all fronts. Canadian values surpass those of other countries and Canadian manufacturing and distribution methods are tops."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shall She, or Shall She Not, Have An Affair?

It is not by any means only the girl who has grown up without ideals or standards who finds herself confronted by sex problems. Many a girl of fine character is forced these days into the very difficult position of having to choose whether she will enter an affair with the man she loves, or run the risk, as she believes, of having him leave her.

There is no use saying that it is wholly wrong in every way that such situations should arise. The cold fact is that in the current chaotic state of our modern society, they do, and must be dealt with realistically.

A girl of 21 who is facing this type of problem writes me the following letter:

"I have been going with a boy for two years, and recently we have been having spats, mostly about having an affair. I have never had an affair with any boy, and while I like this boy very much, and am working to save all I can for the day we start housekeeping, I just can't do anything like that.

"He loves me. He has told me that more than once, but why can't he see it my way? He's the nicest boy I've ever gone with in every way but that. He has been wanting to give me my diamond, but I told him I didn't want it yet. That doesn't mean I should give him freedom over me, does it? Some girls tell me differently, but I don't listen to them. I think marriage is the only time for that kind of thing.

"Should I let him go awhile, and see if he would come back? If he didn't, I guess it would break my heart. Please help me. I don't want to do anything I would be sorry for. Maybe what you say will help some other girls like me who are afraid of such problems."

Here is a girl who has strong and right convictions, but whose will to hold to them is under almost unbearabe strain because of the pressure put upon by the young man she loves so much that she thinks it would break her heart to give him up. Nevertheless, I think that if she must make a choice between this boy and the standards that mean so much to her, it will prove far wiser in the long run if she chooses the latter. For any man who is so selfish, so mean, and so altogether unprincipled that he uses a girl's love for him to try and force her into something she believes is wrong, and that would make her unhappy, is not the kind of man who will make her happy as a husband. To be compatible in marriage, two people must have the same basic ideas. No marriage can endure where there is constant friction between a husband and wife over what is right and what is not right.

I think this girl should make it perfectly plain that if this young man cannot be enough of a gentleman to understand how she feels and to stop trying to persuade her to do what she believes wrong, their romance will have to end. She should take that position and stick to it, refusing to argue about the matter any more. If he decides to leave her, it may, as she fears, break her heart for awhile. But she is the kind of girl, I am sure, who can take a disappointment like that, knowing she has made the right decision, and in time be glad she had the courage to make it.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Perfume Adds to Glamor

Nearly every members of the sisterhood wears make-up. Despite new modes, clothes are standardized to a certain extent. Cute shoes can be had, but they look pretty much alike. The three-inch haircut can be arranged in different ways, but it seldom is. It is given a sweep or two of the comb and that's that. But a woman has a means — along good-looks lines — of expressing her personality. She finds it in a choice perfume that becomes associated with her presence.

It may sound like a paradox, but it is a fact; to conserve perfume you should use it freely. Not lavishly. Just a little bit each day. Its application should not be just for the festive occasion when one wears one's gayest, loveliest draperies. Continued use means that it banks up, the entire wardrobe become impregnated with it. It is then part of you.

Many fashionable flower blends are provocative

Keep the precious fluid in an atomizer. After your bath, spray your neck and shoulders. Put a little on your garters and the hems of your skirts. With an atomizer there is little possibility of being too extravagant. Yes, we know it costs a lot. But it is costliest sachet balls on your dress and used, allowed to evaporate—as it will if it stands in the light or a warm place.

It is possible to buy sachets and perfume of the same scent. Place sahet balls on your dress and coat hangers. Keep the door of closet closed. Don't have leather goods in your closet; suit cases carry odors that are anything but attractive to the olfactory organs. Garments pick them up.

Many fashionable flower blends are provocative and arresting, more suitable for use in the Winter than in the Summer season when delicate fragrances are more harmonious with light, dainty clothes. There has been a return of the "single flower odor," which is in keeping with modes that have been resurrected from the past. Even rose and violet have come back; they were the favorite of the mid-Victorian period.

There is only one rule for making a selection. Buy what you like, what excites you, what makes you feel romantic. You've got to live with it an, if you find it to heavy, you probably will divorce yourself from its overpowering influence, thereby reducing your beauty budget and getting nothing for it.

Saleswomen at cosmetic counters report that the first question a woman asks is "Will this perfume last?" A high grade product probably will if it is used daily and if no other scent is applied to one's garments. To use two perfumes is a mistake. The sweetest ones may fight and destroy each other. Find a delicious fragrance, and stick to it.

Individual Likes Basic Principle For Child's Diet

New York, (CP)—Don't force your child to eat, says Dr. Elizabeth Hurlock, who is also a mother.

"A child quite often knows better what it should eat than its mother," says Dr. Hurlock. "My daughter persistently refused to eat liver and soon we found out that she was allergic to it."

Instead of standing over your child, urging him to finish what's on his plate, remove the uneaten food without comment or show of concern. Unless he is allergic to it, your child soon should accept the food without fuss or bother, says Dr. Hurlock.

"Scientific studies of taste have shown no inborn food dislikes except for food that is harmful to the human body," Dr. Hurlock adds. Some of the reasons children develop food dislikes are because one or other of the parents has expressed a dislike for it in the child's presence, or because the food is overcooked or over-seasoned.

Moderate Helpings

The best way to tempt a child's appetite is to serve it attractively, well-cooked, and in fairly small quantities.

However, warns Dr. Hurlock, a child who persistently refuses to eat should be examined by a doctor.

A child who overeats is just as much a problem as one who refuses to eat.

"Mother may love to be asked for second helpings after each meal, thinking it will make Johnny grow big and strong," smiles Dr. Hurlock, "but overeating becomes a habit and invariable leads to excess weight.

"No mother wants her child called 'Tubby' or 'Fatty'."

Dr. Hurlock gives two rules for establishing good eating habits in a child. First, maintain outward calmness at all times. If you are worried, don't let your child see it. The "I-am-sure-everything-is-all-right" attitude helps the child to feel the same way.

Secondly, don't let your child develop any detrimental food habits. If you see signs of any, squelch them immediately.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Customary: For Couple Themselves to Give Anniversary Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I will have our Thirti-fifth wedding anniversary soon, and we would like to celebrate the occasion, inviting all our relatives and friends. We have a lovely home, large enough to accommodate many guests for this occasion. But I believe that it is not proper for use to give this party ourselves. Therefore I wonder if it would be correct to have the celebration-party given in our home, with our four children, two married daughters and two married sons (all of them have their own homes, that is, they do not live with us) as hostesses and hosts, and we, my husband and I, the guests of honor? What kind of an affair would you suggest as best? And what kind of invitations should be sent, as we would not like anyone to know it is our anniversary until they arrive.

E.S.

It is entirely correct, and quite customary, for the couple themselves to give the party to celebrate their wedding anniversary. And with your lovely, big house in which to give it, I would suggest that you and your husband be hostess and host welcoming your friends to your hame on this so-important occasion. Then you could send a simply-worded invitation to an "At Home," not mentioning the reason-for-the-party; whereas if your daughters and sons give the party, they would have to send the invitations in their names, and therefore I should think the guests would easily guess the reason-for-the-party.

When the guests arrive, they would find you and your husband, hosts of the party, standing first in th eline, to greet your guests, and, if you wish, your daughters (with their husbands) and your sons (with their wives) standing either in the line or nearby. This at once tells the "anniversary story" . . and later there will be, I hope, the wedding cake, for you to cut the first piece and share it with your "bridegroom." And then the toasts "to the bride and groom!"

Your invitations might read like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin James Smith at home
Tuesday, the ninth of August from four until seven o'clock
Two Home Place
Pleasantville, State

(If you have informals, with your address as well as your name on thefirst page, you may use these and write the second, third and fourth lines on the inside page.)

Always With Us: This Problem of Shower Presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I am invited to a shower and cannot attend, is it necessary for me to send a gift?

Marie S.

No. . . if you "regret" the shower invitation and don't wish to send a shower present, you needn't send one. Often whether or not you wish to send a present depends somewhat on circumstances. For example, if you have been invited to several showers given for the same girl (which happens too often in these shower-minded days!), your pocketbook may well be so deflated that you cannot afford to give another shower present. . . and you shouldn't be expected to. But, on the other hand, if the engaged girl is a very dear friend of yours and is to have only one more or less general shower given for her, you may want to send a shower present even if you are not able to attend.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Fashion Flashes

WATCH OUT for velvet this Fall and Winter. Popular for late Summer wear are silks and cottons with touches of velvet. A black and white silk print, a two-piecer, has its jacket top made with the small collar of black velvet, also used for an inlay on the turn-back cuff and for buttons.

VACATIONERS wil find a wide variety of swim suits at their favorite store, for stocks have never been so ample as now. Designed for the girl who really goes into thewater is a fitted one-piece model in pale blue elasticized satin. It has a well-shaped bra top and inset, shirred panels in front.

JUST PERFECT for an afternoon garden party is a dress of crinkled organdie in white with a print of big loose flower bouquets, with a bright green velvet sash catching up the leaf tones. Deep neckline is marked by a draped cuff collar and short sleevs have turn-back cuffs.

LOOKING AHEAD to Autumn, we note that the well-handled daytime frock of lightweight woolen in lovely colorings is going to be more important than ever. Hand blocked tin worsted in poppy rose and neon blue on black in an uneven plaid design is used for a handsome dress with softly rounded shoulders, wide tunnel collar and slim skirt with slanting, tabbed pockets, all adding up to a carefully worked out casual approach.

THE ORDER BOOKS of the majority of store buyers show a marked partiality for the fur-lined topper, often with matching skirt to add up to a versatile and useful costume. Squirrel and moleskin, the latter dyed in various lovely colors, join the popular American broadtail and muskrat linings.

WARM SUNSHINE calls for neat, cool clothes for the city child. A nice office dress is of red and white checked tissue gingham cut on tailored lines with a deep V neck, self collar, and pockets on the full skirt. Snug bodice closes with gilt hooks and eyes.

Many Visitors from Distant Places Sign Guest Book Here

The Migratory Habits of the North American Tourists" would be a fascinating volume to judge from some samples taken from the guest book of Mrs. E. M. Karis of the Superior Grill Front Street.

The advent of the motor car has created millions of travel-hungry individuals who become nomads when the summer sun beckons and travel folders scatter their allure. And Canada seems to be getting its fair share of this seasonal invasion.

The Karis guest book, the second one in two years, has been signed by visitors from as far south as Mexico City, from almost every state in the Union and by persons from British Columbia to New Brunswick. There is even an entry by a Greek couple visiting from Athens, Greece.

The long distance record this year is held by Dr. and Mrs. Nicolopoulos, Athens, Greece, who are touring Canada and the United States.

Los Angeles has several representatives listed in the book. Florida not to be outdone by its California rivals, has guests signed from Tampa and Sarasota. The "Lone Star State," Texas to you all heah in the no'th, rubs shoulders with Rhode Island, Illinois, and Oregon, a rather neat trick that can happen only in guest books.

Some of those "far away places with the strange sounding names" include Roanoke Rapids, North Carolina; Oil City, Pennsylvania; Shirley, Mass; Wewoka, Oklahoma; and Monterey Park, California. Canadian addresses include Cranbrook, British Columbia, and Saint John, New Brunswick, as well as a host of other intermediate points.

Last year Mrs. Karis sent more than 500 Christmas cards to persons who had signed her guest book. This year many of them returned to Belleville and stopped in to thank her for the card.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"When does my nurse, with her doubly qualified cot, move out, and my wife move in" Chris asked.

"Oh . . .' long in here, some time. And don't use words like that!" Her tone, over his shoulder, was casual. Chris, beside her at the window sill, turned his face about with his big hard hand and forced her lips to his, and Fanny felt that her ribs would crack under his embrace.

This window sill was one of her favorite places. She loved to idle there, looking down at the city, exulting in height and safety far above it.

"It loves us because we've licked it, Chris," she said when she could speak.

"But wouldn't that make it hate us?" There were hours in these amazing days when he felt like himself as oddly unafraid as she; moods when he liked to dawdle up here at the window, idly smoking complacently staring down at the world.

"No, it's so contrary that it makes it love us!" His free arm was about her; her tousled bright head rested on his shoulder.

"A word in your ear, madam. The cot disappears while you're at the matinee this afternoon."

"Say you so?"

"And I meet you at the theatre after the show tonight and take you to dinner."

"Oh, Chris, could you? Are you well enough? It'd be such fun . . our first dinner together! I'm free by ten-fifteen."

"I'll be there at ten-fifteen."

"And how'll I know you Will you wear a white carnation?"

"You'll know me all right!" Chris said. There was an odd look in his eyes; it brought the bright happy color to Fanny's transparent skin.

"For the first time," she told him, "I'm beginning to fear this whole thing is a mistake!"

"Think what you like," Chris said, I'm running things now."

It was only two days later that Fanny had a letter from Madge, forwarded from the Behrmann house to the theatre. She opened it in the dressing room, in all the confusion that immediately preceded the play.

It was long, gossipy, confidential. It took no note of the breach that there had been in the relationship between them; Madge's hurried departure with no word to Fanny, her oddly unsatisfactory behavior before she left.

"Fanny Dearest," wrote Madge on the seventh page, "all this will explain to you what I began with . . . that we're not married and not going to be. Mother's been right all along, and I've come to see it. Mack's the darlingest thing alive; I know that, but I just couldn't do it when it came right down to cases. He's to go to New York . . . won't it be funny when we four are all together again!

"For, Fan, I'm coming back, Berkeley is too dead after all the excitement there, and I'm determined to go in for my puppet work in a big way this time; no more fooling.

"Chris'll be there too . . may be there now. He wrote me in January from Australia that he was heading for home. And it was always Chris with me, Fan, even though I wasn't smart enough to know it. There'll never be anyone else, and what does money matter, after all? I'm over twenty-one, and Grandma's three hundred a month will be lots; the main thing is to have discovered, and discovered in time, that it wasn't Mack, it was only Chris. And the absurbity is that Chris asked me . . asked me twice; he wouldn't mind your knowing that darling. Only I didn't have sense to know what I wanted! And there are others . . they've been several, just this winter, and it all helps me to know there's no one but Chris. So expect to be a bridesmaid one of these days, and to be the person our family loves best. Oh, Fan, it will be fun! We'll have little parties, and go places together. Mother doesn't know all this, but when Chris is back and we've seen each other and made our plans, I'll wire her, and she'll come on . . probably in long vacation. So meanwhile do look up some cute diggings where you and I can be together, and believe me always your lovingest Madge."

Fanny stood still for a long time the letter crushed in her hand, the confusion of the dressing room surging about her. The light seemed to go out of the world slowly; she left a certain coldness in her heart.

Madge again . . and the little idyll that she and Chris were sharing shadowed by Madge's complacement 3 hundred a mnoth. They had to work so hard for their little; she could take her much so serenely for granted, Madge . . whom Chris had certainly loved, less than a year ago, whom Chris had asked to marry him . . back in their lives again!

"Listen, get a move on, honey," said old Rita Reynolds, who played the aunt. "First call ever so long ago!"

"Oh, thanks," Fanny said, rousing. "I'll be ready!"

The day that they moved . . . a warm wet June day, with all the thick clothy new leaves on the park trees hanging limply, thickly beaded crystal, and the sun smoldering somewhere out of sight behind heavy grey clouds, Chris wanted to celebrate with a dinner at Montibello's. But Fanny resolutely resisted. She reminded him that they would both be stiff and weary by the time the moving was accomplished, and far more ready for scrambled eggs and tea in the privacy of home than for any public appearance of effort. Chris meekly agreed; he had come to agree with most everything with Fanny.

Five Years Spent In Hospital

London, Ont., July 20—(CP)—"Health is rarely appreciated until a person has lost it."

Gordon Anscombe, former Mount Elgin high school athlete, said it a bit wistfully Monday as he celebrated his 21st. birthday in Victoria public hospital here. He has been a patient five years from injuries received when he dived into a shallow pond.

He had a family birthday party in his room, with fried chicken prepared by his mother.

It was on June 28, 1900 when Gordon finished the last of his third year examinations at Mount Elgin continuation school and hied him off to the Tillsonburg swimming hole.

In a dive he fractured his neck, partly severing his spinal cord, and became paralyzed from the neck down. Lately he has been able to use his arms and hands.

BLAMES FLYING BUG

Cooksville, July 19—(CP)—Taxi driver Philip Frannchetto today blamed "a flying bug" for the accident in which his cab crashed into a car driven by Shozo Toliga of Montreal.

Charged with careless driving, Frannchetto was fined $10 and costs after he pleaded that he "was taking swipes at a bug, and the next thing I knew there was another car in front of me."

Female Rookies Have Long Hours On London Force

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—Where are the rugged, intelligent women of Britain who served in the Navy, Army and Air Force during the war?

That question is being asked by chiefs of the Women's Metropolitan Police Force, unable to find enough recruits to build up their numbers to the minimum required.

"Unfortunately about 50 per cent of applicants have to be rejected," said Superintendent Constance Bather, highest-ranking woman officer in the Metropolitan Police.

"The job calls for a high standard of efficiency, long hours, one weekend off in six or seven and not many free evenings. There are plenty of other jobs offering short hours and every evening and weekend free. That is the competition we have to contend with."

This is what London policewoman should be:

Physical—at least five feet four inches in height, with good sight minus spectacles, between 22 and 35 years of age.

Mental—no particular academic qualifications, but plenty of common sense and character plus an "upright nature".

Rejections Reasons

Volunteers rejected by the women's police force fall into two categories— those who cannot make the grade educationally and those who do not pass the medical examination.

At present the force numbers 238 out of a permitted establishment of 328. If the missing 90 policewomen can be found, it is possible the establishment may be increased.

Much of the policewoman's work is considered unsuitable for men. It involves looking after small children, talking to girls who have "gone wrong", attending to elderly women taken ill outside their homes, protecting young women from unwelcome attentions by men.

"We are as much concerned with protection as prosecution," Superintendent Bather said. "For that reason really first-class policewomen are hard to find."

After two years in uniform, women possessing the necessary ability and enthusiasm may be enrolled in the detective force.

One obstruction to recruiting—low rates of pay—will be partially removed this month as a result of the Lord Oaksey report on police salaries in general.

At present women constables receive £4/14s. ($19) a week, increasing in 10 years to £5.17s. Sergeants get £6.15s a week and inspectors £410 ($1,640) a year.

NOW! Dental Science Reveals a Startling Discovery in the Fight Against Tooth Decay

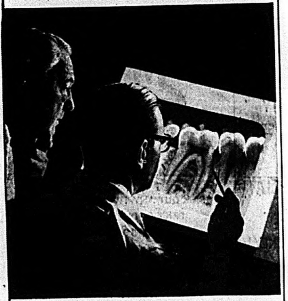
HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY with Colgate Dental Cream

X-RAYS SHOW HOW PROPER USE OF COLGATE'S HELPS STOP TOOTH DECAY!



Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for over a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate's right after eating. The other group followed usual dental care. X-rays were taken at regular intervals.

The average of the group using Colgate Dental Cream as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay! The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate!

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone; nor can it stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started!

The Most Important News in Dental History! Exhaustive Research on Hundreds of People by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before It Starts!

NOW dental science offers scientific proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than a year's continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

For now—the same toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—offers a safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

Colgate's Is Safe— Not An Experimental Formula!

Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. And Colgate's contains these ingredients in correct proportions! No risk of irritation to tissues and gums!

The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula that was used in the tests.

You can use Colgate's with confidence. Colgate's is safe—and using it as directed is a safe, proved way to avoid needless cavities—actually help stop tooth decay at home!

To The Dental Profession

The research described here was conducted in leading dental clinics under the over-all supervision of some of America's foremost dental research authorities.

A detailed report of the tests is now in preparation and will be available for your use and study in the near future. If you wish a copy, send your request on your own professional letterhead to Colgate, Toronto 8, Ontario.

These studies represent the most exhaustive evidence ever offered to the dental profession of actual reduction of cavities. They present scientific proof that always brushing teeth right after eating is one of the most effective ways yet known to help stop tooth decay before it starts. And Colgate Dental Cream is the only dentifrice that can prove the statements reported here.

NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR, FOAM, OR CLEANSING ACTION!

Millions know that Colgate Dental Cream cleans their breath while it cleans their teeth. That its wonderful wake-up flavor is preferred over all other dentifrices tested. That no other toothpaste does a better job of cleaning teeth. And there has been no change in Colgate's famous flavor—its marvelous foaming quality—or its safe and thorough cleansing action!

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy to Start Them On The Colgate Way To Reduce Tooth Decay!

9 out of 10 children have one or more decayed teeth by the time they enter school. So don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor—so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

Bevin and Cripps Seek Renewed Health

London, July 20 (AP).—Britain's crisis-burdened cabinet is temporarily losing Foreign Secretary Bevin as well as Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, because of illness. A foreign office announcement said Bevin, 68, will leave at the end of the week for some health resort in Europe to rest. Diplomatic officials reported the foreign secretary's heart condition has become worse and his doctors have ordered him to quit work at once. Sir Stafford flew to Zurich Tuesday for six weeks of treatment for colitis—an intestinal ailment.

Harold Lloyd Selected Head Mystic Shrine

Chicago, July 20 (AP) — Harold Lloyd, once the breathless hero of silent movie comedy thrillers yesterday was installed as potentate of the Mystic Shrine.

The ritual, which made the 57-year-old comedian chief of 610,000 North American Shriners, was watched by President Truman and a crowd which nearly filled mammoth Soldier Field.

It was the first time in the Masonic Order's 75-year history that the secret ceremonies have been conducted in public.

28-Pound Lunge Caught in Trent R.

Campbellford, July 20 (CP)—Honors for the largest fish caught in this district so far this season go to Dave Merchant of (Gibbon Street) Oshawa, who hooked and landed a 28-pound muskellunge while trolling in the Trent River south of this town today.

The fish put up a terrific battle and had to be played for over an hour. It was 48 1-2 inches in length with a girth of 19 inches. The bait used was a single one-hook brass spoon.

Newport News, Va., —(AP)—Stephen Pratt knew that the best way to stay out of trouble was to keep his mouth shut.

So, when a couple of detectives stopped him on the street Monday he was a little hesitant about saying anything.

When he did venture to speak, he got into real trouble.

The detectives found a roll of numbers slips in his mouth and straightway hauled him away to jail, where he was bonded in $300 in a lottery charge.

Schuylerville, N.Y. — (AP) — Andrew Richardson, who was dismissed by the Board of Education as the Central School Shop Training teacher, will show up at the next meeting—as a board member.

Richardson recently was elected to represent the Bacon Hill-Grangerville district. He is the only new member on the seven-member board which refused to renew his teaching contract last spring.

Harrison, Ark.,—(AP)—A 700-pound witness required special handling at a trial Monday.

Fred Peebley was advised by physicians not to attmpt to climb the stairs to the courtroom where he was to testify in an assault case.

By agreement of attorneys' Peebley's deposition was taken outside the courthouse.

New York, —(AP)—To make sure they'd have funds for their annual vacation, 40 garment workers started a Saving Club last winter and built up a kitty of $4,700.

Today their vacation began but nobody left for the mountains or seashore.

The $4,700 reportedly had shrunk to $6.

The District Attorney's office said Treasurer Victor Karp, 43, offered this accounting:

Spent by himself, $2,992.
Put out on loan, $1,700.

Karp was charged with grand larceny.

New York, —(AP)—Last March 21, doughty barkeep Sam Atkins noted that it was spring and cut the price of his beer to five cents a glass.

Today, his neighbors wiped the suds from their lips, looked back on four months of nickel beers and decided Sam deserved recognition as a pioneer.

Charles Consey, head of a neighborhoop Fellowship Club, said 25 steady customers chipped in to buy Sam a $300 diamond-studded watch.

It will be presented to him on his 52nd birthday August 4.

Business is good, he said today as he slid another nickel glass down the counter.

Yanks Appear to be On Skids Wiseacres 'We-Told-You' Heard as 3rd Straight Lost

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Is this the start of that long-awaited New York Yankee collapse?

Baseball experts, who picked the Yankees to finish no higher than fourth this year, wore that old wise look today. Many were ready to give you that "I told you so" routine.

And they may have something there. For the Bronx Bombers of late have looked like anything but league leaders.

In losing Tuesday, 5-4, to Cleveland, the Yankees extended their losing skein to three in a row. They now have dropped four of their last five games, three of them to second division clubs. Whereas they once boasted an eight-game margin, their lead has shrunk to 3 1-2 games over the advancing Indians.

The tribe battery of Pitcher Bob Lemon and catcher Jim Hegan was responsible for the Yankee defeat. Between them they scored four of Cleveland's five runs. Lemon not only whipped the Yankees for the third time this year in racking up his 11th triumph, but hammered his fourth home run, with a man on base. Hegan had a perfect three for three including three runs scored, and broke up the game in the last of the ninth with a home run.

Duane Pillette was the victim of Hegan's blow.

In addition to losing the game, the Yankees lost the services of outfielder Gene Woodling, who went out of action after closing the sixth with a spectacular catch that sent him caroming off the wire fence in left centre.

X-rays later disclosed Woodling had suffered a chip fracture of the left leg. The injury is expected to keep him out for a month.

Bosox in 3rd

Boston Red Sox climbed into third place, 7 1-2 games off the pace, by defeating Chicago White Sox 6-4. Vern Stephens' two-run single highlighted the Red Sox three-run ninth inning that kayoed starter Marino Pieretti. Ellis Kinder allowed eight hits to register his 10th triumph.

Detroit Tigers blew a 6-0 lead behind Hal Newhouser, but bounced back to Eke out a 7-6 triumph over Washington Senators. Virgil Trucks, who relieved Newhouser after Washington had blasted the lefthander for five runs in the sixth, was credited with his 12th victory.

Four home runs helped the St. Louis Browns sweep a twilight-night doubleheader from Philadelphia Athletics, 9-4 and 5-4. It was the Browns' second double triumph in three days and their fifth straight victory. Jack Graham and Sherm Lollar hit four-baggers in the first game, and Gerry Priddy and Dick Kokos slammed circuit clouts in the second.

Brooklyn Dodgers picked up a full game on St. Louis Cardinals, edging Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 while Boston Braves knocked off the Redbirds 5-2. The Dodgers now lead by 3 1-2 games. Erv Palica gained his sixth victory, in relief. Rip Sewell, who replaced starter Willie Werle for the Bucs in the seventh, was charged with the defeat.

Southpaw Warren Spahn posted his 11th triumph, limiting the Cardinals to six hits as the Braves batted Max Lanier out of the box in the fourth. Lanier has not won a game since his return.

Scoring at least once in every inning, New York Giants battered three Cincinnati Hurlers for 20 hits including three homers to humble the Reds 13-3. Hank Thompson, Johnny Mize and Marshall contributed home runs. Larry Jansen coasted to his 10th victory.

Lefty Ken Heintzelman pitched another masterpiece as Philadelphia Phils nipped Chicago Cubs 2-1. Heintzelman scattered nine hits for his 12th victory against three defeats. It was his fourth shutout, his third by a 1-0 margin. He now has hurled 26 consecutive scoreless innings.

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Mud! Ox-carts and carriages had a rough time on Canada's first highway from Quebec to Montreal in 1735. In the best dry weather it took four and a half days to complete the trip by carriage!

Road-building was slow until Asa Danforth completed a roadway from Kingston to Ancaster, Ontario, in 1800. Yonge Street in York (Toronto) was commenced about the same time, financed by the Northwest Company. By 1868, after Confederation, most settlements were connected by roads. But they were bumpy and full of holes and impassable in spring. Journeys by stage-coach were hazardous.

Then came the automobile—and the need for better surfaces. One of the first improved highways stretched from Toronto to Hamilton. It opened in 1917.

The Trans-Canada Highway and the Alaska Highway are today's developments that point to great super-highways of Tomorrow. With these highways will come increased industrial development that means great opportunity. Yes— there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

Parker Scores 13th Straight Ring Victory

Toronto, July 20—(CP)—James J. Parker of Barrie, registered his 13th consecutive knockout Tuesday night when he belted out Nick Halinas, a recently-arrived displaced person, at 1.59 of the third round of an 11-bout amateur boxing card here.

Parker, a heavyweight, had little trouble disposing of Jalinas in the third round but was forced to fight cautiously in the first and second.

In the semi-final match, Brian Kelly of Nigara Falls battled out a five-round decision over Syd Taylor of Barrie. Both weight 115 pounds.

In another match, Dave Turnbull of Hamilton won a five-round decision from Maurice Muir of Toronto.

Other results were:

147 pounds — Ron Creasy, Guelph, and John Siviter fought to draw. (Siviter unable to continue because of cut under eye.)

115 pounds—Gene Touterice, Niagara Falls, won a five- round decision over Gil Geekie, Toronto.

147 pounds—Bill Woods, Toronto, won a three-round decision over Fred Mandley, Barrie.

116 pounds—S. Geniole, Toronto, scored a technical knockout in 15 seconds of second round over Don Eckert, Kitchener.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

President Don Thomas who attended a meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association executive in Hamilton the other day comes back with the information that the champions of his Central Ontario Baseball League will cross rapiers with those of the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association in the first round of the senior "A" playoffs. Windsor champs will take on those of the Inter-County League while Niagara Falls has drawn a bye. Second round participants must be ready to play by Sept. 26th.

The "B" playdowns winners which include the COBL runners-up must be ready to tee off by September 15. All players eligible for playdowns must have qualified by July 15th.

Players of the now defunct Trenton town baseball team were ruled eligible to play for other teams. The OBA masterminds approved several changes of residence including that Allen Kelleher, of this city. The request of the Napanee "C" for classification in that grouping was approved.

Paper-dispensing moppets and teen-agers of the Ontario Intelligencer will get a close-up and personal introduction to their favorite wrestler Whipper Watson next Friday night prior to the meeting of the ex-British Empire titleholder with Fred Atkins Australian champion and present holder of the Empah bauble in the main bout at Memorial Arena on Friday night.

Upwards of 70 of the boys will converge on the Arena at 7.30 when they will be personally introduced to the famous athlete and be presented with autographed photographs by Watson himself. Afterwards they will see the entire card and the Whipper will not lack for vocal and moral support from this group of his youthful admirers.

When the idea was suggested to the Whipper via long-distance telephone yesterday he immediately consented to arrive here early on Friday to meet the youngsters. The former world champion "is a great guy" with the youngsters and he has spent a lot of his time and money of furtherance of boys athletic efforts. He sponsors a couple of baseball and hockey teams annually, and one of the greatest thrills he ever received came last year when one of his hockey squads won a championship and the "Whip" presented his own team with the titular trophy.

So Friday evening appears to be a grand gala night for both the adult and teen-agers wrestling addicts and the "moppets" of the newspaper carrying brigade. And if the latter has its way it's going to be a doleful evening for one Fred Atkins, the present champion whose ring ferocity of the past few weeks, plus his villainous tactics has marked him as "the guy-most-unlikely-to-succeed-if-fandom-here-has-its-way.

And in second-place in the hearts of local rassle addicts is Pat Flanagan, whose speed and agility, plus a fine ring personality and clean tactics still remains despite the fact his noggin is slowly but surely parting with its natural upholstery. The popular bloke with the Irish monicker tangles with Tom Rice, a California native son who has all the earmarks of being a devastator of the clean-cut style buckaroos. Rice used everything but the California State Police and a couple of Yankee destroyers in an effort to subdue his opposition here last Friday and was immediately tabbed as an addition to the "heavies" of the wrestling game.

That picture starting at the Capitol Theatre today "It Happens Every Spring" is a "must" for baseball fans. Imagine what happens when a college professor discovers a formula for making a baseball do everything but talk, and is turned into a pitcher overnight. New York critics have tabbed it a "miracle comedy". And it is just that. If you like baseball; you'll love it. If you like baseball plentifully garnished with laughs, (and some of you local fans are used to that by now) you'll scream. In any event don't miss it. It will be here until Saturday, inclusive.

It seems Peterborough fans are more inclined to sit by the radio, enjoy cooling drives, or long tall cold ones, than like Englishman "go out in the mid-day sun" to watch a ball-game. The recent hot weather has been drawing anything but crowds to the Petes senior games this year, and Manager Ed Murphy is mumbling something about this being his last season. Peterborough has no lighting system and the teams are forced to play afternoon and twilight games. The bleachers in the Peterborough park are as open as a Spanish patio and the hot sun beating down on bald and other pates isn't exactly the most comfortable environment in which to watch a ball-game.

The suggested Eastern Ontario Baseball Tournament suggested and sponsored by Kingston interests, to be held in Kingston, with two Kingston teams participating, isn't drawing any raves from baseball master-minds around these parts. And present indications, if the grapevine is an authoritative source, point to very few, if any, entries from this neck of the woods. Teams hereabouts are not blessed with any too much mazuma due to a small box-office and transportation is a serious problem.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, July 20 (CP)—When Wally Keep was a youngster he was presented with a set of golf clubs opposite to the side he swung from. So now the 40-year-old Manitoba Willingdon cupper plays right-handed golf left-handed.

Rated among the top golfers on the prairies, he crosses his left hand over the right and clouts the ball the same as a right-hander.

"Burn those golf books of yours and mulch your flowers with their ashes," advises Scotty (Winnipeg Free Press) Harper after watching the St. Boniface golfer over the years.

How did Wally get his unorthodox style, which, incidentally, doesn't stop him from winning trophies?

Gives Explanation

He explains it best himself:

"As a boy I caddied at the St. Charles Country Club and the late E. R. Barrett took a kindly interest in me. Barrett presented me with a set of right-handed clubs...I was only 10 at the time and I played left-handed...They were a swell set and I didn't feel like giving them away. So I cross-handed grip."

Can Play Straight

Scotty says that while Keep takes a screwy grip of his club, he can also play straightaway. But Keep would rather play cross-handed in tournament. "I can hook a ball better with my cross-hmanded grip."

Besides competing in every major Manitoba tournament, Keep holds down a regular job as a railway switchman, working midnight to 8 a.m. seven days a week.

Just Like Sleep

"I come home from work, have a shower and go out and play golf and feel as fresh as if I had some sleep," said Keep.

Scotty says when Keep steps up to the first tee of the Riverside course at Saint John, N.B., this week as a member of Manitoba's team in the Willingdon Cup matches, it's a safe bet everyone will be looking him over and murmering something like "what will Manitoba send us next?"

"But they'll probably be hearing more of Mr. Keep and his cross-handed swing before the Canadian Amateur Championship is over," Scotty concludes.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Today I want to emphasize a point that many players lose sight of. It is that the hip pivot calls for a quarter-turn and the shoulder pivot calls for a half turn. In other words, at the top of a full swing the back of your shoulders is 'facing' the hole. To pivot more than this causes any but a very expert player a loss of balance and, in turn, lack of rhythm and timing. Remember that clubhead must get back to the ball at the correct mechanical instant. If you overpivot and a result, overswing, it is extremely difficult to get that clubhead back to te ball at the instant when the hip and shoulder pivots, the downswing of the arms and the wrist-lash, which you pour in during the last third of the down stroke, have produced the maximum, controlled velocity you can give to that clubhead. It is the blending of the above named forces into a single force at impact and applied with a slightly inside-out swing that delivers maximum distance. Never swing beyond the rhythm point in the effort to add power for too much power is the short route to high scores.

Wilson Will Concentrate on Harmsworth Mug

(By The Canadian Press)

Harold Wilson said at Gravenhurst Tuesday he has abandoned an attempt to crash the world power-boat speed record with his Miss Canada IV because it would interfere with his plans for the Harmsworth trophy race on the Detroit river at the end of the month.

As far as he is concerned Sir Malcom Campbell's record of 141.74 miles an hour willl stand because he has to file a 10-day notice before attempting to break it.

He was out again on nearby Lake Muskoka Tuesday with his boat but declines to disclose any information about her performance.

But experts say that if the more powerful Miss IV can approach the 119-mile-an-hour speed of her predecessor, Miss III. Wilson has an excellent chance to cop the Harmsworth trophy.

Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Rugby Football Union Tuesday announced legal action will be taken against two eastern players signed by the club who were reported to have accepted later offers.

Bartolini and Aull, both former members of Hamilton Tigers, attended spring training with Sskimos. At that time the club executive announced the two had been signed.

Later reports said Bartolini accepted an offer to play with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Big Four and Aull was returning to Hamilton.

Depending up the funds available, the British Empire Games Association of Canada has arranged the numerical distribution of 62 Canadians who will represent this country in eight sports at the games in New Zealand next February.

General manager Jack Davies said at Montreal Tuesday it is hoped at least 19 men, including marthoners, and seven women can be sent to Auckland as the track and field delegation, largest of any group.

He emphasized that the number ultimately selected to make the trip "depends entirely upon funds available."

At Vancouver, erris Jamel, cobbler-turned-professional boxer, Tuesday laid claim to the long-vacant Canadian light heavyweight championship.

The Jamaican boy turned pro last year, and has since won 12 professional fights. Brightest notches in his belt are a victory over Regina's Adam Faul, who outweighed him by 40 pounds, and a decision over Eddie Zastre of Winnipeg.

Most of his appearances to date have been in Oregon and Washington rings.

Ottawa Rough Riders, last year's eastern senior football champions, went through a limbering-up session Tuesday although Coach Wally Masters' first official drill is not scheduled until today.

At the same time, Vice-President Jimmy McCaffrey announced the club had signed halfback Bill Larochelle, 22, of Chatham, who played with University of Western Ontario Mustangs last year.

Also checking in for the drill were two United States imports who played last year with Villanova University, quarterback Andy Gordon and halfback Joe Rogers, Milano Internazionale, football champions of Italy, defeated Montreal All-Stars 9-3 at Montreal Tuesday in a international game before 3,500 fans.

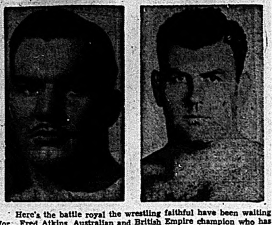
Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 20 — (AP)— Word from London is that Freddie Mills is waiting for an offer to go to the United States to defend his world light heavyweight title against Joey Maxim in September . . . When Jake Mintz, Ezzard Charles' manager, heard that the London promoter Jack Solomons claimed Ezzard would have to go to Britain to fight for the heavyweight "title," Jake cabled, "Keep your title, we're doing okay here." . . . When Hal Gregg, who "retired" when the Pirates shipped him to San Francisco, was talking to a Pittsburgh writer last spring, he remarked: "You know, when you figure it, baseball takes up a lot of a fellow's time." . . . How else does he expect to get those pay cheques?

Hole in One?

During the recent Dapper Dan golf tournament — re-named the Damper Dan after three days of rain — Open Champion Cary Middlecoff picked a spot for some practice shots only to find Skip Alexander driving from an elevated tee right above his head . . . I'll be safe here, won't I?" Cary asked . . . "Sure," replied Skip, "but if I should accidentally miss one I'll be tied for the 12th



Here's the battle royal the wrestling faithful have been waiting for. Fred Atkins, Australian and British Empire champion who has tossed aside several ambitious behemoths during the past weeks once again meets the man from whom he snatched the Empah title, Whipper Billy Watson. . . And don't think the handsome Whipper doesn't relish the opportunity of pinning back the Aussie's ears. Atkins laughs off the Watsonian threat with the old bromide "I did it before and blimey, I can do it again". It will be the battle of the season, and believe us, kiddies, there will be no punches pulled, nor quarter given when the pair clashes Friday night at Memorial Arena. Cheering the Whipper on to victory will be seventy Ontario Intelligencer newsboys who will be in the "bull-pen" as guests of this newspaper. The ferocious Hi Lee meets Ed. Meske in the semi-final while popular Pat Flanagan clashes with the newcomer Tom Rice in the opener.

Petes, Oshawa In Close Race For COBL Lead

Peterborough, July 20—The official standing of the Central Ontario Baseball League up to and including July 18 had the Petes in first place with 10 wins and three losses, just in front of Oshawa with 10 victories and two defeats, But one of the Oshawa defeats was a four-pointer against Brockville, while the Petes had won all four games from Brockville. Batawa was in third place with two wins and 10 reverses, while Brockville had but one triumph in nine starts.

Pitching records showed Lefty Bill Dadson of the Petes out in front with six wins and one loss, and teammate Gunner Ed. Whitehill next with four and one. Plunkett had one loss. Gingerich of Oshawa was third with four victories and two defeats, Knight, Sutton and Michael of the Merchants each having two and none. Smith of Batawa was next in line with two and four, and Tomlinson of Brockville had one win. None of the other hurlers had a victory so far in the schedule.

Leading the hitters, who performed in more than half the scheduled games played to date, was Wilson of the Petes with .480 for eight games. Ticcony of Oshawa had a neat .458 mark in a dozen contests, while Blaziak led Brockville with .391, and Bush was best hitter for Batawa with .346. Following are the Batawa hitters at this point in the race:

Batawa	G.	AB.	H.	Av.
Macdonald	3	8	5	.625
Bush	8	26	9	.346
Dyer	1	3	1	.333

IT'S NEVER FAR FROM WHERE YOU ARE

Movie Producer Dempsey's Ally With New Boxer

Hollywood, — (AP) — Life is indeed beautiful for Sam H. Stiefel.

You probably aren't acquainted with him, but Mr. Stiefel is a busy, friendly little man who makes motion pictures, shows them in his theatres, makes a lot of money, race horses lives in a big house—and is slightly nuts about the fight game.

He's been a fight fan for 35 years, at ringside in his native Philadelphia, in New York and Chicago and three times a week out here.

He never missed a fight and never had a fighter.

Today he owns a heavyweight, and he has himself a partner—and such a partner—Jack Dempsey.

"Meet my partner Jack Dempsey," beamed Mr. Stiefel as he and Jack finished signing contracts in his studio office on a desk about the size of a well-appointed ping pong table.

Dempsey, the one and only, shook hands, waved his as usual unlit cigar, beamed and started telephoning on one of Sam's battery of telephones, lining up matches.

The fighter is a 21-year-old Negro lad named Clarence Henry, and the co-managers' campaign is simple. They're going to pool their resources—Jack's contacts and Sam's money—in guiding him to the heavyweight championship.

"—of the world," said Mr. Stiefel, with enthusiasm.

"It'll take time," said Jack, sparring over the telephone. "But he's a good looking young prospect."

Neglects Movie

Sam was so busy extolling his fighter's merits he forgot that he was makihg a movie epic downstairs. He left it to an aide to say that it was an auto racing picture called "The Big Wheel", and that 118 extras had to be laid off because Mickey Rooney got sick that day.

He told of the 185-pounder's ability to take a punch, how he could punch, how he won the Los Angeles Times and Chicago Tribune Golden Gloves tiles last year and lost in the inter-city finals at New York, how he had had amateur fights and is unbeaten in ten pro matches.

Abe Roth, astute judge of fistic flesh and a pal of Dempsey's, added a word of praise, and Stiefel declared, "He looks better than Joe Louis did at the same stage of his career. "I've seen 'em both."

"Don't worry," chimed in Dempsey, still on the phone. "We won't rush him. We won't get him knocked off."

No Application Made For Park For Sunday Ball

Toronto, July 19 (CP). — Joe Zeigler, manager of the Maple Leaf Baseball Stadium, said today that he had not been asked for use of the park to test the province-wide ban on Sunday sport.

He was commenting on a report that Don North, president of the North Toronto Baseball Association, would ask for use of the grounds for a game next Sunday.

"North did not ask for use of the stadium but he did ask me for my opinion on the matter," Zeigler said. "I told him I would have to give it a great deal of thought."

Earlier North had said that plans to make a "test case" of the game would be shelved until next month if the Association was unable to obtain the stadium next Sunday.

Flagpole Sitter May Hear Whirr Of Stork's Wings

Cleveland, July 20. (CP) — Cleveland Indians' staunchest follower had the personal assurance of Manager Lou Boudreau that he can desert his flagpole perch soon.

Charley Lupica, the druggist who vows he won't leave his aerial seat until the Indians are in first place, is 37 today.

Tuesday night, Boudreau gave him a pre-birthday call to cheer him up.

"You'll be down pretty soon," the tribe manager promised.

And after the Indians whacked the Yanks 5-4 Tuesday, Charley felt pretty much the same way. The club now is only 3 1-2 games behind New York.

When he climbed on his pole outside his drug store, May 31, the team was in seventh place.

In addition to feeling that living in a house might be good for a change, Charley has another reason for wanting to come down.

His wife is expecting a baby any day now.

At one table west was in a contract of five diamonds that was doubled and redoubled. Misfortune overtook this declarer. It was more than he deserved. He was entitled to a better break.

The opening lead from north was the singleton heart. South got this trick with the ace and his return heart was ruffed by north. A club return from north happened to find south with the ace.

The second heart comeback from south was ruffed by north. A club return from north happened to find south with the ace.

The second heart comeback from south was ruffed by north who thus picked up two tricks with his measly trumps. With their two aces, south and north set the contract two tricks.

West and east were vulnerable at the time and their penalty loss came to 1000 points in round or square figures. In view of what went on at other tables, it might as well have been a million.

Some tables played it at a small slam in diamonds that made with ease when the north opening lead was spade king. East ace grabs this trick and west sluffs his lone club king on it.

Nearly all wests opened with two diamonds. Most norths stuck in a pre-empt of four spades. Such a contract is down only one with the loss of two diamonds, a club, a trump.

One or two easts overcalled four spades with five spades. Some doubled four spades. The overcall was taken out by west with a rebid of six diamonds. The double was taken out by west with five hearts. In the last cases, east carried it to six hearts.

The correct contract is in hearts that can take only 11 tricks against any defence. With a spade lead it makes six, of course. But a club or heart lead holds it to five.

So went the battle.

Hollywood, July 20—AP)—"Make believ is a lot different from the real thing," said Mrs. Mike as she watched her own life being filmed.

Mrs. Mike, is Katharine Mary Flanagan, a plump, sweet-faced woman of graying years, who came from her home in Vancouver to see the filming of the best-selling novel about her life.

She viewed a scene of an old mission in Alberta. It was converted into a hospital during a diphtheria epidemic, in which Mrs. Mike's two children died. She said she was pleased to have Evelyn Keyes play herself in the film.

"I was just about her size—weighed just 95 pounds," she remarked. "But we wore our hair longer in those days."

"We have a hard time pretending we're in below-zero weather,' said Miss Keyes. "Did you really wear parkas like these?"

And Underwear

"Oh yes—and two suits of underwear, too," was the answer.

Mrs. Flanagan said she was shocked to see Dick Powell, who plays her husband.

"He seemed so much like the real Sgt. Mike. My husband was quite a singer, too. He was in all the amateur theatricals. You know, he really should have been in the theatre."

She talked eagerly of her life in the northwest. "I went to Canada when I was a young girl," she related. "I had a spot on my lungs and was advised to go north."

"At first I was terribly homesick and lonely. The first night I heard the wolves howling and a lynx that sounded like a woman screaming. I cried all night.

"But the next day the sky was so beautiful and everything was so peaceful, I forgot my fears. I met Sgt. Mike at my uncle's house and we were married the day I was 16."

Many Feasts

"No one locked his door up there," she said. 'You always left it open for travellers who might be hungry and cold."

"You could always go out and kill some meat. And when an Indian killed a big buck, there was feasting for all."

The Flanagans often discussed writing their story. After he died she had Benedict and Nancy Freeman create the book, "Mrs. Mike." so many people have written her to ask what has happened in later years she is now planning a sequel.

She has written a children's book, "Mrs. Mike's Animal Family of the North," which will come out this fall. And she's discussing a plan to adapt the book to a children's television show, with herself as narrator. There's no stoping Mrs. Mike, once she's set her mind to things.

London Letter:

London's Big Ben Has Failed Only Once to Give Time in 90 Years

By NOFRMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 20—(CP)—On the first stroke of Big Ben—accurate to within one second—millions of Londoners check their watches every day. Millions at home and abroad listen for Ben's sullen boom on the radio.

Every time they adjust their watches to this sound, men pay tribute to the most famous, most powerful, most accurate clock in the world.

Big Ben was 90 years old this summer, yet only in that 90 years has he failed because of a mechanical fault. That was in 1944 when the pendulum suspension spring broke. Otherwise Ben's relord is unblemished.

Only war damage he received was in 1941 when an anti-aircraft shell struck the tower, but did not stop the clock.

It was in 1859, after 15 years of controversy and mishap, that the great clock went into service in the Houses of Parliament. A name for the great bell, weighing 13½ tons, was the subject of a long debate. It ended when Sir Benjamin Hall, one of the largest men in the house, sat down with a thud.

"Why not call it Big Ben?" one of the members cried.

A thunder of applause settled the bell's name forever.

One odd thing is that if you stand in the belfry at the top of the great tower the noise of Big Ben striking is much less than in the street below.

"The reason for this," one of Big Ben's attendants told the Canadian Press, "is that only a fraction of the sound waves reach you before they escape from the belfry. Outside the waves unite and gather their full intensity."

The great clock's mechanism occupies one whole room in the belfry, its weights totalling nearly 2½ tons. On the flange of the 13-feet pendulum rest nine copper pennies and one halfpenny, some of which have been there since Queen Victoria's reign.

Remove one penny from the flange an dthe clock loses four-tenths of a second a day. Add one penny and it gains that amount.

Until 1913 the clock had to be wound by hand. The operation kept two men busy five hours a day, three days a ween. Then a motor-driven winder was installed and now it takes only 40 minute, three days a week.

Unknown to many, Big Ben is not the biggest clock in London. That distinction goes to the clock on Shell-Mex House overlooking the Enbankment, whose dial is 25 feet across. Big Ben's measures 22½ feet.

CAN STILL ARRANGE WEDDING

Ottawa, July 19—(CP)— The unidentified Canadian sailor who was barred from marrying a woman in Capetown because of a South African law against mixed marriages can still arrange the wedding if he wishes.

A government official here said the marriage could be held if both participants take up residence in another country where there is no law against marriage between whites and non-whites.

Canada Meets Australia in Davis Cup Round

Montreal, July 20—(CP)—Canada and Australia today will name their starters for the three-day North American Davis Cup tie here an dthe strong tennis invaders from down under are showing a cool indifference to the whole tomorrow with singles play.

Names of starters until the last minute remained the guarded secret of lanky John Bromwich of Australia, and Gordon MacNeil of Montreal, non-playing captain. The consensus among observers was that the teams would line up this way:

Australia— Singles: Bromwich, 30, and Frank Sedgman, 21, or Billy Sidwill, 29, and Sedgman; Doubles: Bromwich and Sedgman.

Canada—Singles: Henri Rochon, 25, and Brendan Macken, 28 both of Montreal, with Lorne Main, 19, of Vancouver a possible surprise nominee; Doubles: Macken and Walter Stohlberg, 27, of Vancouver.

Bluntly, the attitude of the Austrailans since their arrival last week has been that they cared little what Canada's choices were because the Aussies would win in a romp anyway. Their composure hasn't been disturbed by the fact the Canadians have acted like anything but underdogs.

Displaying remarkable fighting spirit, the Canadian players have not said much except that they were confident of putting up a good show—and hopeful of perhaps suprising the Aussies.

Both squads returned to action Tuesday after having their training programs interrupted by rain Monday. The Aussies were cut early and held two practice sessions.

Galt Terriers Move Into Three-Way Tie

(By The Canadian Press)

The heavy-hitting Galt Terriers have complicated things in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Last night they moved into a three-way tie for first place in the loop as Burly Tex Kaiser paced them to a 12-2 victory over the seventh-place Guelph Maple Leafs.

Kaiser led the 16-hit parade with four hits in five appearances at bat, including a home run and a triple. It was Galt's 18th victory in 27 starts, and deadlocked them with Waterloo Tigers and Kitchener Legionnaires.

In two Nickel Belt senior games the second-place Creighton Cubs nosed out the last-place Copper Cliff Redmen 4-3 and Sudbury Shamrocks defeated Garson Greyhounds 7-3.

In a Niagara District game, Niagara Falls Fords broke St. Catharines Stags' seven-game winning streak by downing them 9-4.

At Galt pitcher Bert McCrudden of the Terriers missed his shutout in the ninth inning, when with two out, Walsh singled, went to second on an error and George Boniface belted a home run.

Hits Two-Run Homer

Connie Waite opened the scoring for Galt with a two-run homer in the third inning and then combined with Goody Rosen, Connie Creeden and Kaiser in the sixth for assorted singles, triples and a home run.

At Sudbury, it was Bobby Rivard's single in the fifth inning that gave the Cubs the decision. The Redmen made a last-ditch attempt in the ninth frame by scoring two runs, but failed to come up with the equalizer.

It was Creighton hurler Earl Brandy's fifth win of the season. He gave up eight hits and struck out seven.

In the other Nickel Belt game, the Shamrocks bunched seven hits—good for five runs—in the fifth inning to settle the issue. The Greyhounds came through with two runs in the fourth and one in the fifth innings.

At Niagara Falls, hurler Gordie Johnson of the Fords scattered six hits.

The Stephenson brothers—Cline and Riggs—contributed to the win with a steady performance in the outfield.

Cline made a sensational throw to second base in the sixth to cut off Kosurak and Riggs made a shoestring catch on Sonny Hick's drive in the ninth to retire the side.

Four games are scheduled in the Intercounty loop tonight; Brantford Red Sox meet Kitchener Legionnaires, Waterloo Tigers clash with Stratford Indians, London Majors play Guelph Maple Leafs and St. Thomas Legionnaires meet Galt Terriers.

AT THE CAPITOL — Paul Douglas, that "Letter to Three Wives" guy, has his second top-flight movie role in a row as the slugging catcher in "It Happens Every Spring", new 20th. Oshawa Wins 4-1 Over Petes To Tie Lead

Oshawa Merchants drew abreast of the league-leading Peterborough Marines in the Central Baseball League race yesterday defeating the Liftlock squad 4-1.

Dadson, Petes lefthander went down before the slants of Clemnce; Oshawa righthander, but both teams faltered afield each being charged with five error.

Merchants scored the first run in the third with the Petes tying the score in the sixth. Oshawa forged ahead with a single in the same innings and shoved over two clinchers in the seventh. Cook, Oshawa fielder got three hits to pace his team's attack.

Wilson of Peterborough got two of his teams clouts. No extra basehits were recorded.

Ace Warner Bros. Team Produces "Flamingo Road" with Joan Crawford

With the same talented quartet that gave Joan Crawford her first Academy- Award three years ago, Warner Bros. produced "Flamingo Road," a fast action romantic drama about small-state politics, which opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre.

Stars Joan Crawford and Zachary Scott, produced Jerry Wild and director Michael Curtiz are the four who made the now memorable "Mildred Pierce," on of the most popular pictures that year. Now, according to the reaction of the large audience at the Belle Theatre last evening, the same success is repeated with "Flamingo Road."

Taken from the play by Robert and Sally Wilder, "Flamingo Road" tells about a beautiful carnival dancer who stays behind in a smal south town falls in love, and makes her rise to prestige and riches through a story beset with murder, romance and political intrigue.

Director Curtiz, one of Hollywood's ace artists with the megaphone, describes his story as one of the "the best in recent years," with which to work, and with Miss Crawford in the lead role. Zachary Scott as a small politico Sydney Greenstreet as a menacing power politician, the famed director had the tools to fashion a first-rate screen drama.

The suporting cast in unusually strong with Gladys George, Alice White, Gertrude Michael and newcomer David Brian, Hollywood's newest dramatic find He was formerly on the Broadway stage.

A Bugs Bunny Cartoon, on interesting newsreel, and a color Sportfilm was exhibited during the evening.

The entire program will be repeated tonight, Thursday and Friday.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop is supposed to take ma to the movies tonight, and this morning at breakfist she said, Now William, the point is, if I [illegible] in and do the dishes rite [illegible] dinner, and you pitch in and help me, we can get them done and still be at the Narcississ in time for the erly show.

That's a fact, pop said, and ma said, But still on the other hand, nobody likes to flurry and fluster rite after a nice meal.

By gollies that's another fact, pop said, and ma said, And yet if we leave the dishes piled up to do when we get home, the mental picture of them will prob-movie like a bad sonscience, So after all maybe we'd just better gird up our energy and get the ob over with as soon as we get through eating, she said.

Maybe so, pop said. As the old Sweedish proverb says, "Olsen Larsen smorgesbord skoal," meening A dish in the hand is werth 2 washings, let the soap chips fall where they may, he said, and ma said, And yet I know you'll be in no mood to injoy the picture if you have to get rite up from the table to help with the dishes

There's some hting in that, pop said. To quote from the Latin, "Whatsum rushum crockatorium tempus," or, If people will wait, so will dishes, he said, and ma said, I knew you'd look at it in the same way, WWilliam. There's nothing in the house that wont keep just as well till tomorrow, Avenue for a nice leezurely meal this evening? she said.

In the werds of the Frentch, Mooshwar recipee "shershay la femm," or, It's a woman's werld, pop said.

Feminine Eye Spots Error

Nottingham, England, (CP)—Two hundred men architects admired the design for a model kitchen.

It took the wife of one of them, Mrs. Eva Marshall, 31, to tell the experts what was wrong with it.

"The sink is facing a wall," said Mrs. Marshall, who cooks for a family of five.

"Housewives spend so much time at the sink that it should face the windows so that they can look out."

Falling Cornice Narrowly Misses Two Pedestrians

Ottawa, July 20 (CP) — Two persons had a close call today when a 30-foot length of metal cornice plummeted down from the roof of a building and just grazed them.

The heavy chunk of metal was so close to Miss Dorothy Gensell that it scratched her right arm and ankle while the jagged edges tore her blouse and traced a sooty line down the right side of her white skirt.

Alfred Kelly saw the piece of metal pass by his face and just graze his toe.

The part of the cornice fell from the ancient Robinson building at 72 Queen Street. Police were notified and workmen were on the scene shortly after, preparing to remove the rest of the cornice.

Reject Offer to Buy Modern Police Cruiser

Fort Erie, July 19—(CP)— Crystal Beach Council by a 3-1 vote Monday night rejected an offer by the Crystal Beach Ratepayers Association, largely composed of United States summer residents, to purchase a modern police cruiser for the municipality.

The Association raised approximately $1,000 by public subscription Council acted on the advice of its solicitor, Allan Brooks, of Welland, who said that to accept such a gift from any group would be improper, and that if the village needs a cruiser it should take steps to purchase it in the usual manner.

Yacht Champs Retain Title In Lake Race

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 20—(AP) — Defending champions Tuesday retained their honors in the 1949 Chicago-to-Mackinac sailing race which ended in a brisk breeze here Tuesday.

Taltohna, a 40-foot sloop owned and skippered by Edgar B. Tolman of Chicago, won for the second straight season in the large, 49-boat Cruising Division while Cara Mia, a small yawl sailed by L. L. Karas of Chicago, repeated in the nine-boat Racing Division. Both the champions fly the pennant of the Chicago Yacht Club.

Taltohna arrived at 1:51 A.M. EDT Tuesday, some four hours behind the leaders, but she had more than seven hours of handicap time. This gave her a 20-minute edge over Vitesse II, owned by Clete Welling of Detroit.

Cara Mia, a slender Q-boat hull, arrived at midnight, and when handicaps were deducted led Harry Nye's Gale of Chicago by eight minutes.

Shell Oil, McFarlane's Win Softball Tilts

Shell Oil moved into the playoff circle last evening as they downed Provincial Engineers 6-3 in the first game of a scheduled double-header at the Alemite Field. In the nightcap McFarlane's Woodenware trounced Anti Tank 9-4.

Shell's win marked their sixth in ten games and assured them of a playoff spot. The Engineers were reduced to a mathematical chance to make the playoffs as they skidded to defeat.

Shell bunched four runs in the bottom of the first frame on a double, an error, a walk, a single, another walk, and a single, to take a winning margin early. They lengthened their lead in the third when Burns clubbed a homer to right field with one aboard. Shell went down without much trouble from there in but the damage had been done.

Provincial Engineers had two men on and none out in the second frame when both runners were called out on an attempted steal while the pitcher was in the box.

Ed Donovan opened the scoring for Engineers in the fourth with a homer to right field. Two errors and a fielder's choice scored Bawden with the second run in the fourth. They counted their final tally in the sixth on a walk and two singles.

Art Empy went the route for the winners, striking out three, walking three and scattering five hits for three runs, Bawden was tagged for the loss giving up seven hits for six runs. He struck out eight and walked two.

Lineups:

Provincial Engineers: F. Donovan lf, replaced by VanAlstine in 7th; Watson ss; McGuire c; E. Donovan cf; Bawden p; Burley 3b; Balyx 2b; Knott 1b; Carr lf, replaced by Lucas in 6th.

Shell Oil: Miller ss; Simmons 3b; Jones 2b; A. Empy p; R. Empy c; Vickers cf; L. Blaker 1b; Burns lf; Smith rf.

Score by innings:		R	H	E
Engineers	000 201 0—3	5	6
Shell Oil	402 000 x—6	7	4

Umpires: Plate Leo Goyer; Bases, Bawden. Time: 1:05.

Anti Tank and McFarlane's whipped through the second game in the good time of one hour. They were businesslike all the way and marked a radical change from some of their previous contests.

McFarlane's capitalized on an error and two singles in the bottom of the first frame to score two runs. Anti-Tank evened the count in the second stanza on a walk, an error, and a double, and took over the lead in the third counting once on a single and two fielder's choices.

McFarlane's tied the game up in the bottom of the third on a fielder's choice and a double. Anti Tank went back into the lead in the fourth pushing over a single run on a fielder's choice and a double.

In the bottom half of the fourth stanza McFarlane's took command and opened up a lead they never relinquished. A fielder's choice, two singles, and a double counted three runs. A walk, a double, and a triple gave them three more runs, and the ball game in the fifth.

Last night's victory was McFarlane's second of the campaign. It was Anti-Tank's eight straight loss.

Wright toiled all the way in a losing cause for Anti-Tank, striking out none, walking two, and giving up nine hits for nine runs. "Bunk" Young went the route for the winners striking out seven, walking five, and being nicked for six hits and four runs.

Lineups:

Anti Tank: Flindall c; Wright p; McLuskie 1b; K. Kimmett 2b; Gardner 3b; G. Kmmett ss; Grey lf, replaced by Nicol in 6th; Seames cf; Hancock rf.

McFarlane's: Peters 3b; Skinkle rf; Beeman lf; Scanlon ss; C. Young p; Holland 1b; J. Moore 2b; O. George cf; D. Moore c.

Gus Lesnevich Starts Training For Title Bout

By JACK HAND

Summit, N.J., July 20 (AP)—Better late than never. That's Gus Lesnevich's motto as he prepares for a delayed shot at the world heavyweight championship—National Boxing Association version.

Durable Gus, now 34, started training Tuesday for his Aug. 10 Yankee Stadium date with Ezzard Charles, the N.B.A. king from Cincinnati.

"Fighting for the heavyweight title is the dream of all fighters," he said, as might be expected. "I was all set to fight Joe Louis last year until that Mills thing happened."

"That Mills thing" was a 15-round bout a London last July in which Gus lost his world light heavyweight crown.

"How come you and Charles never got together when he was a light heavyweight contender?" Gus was asked.

"Manager trouble," he answered. "We were going to fight once at Cincinnati but they wanted to shift it to Cleveland and Joe (Manager Joe Vella) wouldn't go for that."

"I've seen him fight several times, I saw him against Jersey Joe Walcott at Chicago the night he won the title. You couldn't tell much about him that night because of Walcott's strange style.

"But he's a pretty good fighter, don't let anybody kid you. He punches pretty good and he's fast."

Lesnevich bearing a shiner under his right eye as a momento of an earlier drill in his New Jersey gym, said he weighed 186 at the start of serious workouts. He expects to get down in time.

A Cincinnati promoter claims to have a contract by which Gus agreed to fight Maxim again at Cincinnati Sept. 19 and agreed to take no bouts before that date. The N.B.A. now threatens to suspend him in 47 states if he goes through with the Yankee Stadium bout. Gus definitely expects to fight Charles, come what may.

Wings Score 5-1 Triumph Over Maple Leafs

(By the Associated Press)

Pennant fever isn't sweeping Rochester yet but at the rate the Wings are going it won't be long.

The Wings, who last won the International League pennant in 1940, moved into second place Tuesday night, six games behind the pace-setting Buffalo Bisons.

Big Jim Hearn pitched the Wings to a 5-1 triumph over Toronto Maple Leafs. The victory enabled the Wings to replace the Jersey City Giants and Montreal Royals in the runner-up slot. The Giants bowed 7-0 to Baltimore Orioles and the Royals dropped a 9-7 decision to the Bisons.

Hearn yielded only five hits and wasn't scored upon until the eighth inning when pinch-hitter Lou Heyman singled home Hal Wagner. The Wings solved Ed Wright and Bubber Church for eight hits. Don Richmond led the offensive with a double and two singles. Russ Derry led off the eighth inning with his 24th home run to tie Toronto's Ed Sanicki for the circuit leadership.

Buffalo built up a 9-2 lead over Montreal and then withstood a five run ninth inning Montreal uprising that was featured by Al Gionfriddo's three-run homer.

Al Wilmar, the circuit's top winner, turned in his 15th triumph in blanking Jersey City for the seventh place Orioles. Widmar stopped the Giants on four hits.

The Orioles combed George Bamberger for ten hits including Butch Woyt's homer and four doubles.

A scheduled game between Syracuse and Newark was rained out.

Stranahan Has Private Plane, Valet, Trainer

Riverside, N.B., July 20—(CP)—Frank Stranahan, Canadian Amateur Golf Champion in 1948, leads one of those lives you dream about.

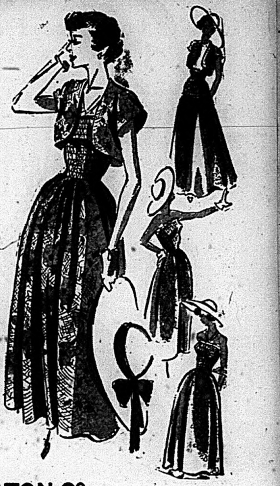
He expects to arrive here July 25 to defend his crown—flying his private airplane and accompanied by a valet and trainer. Already the handsome young Toledo, O., millionaire has telephoned tournament officials—to arrange for gymnasium facilities in Saint John, seven miles from here. Stranahan is almost as interested in physical culture as he is in golf.

Professional golfers never had it so good as Stranahan, who scorns the moneyed ranks on the tees. Last year, he breezed through top-ranking Canadian and United States amateurs in the Canadian title event — although the field was considered the strongest ever to contest the five-day, match-play championship. He trounced Joe Stoddard of Hamilton, 9 and 7 in the final.

This year the amateur, 40th to be held, takes place July 25-30.

Stranahan said Tuesday he felt "pretty good" after posting the low amateur score in the British open, won last week by Bobby Locke of South Africa.

Tournament manager Frank N. Robertson said the official entry list for the tournament was being compiled in Toronto and he expected to have something definite by Friday. Dick Chapman, rated No. 3 amateur in the United States, will be a sure starter, Robertson said.



Cool Summery

"Five-Way" Combination!

Cotton Bolero Dress

A one-dress wardrobe. There are at least five different ways in which this decorative two-piece bolero dress can be worn .. and you'll probably think up additional combinations for yourself. For instance .. wear it with a bolero as a smart street dress. Second —without the bolero as a strapless frock for sun tanning. Third —add the dainty straps and you have a halter-top dress. Fourth —let the snugly shirred bodice double as the yoke of a full-length skirt to be worn with a gay peasant blouse. And fifth —wear it as a full-length skirt with a halter top and with or without the bolero. Novelty prints in colors of blue, rose or green. Sizes 12 to 18. Each 2.98

Two bank robbers tried to escape with their loot in this airplane at Larder Lake, Ont., but were unable to pilot the craft. They ordered the pilot, at gunpoint, to take off, but he jumped into the lake. Both robbers were captured, the loot recovered.—Central Press Canadian.

Leo Martial, one of the two men charged with bank robbery at Larder Lake and attempted theft of a plane, was captured by an armed posse within two hours of the hold-up. Victor Desmarais, the second alleged robber, surrendered a few hours later. Both are from Noranda, Que.—Central Press Canadian.

Three Girls Safe, Drifted 20 Hours In Rubber Boat

Oscoda, Mich., July 21 (CP)—Three sunburned and frightened girls were brought here in an army crash boat after drifting on Lake Huron for more than 20 hours on an air mattress and in a one-man rubber boat.

While jet planes, coast guard boats and fishermen sought them, the girls paddled with their hands into the path of a freighter ten miles off Oscoda, Wednesday. Their screams were heard by members of the crew of the J. F. Schoellkopf, Jr., and a ladder was lowered.

One of the three, Mary Jane Rodgers, was able to climb the ladder. The other two, Jean Burns, and Lucille Dailey, were carried aboard the freighter.

The girls, all 18, were blown away from shore Tuesday afternoon while swimming near a beach.

BOY DONALD DUCK TO BECOME MEMBER

Weston, Ont., July 21 (CP) — Donald Duck, 12-year-old resident of this Toronto suburb, namesake of the famous cartoon character, is going to be made an official member of the Walt Disney Duck family next week.

At a ceremony to be held in nearby Etobicoke, the lad will be presented with a Donald Duck wrist watch on behalf of the cartoon and comic strip company.

AMPUTATION FOLLOWS

Brantford, July 21 (CP).—Wilbur O. Passmore of Hensall, had his left leg amputated Wednesday as a result of injuries suffered Tuesday in a car-truck collision at nearby Osborne's Corners. One man was killed in the mishap and two others, both of Hensall, 27 miles west of Stratford, suffered minor injuries.

Will Use Troops To Mine Coal If Strike Goes on

Sydney, Australia, July 21 — (CP)—The Australian government plans to send 3,000 troops to mine coal from open cuts in New South Wales Aug. 1, unless the crippling coal strike is over by that time.

The troops are expected to supply about 55,000 tons of coal a week, enough to keep up the present minimum ration of electricity and gas in New South Wales.

It is understood Prime Minister Joseph Chiefley and James McGirr, New South Wales Premier, agreed at a meeting Wednesday to send the troops.

Warmer weather today eased the crisis caused by the strike, which will be four weeks old tomorrow. There had been heavy snow falls for three days in New South Wales.

In Melbourne, soldiers and sailors began unloading coal from a Canadian ship, the Haligonian Duke, idle there for five months because it had been blacklisted by Australian unions in sympathy with a strike of the Canadian Seamen's Union.

The Australian Waterside Workers Federation today called a countrywide, 24-hour strike for Sunday after the federal arbitration court sentenced two union leaders to 12 months imprisonment and fined the federation £2,000 ($6,500) for contempt of court.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 21 (CP)—Synopsis—Clear skies are gradually giving way to cloudy ones in the western sections and scattered thundershowers will accompany this cloudy in the late afternoon and evening today. The cloud will cover the western half of the province by evening and the remainder by midnight. Cooler less humid air will reach the northern regions tonight and the central and southern sections Friday afternoon.

TRUMAN UNLIKELY TO ACT ON HIS OWN ON BOMB SECRETS

Conference Has Not Yet Completed Task

Washington, July 21 — (AP)—Some lawmakers who had expressed misgivings that President Truman might act on his own to give Britain some atomic-bomb secrets seemed to have their minds eased today.

They said, after another top-level, hush-hush atomic conference Wednesday, that they would not now press for a move to keep the President from acting by executive order in this field.

There had been talk of putting at least the Senate on formal record as saying that the atomic energy law forbids the supplying of atomic secrets to any foreign power unless Congress approves. Apparently, they now are satisfied that Truman plans no bypassing of Congress at this time.

The Senate-House Atomic Committee held a 2¼-hour meeting with top state, military and atomic officials on the British-Canadian matter on Capitol Hill Wednesday. The participants included State Secretary Dean Acheson, Defence Secretary Louis Johnson, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and the atomic energy commissioners.

At the end of it, Senator Brian McMahon (Dem. Conn.), chairman of the committee said no conclusions had been reached and that the question would be explored further.

Later, in an endorsement of the pact, McMahon told the Senate the Atlantic Pact will carry no obligation for the United States to share its atomic know-how.

Manitoba Scouts Re-enact Early Days' Massacre

Connaught Rifle Ranges, South March, Ont., July 21 (CP) — Manitoba Boy Scouts gave their comrades a history lesson at this big Scout camp Wednesday.

While more than 2,000 Scouts and visitors watched, the Manitoba boys presented a pageant depicting the settlement of the Red River and the Seven Oaks massacre, focal points of the early 19th. Century in the Prairie provinces.

It was the 'Prairies' Day' at the First Canadian Scout Jamboree, camped on Connaught Rifle Ranges, 14 miles west of Ottawa.

Fire Fighting Display

The jamboree continues today with Ontario Forest Rangers scheduled to put on a display of forest-firefighting methods. And it's the turn of British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces to display their talents in the camp's assembly area.

Acting Prime Minister Howe is scheduled to visit the camp today. Plans have been made for him to lunch with Scouts from Port Arthur, Mr. Howe's hometown.

Scouts from Alberta Wednesday showed off their province's growing oil industry. They rigged a derrick from tree limbs and struck oil — previously buried in a drum beneath the ground. It gushed 15 feet in the air.

U.S. Bacteriological Warfare Plant Inadequate For 'Expanded' Study

(By ELTON C. FAY)

Washington, July 21 — (AP)—The United States' Bacteriological Warfare plant is faced with the same problem perplexing the atomic material factories—disposal of highly dangerous waste products.

This came to light today in an army report disclosing new details of the operation of the Germ Warfare Research Project at Camp Detrick, MD.

"Both the sewage which is extremely virulent and the air which comes in contact with it must be sterilized to prevent contamination of operating personnel at Camp Detrick, and of citizens and property of the adjacent community," the army states.

In asking for $303,000 to build new decontamination facilities at Camp Detrick, the army said that present equipment is wholly inadequate "for the expanded" research and development program.

This was the first official indication of intention to augment the bacterial warfare studies. The army has asked Congress for $3,313,500 for new facilities and construction at Camp Detrick.

The military includes among its plans construction of a new building for "Aero-Biological Research". In this project, the "BW" experts are seeking to find how effective the spreading of bacteria can be when released from an airborn carrier. The report speaks cryptically of studies of "aerosol clouds." This is presumed to refer to a cloud of bacteria which is fairly cohesive and will not be dispelled by normal wind action or the naturally purifying action of sunlight.

Since the war, scientists have put increasing emphasis on the probable value of biological warfare directed against crops and animals. They believe that, lacking the intelligence of man and his natural tendency toward immunity, cattle will make better targets than humans for attack by germ weapons. For the same reasons, crops are an equally good target.

Mrs. H. McGuire Becoming Concerned Over Authenticity Of Huge Legacy Left to Her

Possibility of a "terrible mistake" having been made somewhere regarding a one and a one-quarter million dollar legacy claimed to be coming to her from the estate of a New York City uncle, was acknowledged by Mrs. H. McGuire, young, local mother of four children.

Monday night Mrs. McGuire made it known that she was to receive the legacy from an uncle's estate but she declined to give the uncle's name. Relatives later said the uncle was Robert James Mulligan, New York furniture manufacturer, who was reportedly killed in an accident near North Bay last March.

"Mean, Dirty Trick"

"It's either that someone has played a dirty, mean joke on me, or that a terrible mistake has been made," stated Mrs. McGuire last night.

Yesterday it was established that Robert J. Mulligan, a New York furniture manufacturer, was still alive. He was reported as saying he knew nothing of Mrs. McGuire in Belleville.

Mrs. McGuire, however, claimed this man could not be her uncle. She admitted her uncle's name was Mulligan, but she was not sure of the first name.

"I've written to my uncle's lawyers in the United States demanding that something be done," she said. "If it isn't cleared up soon this thing will make a fool out of me."

Mrs. McGuire said she had kept the news of the legacy secret from her husband for five weeks. He still has not seen the two letters she said she received from the lawyers notifying her of the legacy.

Pressed by her husband to produce the communication from the lawyers Mrs. McGuire said she would do so when the time was right.

Names Ohio Lawyer

Later today Mrs. McGuire disclosed that word of the "inheritance" came to her in May by letter from O. H. Mosier, a lawyer in Columbus, O., but Mr. Mosier, when she telephoned him today, said he had written no letter and knew nothing about the affair.

Mrs. McGuire said the letter was accompanied by a cheque for $200. She still has about $150 left.

More Canadians and Americans Lured to Dominion's Favorite Fishing Grounds Than Ever Before

(By Canadian Press)

More Canadians and Americans appear to be taking advantage of the continent's favorite fishing ground than ever before.

A Canadian Press survey of Provincial Fisheries' officials indicates that the age-old sport of angling is more popular than ever this summer in the Dominion's myriad lakes, streams and rivers.

Sure guage of fishing's popularity is the sale of fishing licences. While no exact figures are available yet on this year's sales, officials estimate there are more being sold than in 1948—a record year.

Brisk Business Reported

Also indicative of a fishing "boom" are reports from hardware dealers and other fishing tackle retailers. They say sales are brisk. And owners of fishing camps report a first-rate season.

In general, fishermen's luck seems good—in some cases exceptional.

Two instances of the exceptional occurred on Lake St. Louis, near Montreal. Fishermen there on two separate occasions have reported sturgeon jumping into their boats. One weighed 20 pounds, the other 55 pounds.

To top this, Mayor John Marks of New York Mills, Minn., fishing at Rush Lake near Ottawa, said he cast a plug, a bass took it, fought it and threw it. Before the plug hit the water a second bass grabbed it. That's what the Mayor said.

Although not every angler could boast such good fortune, there were few who could not take the legal limit if they fished long enough.

Officials reported fishing good in every province except Newfoundland, where light rainfall has lowered river levels and made salmon fishing difficult.

In Ontario, where the lake and river area has been estimated at 80,000 square miles, one-fifth the total area of the province, fishing has reached big-business proportions.

Heavy Oil Slick In Toronto Harbor Called Hazard

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — A heavy oily slick covering a large part of Toronto's harbor constitutes a definite fire hazard, the Toronto Harbor Commission reported today following extensive tests of surface oil during the last 10 days.

Harbormaster Harold Snelgrove said the Commission plans to take legal action against the ship or ships which dumped the oil in the harbor. He said a European vessel, now on Lake Ontario, is believed responsible and officers will be questioned when the ship returns here next weekend.

Police were patrolling beaches and rubbish-disposal areas as a precautionary measure and harbor officials said a night patrol boat may be used to watch lake boats.

Last Saturday, a 21-year-old girl was drowned in the harbor and it is believed heavy oil plugging her nostrils contributed to her death.

Ask Police Help To Find Girl

Provincial Police at Belleville have been requested to assist in the search for 19-year-old Betty Way, of Hillcrest, who disappeared from her home on Wednesday and has not since been seen.

Description of the girl given police was that the missing girl was five feet six inches tall, with reddish hair and fair complexion. City police have also been asked to be on the lookout for the missing girl.

Struck on Head With Piece Pipe, Battles Attacker

Struck over the head with a piece of exhaust pipe in the hands of an unknown assailant, Douglas Spearman, 191½ Albert Street, was still able to give battle although the intruder made good his escape.

Spearman told police that shortly before ten o'clock Wednesday evening he was putting his bicycle in the double garage at the above address when without warning he was struck over the head. He managed to lash back at his assailant but the man escaped in the darkness before Spearman could note a description.

Police advanced the opinion that the intruder had been hiding in the garage and was surprised by Spearman.

$1,000 Missing Family Will Disinter Body

White Plains, N.Y., July 21 (AP) — When Charles H. Oster was buried here last April 9, did he have $1,000 in the breast pocket of his suit?

His widow, Margaret, and son, Franklin, of Matawan, N.J., think there is a good chance he did. They plan to have the body disinterred and the pocket searched.

Before Oster died April 5, he told his son he was leaving him his "sole property, $1,000."

But the money could not be found and the family thinks it may be in the pocket where he usually kept it.

JAS. L. MULLIGAN OF POTSDAM SAYS 'I'M MUCH ALIVE'

Knows Nothing Of McGuire Bequest

Potsdam, N.Y., July 21. (CP)—Whoever is leaving Mrs. Grace McGuire of Belleville, the sum of $1,250,000, it isn't James L. Mulligan of Potsdam.

But Mrs. McGuire could possibly be his niece, Mulligan said, Wednesday during an interview by telephone from New York.

"I have some money but I intend to spend every cent of it myself," Mulligan said with a chuckle.

Mrs. McGuire said Tuesday in Belleville that she is inheriting $1,250,000 from a wealthy uncle. She declined to identify the uncle.

In Toronto, Felix Lalonde, 40-year-old gashouse worker and brother of Mrs. McGuire, told reporters he believed the uncle was a Robert James Mulligan who once lived in Potsdam. But Mrs. McGuire subsequently said "Robert James Mulligan is not the man."

May Be Niece

"It is possible that Mrs. Mc- is the daughter of my younger sister, who died a number of years ago somewhere in Canada," Mulligan said. "My sister married a man named Lalonde. I believe they had a daughter but I do not know her first name."

Mulligan was asked if Mrs. McGuire could have been informed that she was to inherit $1,250,000 from him upon his death.

"No," said the Potsdam resident.

"I have three brothers living in Ottawa but I know none of them has left his money to Mrs. McGuire."

He did not amplify this remark.

"I read in a newspaper that I am supposed to have been killed in an automobile accident between Sudbury and North Bay, and to have left Mrs. McGuire $1,250,000." Mulligan said.

"That's not so. I am very much alive."

"Then you know nothing of this reported bequest to Mrs. McGuire?" he was asked.

"That's right."

Babies are Born Same Day to Sisters Wed to Two Brothers

Oshawa, July 21 (CP) —The Smiths have done it again.

Twin sisters — wives of two brothers, and married in a double wedding — Wednesday presented their husbands with babies, within a couple of hours of each other. Both were incubator babies.

Mrs. Howard Smith had a daughter, Joanne Wendy. Mrs. Clifford Smith had a son, Bryan Paul. Both infants weigh five pounds.

And they were born on the Mrs. Smiths' 21st. birthday.

Britons Agree With Canadian Visitors English Cooking 'Atrocious'

(By ALAN HARVEY)
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 21 — (CP) — A standard complaint of Canadians visiting Britain is that English cooking is atrocious.

They grouse about the lumpy, unbuttered potatoes and say the flavorless "spring greens" should have been left to rot in the garden.

There are signs that even Britons agree. In surprisingly self-critical fashion, press and Parliament have decided that tourist standards aren't exactly up to snuff.

During a debate on holiday and tourist accommodation, the House of Commons looked at the homely fare of not-so-merrie England fund it sadly wanting. Members urged bigger and better meals to lure more and more dollars from North American visitors.

Outside Parliament, a government spokesman took up the cry. Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council, told a Travel Association "what we eat and drink make the foreigner wonder whether the British have become a great nation because of their diet or in spite of it."

Warming to the theme, ordinary Britons wrote indignant letters to their newspapers. They criticized English cooking and urged restaurants and cafes to restore such forgotten frills as napkins and ice water.

The Sunday Observer, commenting on the new mood of self-criticism, contributed an iron note. It said English fresh vegetables are as good as any in the world—"until they are cooked."

In the same vein, Columnist Alastair Forbes wrote in the Sunday Times:

"I sometimes think that (Sir Stafford) Cripps is right, and that the only decent things to eat in England are raw English vegetables, untouched by and desecrating hand in an English kitchen."

But the sign on the grubby, undistinguished little restaurant which serves the regulars in Fleet Street still proclaims proudly: "meat, two veg." inevitabley, the "veg." are potatoes and spring greens. British habits die hard.

Churchill Doubted Wisdom of Allied Surrender Policy

War Leader Says FDR Did Not Consult Him at Time

London, July 21—(AP)—Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said in parliament today they doubted from the beginning the wisdom of President Roosevelt's unconditional surrender policy for Germany.

Bevin said in a House of Commons Foreign Policy debate the policy had left "a shambles" upon which to rebuild Germany. If he had been consulted at the time, he said, he never would have agreed to it.

Bevin, who was a member of Churchill's war government, said he first saw the surrender phrase in the newspapers. He said he would not have agreed if he had been consulted at the time.

Forced Into Support

Churchill, now leader of the opposition, said he first heard the phrase from President Roosevelt "without consultation with me". He said he did support it.

"But it was not the idea I had formed in my own mind," Churchill said. "But working in a great alliance with loyal and powerful friends across the ocean, we had to accommodate ourselves."

He added that he doubted the British Coalition Cabinet would have agreed to the unconditional surrender policy if they had been able to consider it at the time.

Opening the debate, Bevin said: "Unconditional surrender left us a Germany without law, without a constitution, without a single person to deal with and without a single institution to grapple with, and we have had to build from the bottom on nothing at all."

Replying, Churchill recalled that he first heard of unconditional surrender from the late President, and added:

Doubts Cabinet Approval

"I had very rapidly to consider whether the state of our position in the world was such as would justify me in not giving support to it.

"I did give support to it, but it was not the idea I had formed in my own mind. If the British Cabinet had had to consider the phrase, I have not the slightest doubt that they would have advised against it."

Bevin also criticized American policy on the dismantling of German war plants. He said he tried to carry out the announced British policy of breaking up the "No. 2" plants by June, 1948, "and I was completely upset and hindered by it. America took one view at one time, then altered it: appointed inquiry committees and then put up an entirely different proposal," the foreign secretary said.

Not Ready to Change View

"It is all very well to say that we should regard Germany now not as an aggressor, but I am not ready to do that yet."

Bevin then said a dismantling scheme which has now been worked out is fair and based on security considerations.

Fight Against Venereal Disease Gaining in Canada

Ottawa July 21 (CP)—Canada is slowly winning the fight against venereal disease.

Dr. B.D.B. Layton, Chief of the V. D. Control division of the Health Department said today considerable progress has been made in the Dominion during the last few years.

Year by year the V.D. rate in Canada has been dropping and although there is no reason for complacency, the results permit one to be cautiously optimistic,' Dr. Layton said in a statement.

41,556 Cases Reported

In 1946 there were 41,556 cases reported. The number was down to 33,476 in 1947 and dropped to 27,401 last year. The first quarter of 1949 showed 6,807 cases reported compared with 7,303 in the same period a year ago.

Dr. Layton said the steady downward trend was reversed in the last three months of 1948 when it took a slight upsurge.

"Happily," he said, "the first quarter of 1949 showed a return to the former pattern.

"It must also be kept in mind that there is a reservoir of unknown numbers of venereal disease victims in our midst. The extent of this cannot be determined, but we feel reasonably sure that even this is being progressively reduced."

Dr. Layton said that his department is stepping up the tempo of its campaign and intends to maintain continuous and increasing pressure against the diseases.

The Federal Health Department was pressing ahead with every effort to remove the threat of V.D. from Canadian homes. Federal V. D. control grants to the provinces has been increased from $225,000 annually to $500,000.

Emphasis was being placed on use of penicillin for treatment of both syphilis and gonorrhea. Other steps included in the extension of free treatment facilities were such items as the payment of fees to physicians for diagnostic and treatment services, support of free clinics and the free provision of penicillin; and additional personal and special equipment for clinics.

The Keas Knew What The Zoo Keepers Didn't

New York, July 21 (CP) — The official report said hardening of the arteries — but officials of the Bronx Zoo agree sexual frustration brought on Shep's death Wednesday.

Shep was the Zoo's only specimen of the rare Kea, a mottled, olive-green, parrot-like bird native only to New Zealand.

Shep's life was drab after he was brought from New Zealand in 1920 until Zoo officials played cupid with kealets in mind.

From another Zoo they brought a second kea, name of Phyllis.

But love didn't bloom between the down-under couple. Phyllis retired to the shelter of a hollow log and booted Shep out.

For the next six years the two keas scrapped and screamed at each other. Zoo officials couldn't understand why the romantic planning had fouled up.

Then Phyllis died.

An autopsy was performed and only then did the keepers learn that Phyllis should have been named Philip.

But Shep knew it all along

Lavant Resident Sets Bush Fire, Fined $25

Warning that setting out fire without authority was a serious offence, Magistrate D. C. Smith assessed William Boyd of Lavant Station $25 plus fire fighting costs, at Perth, Tuesday.

Fire rangers called out to fight a blaze in Lavant township June 9th, found a brush pile ignited by Boyd. Following an investigation a charge was laid by Deputy Chief Ranger O. Goodman of Plevna under Section 7 of the Forest Fires Prevention Act.

The accused pleaded guilty and agreed to pay the cost of extinguishing the fire amounting to $1[illegible] plus court costs and the $25 fine.

BONARLAW

Young Couple Presented With Purse of Money

Bonarlaw.—On Friday evening of last week, a large number of friends of Mr. Earl Bowen and Mrs. Bowen (nee Marjorie McCoy), gathered at the Orange Hall, Springbrook, and presented them a substantial purse of money and in an address read by Robert Cosbey wished them joy and happiness throughout their life.

They both thanked the assembled guests, expressing their appreciation and all sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows", and gave three hearty cheers and a tiger.

W. J. Barlow acted as chairman in a very capable manner and the following program was contributed, community singing led by Frank Cosbey, Mrs. Jason Baker, at the piano; an address by Rev. Mr. Beare, minister at Springbrook United Church; solo and encore by Geo. Bain; vocal duet by Misses Mary Bell Reid and Marilyn Bateman; Scotch dance by Margaret Bain.

After the program and presentation the ladies provided substantial refreshments.

Insp. McDougall Takes Command Belleville District

Toronto, July 21 (CP)—Ontario Provincial Police announced today that Inspector A. McDougall has been transferred to the Belleville district, where he will take charge. Inspector McDougall previously was with the detachment in Cochrane.

Police officials added that further appointments to Belleville may be announced within a few days. The moves are being made in connection with recommendations for reorganization in the Royal Commission report on the Belleville detachment.

Inspector McDougall will replace Inspector William A. Page, retired on recommendation of the Royal Commissioner.

A new appointment as Inspector here was in order as the result of the retirement of former Inspector W. A. Page who was recommended for retirement, along with Sgt. E. F. Hartleib, in the Royal Commission report on the Keays investigation handed down last week by Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay.

Both Inspector Page and Sgt. Hartleib went on holidays this week, their retirement to become effective at the conclusion of their holidays.

Corporal Harry Ramsbottom of Kingston also reported for duty at O.P.P. headquarters today but declined to confirm he had been transferred.

The appointment of a new inspector and district sergeant would be part of the re-organization of the local provincial police headquarters as was recommended in the Mackay report.

Large Crowd Enjoys Legion's Donkey Baseball

Marmora, July 21 (Special).—Marmora fun lovers enjoyed to the full their vision of donkey baseball on the Dr. Hamilton Crawford Arena on Tuesday evening for few indeed had ever witnessed this type of comedy before.

The Legion fielded a team to play the Marmora hockey team, and Tommy Cousins, umpire and referee for several years at games of the more general pastimes, had the difficult assignment of umpire to add to his experience.

The teams were as follows:

Hockey Team: B. Gray c; K. Trumble p; R. Hegadoren 1b; E. Trumble 2b; P. Gray ss; C. Loveless 2b; W. Empey cf; R. Goodchild rf; R. Darrah cf; subs, E. Leonard, E. Cousins.

Legion: C. Goodchild p; E. Gordon c; C. Conkright 1b; W. Hipson 2b; R. Warren 3b; W. Nayler ss; T. Brawley cf; H. Doyle rf; M. Campbell cf; subs, N. Mumby, R. Gray, B. O'Connor, J. Lowery.

The donkeys filled their positions as follows: Hammer Head 1b; Red 2b; Proctor 3b; Satan ss; Velvet rf; Lady cf; Honey lf.

Base runners, Dynamite, Patches, Pappy and Maggie. Corky was the utility steed.

No future rodeo rider was seen in any of the human players in this game. Bill Nayler, for the Legion, with all other resources failing him, got his donkey home for a run by pulling him around by his front legs. Pappy, the senior of the donkeys, kept his temper for three innings, but having acquired a temper in a Colorado mine, that could suddenly change from the docile, unseated a few riders and gave impersonations of a bucking bronco. Patches also did some bucking but the mirth went on with nobody getting hurt.

Scoring was almost as difficult as star counting but there being no official scorer, the following is allowed to stand.

Hockey team .... 021 21—6
Legion .... 013 5x—9

It was announced that 909 persons paid admission, of which number 311 were children.

NONE CAN DIVE, MOTHER DROWNS

Y's Men Present Three Canoes to Moira Lake Camp

With the names Chippewa, Seneca and Sioux proudly displayed on their bows, three beautiful canoes the gift of the Y's Men's Club to the Moira Lake Y.M.C.A. camp were christened by the club president Gerald B. Hyde. Expressing the hope that the canoes will serve the camp well for years to come, the president acknowledged the privilege the club had in serving the camp and the Y.M.C.A. for the benefit of boys and girls of the community.

At the dinner which marked the occasion Paul Watson was presented with a certificate in recognition of his swimming attainment by Y's Man Lawrence R. Buck, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee. Members of the Y's Men's Club executive made the trip to the camp and included besides Y's Men Hyde and Buck, Oscar Wagar, S/L Frank Nichols, Ross Booth, Bud Trill, Willis Hutchinson, Al. Davis and Bryson Leslie. Thanks on behalf of the camp was expressed by Frankish Styles the director and Al. J. Davis on behalf of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A.

It was announced that the camp was now filled to capacity for the balance of this season. There is a long waiting list of girls for their period which commences on July 30th. The camp committee regrets that some boys and girls will not be able to enjoy camp this year because of lack of accommodation. It is hoped that an enlargement of accommodation may be made before the next camping season.

Record Crowd Attends Annual Field Day

A record number of young people turned out Wednesday in near-perfect weather for the annual Field Day of the Hastings County Junior Farmers, held at Melrose.

A varied athletic program featured by boys' and girls' softball games and a number of track events occupied the morning and afternoon and was followed by a dance in the evening.

In boys' softball, the Sidney nine emerged as county champs, when they defeated Thurlow 16-5, and dropped Rawdon in the play-offs, 11-7. Rawdon gained the play-offs on a close 3-2 victory over Madoc.

Madoc's girls' softball team, last year's district champions, copped county honors by defeating Sidney 5-2 and Thurlow 20-3.

Results of the track events are as follows: Boys' 100-yard dash, Grills, Moorcroft, Aikens; boys' high jump, Grills, Stewart, Nichol; boys' running broad jump, Lynn McCoy, McFarlane, Woods; girls' 75-yard dash, Elliott, Mathews, Swan; girls' high jump, McLaren, Thompson, Myers; girls' running broad jump, Thompson, Elliott, Meyer and McLaren tied for third.

Rawdon won the tug-of-war from Madoc when the latter team protested too long and too loudly about the way the tug took place.

Two Melrose baseball teams staged an all--Tyendinaga contest in the evening.

Following the baseball game, a dance was held in Shannonville Hall with Bill Arnold's orchestra serving the swing.

"The thanks for the great privileges you will enjoy here you owe to mother and dad," stated Mr. Rollins in his brief opening remarks to the children.

Many Mothers Attend

The opening night was supervised by N. Meldrum, Bruce Thompson, Miss M. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gandar, Mr. H. Hall and Mr. H. Seldon. Helping these officials were many interested mothers who came with their children to enjoy the fun.

Judging from the noise and laughter the youngsters were having a great time on the three teeter-tots, four swings, two slides and two sand boxes which comprise the park's equipment.

Eight cases of pop, three cases of chocolate milk, and 190 ice cream cones made up the refreshments for the happy throng.

Commenting on the development of the park, Mr. Meldrum, chairman of the committee, said, "On behalf of the committee in charge I wish to thank all the citizens and merchants who helped to make this project possible through donations of time, materials and money."

Hours of Supervision

The park will be open under supervision from 9.00 a.m. until 11.30 a.m. and from 1.30 p.m. until 5.00 p.m. The committee is looking for mothers who will volunteer to help supervise these periods and for fathers to help in the evenings. If interested, please contact Mrs. Gandar.

Future plans include hard surfacing an area of the grounds for roller-skating, tennis and a hockey and skating rink in the Winter. Ball diamonds are also on the agenda in future plans.

Newsboys to Meet "Whipper" Watson Receive Pictures And See Wrestling Bouts as Guests of Newspaper

An excited group of youngsters milled around the circulation offices of the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday afternoon.

Shining-eyed moppets and teen-agers talked in shrill tones, asked questions, and jostled one another.

They were members of the newspaper-carriers' brigade of the newspaper who had just been informed that they were to be the guests of the management at the wrestling bouts in Memorial Arena on Friday night.

And adding to the general excitement was the fact that none other than the well-known "Whipper" Billy Watson, former world and British Empire wrestling champion, Toronto, would not only be here to take part in the main bout against British Empire Champion Fred Atkins of Australia, but also will meet them personally, and present them with autographed photographs.

The Whipper will arrive in Belleville shortly after seven o'clock Friday evening and will meet the newsboys at 7.30 in Memorial Arena. He will be accompanied by Pat. Flanagan, popular wrestler and representative of Frank Tunney, Toronto sports promoter.

Following the introductions and presentations, the boys will converge on the arena again at 8.45 when they will be escorted to their block of seats in the south end of the arena under the supervision of circulation manager Dick Cowan.

The wrestling party is the third recreational event to be enjoyed by the boys and girls of the news-carrier staff as guests of the newspaper. Previously two groups were taken to Toronto where they "did the city" and saw professional baseball games.

YMCA Board Directors Add Three Members

Three new members were welcomed to the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. at a meeting held this week. These persons were—G. A. Freeman, S. A. Riley and S/L Frank Nichols.

The board gave consideration to plans for the development of future program. Reports of the various committees indicated an active summer program for boys and girls, a steady increase in Y.M.C.A. membership and attendance and a camp filled to capacity for the season.

The renovation of all parts of the building to better meet the needs of the membership was proceeding on a well developed plan.

President J. W. Deacon who presided announced that committee organization would be completed by the early fall when an active season in all departments is anticipated.

Seven Bands Will Play In Musical Festival

One of the biggest musical events in the history of Belleville is slated to take place during the latter part of September in the form of a musical festival sponsored by the Belleville Municipal Band.

Negotiations are now under way for the appearance here of the RCAF Central Command brass and trumpet bands; the band of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Brockville, and the R.C.M.P. band of Ottawa.

The Belleville Municipal Band will also take part in the festival, while two other local bands, the Kinsmen Boys' Band, and the Belleville Kilties Band.

The grouping of these bands will provide a spectacle never befor witnessed in the city of Belleville. The event will take place in the Memorial Arena.

County Home Inmates Enjoy Theatre Parties

Inmates of the Hastings County Home are enjoying motion picture diversion these warm summer evenings, thanks to the efforts of the Soroptimist and Kiwanis clubs and the co-operation of the Marshall Road Drive-In Theatre.

The service clubs are alternating in taking twenty inmates to the theatre once a month. The management of the Drive-In theatre is generously donating free tickets and "treats" of soft drinks and popcorn to the elderly guests.

Superintendent Ken. Yorke and Matron Mrs. Yorke of the county institution said today that the theatre parties were greatly enjoyed by their charges. "They greatly appreciate the outings and entertainment and we, as officials, equally appreciate the fine gestures of the service clubs and the theatre," the superintendent said.

IN MEMORIAM

GOODFELLOW — In loving memory of a dear mother, Frances Goodfellow, who passed away a year ago July 21st., 1948.

A year has passed and, gone,
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love of her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by daughter Mary and son-in-law Earl Pope. J21

GOODFELLOW — In loving memory of a dear mother and wife, Frances Goodfellow, who passed away a year ago July 21st., 1948.

A wonderful mother and wife, woman and aid.
One who was better God never made,
A wonderful worker, loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all you knew
A wonderful mother, that, mother, was you.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by son Stewart and husband Frank Goodfellow. J21

GOODFELLOW — In loving memory of a dear mother, Frances Goodfellow, who passed away a year ago July 21st., 1948.

It's lonesome at home without you,
And sad the weary way,
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
Gone from us that smiling face,
Those carefree, happy ways;
The heart that won so many friends
In bygone happy days.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by daughter Carrie and son-in-law Eddie Pope. J21

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. S. E. Townsend and family wish to express their thanks to their friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness shown them during the sickness and death of a loving husband and father, also for the many cards of sympathy, floral offerings and the use of cars. J21

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 21 —(CP)—Base metals continued their strong trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Golds took on an easier tone while industrials moved in a narrow range.

A few key industrials slipped fractions to a full point. Canada cement lost a point at 24, and was accompanied downward by Canada Steamships which eased ¼ at 12½.

Base metals were the only strong point in trading today. Sherritt Gordon regained its rising ways to register a five-cent gain at $1.99. Waite Amulet also followed the trend and managed to pull up for a 10-cent addition at $8.85. Today's rise was the fourth successive improvement in the base metal list.

Gold stocks slipped slightly. Junior producers showed losses ranging up to 9 cents in fairly moderate dealings. Lake Shore went against the trend and registered a gain of ⅛ at 14⅛ in the senior list.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 21 (CP)—Trade was dull on a plain quality supply on the livestock market here up to noon today. Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 160; calves 30; hogs 100; sheep and lambs 30. Left from yesterday's trading were 1,000 head.

Plain steers and heifers sold from $16-$19 with boners downward to $13. One load of choice weighty steers sold at $22.75. Canners and cutters brought $10-$13 and a few good bulls sold at $18-$19. A few plain stockers were $14.50-$16.50.

Calves sold steady at $22-$23 for good to choice with plain kinds selling downward to $16.

Hogs continued steady at $34 for grade A and $33.60 for grade B1. Sows were steady at $22, dressed.

Lambs were steady at $28.50 for good ewes and wether with $1 discount on bucks. There were no sales of sheep.

Seamen's Strike Has Had Wide Political and Labor Effects Throughout World

Montreal, July 21—(CP)— An Inter-Union conflict over Communists in Canada's labor organizations has grown into a strike which has brought Britain to a state of emergency and now threatens to involve dockworkers in other world ports outside North America.

The Canadian Seamen's Union, whose strike has sparked a wildcat sympathy walkout in British ports, is counting heavily on further support from the red-tinged World Federation of Trade Unions in an attempt to bring Canada's east-coast shipowners to terms.

The seamen's strike was ordered March 31 by the allegedly communist-led union when a score of shipowners on Canada's east coast signed what the C.S.U. calls an "illegal contract" with the rival Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) C.S.U. officials contend the S.I.U. does not represent the men on the ships at the time of the strike.

The S.I.U. entered the Canadian labor picture as a C.S.U. rival only seven months before that. Its appearance was part of an anti-communist labor leader's plan to squeeze out the C.S.U.

Sit-in Strikes

The early stages of the walkout were marked by sit-in strikes aboard ship at home and abroad, mass picking and waterfront violence on the east coast. Charges ranging from illegal assembly to attempted murder were laid against more than 300 sailors.

Gradually, however, the tied-up ships started moving again until now the Shipping Federation of Canada reports that 80 of the 84 vessels originally affected are sailing normally under S.I.U. crews. A claim by the S.I.U. and shipowners that many of the present crews are deserters from the striking union is denied by the C.S.U.

The C.S.U. abandoning earlier attempts to prevent the rival union from manning the ships, started on a new tack. It sought sympathetic action from British dockers and got it.

The resulting tie-up in Britain far exceeded the effects of the strike in Canada. British dockers told to unload two Canadian ships on the C.S.U. "Black Ban," refused and tied up more than 100 other vessels.

With the first food shortages cropping up and the country's export program hampered, Prime Minister Attlee's government declared a state of emergency and sent in troops to replace 14,000 striking longshoremen on London's waterfront.

Assured of Support

Now C.S.U. secretary-treasurer T. G. McManus says the W.F.T.U. has assured his union of support for a boycott of Canadian ships which would be effective in most countries outside North America.

McManus said his union adopted the strategy of seeking help abroad rather than face "the alternative of civil war on our own waterfronts" if it had tried to prevent manning of struck ships by the S.I.U.

Meanwhile, a reprisal boycott of British ships on the United States east coast is threatened by the big Maritime Trades Council (A.F.L.) of New York. The boycott was to have begun two weeks ago but spokesmen said it was called off indefinitely when the British government showed it was dealing with the London Dockers' action.

The present Canadian Seamen's strike has its roots back in 1946 when C.S.U. President J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, who helped found the union in Toronto ten years before, announced he was leaving it because he was through taking orders from Communists.

Sullivan subsequently formed the Canadian Lake Seamen's Union and last year signed up Canada Steamship Lines and the interests of Capt. Scott Misener, operating about half the Canadian tonnage on the Great Lakes.

These companies, whose ships had previously been manned by the C.S.U., said they declined to negotiate with a Communist-led union.

Bitter Labor War

The C.S.U. charged Sullivan's organization was a "company union" and a bitter labor war resulted.

The fight against Communists entered another stage last summer when Frank Hall, Canadian leader of A.F.L.-Affiliated Railway Brotherhoods, engineered the C.L.S.U. absorption by the S.I.U. Thus the S.I.U. had a foothold in Canada on the Great Lakes when a long-standing dispute between the C.S.U. and deep-sea owners came to a head in March.

The union had rejected a conciliation board report which recommended no changes in the basic wage of $170 a month. The union had asked for a $30 increase and the companies sought reductions of $20 up.

The board also recommended a compromise between union demands for retention of the union hiring hall and a company proposal that sailors be hired through the National Employment service. The board suggested either method might be used.

Union officers were negotiating the hiring-hall and wage matters with federal labor department officials March 31 when they learned the operators had signed a one-year contract with the S.I.U. on the same terms as the previous C. S. U. agreement.

The C.S.U. called the move a plan to destroy their union and immediately called out 2,500 men on east-coast ships.

The operators said the S.I.U. contract was signed after "overwhelming evidence" that the C.S.U. had no intention of accepting the agreement recommended by the conciliation board.

They said that "in view of the international situation it is felt presence of Communist cells of Canadian vessels cannot be allowed to continue."

Made Several Overtures

The C.S.U., which contends the operators are trying to make the strike look like "a Red plot," have made several overtures to end the walkout.

The latest proposal to end the strike "immediately" if seamen were returned to their jobs without discrimination, and even offered to abandon the prized hiring hall.

The proposals met with silence from the government and a statement by a shipowners' spokesman that the S.I.U. agreement is "a firm contract which will not be broken."

The fact the union was willing to make a major concession in allowing seamen to be hired through the National Employment Service was interpreted in some quarters as indicating the strike was near an end.

But McManus issued a statement saying the C.S.U. was prepared to continue the walkout for a year if necessary to protect seamen's "right to belong to a union of their own choice."

Now the C.S.U. faces its next trial when its case comes before the Trades and Labor Congress convention in September. The 400,000-member Congress last month suspended the union as an affiliate for violation of the T.C. constitution.

Harry Davis, 31-year-old ex-seaman and C.S.U. president, called the T.L.C. suspension an "abject capitulation" to big business and the A.N.L. The T.L.C. convention will decide whether to make the suspension stick.

RAWDON

Drought Condition Of Edmonton Dist. Related in Letter

Rawdon—In a recent letter received from Mr. Edward Montgomery who is holidaying in the bush land at Sangudo, Alberta, he says there are thousands of acres of land to be homesteaded and the price is $10 for 160 acres of land. Rain is badly needed in Alberta and gardens around Edmonton have dried up, except where it is possible to water them artificially. The crops all through Alberta, are very poor because of the drought.

In the Peace River Valley they cut their alfalfa hay on July 8.

Growth of Sangudo

Fifteen years ago when Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery visited Sangudo, it required one eight-passenger bus to convey the travellers from Edmonton to Sangudo. Now several villages have sprung up all along the way, and three buses with a seating capacity of 35 are needed to convey the travellers. The home where they are visiting is situated 80 rods from the big bush fire that was prominent in the news a few weeks ago.

Sight Seeing Tour

Mr. Montgomery enjoyed a sight seeing tour with Mr. Wilbert Cummings, who took him to many places of interest in Edmonton. Mr. Cummings formerly resided at Mount Pleasant. The neighbors are from one mile to three miles and life at Sangudo is extremely quiet.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw. — On Friday afternoon of last week St. Mark's Sunday school held their annual basket picnic at Chard's Bridge which proved to be a decided success. The nearby park with tables for picnickers, ice cream and soft drink booths, a good swimming place, and ideal weather combined to make everything ideal for those who were fortunate enough to be able to attend.

SCHOHARIE

Schoharie.—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wood were Sunday dinner guests of the Misses Smith. Mr. and Mrs. B. Smith, Trent Road, were Sunday afternoon and supper guests at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Lawson were Sunday afternoon and supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. Bongard.

Mrs. H. Davidson in company with her sister, Mrs. R. Sayers, visited their sister, Mrs. J. Matthie on Thursday.

The Live Women's Circle was entertained at the home of Mrs. John McGee on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance. A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed.

Mr. and Hrs. M. Istead and Patricia and Mrs. L. Cleave motored to Gananoque on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith. Mrs. Cleave remained for a few weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Foster spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Moore and Miss Ida Moore, Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Grosse and Walter. Mr. and Mrs. Morley Grosse and family were Sunday guests at the same home. Margaret Rose remained for a visit with her grandparents while Frances Grosse accompanied her aunt and uncle to Toronto for a few days.

Mrs. B. Foster accompanied Mr. and Mrs. R. Reed of Picton to Toronto on Monday for the day.

MOIRA

Moira.—The July meeting of the Victory Class was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Regensburg with the vice-president, Donald McInroy, presiding. Mr. McInroy ased everyone's assistance at the coming Sunday school picnic. Mrs. Eva Farrell moved that new blinds be purchased for the church vestry. —Carried. Mr. Clarke took charge of the study period on "Works As An Expression of Faith" and a profitable and spirited discussion followed on "Absolute Commitment and Faith". The class is very happy to welcome both Mr. and Mrs. Clarke as spiritual leaders. Readings were given by Eva Farrell and Beverley Foster. Mrs. A. Emerson and Fred Regensburg played a duet. Refreshments were served.

On Friday evening Moira Young People's Union joined with West Huntingdon for a wiener roast.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Holden and Norma were in Kingston on Friday.

Mr. W. Vanderwater has returned from Bancroft where he was spending a few weeks with his daughter, Mrs. M. Reynolds.

Mr. B. Ketcheson is visiting in Frankford for a week.

Marie Cooney has returned from a visit to Toronto.

Congratulations to Marie Cooney, who has passed her entrance examination with honors and to Patsy Calbury who was passed on her year's work.

MODERN DISCOVERERS

Man today can have links with civilization however far he may penetrate into the hinterlands whether they be in the Arctic, Antarctic or in a dense waste anywhere in the world. He may travel on ship and have so many of the advantages of life at home with him on his journey or he may be weather-bound in the far north or south.

Eleven Britons are now proving this within the Antarctic Circle. They are marooned there but are enjoying the rare privilege of each having a special wireless program directed to him alone. It is their only contact with the outside world but it is such an important contact that these men find their times filled up with matters of home interest. Each man's program is specially designed for him and his close relations, sitting in the broadcasting studio talk to him direct about all those little things which mean so much of home to him. To round off the program records of his choice are played.

The BBC has been running this unusual series of programs, "Calling Base E Falkland Islands Dependencies." The men are doing a most important work as they are members of the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey, covering the most isolated part of the Colonial Empire. How different are the experiences of these men from what men in a similar situation not long ago would have can be easily understood. They have been at work since the first of 1944 and were due to be relieved last March by the survey vessel, John Biscoe, but owing to phenomenal climatic conditions, the ship was confronted by a vast field of pack-ice which made any attempt at penetration impossible. Until the bleak Antarctic summer returns and another attempt is made to penetrate the ice, these men at Base E remain cut off.

The type of work which is being carried out by the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey is well illustrated by a sledge journey undertaken a few months ago by four members of this party at Base E. In a trip lasting ninety days the men covered 940 miles, mapped 250 miles of coastline, and discovered more than thirty small islands. At one point, they penetrated as far south as 73 35', that is about 305 miles south of the Antarctic Circle.

Columbus when he dared all for the proof of his faith that the world was round had to run dangers in unknown waters. Had he been stranded in America if his ship had been lost he could not have had the pleasure of messages from home as these modern scientific discoverers have in their Antarctic winter home. The modern explorer can travel wherever he likes and has a bond through instruments of science with his home.

TO THE LAST TREE

The most significant year in Ontario's forestry history may be next year, says Woodland World, noting the fact that the Department of Lands and Forests will be within reach of knowing the forest resources of the province almost "down to the last tree." Lands Minister Scott has said that new timber policies may be effected by the facts brought out by the forest inventory now underway. Latest aerial and ground methods are being used to determine what the timber species are, where they are located, where best they are growing and where they are being depleted. The Minister says that on the basis of the facts gained, when the results are compiled the Province can base policies of timber disposal and timber allocation for many decades of the future."

He added that "we will know how many million cords of 75-year-old spruce we have and how many million cords of 50-year-old spruce we have and we will have preliminary figures on the rates of growth in this area and that area and the other area. . . . Then when we know how much we have in the province and what the annual rate of growth is we can then say "We will have so many million cords of this, so many million cords of that and so many million cords of the others and then we will be in a position to lay down a definite policy."

It is pointed out that there will be compiled an exact map showing rivers and lakes and other topography, and results which will be useful in administration of fish and wild life, forest protection and stream control.

Man is proud of his conquest of the air, and with reason perhaps. But when a large aircraft is wrecked on the side of a mountain it looks just as pathetic as a boy's kite tangled amid the wires says Hamilton Spectator.

The moonlight excursion given under the auspices of the members of the Quinte Music Club last evening on the steamer Merritt was a most enjoyable affair. The music, vocal and instrumental, was excellent and the chorus singing by the members of the club was most enjoyable. The party sailed down the bay for a considerable distance and then returned to Massassaga Park and spent some time there.

Mr. C. E. Kenrick of the Bank of Commerce here has been transferred to Dresden, Ontario.

THE PACKSACK
OF GREGORY CLARK

A new novel is exciting the reviewers all over the English-speaking world, George Orwell's "Nineteen Eighty-four." Orwell is the author of "Animal Farm," an ironic little masterpiece of two or three years ago. I have not read "Nineteen Eighty-four," but I was reading a review of it in the garden last evening with a fresh cup of tea steaming beside me on the chair arm.

It must be a sizzler of a novel. It describes the world as it is to be in 1984, based on the present trends, political and social. The reviewers describe it as terrifying ugly, menacing. The world of 1984 will be in the clutches of a tiny minority lusting for power and power alone. Not wealth, not luxury, not happiness for themselves or others,—just power, not as a means, but power as an end in its self! The agonies of the hero of this novel were outlined by the reviewer. . . .

I began to sneer. Under my apple tree, in the garden, with the backs of all the neighbor houses homely around me, I began tos sneer' at these writers, novelists, propagandists, intellectuals, who seem incapable of looking around them and seeing what life really is. How plain and humble and gentle life is! All these quiet houses, with their behinds turned to me—not a scream from the lot of them, not a shot! All peace and quiet habitude, and decent people industriously going about their life's work, drawing their weekly pay envelopes, raising children, getting them married off, muddling cheerfully in their gardens. Life is not violence. Life is humdrum. . . .

A green apple, about the size of a golf ball, disturbed by heaven knows what breezes originating in Samarkand or the High Sierras, and come all this way to my garden, fell with precise violence, smack into my tea cup, splashed scalding tea all over me and my newspaper. . . .

I guess I'll have to read "Nineteen-Eighty-Four."

TODAY'S TALK
BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE STILL SMALL VOICE

There is no voice in all this world so calming, so peaceful, so nourishing to the soul, as the still, small voice of Nature. You get it from the break of water along the shore, from the wave of the pines, and from the soft murmur of the forest.

You get this voice, unexpectedly, when you are in the mood to engage it, and take it into your consciousness. You also get in at night time, whispering to you out of the blue of the day's experience. You get it from a reverent observation of the heavens, spotted endlessly with jeweled stars on a clear night. Each star seems to have a silent message of hope and promise.

Even in suffering and sorrow this still, small voice may be heard, with its comforting words of cheer, and its urge of courage. And when fear is near, its whisper is like the immediate presence of a troop of angels, transported for your protection alone. In the out-of-the-way places, into little cottages among the hills, and among the poor and distressed, as well as into the homes of the well-to-do, this same still, small voice is an habitual visitor. Heed it and you will enter its own spiritual realm.

At times this still, small voice may be but the voice of conscience, or of the invisible Good. We never quite know, but we hear it, and it is often the guide by which we overcome great obstacles, and are advised as to the road ahead — in safety.

This still, small voice is often an inner voice — in man or woman — hoping for a clearer understanding of oneself. Courting inward friendliness. How much happier we would be if we but listened to this voice and took it to heart. We could go anywhere and feel the charm of its comfort, and its wise understanding.

"Amid the clang and sirens of our age" you may detect this still, small voice in many a mind devoted to the betterment of mankind. That mind may be the one of a great writer, a poet, or a public servant. But there it is, doing its silent mission, regardless of all outward fear and signalling of storm and stress.

Mackenzie's Column
Speculation On Atomic Talks In Washington

(Editor's Note: This column is presented as an indication of American opinion on major world events)

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

It would be easy to draw false and dangerous conclusions by indulging in speculation about the top-level talks being held in Washington on atomic dealings with Britain and Canada.

Are our British friends seeking some boon? Are we so far ahead of them now in atomic developments that they need a report on progress to bring them up to date? Do the uranium mines in the Belgian Congo, said to be controlled by British interests, enter into the picture, inasmuch as the United States has been getting supplies there?

Russia Too

There is wide-spread belief among scientific observers that both Britain and Russia must have at least the theoretical knowledge, as distinguished from the industrial knowledge, of how to make the bomb.

The United States' protection at this time doesn't lie in exclusive secrets as to how an atomic bomb can be constructed. Many experts say Britain was ahead of the United States in experiments with nuclear fission when the war came. It is entirely possible that the British are actually ahead of the United States in knowledge of how to make better bombs.

Germans Helped

As for Russia, at the end of the war she had full access to the studies of German scientists who claimed to have solved the problem of nuclear fission, though they had no industrial equipment with which to manufacture bombs. Communist spies also have been busy since the war seeking information in Britain, Canada and the United States.

Our protection lies in the fact that foreign countries lack the industrial facilities and industrial knowledge for the manufacturing of atomic bombs.

The problem of production is incredible, since it calls for many great plants and complicated equipment which no country except the United States could provide at this juncture.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I have noticed in the Ontario Intelligencer of a coin found in Belleville by Mr. Gilbert Ketcheson, minted in 1842. We have in our possession a half penny token dated 1812 found on our farm in the fourth of Sidney some years ago. The date is very distinct.

MORE CANADIANS

Officials of the Fish and Wildlife Division of the Department of Lands and Forests say that last year 139,500 individuals and 84,000 family licenses were sold, mostly to Americans. Residents are not required to buy a licence. Revenue from the sale of these was well over the $1,000,000 mark.

Many types of game fish abound in Ontario's vast waterways but the most popular, say wildlife officials, is the bass. Next to it comes the pike and pickerel and, of course, the muskellunge—the big-game fish of Canada's inland waters.

This summer the Division has had reports of "good" fishing from Rice Lake, near Peterborough, the Kawartha Lakes region, and the North Bay-Lake Nipissing district.

Some American anglers have flown as far north as the Albany River, which flows into James Bay, to fish for trout.

The Ottawa Valley and neighboring Quebec are experiencing a big year with the Gatineau and Upper Ottawa Rivers thronged during weekends with fishermen who have been having good luck catching muskies, small and large-mouth bass, pickerel and sturgeon.

Some Notable Catches

Among the larger fish taken so far this summer was a 25-pound muskie caught in the Ottawa River within sight of the Parliament Buildings. A 7¾-pound pickerel was caught in the Rideau Canal and a 12-pound northern pike was hooked at Hog's Back, on the same canal.

It seems all types and varieties of bait find favor with today's fishermen. A humble worm was used to catch a muskie near Ottawa and a one-pound whitefish caught a 19½ pound grey trout on a fly-rod in Quebec's Lac Wapizagouke, near Shawinigan Falls.

Some fish and game experts swear by the crayfish as the No. 1 live bait. So far as artificial baits are concerned, it seems pretty well a matter of having the bait meet the fish when the fish is in the mood.

Strength for the Day
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE ALWAYS A STRUGGLE

The mahogany trees which are in low and damp soils grow very rapidly, but the mahogany trees which grow amid rocks and upon sterile soil grow slowly and produce much more beautiful wood. There is a greater compactness and beauty of grain and texture in the lumber cut from trees which grow under adverse conditions. It seems that the difficulties of growth and the effort a tree has to put forth to survive at all produces a beauty which the fanciers of good furniture greatly esteem.

It happens frequently also in human life that affliction and trial develop very admirable traits in character. It takes struggle, trial, and the discipline of hard work we do not want to do to bring out the best in every one of us. It is a dismal sight to look upon an able person held back in life because of handicaps or the denial of any opportunity to exercise his gifts. But it is equally discouraging to see people with lots of brains, money, and personality coming to the end of their lives with failure written across each decade.

The chick has to peck its way out of the shell to be strong and healthy. The worm cannot turn into a butterfly without a struggle of the most agonizing nature.

So the story of the mahogany tree is symbolic of what goes on throughout human life. It takes struggle for existence to bring beauty of grain and texture to our lives.

THE FUNCTION OF THE TONSILS

Even the most recent utterances of physicians who write and speak as authorities indicate clearly that the notion is still widespread, in the medical profession, that tonsil tissue, whether the entire tonsils or portions of tonsils in the throat are abnormal, to be regarded a "growth" if not actually malignant and therefore warranting immediate surgical removal by the major operation, tonsillectomy. Major means that the operation involves the risk of life. Tonsillectomy has its own death rate.

This unscientific notion inspires the trick "specialists" and the brass "surgeons", the ever-ready operators, when they utter the familiar bombast about "getting all of the tonsil" and leaving no tags or buried stumps in the throat. Despite such quack talk, however, the fact is that even the most radical or, as the trick "specialists" say, the most thorough tonsillectomy is likely to leave portions of tonsil behind — as likely as it is to remove odds and ends of throat muscle which get in the way of the "surgeon's" snare or tonsillotome.

Probably a number of singers or speakers reading this could testify concerning the impairment of the voice by tonsillectomy — which, unfortunately, they elected to undergo despite my repeated warnings and my assertions that electro-coagulation (diathermy) is always the method of choice for the person with a voice and infected tonsils.

Some ever-ready operators still use that unscientific notion to worry or fright unsophisticated people into submitting to tonsillectomy, as irresponsibly as physicians and dentists of the lowest level order or advise ignorant people to have all their teeth extracted on the blind but remote possibility that the mutilation may somehow relieve the poor dupes' rheumatiz or stomach complaint. But it is good to note that the craze for wholesale tonsillectomy, which raged twenty-five years ago, is over now—the operators themselves became worried and frightened about the unpleasant publicity their methods entailed.

It is now pretty well recognized by the general medical profession that too many unnecessary tonsillectomies have been prepetrated upon persons who had nothing to fear but fear itself.

In my own opinion — which would prevail if my own health were concerned, tonsillectomy would not even be considered unless there were reason to believe the trouble in the tonsil or tonsils might be malignant (cancer), actinomycosis, syphilis (primary lesion) or tuberculosis.

If the trouble in tonsil or tonsils were merely infection, the treatment would be electro-coagulation (diathermy). If the trouble were simple hypertrophy (enlargement, as in children) of sufficient degree to obstruct breathing, the treatment would be the minor operation, tonsillotomy, instantaneous amputation, clipping or slicing off the obstructing portions.

Oh, yes, the function of the tonsils. Frankly, we know little about it. But I accept as reasonable and fairly substantiated by clinical experience the belief of many authorities that tonsils at least in childhood and youth, manufacture antibodies and so maintain immunity against many infectious diseases of the growth period, particularly the respiratory infections.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Decalcification

Is decalcification of bone contagious? (S. A.)

Answer—Perhaps you misunderstood. Decalcification means absorption or removal of calcium from bone. It is a process of advancing age. No more contagious than wrinkles or gray hair.

Centimeters

In an article about hardening of the arteries you said Bulgarian sour milk should be taken in quantities of from 300 to [illegible] subic contimeters. Why do doctors make it hard for people to understand. . . .? (Citizen).

Answer—I was quoting Metchnikoff's recommendation, as I explained in the article. A pint is equivalent to a little more than 500 cubic centimeters.

Memory

Please tell me through your column whether the ability to remember names and other things, even recent occurences, is due to lack of any particular vitamin. cubic contimeters. Why do doctors

Answer—Iodine deficiency and insufficient daily intake of vitamin B complex, particularly thiamine (B-1) probably accounts for it in many instances. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet "The Iodine Ration". Eat wheat germ or plain wheat every day.

WARNS CZECHS OF TREASON

Czechoslovakia Minister of Justice Alexej Cepicka, shown here, warned Czechs they would be "committing treason" if they tried to carry out the unprecedented Vatican excommunication decree aimed at Catholic-Communists. Cepicka, who is a son-in-law of Communist President Klement Gottwald, said the plan was drafted in the Vatican and in Washington and called for "underground" newspaper and sabotage of the Czech program.—Central Press Canadian.

Canterbury Ruins Probed In Rush to Gather Relics

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canterbury, England, July 21 (CP).—In normal times archaeologists pursue the treasures of antiquity with unhurried thoroughness. In Canterbury they are working against time.

For centuries access to the city's ancient foundations was blocked by new construction.

Then came Goering's bombers. The blitz levelled stores, offices and hotels. The whole of the early town site was cleared by bomb and flame.

The cathedral alone escaped. Freed of the buildings which long had hedged it in, the majestic church was left revealed in its original glory.

After the war archaeologists took over the bombed area. With the aid of volunteer workers, they soon were turning up historical treasures, evidences of Britain's earliest times.

But excavating is slow and tedious. Modern Canterbury wants to get on with the job of rebuilding, so that the city's commercial life may be revived.

The word has gone out to the archaeology people to get a move on. Once new buildings start going up, the door will be closed on further finds.

Seek Funds For Workmen

The Archbishop of Canterbury has headed an appeal to the public for funds to speed the excavations.

The idea is to raise enough money to employ a force of paid workers. While systematic examination of the whole bombed area goes forward, these workmen will be held ready to move in on special jobs.

Whenever civic authorities announce they are ready to start a building job where the archaeologists' work is unfinished, the workmen will concentrate for a final, intensive excavation before the new foundations are laid.

Before the city is rebuilt, archaeologists hope to have unearthed conclusive evidences of Canterbury's prehistoric beginnings, its growth in Roman times, and its life as a Saxon capital and the cradle of English christianity.

Finds thus far include magnificent checkered pavements and a heating chamber which shows the way buildings were heated in Roman times. A clay ditch uncovered is believed to have been part of the ancient city's defences.

Canterbury has been continuously occupied since the ancient Britons built huts there. Romans, Saxons and Normans followed with successive civilizations. King Ethelbert was converted to Christianity there by St. Augustine in the year 597.

Franco Civil Rights Promises Unkept

Madrid, July 21 (AP).—Generallisimo Francisco Franco promised Spaniards four years ago to respect basic civil rights, but the promise is still only a promise.

More than 10 years after the civil war, martial law is still in effect. Military courts try people without jury. A Spaniard who cries "Long Live the Republic" is charged with "attacking the security of the state" and is liable to 30 years imprisonment. Another who strikes for a higher wage also is "attacking the security of the state" and liable to 30 years.

Since the end of the Second World War, however, such penalties are reserved for militant communists, socialists or anarchists engaged in active, organized opposition. The ordinary Spaniard gets two to five years for his outburst of political exuberance.

No Vote Yet On Rights

Franco promulgated a "Spanish Bill of Rights" July 17, 1945. It provides that the cortes (parliament) "shall vote the necessary laws for carrying out the rights recognized in this bill". The cortes has yet to vote any of these laws.

So 28,000,000 people silently go on living without the benefits of freedom of speech, worship, correspondence and association; without the rights of Habeas Corpus, or to work and own property, and without guarantees against illegal arrest or entry of homes, all promised in the "Bill of Rights" and all in existence under the preceding republic and monarchy.

In fairness to the Franco regime, it must be said that civil rights in this country of retarded development have had an illusive existence.

Under different monarchies, Catholicism was the state-protected and state-supported religion. Protestants and Jews frequently led a harried life.

Provision Restored

All constitutions except the Republicans reserved to the government the right to suspend any of their guarantees when needed. Soon after the republic's constitution was written a separate law on the security of the state restored the provision.

But under previous regimes Spaniards had constitutional rights to which they could appeal. Today, they have a "Bill of Rights" which has never been put into effect.

As for the religious situation in Spain, persecution of Protestants continues sporadically, but there is no evidence of government support behind it.

WEST HUNTINGDON

Endeavors S.S. Class Holds Fine Meeting

West Huntingdon—The July meeting of the Endeavors Sunday School Class was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond. Mrs. Dan Cooke presided over a most interesting and helpful program which had been prepared by Mrs. Sandy McCurdy.

The worship service consisted of singing hymns, prayer by the Rev. Morley Clarke. Scripture reading and explanations by Mr. Dan Cooke. The roll call revealed ninety per cent of the members were present.

Interesting Program

Mrs. Howard Cooke gave an interesting account of the class since its organization in 1931.

Mrs. George Ashley contributed an account of the life of the great hymn writer, Fanny Crosby, and a number of her hymns were sung.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart of Lakefield, and a former member of the Class, gave the special address which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Marilyn, gave a fine duet.

Mr. Elmer Post read a couple of poems in keeping with the occasion.

Mr. Clarke brought a brief address and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy conducted a Bible quiz.

Following the benediction, Mrs. Hammond served refreshments.

Mr. Clayton Wright voiced the appreciation of the Class to Mr. Stewart for his address and to Mr. and Mrs. Hammond for opening their home.

BOY IMPROVES AFTER TRANSFUSIONS

Toronto, July 21 (CP).—The 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric P. J. Zuerrer of Burford, Ont. was reported today to be "getting along very well" in hospital where he underwent a series of transfusions to remedy an "RH Positive" blood condition.

Hospital officials said the child is "not quite ready" to return home, but is making good progress.

Baby Zuerrer was brought to hospital here July 13 to have the toxic blood drained from his body and replaced with normaal blood.

WEDDINGS

SNIDER—WALKER

Marmora. — A pretty wedding of local interest took place in Marmora Free Methodist Church at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday July 20th., when Clara Oda June, daughter of Councillor and Mrs. Arnold Walker, was united in marriage to Kenneth James Snider, son of Mr. Courtland Snider and the late Mrs. Snider of Verona. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend S. C. Ball, district superintendent, assisted by the Reverend G. H. Bache.

Mrs. Ralph Wellman rendered the wedding music, and Mrs. Delman Jackman, of Peterborough, was soloist, rendering "O Promise Me", as the bride entered the church and "Our Father Which Art in Heaven" while kneeling in the course of the ceremony. "I Love You Truly", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly attired in blush slipper satin, floor length with slight train, and bertha necklace bordered with rosettes of satin centred with seed pearls. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a beaded headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white gladioli.

Miss Shirley Walker, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a light green triple sheer gown and carrying a cascade bouquet of pink gladioli.

Mrs. James Walker was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of pink triple sheer, and carried a cascade bouquet similar to that of the maid of honor.

Little Judy Robertson, of Peterborough, and niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a piquante dress of yellow taffeta. She carried a nosegay of sweet-peas.

The duties of groomsman were performed by Mr. Floyd Snider, brother of the bridegroom, of Westport, and the ushers were James Walker and William Derry.

Following the ceremony, about 100 guests attended the reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received, wearing triple sheer with black accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Stewart Snider, aunt of the bridegroom, who was attired in figured jersey with black accessories, and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

After the reception, the young couple left on a honeymoon trip to Watertown, N.Y. Upon their return, they will reside in Marmora.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Kingston, Westport, Odessa, Harrowsmith, Verona, Oshawa, Peterborough, and Bancroft.

FORSTER—EVANS

In the Church of St. Anthony of Padua, Centreville, one of the prettiest of weddings in the district was solemnized when Miss Helen Pauline, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Evans of Moscow, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to John LaCourse Forster, son of Mrs. Gerald J. Forster, of Belleville and the late Dr. Gerald J. Forster. Reverend W. P. Healey officiated. The bride's brother, Francis Evans, and Vincent Murphy were acolytes. Appropriate hymns were rendered by the organist, Mr. Denis Nolan, and by Mrs. Stafford Murphy and Miss Mary Murphy.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, was a picture of loveliness in her gown of ivory white duchess satin made on princess lines with a fitted bodice buttoned down the back. The full skirt with a padded hipline and ending in a circular train was adorned with tiny bunches of lily-of-the-valley. The dress was made with a nylon yoke. Around the shoulders was a scalloped frill of Chantilly lace. Three buttons closed the long sleeves and tapering over the wrists were dainty frills of Chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion embroidered in flowers, fell from a high coronet of lily-of-the-valley She wore a pearl necklace and carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Gordon Huffman, as her sister's matron-of-honor, wore a mauve lace gown made with a bustle back, jacket and long sleeves coming to points over the wrists and a full skirt ending in a slight train.

Miss Theresa O'Reilly, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her gown was of lime green taffeta made with a very full skirt and a scalloped frill around the shoulders. She wore matching elbow-length mitts. Both wore matching headdresses with shoulder-length veils and carried nosegays of yellow roses and mixed sweet-peas.

Mr. James Evans, Jr., attended the groom and Messrs. Gordon Huffman and Edward Evans acted as ushers.

After the ceremony about 55 guests motored to Kingston where a reception was held in the Hotel La Salle. The guests were received by the bride's mother, Mrs. Evans, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Forster, wearing black figured silk dresses with black and white accessories and corsages of pink roses.

The bride's table was decorated with bouquets of mixed flowers and centred with a three-tiered wedding cake. The toast to the bride was proposed by Reverend Father Henley and was responded to by the groom. Mr. James Scanlin proposed a toast to the bridesmaids and Mr. James Evans Jr., replied.

After the reception the bride and groom left for a two-week trip through Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a grey checked summer suit with green accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Forster will reside in Belleville.

TOPPING—CLAPPER

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 9th., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McVey, 28 Miller Street, St. Thomas, Ont., when Myrtle Clapper, daughter of Mr. Jonathan Elliott, of Belleville and the late Mrs. Elliott, became the bride of Herbert Wallace Topping, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Topping, Napanee. The Rev. M. G. Cook officiated.

Marrion Lemmon, of Belleville, was the bride's only attendant and Mr. Robert Carrol, of St. Thomas, was groomsman.

After visiting friends and relatives in Belleville, and district, Mr. and Mrs. Topping will reside in St. Thomas, Ont.

LOCKE—PALMER

Before a lovely setting of hydrangea, gladioli and princess feather, the marriage of Illenne Marguerite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Palmer of Belleville, to Donald Leroy William Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Locke, Belleville, was solemnized on Saturday, July 16th., at 3.30 p.m., in Holloway Street United Church, by the Rev. C. A. Perkins.

Mr. William Connor, organist of the church, provided the wedding music. Mrs. Rene Brown, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer"; and during the signing of the register, "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of organdy and lace with matching gloves. The lace skirt was caught up at intervals by roses made from the same material as the headdress, which held in place her long, white veil of tulle illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli blooms.

Miss Jean Jose, of Rossmore, was maid of honor, wearing mauve brocaded moire taffeta with matching gloves, braided headdress and carried a shower bouquet of pastel tinted gladioli.

Miss June Mathews, of Belleville, R.R. 8 and Miss Shirley McCleod of Belleville, were bridesmaids, wearing identical gowns of apple green moire taffeta, matching gloves and braided headdresses. They carried shower bouquets of tinted gladioli.

Mr. Douglas Locke, Belleville, was groomsman and Louis Jose of Rossmore and Murray Locke of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at the Bar-B-Q, where the bride's mother, who received the guests wearing a gown of floor-length navy blue sheer, matching hat and white gloves, was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of floor length rose crepe with black accessories.

For the motor trip around Lake Ontario, the bride chose a cerise moire taffeta suit with white accessories. Upon their return, the young couple will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from Campbellford, Roslin, Wellington, Toronto, London, Deseronto, Ottawa and Winnipeg.

WEST HUNTINGDON

YPU Enjoys Wiener Roast

West Huntingdon—The Young People's Union held their annual wiener roast on Friday evening at "Highland Beach", situated on Donald Haggerty's farm. There was a good attendance of members and visitors present.

The sing-song led by Joan McCurdy and Evelyn Emerson was much enjoyed. Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of Lakefield, was present and conducted the Scripture reading. Readings were presented by Miss Iris Holland of Stirling, and Mr. Don Runnals, of White Lake.

The Rev. Morley Clarke gave a short address in keeping with the occasion.

The songs contributed by Mr. Beverly Foster and Miss Evelyn Emerson of Moira, were much appreciated.

This fine program was prepared by Bob Gay and Donald Wilson and presided over by Miss Marjorie Wright. At the close all enjoyed the wieners.

PRINCE CHARLES AND PROUD PARENTS

Taking advantage of a sunny day, Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, play with little Prince Charles on the lawn of their summer home in Windlesham Moor, England. Scores of Women Attend Boy Scouts' Jamboree as 'Akelas'

Connaught Rifle Ranges, South March, Ont., July 21. (CP)—There's no "men only" sign on scouting.

Scores of Canadian women are in the Scout movement as lady cub masters and some 25 of them are attending the first Canadian Boy Scout jamboree, a huge tent city on Connaught Rifle Ranges, 14 miles west of Ottawa, where nearly 3,000 Scouts from Canada, the United States and Cuba, are camping this week.

A lady cub master—or any cub master, for that matter—is known as "Akela" to members of a Wolf Cub Pack—boys between eight and 12. The "Akelas" teach the boys the principles of the Wolf Cubs, lead them on hikes and some times lady cub masters even lead them on camping trips.

(The name is derived from Rudyard's Kipling's 'Jungle Book' from the name of a she-wolf, one of the many animal characters in the book. At Cub meetings, the Cubs form a circle, put their fingers up to their ears and shout "Akela, we'll do our best" when their Cub master arrives)

It's not an easy job. They must be fully qualified for their work—and that includes a lot more than being able to tie knots or light a fire without matches—and get a certain percentage on examinations covering various phases of Cub work.

It's strictly voluntary. Their only reward is the satisfaction they get from their jobs.

Some of the lady Cub masters at the jamboree—the biggest project ever undertaken by Canadian Boy Scouts—have travelled thousands of miles, to work in the camp canteen, the equipment store or the hospital.

Mrs. Dorothy L. Collins of Vancouver is one of them. She is a district Cub master in charge of two packs in Vancouver and assists with a third pack she helped organize.

It's a lot of work, she says, but the look in a Cub's eyes when he gets a proficiency badge makes it worthwhile.

Her son, Bryson, a first-class Scout, is at the jamboree.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

WHEN IS A TEA A HIGH TEA?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: Please tell me just what is a high tea for a bride-to-be. To this kind of party do the guests take gifts with them, or is just one present given by the hostess? And what does a woman guest wear?—A.K.

There are two differences between high tea and the usual tea: (1) high tea is served at a later hour, at six or half-past six instead of half-past four or five o'clock; and (2) at a high tea more food is served and it is of a more substantial nature than the usual tea-menu. However, the high tea menu is not so substantial as a buffet menu. Very often at a high tea the tea-menu is served with the addition of the always-popular chicken salad or in mid-summer fruit salad, or any other kind of salad.

Or sometimes the menu features substantial sandwiches rather than the small, simple, sandwiches served at tea: for example, open sandwiches of turkey or chicken or smoked turkey; guava jelly and cream cheese; or chopped olives and cream cheese; or tiny codfish balls, or grilled cocktail sausages, on toothpicks, or grilled sardines on toast. Then cakes and cookies are served, with or without ice cream; and coffee with perhaps an alternative of a cold drink.

I shouldn't think that the giving of a high tea for a bride-to-be would mean that the guests would take gifts — any more than they would take gifts to a tea given in honor of a bride-to-be. A woman guest wears to a high tea the type of dress she would wear to a tea, a street-length afternoon dress or dressy suit.

Most Unusual Procedure: Groom's Friend To Give Bachelor Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: A friend of mine is giving a bachelor dinner soon for a groom-to-be. (1) He would like to know if it would be proper to invite the friends and relatives of the groom to a hotel for the party. (2) Would a dinner be appropriate, or should just drinks be served? (3) He would also like to know about the invitations. How should they be worded? And should they be hand written, or would it be correct to type them?—R.M.

(1) Traditionally the procedure is that the groom himself gives and pays for his bachelor dinner—but if your friend takes this over (which is most unusual) and so assumes the expense, he will have to make his plans to fit his pocketbook. To his bachelor dinner the groom invites his best man and ushers, and perhaps several of his other intimate friends and associates—and your friend who is giving the party would of course invite the best man and ushers and as many other of the groom's intimate friends as he wishes.

The groom's friend who is giving the dinner may give it in his own home, or at a club or in a private room of a hotel. (2) Since the name of this is "the bachelor dinner", the guests would expect that they were being invited to a DINNER, not to a cocktail party. If your friend now feels (as I very much suspect, because of the wording of your questions and also because of the fact that today some grooms are too inclined to "hint" to one of their attendants (usually the poor, gullible best man!) or one of their friends that it is the responsibility of the best man or the friend to give the bachelor dinner) that he has been "pressed into financial service" rather unwillingly on his part, I suggest that he let the groom take over the expenses of the bachelor dinner, which are rightly his, anyway, and perhaps give a cocktail party for the groom and his attendants.

(3) The invitations to such a small party as the bachelor dinner usually is, are usually given by word-of-mouth, perhaps by telephone or by telegraph to those who live at a distance.—(Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.).

Buying a Foundation Garment

To set off a pretty dress like this one to best advantage it is important to wear the right foundation garment. With it, you'll look neat and trim.

By HELEN FOLLETT

It is a pretty safe guess that no article of wearing apparel so affects a woman's grooming, her comfort and physical well being as the foundation garment she wears. These figure molding effects are often selected much too casually. An experienced corsetiere is a grand find, should be sought when one fares forth to shop. She will know the figure type requirements. Proper fitting is of the utmost importance. A woman may need one size in a garment constructed of fabric, or fabric and elastic, while a smaller size may be required in a garment with more stretch. Naturally the customer does not know about these matters.

Being neatly harnessed is an inspiration to maintain good posture. A foundation will provide support below the equator, and that is where the average middle-aged figure does not qualify, especially if a woman has got into the habit of expecting no work to be done by her spinal column, when she lets her shoulders slump, her abdomen protrude. Sloppy carriage is the worst beauty curse of the present moment.

A Good Figure

What contributes to a good figure? Here is your answer; head on the level, chin up, chest high, shoulders held with ease, abdomen flat as a pancake, legs straight, feet parallel. That is not a hard lesson to learn.

The properly-fitted brassiere also serves a purpose in promoting good posture. A too-loose garment, with its lack of support, may lead a woman to assume a slouchy attitude. When a brassiere is too tight, the wearer cannot give rein to natural freedom of carriage, with constrictions preventing her from doing so.

The happy medium, of course, is a bra that provides comfortable support, without binding muscles or bones at any point, and which allows perfect freedom of movement.

Whether a woman will choose to wear a girdle and bra or an all-in-one is a matter of personal preference. But it is well to consult with an experienced corsetiere.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

EVERY WOMAN SHOULD ACT HER AGE

Of what avail the external evidences of loveliness if one's friends drop away from one, if the members of the family give one the cold shoulder at times? That is what happens to the woman who has never grown up emotionally. In almost every large family there is one of that type. She is far from happy and she makes others miserable. She is one of the world's worst bores.

She has never outgrown the selfishness of her baby days. Then she had to have the best toy when playing with her comrades. Now she has to have the tenderloin from the steak, the smallest leaves from the lettuce, the best easy chair, and everybody carrying and fetching for her. Teacher knows what you are thinking, my friend. You have in mind just such a person and, no doubt, you consider her a pig of purest ray serene. Which she is.

If she is frustrated in the slightest way she has tantrums. She would like to roll on the floor, kick and scream, as she did when she was a child. She sulks, lifts her voice in protest, tells you that fate and every human hand in her immediate world is raised against her. She doesn't look pretty. She has developed deep frowns between her eyes. Her face carries an expression of petulance and self-pity.

This woman will never face her responsibilities. So everybody else has to carry on for her which, really, is not fair business, since every adult should carry his or her load.

She can never come to a decision. If you know such a woman and she asks you to make a decision for her, don't do it. If anything goes wrong she'll fly at you in a fury and say that it is your fault. Tell her it is all you can do to decide what you should do in managing your own affairs.

If she can't have everything she wants or everything the way she wants it, she either bawls or fights. The members of her family get so weary and bored they are likely to do everything possible in the way of appeasement. That makes her behavior even more trying, but can you blame them? If there isn't peace in the house, the house is not a haven or a home.

Suggest that she be her age and she will tell you that she is as she is and she can't change. The truth is, of course, that she doesn't want to change. She has no desire to do for others as she expects others to do for her. She's all for getting, never giving.

When the time comes for such a woman to be taken to her Maker, few tears will be shed. There will be sighs of relief instead. It has happened again and again.

The members of her family are likely to do everything in the way of appeasement.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters and Answers

He Got a "Dear John" Letter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a lovesick Marine who has been engaged to a girl for a year and a half. Now I've just received a "Dear John" letter from her.

I have a very dangerous job, handling explosives, and I almost caused a serious accident because I can't keep my mind on my work. I think she still loves me, but I've been away from her pretty long. I don't expect to see her yet for awhile, either, because I'm shipping out again and won't be home until 1950.

I would like to know how to make things up to her so that she will be waiting for me when I return.

E. W. P.

Dear E. W. P.:

I think the chances are that you're quite right in thinking that your long absences have been the cause of your girl's change of heart. For I'm afraid you're going to have to accept the fact that it's far more likely she has had a change of heart than that she still loves you, as you say you think.

It is extremely difficult for very young people to bear up under long separations and uncertainty about when they can be together, and you must try to look at it from her point of view, too.

I wish I could tell you how to make her love you enough to want to wait indefinitely for you, but I can't. Nobody can. All you can do is to write and tell her just how you feel, and if she doesn't respond in like manner, then you'll just have to try and realize that broken engagements happen to a great many people, and when they do, the one who gets hurt must be big enough to take the blow and not let it sour him on life. Remember that if you have a dangerous job, then it's not fair to others who may be injured through your negligence to let your personal problems make you careless. Make an extra effort to keep your mind on the job of the moment, and I promise you it will become easier and easier to do as the days go on, until your present emotional upset wears off. Because it will wear off, in time, and you'll be surprised to find yourself getting interested in some other girl. It always happens that way, hard as it may be to believe.

Citizenship Rules

Pretoria, South Africa, (CP)—Under the South African Citizenship Bill passed recently by the Union government, South African women will not automatically lose their South African citizenship merely because they marry a citizen of another country.

A woman from a Commonwealth country married to a South African citizen will receive a certificate of citizenship after two years' residence. Three years is required in case of an alien woman married to a South African citizen.

Mrs. Dana Wilgress Takes London Post

Geneva, July 21 (CP). — Mrs. Dana Wilgress, wife of Canada's newly appointed high commissioner to the United Kingdom, is looking forward to an exciting and stimulating life in London.

She and her husband have been living in Berne for the last two years, where he was Canada's minister to Switzerland. Life in Berne was a somewhat relaxed interval between appointments to Moscow and to London.

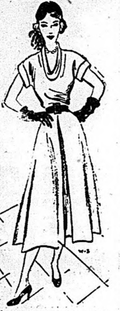
Mr. Wilgress was Canada's first ambassador to Russia. And Mrs. Wilgress, the former Olga Buergin, whose father was a Swiss engineer and whose mother a white Russian, was an ideal companion on the Moscow mission. She speaks Russian fluently.

In London, much of the social responsibility of her husband's position will fall on her. There are court presentations for visiting Canadians, receptions for Commonwealth visitors, and a great deal of entertaining.

The Wilgresses have taken a house in London while the high commissioner's residence is being rebuilt from the ground up, having received a direct bomb hit during the war.

They met when he was Canadian trade commissioner in Moscow in 1919, and were married in Vladivostok. They have two sons and one daughter.

Basic Beauty Sleek Suit



Beige crepe frock with cowled neckline.

By VERA WINSTON

A lucky find is the dress that fits somewhat unobtrusively yet perfectly into almost any daytime scene. Such is the happy faculty of this one. It is a simple beige crepe afternoon frock that takes to accessories beautifully for dressing up or down, or just being itself. A softly cowled neckline and cuffed cap sleeves add soft touches. The skirt is flared with an inverted box pleat in the center front. It is shown here with a dark brown suede belt and accessoriees.

Bouffant Organdie

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Cool costume for the hot dinner hour, or the late day reception in town or country is this bouffant organdie model with its traceries of black embroidery in leaf motif. The leaves detail the big puffed sleeves and accent the scooped neckline; the vest which is a pretty replacement for the more usual jacket is of black taffeta, nipped neatly at the waistline.

Scenic Drive Through P.E. Much Enjoyed

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent last Wednesday by the Prince Edward-Belleville Women's Club, when a Rawson bus was chartered for a trip through Prince Edward County.

Leaving the highway at Moutain View, cemetary the bus passed Roblins Mills, down the old town line through Allisonvile, curving at Burr's and Bowerman's The tall old elms and maples fairly canopied the highway Spots of interest and quaint old memories were recalled by some of the members whose old homesteads were seen.

Entering Wellington from the North, the new arena was passed, the bus coming in at the far west end. Nothing could be loveller than the drive through this quaint old village——so rich in history, with its shady park, and lovely memorial entrance.

Quiet Scene

Attention was directed to the restful tourist homes, cool and shady, with flowers in profusion, well kept lawns and gardens. Here, as well as in Bloomfield, the schools, libraries, and community halls, all portrayed the peaceful, cultured life of a people whose ancestors cleared the land, and built many of the houses.

The little Friends Church was noticed next, and the Quaker burial ground, where lie many of the first Quaker settlers from New England States.

Entering Picton, the way wound toward Cherry Valley; then east to take in the new air station and training centre. Here a gradual incline with a good paved road leads to the highest level, from which vantage point a ten-minute stop permited the enjoyment of the town of Picton, and its picturesque surroundings.

This was climaxed by a 15-minute stop at the Lake on the Mountain, renowned as being the only body of fresh water at such a level, and fed by an underground vein from unknown sources.

Ancient Church

At this site, is situated the little brick church, over 100 years old, and still used for services. Passing down to the ferry, the return scenic drive back to Picton was enjoyed along the winding roadway, bordered with evergreens, wooded resorts, tourists' cabins, fishing grounds, and private summer homes on the rustic shore lines Past Picton Manor, Rickarton Castle Hotel, and the beautiful estate of the late Mr. Ed. Young, K.C.

At the new Picton Tourist Camp, overlooking the harbor, the Prince Edward Boat Club house, and wharves, as the bus turned in. Here a picnic supper was enjoyed beside the quiet waters, dotted with tiny boats and sailing craft. Plenty of green benches and tables added to the comfort of the sight-seers.

Leaving by East Main Street, the return trip led past the little Mary Magdalene Church, the Court House, and county buildings; past the fair grounds with their lovely memorial entrance, past the old historical White Chapel—a monument to Methodism for over 100 years, with its tiny windows, quaint porch, and well-kept lawn.

Then through the rich farming country to Demorestville, and along the high shore line, with the magnificent view of Big Island, Huffs Island, and in the distance, Point Anne, and so on home to Belleville.

It was unanimously conceded that Belleville is "Belle Ville," beautiful city, but across the bay bridge in "Quinte's Isle of Lakes and Bays," lie many of the most beautiful spots in the country.

Pain in the Neck May be Worry

Montreal — (AP) — Some people worry with their necks.

Their neck muscles tighten during periods of anxiety, with a variety of after-effects. These include stiff necks, pains in the neck and headaches. Many persons who are subject to headaches start this trouble by neck tension.

These findings were made at the Allan Memorial Institute of Psychiatry, McGill University, by doctors Robert B. Malmo and Charles Shagass. Most of the studies were on mental patients. but the same tendencies were found in normal people.

When muscles tighten, their electrical qualities change. There is an increase in potential, which means, that the muscles have a higher voltage. The potentials in muscles were read at McGill with electrodes placed on the skin.

The worries were furnished by a hot beam of light, focussed to a narrow point on foreheads. This hot spot was used 12 times in succession, once every minute-and-a-half, for three seconds each shot, except the last, which was only one second.

The first shot was hot enough to hurt. After that they were varied, some not so hot as the first, but they were mixed, so that for the whole 16½ minutes the receivers did not know what was coming next.

The tests showed that not everyone worries with his neck. Other parts of the body may be used for this muscular tightening. One group who were not neck-reactors showed faster heart beats and more rapid breathing.

FOXBORO

Foxboro.—A number of friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. E. W. Tummon on Wednesday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Prewer (nee Marjorie Tummon), who were recently married. A pleasant evening was spent and on behalf of the community the bride and the groom were presented with a coffee table and ottoman.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"Hag-ridden, that's what I am!" Chris said, packing the books, roping the disreputable old suitcase that Fanny had brought home from the Salvage Shop; it had been abandoned there, full of handsome clothes, and she had gratefully annexed it.

They were moving in one tremendous taxi load. Beside their suitcases they had only the blankets Mama Behrmann had given them, the green lamp, the kitchen equipment and china from the "dime," and the books. Their only two bulky pieces of furniture, Fanny's chair — originally priced perhaps at one hundred dollars but bought by Fanny is East Twelfth Street for three— and their table, they had somewhat hysterically transferred to the new quarters by hand, under cover of the darkness of the night before.

This had been Fanny's inspiration. The regular charge for cheapest furniture load was ten dollars; the man said he would take half a load for them for seven. This was preposterous; there had been a dark hour when they had discussed the abandonment of these treasures. Then Fanny had said:

"It's fourteen blocks...awfully far. But if you could...could sort of . . . of push the chair, I'd take the table."

To this Chris's rather slower male mind had not immediately risen. He had looked at her blankly.

"How d'ye mean . . . push?"

"Just . . . just shove it, through the street, I mean. we could wait until tonight," Fanny had said, brightly casual. "That . . . that wouldn't cost anything, and we could take all the rest in a taxi."

"But good heavens, Fan . . . walk with a chair through the streets?"

"Well . . . " she had said temperately.

"I dare you to!" Chris had said, unconvinced. But after a moment he had begun to laugh.

And in the end, stealthily, like thieves, they had manoeuvred the chair downstairs, and while Fanny calmly, calmly, even defiantly, stood watch over it on the sidewalk, he had gone upstairs again for the table, and their odd progress had begun. After two blocks of wheelin gthe great cumbersome shabby thing, Chris with great simplicity had inverted it, and balanced it on his head, and Fanny had instantly followed suit with the table, and they had strode along through the summer night conversing naturally enough under the interested glances of the step-sitters, the moving summer night crowds.

"By gum, Fan, you have no shame!" Chris had said.

Their new home, also on the far East side, consisted of half a floor. The apartment was a "walk-up," and the Thrings were on the top; they climbed three flights to reach it. There was one large room, filling the whole front of the house and facing east across a crowded street, a dark tinny bathroom dating, Fanny said, from the "fibre-chamois dynasty," and a small central kitchen with the Black Hole of Calcutta behind it. The Black Hole had rated as a bedroom once, but some municpall regulation as to windows had destroyed its value along that line, and it was now a store room. The flat was called, on the dingy sign that swung down below in the street, between the delicatessen store and the shoe shop, "a modern three-room apartment, all conveniences." Fanny, however, by the time she found it, had known exactly what to expect as to blackness o fold gas range in the kitchen, absence of ice box, dank forlornness of wallpapering . . . woodwork . . . smells. But she had also seen the unusual size of the front room, its possibilities when a couch was set up and a rug laid. Lighted by the green lamp . . . there was electric light, but its dangling raw bulbs seemed somehow to lessen rather than add to the brighness of the place . . . lighted by the green lamp, furnished with the table and chair and a couch, with the china set set forth on the corner shelves and the books ranged neatly above the black fireplace opening, she had predicted that it would be charming.

The couch and rug and two other chairs were there when they arrived with their taxiload of possessions late in the wet afternoon. Fanny had had to work that morning; she was "on call," like a trained nurse, at the broadcasting company, and this morning "Aunt Sally Lou," who talked about moths and gingerbread and children and company dinners and spare rooms for the "Homeshops Inc." every Thursday, had been ill. So Fanny had been sent Aunt Sally's notes the night before, and felt that she had done rather well in the long hour, introducing her singers, reading her little opening prayers, assuming something of "Aunt Sally Lou's" air of wisdom.

Fanny fairly danced to the Varsi attic in a brief burst of sunshine at three o'clock, to find Chris in his shirt-sleeves, packing furiously. He had the afternoon off; Fanny's play had closed weeks ago; the afternoon, the evening were theirs, and they were both in wild spirits at getting away from Mrs. Varsi's.

"Good-bye, my doves!" Fanny said, at the high open window, looking out into the soft steady rain that throbbed with their pulsing voices. And when they reached the Avenue A apartment her first exclamation was one of delight at finding more doves, walking on the wet roof of the lower house next door. "Look, Chris, lean out here . . . you actually can see the river . . . quite a strip of it. And imagine . . . hot nights, we can be there in a second, right close to home! Chris, imagine this, in New York, for seventeen dollars!"

"It's wonderful when you get up to it. But those broken letter boxes and those smelly dark halls!" Chris was going to say. But he stopped on the first two words. It really was an attractive little domain to have all to themselves. Chris worked steadily, moving in, his hands grimed, his dark hair stuck to his wet forehead, his old trousers marked with dust and plaster and ashes and rain.

They had opened wide the front windows, and the warm wet air came freshly in, laden with the murmur of the street below, and the sound of elevated trains rushing by, and of boat calls on the river. Whenever they passed them Chris and Fanny lingered at the shabby, nicked old sills, and looked out at their view.

Chris went out for a broom, hooks, soap powder, matches. When he came back they screwed the hooks into the wall of the Black Hole and hung all their clothes there. Fanny made rubbish and wrappings into a great bundle, and he carried it downstairs; she aligned the books in their places and set the strip of checked red cloth and the two blue glass candlesticks on the table.

Fanny announced that she was going to try the dark, fearsome tin tub. She gave Chris a marketing list: butter, peaches, ice, one lemon, rolls, some sort of cookies, fish.

"Do it while I'm getting clean, darling; you can scrub afterward. I brought potatoes from the other house . . . two cold boiled potatoes . . . I'll bet it's the first time boiled potatoes ever were moved from one place to the other! And we'll have chowder, with the canned milk and my last onion, and then peaches and iced tea and cookies."

"Oh, Fan, put your hat on and come out and do it with me! It's our first shopping, and it'll be fun!"

Her tired dirty face brightened. It was glorious to have Chris feel this way. He had been apprehensive, timid, uneasy, in the beginning; now the adventure was beginnin gto capture him, and it was good to see his delight in the new home, in the sense that they were going to win through somehow. Crazily, desperately, no one knew how, but they were holding their own.

"My dear husband," said Fanny, "give me a minute and I'm with you."

The minute was hardly enough, although she was ready at the end of it. Her hasty ablutions, her hurried jerking on of a hat and snatching from a suitcase of unmated gloves, left much to be desired. But Chris loved the eager thin face with its aureole of hair that was never neat, and its glowing blue eyes, and rather than being critical, when she was not, he had already reached the point when he was admiringly grateful that Fan sometimes did look charmingly groomed and dressed.

They descended to the street, finding little to say of the halls, but much to admire when they were out in the summer twilight. The rain had stopped for a moment, and the streets were filled with children, babies, men, and and women, surging to and fro over the steaming sidewalks and running gutters in the grateful end of the day.

Fanny shopped expertly from the curb carts. Her method was to put what she wanted into half a sheet of newspaper on the scales, while the merchant was otherwise occupied, and then ask him crisply, "How much, Frank?" — or "Tony" — or "Mr. Kelly." She always got their names from their carts, and she always smiled. The answer invariably amazed Chris. Tony or Frank would estimate with a glance the head of lettuce, the three tomatoes, the lemon, the five peaches, the battered two ears of corn, and answer, "All right . . . you wait on yoursel, lady . . . ten cents."

In the market her meat bill was forty-one cents for two sausages, a small chunk of pot roast, and four strips of bacon.

"Have you a cent, Chris? Or have I to break my five dollars?"

"I haven't, darling. The taximan couldn't break mine."

"We're embarrassed by frozen assets. Wait . . . I have a penny!" Fanny said, stooping, fingering her own knee, producing it.

"If you'll tell me . . ." Chris asked in a horrified undertone, when they reached the street, "if you'll tell me why you keep a penny in the top of your stocking, I'll be obliged to you."

"For a garter button, Chris. Can it be that you don't know that when garters break pennies work to a charm?"

"No," said Chris, "I didn't know it."

"And you a Deke! Whatever do they teach you in college? Look, Chris, we have a darling old church up our street. Aand look at the dock, and the river. This is a sweet street."

"Except that so many people thought of living here too."

"Oh, well, they make it interesting. You know," Fanny said later, when they were climbing their own stairs again, "I'd hate to live in a place like Sutton . . . with nothing left to do in it. Everything cleaned away, everything perfect and expensive and beautiful; I'd feel that I was dead, Chris, and laid away in flowers. Now this . . . this is living . . . this is . . . Oh, my is it a murder, Chris?"

Initial Payment For Oats 61c Bu. And Barley 90c

Ottawa, July 21 (CP) —Prairie farmers will receive initial payments of 61½ cents a bushel for oats and 90 cents a bushel for barley when the Canadian Wheat Board takes over marketing of these two feed grains at the end of the month.

Trade Minister Howe, acting head of the government while Prime Minister St. Laurent vacations in New Brunswick, made the announcement at a news conference Wednesday.

The prices are for No. 1 feed grains. Out of these prices, farmers must pay delivery charges to Port Arthur or Fort William, plus 1½ cents a bushel for oats and three cents for barley to cover the operating expenses of the marketing pool at the lakehead.

They come into effect August 1, the start of the 1949-50 crop year.

The announcement was the final step of a steady march toward complete government handling of coarse grains. It ended the Winnipeg Grain Exchange's functions as a price-fixing mechanism as far as the producers of these grains are concerned.

Distribution of Grains

But Mr. Howe's announcement said the Wheat Board intends to use "existing facilities for the distribution of these grains".

That, apparently, left the door open for continued buying and selling between grain distributors and consumers. And there was nothing in the announcement to indicate they won't be able to use grain exchange facilities.

The grain exchange will continue to deal in rye and flax.

The government first announced June 1 that the Wheat Board would take over all marketing of coarse grains.

During the war, coarse grains were controlled. The controls were lifted in the middle of the 1946 crop year after most farmers had sold their crops.

Demands by farm organizations for Wheat Board marketing of coarse grains followed the decontrol and parliament passed legislation in 1948 permitting the Wheat Board to buy the grains once the three Prairie Legislatures passed complementary legislation.

Saskatchewan put through an act immediately, with Alberta and Manitooba following suit this year.

Daylight Thieves Carry off Safe Containing $1,300

Peterborough, July 21 (CP).—A safe containing $1,300 cash was stolen from a downtown Hollywood Cafe here Wednesday in a daylight robbery.

When the staff returned to the cafe after a two hour absence they found the back door had been jimmied and the 200-pound safe missing.

McCormick Buys Washington Paper

Chicago, July 21—(AP)—Purchase of the Washington Times-Herald by the Chicago Tribune was announced Wednesday night by the Tribune's editor and publisher, Col. Robert R. McCormick.

McCormick's two-sentence announcement said:

"The Chicago Tribune bought The Washington Times-Herald today. The present management will be continued."

No further details were given.

The Times-Herald was published by the late Mrs. Eleanor M. (Cissy) Patterson until her death of heart disease July 24, 1948. She willed the paper to seven of its executives.

Mrs. Patterson, a member of a distinguished newspaper family, was a cousin of Col. McCormick.

Mrs. Patterson became editor of The Washington Herald, then owned by William Randolph Hearst, in 1920. Later she leased the Herald and the Times, also owned by Hearst, with an option to buy both papers.

She exercised the option Jan. 1, 1939, then consolidated the two papers into The Washington Times-Herald, the country's first round-the-clock newspaper.

DROWNS IN ABOUT FOUR FEET WATER

Pelee Island, July 21 — (CP) — George Joanisse, 44, a Pelee Island farmer, was drowned in Lake Erie Wednesday night a short distance from his home.

Paul Grondin of Windsor, said Joanisse went under in about four feet of water. Grondin said he was unable to give help. The body was recovered.

Ottawa Mulligans Do Not Know Potsdam Mulligan

Ottawa, July 21—(CP) — The myrterious Mulligan reported to have left Mrs. Grace McGuire of Belleville $1,250,000 doesn't live here.

There are dozens of Mulligans in the capital. But none of them admit owning $1,250,000.

They don't even know Mrs. McGuire.

This is how it got started.

1. Mrs McGuire said the money was left her by a wealthy uncle. But she wouldn't identify him.

2. Her brother, Felix Lalonde of Toronto, said—and Mrs. McGuire denied—the uncle is Robert James Mulligan of Potsdam, N.Y.

3. The closest thing to a Robert James Mulligan of Potsdam is James L. Mulligan of Potsdam who said he wasn't the man. He said he has three brothers in Ottawa but he didn't think it was one of them, either.

So—just in case he was wrong —reporters went looking for Mr. Mulligan's brothers and interviewed all the Mulligans in the Ottawa telephone directory.

It wasn't one of them. In fact, none of them know Mr. Mulligan. Mr. Mulligan of Potsdam, that is.

Czech Communists Hurl Taunt at Church

Prague, July 21 (AP).—Czech communists claimed today that the Pope's excommunication decree against Catholic communists was a failure—"an atomic bomb that failed to go off".

This taunt was hurled by the official party organ, Rude Pravo.

It followed threats by government spokesmen to the country's Roman Catholic bishops and priests that retaliatory action, including prosecution for treason, would be taken against any church official who tried to apply the Vatican decree in Czechoslovakia.

A Vatican City source said Saturday that excommunication needs no enforcement but "acts upon the guilty in the secret of the conscience and is irremediably automatic whenever a person is guilty in the sense contemplated by the decree of the Holy Office".

Oshawa Begins Removal of Tracks

Oshawa, July 21—(CP)—Oshawa city council said today that work has started on removing street car tracks on Simcoe Street North. The job, costing an estimated $34,411, will be completed in about three weeks. The tracks aro those formerly used by Oshawa street cars before a bus service was installed.

MINE SHARES STOLEN

Montreal, July 21 — (CP) — Shares in mines in Quebec and Ontario valued at $20,816 were stolen from an unlocked station wagon of the J. R. Timmins and Company Wednesday night.

Gabriel Sauriol, office manager of the company, declined comment today but a police source said the station wagon had been parked, prior to delivering the shares to the post office.

CYCLONE HITS QUEBEC TOWN

Pre-inaugural Flight of 20,000 Miles Completed

Vancouver, July 21 (CP) — Completing the first historic round trip to the Canadian Pacific Air Lines news trans-Pacific route to Australia, the Empress of Sydney Canadair plane, landed here early today.

It carried a party of 36 airlines, communications and government officials as well as newspapermen. And there was an extra passenger on the way back: Gerry Adams, mayor of the community of Latoka, in the Fiji Islands.

Since the Empress left here, ten days ago, it has covered nearly 20,000 air miles of the special pre-inaugural flight over the route which now is covered by a regular fortnightly passenger service between Canada and Australia. The first scheduled passenger flight left here July 13 and is scheduled to complete its trip next Sunday.

Senator James A. McKinnon, of Edmonton, one of the passengers on the special flight, said here today the airline has inaugurated a service "which is increasing Canada's position in the field of international aviation." It had "formed a definite link between the people of two great dominions and further strengthened the ties of the British Commonwealth as a whole."

Prize Hereford Herd Will be Auctioned

Peterboro, July 21 (CP) — Believed to be one of the largest private auctions of purebred stock in Canadian history, 165 horned and polled Hereford cattle will be sold September 7 at Old Orchard Farms, two miles east of here.

The two types of cattle, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Jr., are composed of sires, bulls, calves, yearlings and cows.

The horned Herefords swept the breed classes at the first Royal Winter Show in Toronto after the Second World War and was considered one of the outstanding herds in Canada.

The polled herd includes the sire C.M.R. Advance Domino, which was selected as the best Hereford of its type in North America to supply semen for use in England.

SEARCH FOR GIRL WHO ESCAPED OFFICER

Toronto, July 21 (CP) — Police are searching for 18-year-old Marlyne McDermid, who escaped from a Salvation Army officer at York County Probation office Wednesday night.

This was her second escape from custody in the last few days.

When Major Hobbs arrived at the office he found the probation officers had left. He left the room to make a telephone call and the girl escaped through an office window.

STRANDED AS ONE OF CREW REFUSES TO FLY

London, July 21 — (AP) — A United States-bound American overseas airways Constellation and its 33 passengers were stranded at London airport today when one of the crew refused to make the flight.

The company's public relations officer here said the radio operator balked at going aboard the plane. The airline spokesman said he assumed there was a labor dispute but he did not know the details.

SASKATCHEWAN'S PREMIER

Head of the only C.C.F. government in Canada is Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan. A former Baptist minister in Weyburn, Sask., he won a Commons seat in 1935 and held it until he resigned in 1944 to take over leadership of the C.C.F. in its successful campaign to unseat Saskatchewan's Liberal government headed by Premier W. J. Patterson.—(CP Photo.)

WOMEN SHOULDER ARMS IN PACIFIC STRIKE

A group of women, calling themselves broom brigadiers, are shown as they marched on Governor Stainback's office at Iolani Palace in Honolulu, asking that he take more positive action to end the longshoremen's waterfront strike. Meanwhile, U. S. federal mediators in Washington scheduled a negotiating conference to attempt settlement of the prolonged Hawaiian dock strike, which has crippled the island's economy.—Central Press Canadian.

Men Gathering Arctic Weather Reports Find Job Unexciting

Saint John, N.B., July 21 (CP). —Gathering weather information in Canada's Arctic waters often gets monotonous for the 111 men and officers aboard Canada's weather ship St. Stephen, now here for her annual refit.

During 21-day stretches at lonely Station Baker — halfway between Greenland and Labrador— the men take pictures, crochet or make fishing rods to use when they get back to their Halifax base.

George Harris of Toronto, chief meteorological officer and one of the Department of Transport officers aboard, and Sub-Lt. W. M. LaNazue of Calgary sum it up this way: "The whole thing is routine, just like any other job."

But there is little time for boredom on winter trips to and from Station Baker. Lieut. D. K. Gamblin of Saint John, navigating officer, has a tough time to keep the ship dodging dangerous bergs in the iceberg-infested seas. The crew are kept busy chopping ice from the decks and rigging of the 1,990-ton frigate.

Stationed just outside the Arctic Circle, the ship gathers meteorological information within an area of 10 miles in Davis Strait chiefly for use by trans-Atlantic planes.

Since it was commissioned Sept. 28, 1947, St. Stephen has been almost continually at Station Baker and its Halifax base or plying between the two points. A round trip takes about 30 to 36 days and depends on ice conditions.

Trio Terrorized Jewelers, Drivers, Get Long Terms

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — Three youths, one 16-years-old, who terrorized taxi drivers and jewelry store owners by robbing them while armed, were sentenced to penitentiary terms today by Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow.

Fred Wilson, 23, who participated in seven armed robberies of jewelry stores and of five cab drivers was sentenced to eight years concurrent on each charge.

Terrence Forsythe, 16, who admitted taking part in the two jewelry store robberies and of two of the taxi drivers, was sentenced to six years concurrent on each charge, and Morris Carpenter, 25, who accompanied the others on two of the taxi stick-ups was also given six years.

Say Plot Laid For Communism Among Refugees

Gaza, Egyptian-occupied Palestine, July 21 (AP). — Communist captives of the Egyptian army said today three Israeli army officers secretly direct a tightly-organized campaign to spread Communism among the 216,000 ragged Arab refugees in this Biblical area.

Intelligence officers said leaders of Palestine Arab Communists have been called across the frontier into Israeli territory 14 times since April for general meetings with the three men described as Israeli officers.

A 23-year-old Bedouin captive said the general secretary of the Israeli Communist party declared at one such meeting the Israeli Communists would overthrow the present government of Israel within three years and set up a Soviet state.

Captured papers and pamphlets—declared to have originated in Israel—included "Communist strategy and tactics" and a "political handbook".

Another Search For Franklin's Body Under Way

Victoria, B.C., July 21 — (CP) —Another search for the body of Sir John Franklin, British Arctic explorer who disappeared in 1845 while trying to find the Northwest Passage, will get under way Friday.

Conducting the latest attempt will be Sub- Inspector Henry A. Larsen of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, skipper of the R.C.M.P. Arctic patrol vessel St. Roch, and S. L. Burton, his chief engineer.

Franklin commanded two ships, Erebus and Terror, when he left England in May, 1845. He was last seen two months later at the entrance to Lancaster Sound, at the northern tip of Baffin Island.

From 1849 onward, a series of expeditions was sent in search, exploring thousands of miles of the Arctic.

First traces were found in August, 1851, at Franklin's winter base at Beechey Island.

In 1859, skeletons were found on King William's Island.

Conciliation Move In London Strike Raises Hopes

15,000 Stevedores are Idle 10,000 Servicemen at Work

(By MICHAEL O'MARA)
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 21—(CP)—Conciliation moves in London's vast port tie-up went forward today with a hope expressed in several quarters that striking stevadores might soon be back on the job.

Meanwhile, although conflicting rumors still circulated in political quarters there was nothing definite to indicate that Lord Ammon would resign his chairmanship of the National Dock Labor Board following his clash Wednesday with the Labor Ministry regarding the best method of getting the men to return.

Ammon told reporters today: "the best thing now is to hope all will go smoothly and men will return to work for the good of our country. I am hoping some of them will take that decision today."

Dockers Vote

At a meeting of workers employed at the West India docks, the strikers voted by what was said to be a margin of 1,000 to 3 to return to work, but they decided not to act on the resolution pending Friday's scheduled meeting of all strikers.

Thus the Dock Labor Board's 7:45 A.M. deadline for this morning which was mentioned in the Tuesday night statment passed without any major break in the strike.

Dockers and Lightermen's Unions joint executives met again and were addressed by Harry Davis, President of the Canadian Seamen's Union.

The British dockers started the tie-up to support the C.S.U. in its world-wide strike against Canadian ship owners.

After the meeting, Davis issued a statement urging "appropriate bodies in London" to meet C.S.U. leaders here to discuss their proposals "for termination of the dispute as early as possible."

Davis told reporters: "we are hoping to see Canadian shipping companies in London to place our proposals before them. We are going to do all we can to settle this here in London."

Steamships Attitude

Spokesmen for the Canadian Pacific Steamships—owners of the Beaverbrae, one of two Canadian ships here over which the dispute arose—said any approach on the part of the strikers would have to be made through the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The Federation is an organization of Canadian deep-sea ship owners.

More than 10,000 service men were at work today loading and unloading ships in port. About 15,000 stevedores are idle.

Lord Ammon's clash with the government came when he issued an ultimatum Tuesday that the dockers must be back at work this morning or face forfeit of the National Dock Labor scheme which guarantees the longshoremen regular contract employment instead of irregular work.

Police Believe They Know Car Assailants Used

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) —City detectives said today they think they have established the type of car used by two men when they kidnapped and raped a 30-year-old Toronto office girl in suburban North York last Sunday.

Police said if the type proves correct a squad of detectives will be assigned to trace all owners of the type of car in the Toronto area. They said investigation makes it fairly certain the car was not stolen.

Police describe the rape as one of the worst criminal assaults in the city's history. A reward of $500 has been posted for the arrest of the two men.

Two Miners Killed In Rock Fall

Timmins, July 21 — (CP) — Two miners died under a 30-ton fall of loose rock 2,335 feet underground at the McIntyre mine at Schumacher during the night shift Wednesday night. The victims were L. J. Soucie, 22, of Timmins, and Frank Krajacich, 41, of McDonald Hill. A third man, Charles Parker of Timmins escaped injuries. The three men were mucking in a drift when the loose fell off the wall, killing two, it was Soucie's first shift after returning from his holidays.

Moscow Paper Says It Was Bluff

London, July 21—(AP)— The Moscow Weekly News Times says today indignantly that "American warmongers and their press" were only bluffing when they said in 1947 they had lots of atomic bombs.

The magazine, quoted by Moscow radio, said "now it becomes clear that that was blackmail and bluff."

The article quoted a recent Senate speech by Senator Brian McMahon (Dem. Conn.) as saying the United States had "not a single atom bomb in 1937."

UNKNOWN MAN FOUND DEAD ON RIVER BANK

St. Thomas, July 21 — (CP)— Body of an unidentified man, with fishing rod in his hand, was found on bank of Little Otter Creek east of Port Burwell.

Police said there is no clue as to the man's identity of cause of death.

Rev. E.M. Caldwell Speaks on "Parents Attitude to Children"

Shannonville — At the Sunday evening services in Holy Trinity Anglican Church, the rector, Rev. E. M. Caldwell, chose his text from Jeremiah and spoke on the attitude of parents to children in their rearing. "My children have become like the ostrich in the wilderness."

He also referred to the Book of Job which spoke of the cruelty, and neglect of the ostrich as regards to its young. Mr. Caldwell stressed the cruelty of many present day parents,—The cruelty of neglect. Too busy to have much to do with their children. They have no time to take them to Sunday School and Church. Time merely for money and a name in the world.

Mr. Caldwell also mentioned the fact that only one ninth of Ontario children attend a Sunday School. He mentioned that parents look well after all the necessities of the child's life except as a gift of God, to be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

He expressed little surprise at the number of youthful criminals in the country, as parents are neglecting to bring up their families in the fear and reverence of God.

Jesus laid value on a child. A parent will have nothing to regret if child is trained in the right way, stated the speaker.

Mr. Caldwell took this opportunity of expressing his thanks to the men who had given their time in cleaning up the church yard. He mentioned the new roof and steeple that had recently been completed and that donations to this expense would be appreciated.

The choir was in attendance.

BOY SHOOTS DAD, DAD SAVES BOY

Following a rampage during which 15-year-old Clyde Huston, Jr. (on ground), armed with a rifle and butcher knife, held off a score of policemen in Columbus, Ohio, the youth is shown unconscious with his father standing over him (second from left). Following an argument with his mother and 11-year-old brother, David, the boy took possession of the house, telling his mother and brother, who were outside the house, that he would shoot anyone who attempted to enter the house. When the elder Huston, a mailman, returned home from work he calmly walked into the house as the boy shot five times, gashing his father's arm. He then fled into an alley where he was cornered by police. Fearful that the boy would be shot, the elder Huston again advanced on him, knocked the gun from his hands and threw him to the ground, knocking him unconscious.—Central Press Canadian.

Doby's 'Skull', Dimaggio's Bat Place Temporary 'Cooler' on Tribe's Drive for Top Slot

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Larry Doby's "skull" and Joe Dimaggio's hitting have put the cooler on Cleveland's pennant drive—at least temporarily.

Doby drew a fine if an undisclosed amount Wednesday night after he was thrown out, trying to steal home with the bases loaded and nobody out in the eighth inning. Doby's Cleveland mates trailed the American League-leading New York Yankees, 7-3 at the time. That turned out to be the final score.

Doby broke for the plate as Lefty Joe Page walked back toward the resin bag. Page whirled and threw to catcher Yogi Berra who tagged Doby as he dove head first across the plate. Page fanned Jim Hegan and made pinch-hitter Ken Keltner ground to Bobby Brown.

After the game Boudreau said he fined Doby "not only on that attempt to steal home" but because he had taken several unnecessary changes lately.

"This should make him more careful," said Lou.

Dimaggio drove in three runs with a triple and homer and scored twice as the Yanks again stretched their lead to 4 1-2 games.

The biggest night crowd of the major league season —75,340— saw the game. Bobby Feller, driven from the hill in the third inning, was the loser.

Yanks Gain

The Yanks also gained on Boston Red Sox who dropped 8 1-2 games behind the leader by mowing to Chicago White Sox, 8-7. Boston overcame a 6-0 Chicago lead and finally tied the score at 7-7 on Ted Williams' 22nd homer with two on in the ninth. The White Sox came back on a triple by George Metkovich, two intentional passes and Eddie Malone's outfield fly, scoring Metkovich.

Detroit pushed over three runs in the eighth to shade Washington, 6-5. Johnny Lipon's squeeze bunt single scored Hoot Evers with the winning run. Evers led the attack with three singles.

Brooklyn lost a full game of its advantage in the National. St. Louis Cardinals clipped Brooklyn's margin to 2 1-2 game by a 10-inning night game decision over Boston Braves, 6-4, after the Dodgers lost an afternoon 8-6 verdict to the onrushing Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ralph Kiner lowered the boom on the Brooks, driving in five runs with home runs No. 25 and 26.

Hank Sauer drove in all the Chicago Cubs runs with two homers and a triple in their 11-inning 4-3 win over the Phillies.

New York Giants set a major-league consecutive-inning scoring record while whipping Cincinnati 5-1. By scoring in a triple in their 11-inning 4-3 win over the Phillies. Dutch Leonard went all the way to defeat his old Phil mates on a seven-hitter, his fourth victory.

New York Giants set a major-league consecutive-inning scoring record while whipping Cincinnati, 5-1 By scoring in each of the first three innings, they extended their streak to 14 innings. The old record was 12, set by the Giants in 1923.

Sid Gordon, who started the streak with his 18th homer ended it with his 19th off Ken Raffensberger. Dave Koslo pitched a neat seven-hitter for his sixth win.

Leafs Defeat Wings 2-1 in Overtime Game

(By The Associated Press)

Brooklyn Dodgers, who have one of the best shortstops in baseball in Pee Wee Reese, also have one of the top short fielders in the minors in Bobby Morgan.

Morgan, because of Reese's presence, tried to stick with the Dodgers this spring as a third baseman, but it was no soap. The Brooks sent him back to their Montreal farm club in the International League and Bobby is sparking the Royals' bid to take over the top rung from Buffalo Bisons.

The heir-apparent to Reese's post is banging away at a .348 gait. He has cracked out 116 hits in 333 trips and driven home 80 runs. Among his blows are 10 home runs and 26 doubles.

Morgan, batting in third slot, belted out six hits in 10 trips to the plate Wednesday night as the Royals took the Bisons to the cleaners twice, 10-5 and 8-5, before 14,191 fans, largest Buffalo night crowd of the season.

The double defeat of the Bisons moved the Royals from third to second place, five games behind the Bisons. Rochester Red Wings dropped to third place as a result of their 2-1, 12-innings loss to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Morgan shared batting honors with Sam Jethroe in the opener. Jethroe belted a homer, double and single and sent home three runs to extend his batting streak to 20 games. He was blanked in the night cap.

The Royals pounded Bob Hoop- and two relief pitchers for 14 hits while Dan Bankhead and Clarence Podielan restricted the Bisons to seven hits. The loss was Hooper's first against 11 victories and the triumph Bankhead's tenth against four setbacks.

Glynn Smites Triple

Clyde King picked up his 13th victory in the finale but the crfty righthander failed to finish. He was shelled out during a five-run eighth inning rally and Johnny Van Cuye finished up. Morgan drove home a pair of runs with his 10th homer in the seventh inning.

Bill Glynn tripled home Chet Laabs with the payoff run in Toronto's triumph over the Wings before 13,035 fans at Rochester. The blow was Glynn's third of the game.

Russ Derry sent the game into overtime when he slammed his 25th homer in the ninth inning off Toronto starter Max Peterson, Stolen bases: Dillinger, St. Wings out twice. The homer enabled Derry to break his tie for the league leadership with Toronto's Ed Sanicki.

Baltimore Orioles crushed Jersey City Giants 11-4 and moved to within two percentage points of the sixth-place Syracuse Chiefs. The Chiefs dropped a 9-7 game to the last-place Newark Bears.

Baltimore wrapped up the decision with a six-run blast in the fifth inning that was featured by Ken Wood's bases-loaded homer.

Buddy Heslet and Jim Dyck drove home three runs apiece to spark the Bears to victory. Dyck and teammate Ed Little homered for Newark while Bob Usher whacked a three-run homer for Syracuse in the ninth off winning pitcher Frank Lamanna.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Brockville Memos nursing third place in the Central Ontario Baseball League will be the guests of the cellar-dwelling Batawa Shoemen at Exhibition Grounds tonight. Brockville took the Men 'o Easton into camp to the tune of 11-2 at their last meeting in Brockville and the Shoemen are still rankling under that 8-5 defeat handed them by the Petes a few day ago. Brockville holds a slim lead over the Batawans who are of the opinion they're due for that win column. Don't know who Manager Easton will start but in all probability it will be Gordy Muffitt. And incidentally this lad Noble who baseballs for the Memos is a son of the former famous professional hockey star Reg. Noble. Game gets under way at 8.30.

They're pulling the big ones out of West Lake and other Prince Edward County waters these balmy summer days. A few days ago Emil Hoffman, Buffalo Isaac Walton yanked a 24½ pound musky out of the lake that washes the sandy beaches of Wellington and the other day H. A. Galbraith extracted a 22½ pound beauty from the same pond. A short time ago Albert Cooper, Gleora, found an 88 pound sturgeon reclining in his nets off Indian Point while at Baggott's Bay Stan. Williams hooked a 36-pound carp and had to tow it ashore before it would murmur a piscatorial uncle. Not bad podner for the county where men draw from the hip and the gals help 'em drink it.

Looked like a case of the old eternal triangle on Wellington's sandy beach where we were disporting ourselves in an abbreviated bathing suit last Sunday afternoon. Mebbe it was just clean fun. Anyway the smart-looking blonde, the most of her outside the nifty nylon swim-suit was the centre of attraction for a couple of husky swains, one of whom apparently took objection to the other Golden Boy's presence. The svelte blonde ogled first one, then t'other, and even our temperature foamed when we were caught in the path of one of those blue-orbed glances.

The thing was climaxed with one of the hide-browns walking away in a huff, and his "pal" laying a neat but un-damaging drop-kick on the south side of his lap.

"Gawgee, you shouldn't have done that" purred the golden-haired "kitten". We couldn't catch the disgruntled swain's reply.

It may have been a new beach game. Whatever it was the final score was one run, two hits, and one left on base.

Don Lee, secretary of the Commercial Softball League. received a letter from a softball fan the other day bearing the fan's suggestion of an all-star team for the loop. The league executive, somewhat decided to give the fans a chance to match wits with the "experts".

They decided to draw up a first and second all-star team on the basis of suggestions from competent observers. The team's makeup will be kept secret until the play-offs are well under way. Meanwhile anyone interested in picking an all star team can submit their selections to anyone on the league executive. The person coming closest to the "experts' choice will be suitably rewarded with a five dollar bill.

The list handed in to date reads as follows:
Catcher, Alf Rowbotham, Stwart Warner; Pitcher, Carson, Northern Electric; First Base, Downing, Corbys; Second Base Henn, Northern Electric; Third Base, Ronsky, Nationals; Short Stop, Spafford, Houstons; Left Field, Hunter, Corbys; Centre Field, Ed Donovan, Provincial Engineers; Right Field, Art Empy, Shell Oil.

The two teams will then play a benefit game for the filling of the league coffers, 'tis hoped.

With the British Empire title at stake when Fred Atkins, the champion, and Whipper Billy Watson, the contender, meet at the Memorial Arena on Friday night, one of the hardest-fought and most spectacular matches seen in a long time is anticipated.

The rugged, 250-pound Atkins will have an edge in the weight department over the 235-pound Watson, but Whipper has something else to compensate for this deficit in poundage—namely, his blazing speed.

Watson is probably the fastest wrestler in the game and uses this terrific asset both defensively and offensively. As a tactic of defence, Whip capitalizes on his fast moves to escape holds and dangerous situations that arise in a match. As a method of attack, he flashes into position to unleash his smashing flying tackles, drop kicks, etc.

* * *

An attractive semi-final will see Sky-Hi Lee propelling his gigantic frame in the direction of Dr. Ed Meske, the clutching chiropractor from Ohio. Pat Flanagan and Tom Rice will roar into action in the first bout.

Picton Hands Kiwanis Third Straight Loss

Behind the suberb six-hit pitching of two Picton hurlers the Kiwanis Juniors went down to their third straight loss this year at the hands of the Athletics in Picton last night. The score was 7-3.

Semark started on the mound for the Juniors but was hit hard and often and had to be yanked in favor of Wright in the third.

Wright pitched well and deserved a better fate.

The Kiwanis as usual wereguilty of some sloppy fielding, comitting seven errors, which cost them the game.

Soules led the Juniors at bat with two hits and three times at bat. with Semark getting a double.

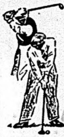
Better Golf

By Sam Snead



In the picture at the left, our player's downswing is started by a coordinated movement in which the dropping of the raised left heel starts the hips rotating toward the hole at the same time that your straight left arm starts the pull-down from the top. That is perhaps the ideal way to start the downswing for most players but if you have a tendency to be late with the clubhead at impact, then you would do well to think of this action as starting with the down-pull of the hands guided by the straight left arm. And, above all, remember that you start down slowly. There should be an almost imperceptible pause at the top of the backswing; but definitely a pause. And as you swing down, the weight transfers to the left leg, as shown in the picture, from the right and the left shoulder starts rotating upward, so that at impact your left arm and club-shaft form a straight line to the ball as pictured. Notice that the player's weight at impact is forward and that is the place all good players keep their weight, for it provides the leverage needed to hit down and through to the ball. And, as a parting thought—be firm with that left hand at the top of the backswing. Don't let those fingers open.—(Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.).

J. L. Armstrong, Esq.,
Specialist, Ottawa, Ont.
Dear Sir:
For some time past it has been my intention to write you in appreciation of what your appliance has done for me.
Ruptured in early childhood, cause unknown, the hernia eventually descended into the scrotum, and at times caused me considerable inconvenience, pain and anxiety, in latter years greatly interfering with my work. Upon reaching manhood I wore trusses for several years but they could not hold my rupture. Your patented appliance being highly recommended, I had you adjust one. It fitted perfectly, held securely and was very comfortable to wear. IT CAUSED A COMPLETE CURE OF THAT LONG-STANDING RUPTURE IN LESS THAN SEVEN MONTHS. I have not worn it or any other support for over 20 years now and there is not any sign of rupture whatever. As I was ruptured for over 25 years, one can readily appreciate what a cure has meant to me. I am now 55 years of age, still actively engaged in farming.
I do strongly recommend your patented appliance to any who are ruptured. I know of others who have worn it with entire satisfaction. You may use this letter if you wish to.
Yours faithfully,

Italian Ace Withdraws From Harmsworth Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Bruce Humber, of Victoria, 34-year-old coach of Canada's track team for the British Empire Games at Auckland, doesn't figure his charges will have any trouble with New Zealand's grass tracks.

The change to grass from the cinders they've been used to, he said at Victoria in an interview, "won't be any disadvantage.... except that times will be a little slower. But it will be the same for everyone."

Humber has had plenty of experience with grass tracks in Victoria "and I've found they're fine. As a matter of fact, they're easier on the feet than cinder tracks."

Humber, who has been around the track sport since 1927 and has several spring records to his credit, is pleased with the selection of the Empire Games Committee.

"I feel the officials did a fine job in selecting the team, representing as it does almost every part of Canada. And I feel sure this team will uphold Canada's good record in British Empire competition."

Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday recalled infielder Mike Goliat from Toronto Maple Leafs and sent pitcher Jocko Thompson and second baseman Ralph Caballero to the Interiational League club.

Goliat, who is hitting .293 and has batted in 40 runs, is expected to make his debut with the Phillies at first base against Cincinnati Saturday.

Thompson was sent to the Leafs on a 24-hour recall basis. Caballero to the International League League club outright.

Achille Castoldi, Italian speedboat ace, will not compete in the Harmsworth trophy race at Detroit July 29-30, he said Wednesday at Milan, Italy.

Castoldi told reporters he has not been able to get his boat, the San Ambrogio II, in shape since the transmission was damaged during a trial run here some time ago.

At Exeter, Ont., that rarity in harness racing, a dead heat, occurred Wednesday in the co-featured 2.117 class of a program witnessed by more than 300 fans. A commotion arose among holders of tickets on the winning horses when the bookmaker told them they were entitled only to their money back.

A near-riot was prevented when the Exeter Turf Club executive made a quick decision to call off all bets on the race.

A pair of fleet standard-breds—Amber Gratton owned by Thos. Yearley of Crediton, and Silver Peter from barn of Eric McIlroy at Grand Bend—raced down the stretch to put their noses on the wire simultaneously.

The Canadian professional tennis championships, scheduled for July 25-29, have been postponed until September, it was announced at Quebec Wednesday.

Officials of the Civil Employees' Tennis Club, sponsors of the tourney, said the meet was postponed because many prospective entrants said they had other commitments next week.

New dates have not yet been fixed.

The second - place Mimico Mountaineers Wednesday night edged out the leading Brampton Excelsiors 20-18 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game at Mimico.

HE'S THE BOSS

Bruce Humber, Victoria-born athlete, has been named coach of the Canadian track team for the British Empire Games at Auckland, N.Z. in February. A sprinter at the 1936 Olympics, he reached the semi-finals in both the 100 and 200 metres. While attending the University of Washington in 1935, Humber was clocked in 9.6 seconds for the 100-yard dash and 20.8 in the 200-yard event — both university records that still stand. Now a furniture dealer in Victoria, Humber is coach of the Y.M.C.A. track team there.—(CP Photo.)

Aussie Tennis Players Favored To Win Round

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 21 (CP)—Cloaked in the worn mantles of underdogs, Canada's Davis Cuppers today meet the Australians in first-round singles of the North American zone tie. The invaders are confident . . and are odds . . on favorites to win five matches to none.

Actually, the Canadians bid fair to take honors at least the best-dressed team. They will wear the new look in tennis togs . . all whites . . including tailor-made shirts and shorts, the latter two inches above the knee.

But it will take more than style in clothes to upset the Aussies. After all they have just come from Wimbledon, England, where they cut quite a figure in actual competition.

Assigned starters' roles for Wednesday for Canada were Montreal's Brendan Macken and Henri Rochon, veterans of three previous cup-tie series. Macken meets Billy Sidwell in the first match, while Rochon goes against Frank Sedgman, Australian singles champion, in the second.

Jack Bromwich, the Aussie's lanky 30-year-old playing captain, and Canada's other team members, Walter Stohlberg and Lorne Main of Vancouver, will view the matches from the sidelines along with a sell-out crowd of 2,500. All three are expected to see action later on.

The Australian trio are 3-1 choices in light betting to win the tie without the loss of a match The betting is even money that they won't drop a set.

But the Canadians are far from gloomy . . or ready to roll over and play dead. They feel they will be far from disgraced losing to a squad rated a good chance this year of recapturing the cup they lost to the U. S. in 1946.

Record Field Enters Junior Tennis Tourney

Ottawa, July 221 (CP)—Canadian tennis history will be made here next week when more than 150 stars of the future fight it out in the biggest-ever Canadian Junior Tennis Championships.

Young court aces from six provinces . . all but Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland . . will battle in 10 events over the 15 clay courts of the suburban Rideau Club.

There'll be a new champion in at least one class . . Junior Men's singles. Vancouver's Lorne Main, champion for the last three years, has graduated from junior ranks to the Dominion's Davis Cup squad, now meeting the Australian team in Montreal.

Pat Lowe of Ottawa will be on her home courts to defend the Junior Women's title she's held since 1947. This year she'll get competition from her younger sister, Diana, who now is too old to defend the Girls singles title she won last year.

Junior entries must be under 18 at the first of this year; boys and girls entries must be under 15.

Ottawa entries will start their matches Saturday, with visitors taking to the courts Monday. Officials hope to wind the junior men's singles up by Thursday so the new champion can get to Kalamazoo, Mich., in time to compete in the United States junior championships.

Official entries closed last night but the complete list of entries has not yet been compiled. But entries are in from Vancouver, Halifax, Fredericton, Montreal, Toronto, Cornwall, Kingston Hamilton, Sherbrooke and Quebec.

Edmonton, July 21 (CP).—The color in exhibition baseball, like a lot of other sports, seems to be disappearing.

Most of that color has been provided in the past, and to a limited degree at present, by touring Negro baseball teams which came from United States to dazzle the prairie crowds with their clowning and artistry.

The Negro boys were a boon to baseball in the smaller cities and towns which were not linked up with top-flight leagues and needed clever and colorful opposition in exhibition tilts to keep the game alive.

Invariably, the touring teams pulled the game out of the fire in the ninth after trailing the home town favorites throughout. The Negro boys were accused by many of toying with the home-towners until a Hollywood climax was opportune. It seemed that way, but the fans still loved it.

Not Anymore

But times have changed. Many of the touring Negro teams aren't so colorful. In fact, some of them can't even win a ball game. The attendance is dropping off.

Don (Lethbridge Herald) Pilling contends that "touring Negro baseball clubs seem to be dying a slow death, at least as far as southern Alberta cities and a few other points in the west are concerned."

'Most travelling teams, says Don, are not worth the price of a bus ticket to watch. They are not full of the old chatter and spirit that was the trade mark of clubs that used to come into Lethbridge a few years back. Nowadays players merely go through the motions and seem lifeless.

There's a Reason

The Lethbridge scribe believes the clubs do too much travelling, with the result that when they take the field they are dead tired and couldn't put on a decent show if they were all diMaggios and Musials. They're never in condition to give the fans their money's worth.

Pilling takes as an example the St. Louis Black Cardinals who recently motored 700 miles — all night and all day—to arrive in Lethbridge for game time.

Says Don: "The cheers are becoming weaker and weaker. Unless the Negro clubs wise up, the only ones who will be in the park will be the bat boy and the scorekeepers."

Boileau Scores 4th Round TKO Over Bud Henry

Hamilton, July 21 (CP)—Gerry Boileau of Kitchener scored a fourth-round technical knockout Wednesday night to decision Bud Henry of Oshawa in the 130-pound semi-final bout of an amateur boxing show. Boileau had Henry down for a nine-count in the third round.

In the main event, Leo Berluzzi of Hamilton took a five-round decision over Lou Poirier of Niagara Falls.

Other results:

145 pounds — Bud Philpher Oshawa, scored a T. K. O. over Nick Poppa, Hamilton, at .45 of the fifth round.

122 pounds — Leon Savelli, Hamilton, knocked out Denny Williams. Oshawa, at 1.05 of the second round.

147 pounds — Tommy Reese, Niagara Falls, won a five-round decision over Don Oats, London, Ont.

140 pounds — Joey Wellman, Niagara Falls won a three-round decision over Jack Tiller, London, Ont.

140 pounds — Dennis Poppa, Hamilton, won a three-round split decision over Harvey Snerron, Niagara Falls.

118 pounds — Tommy Potter, Hamilton won a three-round decision over Jimmy McDonald, Niagara Falls.

Oshawa Pushes Petes Aside for COBL Top Berth

(By The Canadian Press)

Oshawa Merchants have finally taken over first place in the Central Ontario Senior Baseball League. It took them a month of see-saw battling to do it.

The Merchants last night pushed the Peterborough Marines into second place by defeating them 4-1 at Oshawa.

In four Intercounty games, Waterloo Tigers downed Stratford Nationals 3-2, Galt Terriers defeated the last-place St. Thomas Legionnaires; 4-2, Guelph Maple Leafs bested London Majors 4-1 and Brantford Red Sox downed Kitchener Legionnaires 4-1.

Before the night's activity, Galt, Waterloo and Kitchener were tied for first place. When the smoke cleared Kitchener was in second place and the other two clubs remained in a first-place deadlock.

In a Nickel Belt senior league game, the improved Copper Cliff Redmen hung an 8-4 defeat on the Coniston Buzzers at Sudbury.

At Oshawa, the Merchants won their 10th straight victory as hurler Art Clemence played a steady game in the winning role. He scattered four hits and walked one batter. Opposing pitcher Bill Dadson was nicked for eight hits He fanned eight men.

Tigers Win

In the Intercounty, Waterloo Tigers were backed up by hurler Al Dumouchelle who failed to give up a hit to Stratford until the seventh inning. In the meantime, Don Bauer tagged opposing pitcher Jerry Hamm for a home run in the third inning, and Art Herchenratter repeated the performance in the seventh with Bauer on second.

First-baseman Joda Dahmer saved Dumouchelle from trouble in the ninth frame when he speared Bob Wagner's line drive with a leaping one-hand catch.

At Galt, the Legionnaires scored both runs in the seventh inning while the Terriers tallied one in each of the third, fourth, seventh and eighth innings.

Because of injuries, Galt Manager Tommy Padden had to call up Gord England, a junior, to play third base. And Outfielder Goody Rosen was unable to play because of a leg injury. England was the only Galt player to get two hits, one a double.

At Guelph, big Marty Philp allowed London Majors only four hits—all of them in the first three innings. Although they played loose defensively, the Leafs covered up with two double plays to stem London threats.

Lefty Lew Fisher started on the mound for London but was replaced in the sixth inning by J. Ladensack. Fisher was sharged with the loss.

The fifth-place Brantford Red Sox snapped their six-game losing streak as they garnered all their runs in the third inning and outlasted the Legionnaires for the remainder of the game.

Avoid Shutout

Kitchener avoided a shutout in the eighth frame when Howie Meeker was given a base on balls and scored on Bob Bloxam's long double.

Brantford pitcher Billy Gibbs went all the way and gave up eight hits, two of mem doubles. He fanned five and walked two batters. Pat Boehmer lasted until the eighth inning on the mound for Kitchener. Bob Keegan finished up.

At Sudbury, Lefty Steimakovitch coasted to his second mound victory in five starts. Rocky Canapini of Copper Cliff kept his hitting splurge going by belting three hits in five appearances at bat.

Oliver started on the mound for the Buzzers. He was replaced in the seventh by Gobbo.

One game is scheduled in the Intercounty League tonight: Brantford meets London. In the Nickel Belt loop, Frood Tigers tangle with Creighton Cubs.

Ike Williams Favored to Retain World Title

By BOB MEYERS

Los Angeles, July 21 (AP)—Champion Ike Williams gives Mexico's Enrique Bolanos his third crack at the word lightweight crown tonight in a bout billed for 15 rounds at Wrigley Field.

Winner of the first two matches, the Negro clouter from Trenton, N.J., is favored to turn back the third challenge.

The Bolanos faithful, however, believe he will lave the ring the new champ, and the first fighter of his native land to hold an undisputed title.

Matchmaker Charley MacDonald predicted a tournout of 20,000 fans and gate receipts of $100,000 or more.

The fight is being staged for the benefit of a Youth Foundation founded by Comedian Lou Costello.

Referee for the bout will be Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight king.

The fight may be a virtual replay of last year's conflict, when Ike won a split decision after 15 rounds of action. If the strategy pattern is repeated, Williams will be looking for a chance to slip over his deadly, counter-punching right, and Bolanos, normally a "head hunter", as the saying goes, will work on Ike's mid-section, hoping to soften him up or throw him off guard for a shot at the champ's every sturdy jaw.

Bolanos bounced a couple off Ike's classic profile last time out and nothing happened. He shifted to the stomach regions and it is no secret that Ike was glad when the thing was over and he was helped to his dressing room.

Since then Williams has won seven fights without much trouble and dropped two non-title decision to welterweight Kid Gavilan.

Bolanos, still the No. 1 challenger, has won nine straight fights.

South opens with two no-trump, he states, and north never gets a chance to show his kings. A good point there. My book, he throws in for free, does not seem to have this kind of a bid.

Look in the book and see. On page 12 is the rule for an opening of two no-trump. It shows seven or eight high cards with or without a biddable suit. This much it says without surplus words.

Let me add some explanations. Such a hand expects to take no less than eight tricks at a no-trump contract. Consequently, to make a game it needs the help of one trick in the hand of partner.

When are seven high cards enough to promise eight tricks? When opener has some card lower than a queen that may produce a trick. Or when opener has a sure trick in each of the four suits.

From the moment south opens with two no-trump, north must know they have a chance at slam in no-trump. Do you see how? Here it is.

There are only 12 high cards in the pack. North has four of them. If south has eight, opponents have none. If south has only seven, the opponents have only one. North could jump direct to six no-trump.

On page 11 in my book is the complete ace and king convention. Five no-trump asks for kings. In answer thereto, six clubs shows no kings; six diamonds, one king; six hearts, two kings, and so on.

If north makes a temporarizing first response that shows value, south can ask for kings with a bid of five no-trump. Although experts use temporizers with effect, others need not employ them.

Whether or not they go to grand slam is a matter of taste. If east had another spade, grand slam would fail. Here you know grand slam is safe. That long neck again.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 21 (AP). — Want to know the world's greatest film fans? They're movie stars.

This comes from Scotty Brown, who operates a film library in Hollywood. His steadiest customers are the stars.

"That's why you don't see them so often at Ciro's or Mocambo," he says. "They're home watching movies."

Brown was a Scottish golf pro who came to Hollywood to play in an early talkie called "Follow Thru". He pursued an acting career until he got tongue-tied in a scene with Claude Rains. So he started his library and now has 2,000 feature films, with more being added every day.

Projection rooms, along with swimming pools, appear to be standard equipment in the stars' homes. Some of the home theatres are quite informal. At agent Minna Wallis' for example, Scotty would often find Cary Grant, Clark Gable and Tyrone Power seated on the floor watching the screen as intently as adolescents at a Saturday matinee.

Hollywood's favorite film, Scotty declared, is John Ford's "Stagecoach". Westerns are constantly popular with the movie crowd.

Grant Favorite

Most favored actor of the Hollywood circuit is Cary Grant.

"But while the other actors are studying him, he is watching Buster Crabbe and Johnny Mack Brown," said Scotty. Grant is an insatiable Western fan and sometimes consumes four and five a week. A suppressed desire perhaps.

Contrary to what you might think, not many stars request their own pictures. But many of them battled with their studios over getting 16mm films of their own films. Wallace Beery, for instance, reportedly didn't want to re-sign with M.G.M. because it wouldn't give him prints of "The Champ" and others.

PLANE PLUNGES INTO PARKING LOT

On man was killed and five others were injured when this U. S. air force Flying Boxcar plunged through a fence and landed on its back in a parking lot at the edge of Wright Field, Dayton, O. The plane's pilot was making an emergency landing after fire had been discovered on the craft. Officials believe brake failure caused the accident.—Central Press Canadian.

U. S. Manufacturing Profits Are Down

Washington, July 21— (AP)—Profits of manufacturing corporations skidded downward about $550,000,000 during the first three months of theis year compared to 1948's last quarter, a government report estimated Tuesday night. The drop was about 18 per cent. A survey released by the Federal Trade and Securities and Exchange Commissions laid the slump to falling sales which more than offset lower operating costs.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 21 (AP) — A passenger on the ship that brought the Australian tennis team to Britain on their way to the Davis Cup tie with Canada at Montreal was "Miss Australia," a beauty contest winner .. as usual on shipboard, one of the amusements was horse racing with mechanical nags, and inevitably Miss A. was selected as one of the jockeys .. Davis Cupper John Bromwich grabbed a piece of chalk and wrote the name "Davis Cup" on her horse .. and underneath it, like a real horseman, he put the horse's breeding — "Out of America — by September."

Shorts and Shells

Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, has regained 35 of the 40 pounds he lost when he was operated on for the removal of a kidney .. that makes him almost big enough to cast a shadow — Maynard Jones, Jersey Jones' 22-year-old heavyweight, has been matched with Pat Comiskey for a Wilmington, Del., fight on August 8.

Jersey says if they can have a National Boxing Association world heavyweight champion, a British world heavyweight champion and probably, when Joe Walcott fights Olle Tandberg, a Swedish world heavyweight champion, he doesn't see why they can't bill this one as being for the world heavyweight championship of Delaware.

SAFE ROBBED OF $8,000

Toronto, July 21 (CP).—Thieves stole $8,000 from the Dempsey brothers' general store at nearby Lansing early today. Police said no mark was left on the safe from which the money was taken and the method of entry into the building is a mystery.

'Picture' Match Mooted for Tennis Stars

Montreal, July 21 (CP)—Before the Australia-Canada Davis Cup tie series is over, tennis fans here who have been clamoring for what they describe as a "picture match" are likely to get their wish.

Such a match would bring together two of the most unconventional stylists in the world of tennis, Jack Bromwich, 30-year-old playing captain of the Australian team, and Lorne Main of Vancouver, rookie member of the Canadian squad.

Both are ambidextrous although their styles are as different as day from night. The 19-year-old Main long has more or less idolized the Australian ace; has studied his game from afar and now is anxious to play him.

Officially, there can be no question of such an encounter until the series has been decided. Neither has been named to play in singles.

But Gordon MacNeil of Montreal, non-playing captain of the Canadian squad, has stated definitely that Main will play in a single match Saturday if either Australia or Canada has won the three matches necessary for a cup tie victory.

The Australians, Bromwich in particular, are almost certain to agree to the match to satisfy popular demand.

Ottawa, Toronto Divide Honors

Toronto, July 21—(CP)—Ottawa and Toronto tennis players Wednesday divided honors in the doubles division of the Ontario Junior Closed Tennis Championships. Ottawa girls swept the women's doubles while Toronto players won the men's doubles.

The women's and men's final singles will be played today.

Results of Wednesday's matches:

Junior Men's Singles, semi-finals:

Don Fontana, Toronto, defeated Guy Cloutier, Ottawa, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0.

Pete Stewart, Toronto, defeated John Milliken, Ottawa, 10-8, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Junior Men's Doubles, semi finals:

Pete Stewart and Jim Bentley, Toronto, defeated Ned Rainboth and Guy Cloutier, Ottawa, 6-1, 6-0.

John Milliken and Des McBride, Ottawa, defeated Don Fontana, Toronto and Don Hooper, Kingston, 1-6, 10-8, 6-4.

Junior Women's Singles, quarter finals:

Barbara Stephenson, Toronto, defeated Daphne Cross, Woodstock, 6-0, 6-2.

Semi finals:

Miriam Rainboth, Ottawa defeated Gloria Stanford, Toronto, 7-5, 7-5.

Joyce Felix, Ottawa, defeated Barbara Stephenson, Toronto, 6-0, 7-5.

Junior Women's Doubles, semi finals:

Joan Batterton and Claire Landry, Ottawa, defeated Barbara Proudfoot and Gloria Stanford, Toronto, 6-3, 6-3.

Miriam Rainboth and Joyce Felix, Ottawa, defeated Barbara Stevenson and Josie Smith, Toronto, 6-4, 6-3.

Junior Women's Doubles, final: Miriam Rainboth and Joyce Felix, Ottawa, defeated Joan Batterton and Claire Landry, Ottawa 8-6, 7-5.

Junior Men's Doubles, final: Jim Bentley and Pete Stewart, Toronto, defeated John Milligan and Des McBride, Ottawa, 6-0, 6-1.

British Character Typical at Resorts

Washington —(CP)— If you're going to Britain, says a man who's done so, don't miss the big-easy-going beaches.

"At their watering places, the British are even more British than in town with vests and bowlers on."

That's the observation of Tibor Koeves, travel editor of the magazine "United Nations World."

The sea, he said, "is not only in every Briton's blood, but in his backyard as well; and he likes to spend his vacation reassuring himself that he is still surrounded by water."

Britain's beaches, Koeves finds, have a characteristic resemblance "conspicuously fashioned after the demands of the British middle classes."

"And that means, first of all, that 'frivolity' in the style of the French Riviera for instance, is noticeably absent from the daily —and nightly—life. No sensational bathing suits on England's beaches, no gambling fever, no carousing.

"The evident truth is that when they go vacationing, the British simply transport their quiet family life, their reserve, their distant politeness and their self-centred impersonality to the chosen resorts."

AT THE BELLE — "Flamingo Road," Warner Bros. new fast-spaced romantic drama, starring Joan Crawford with Zachary Scott and David Brian, is continuing today and Friday at the Belle Theatre.

SIX GIRLS IN CAR RECEIVE SLIGHT INJURIES

Sarnia, July 21 — (CP) — Six London girls were admitted to hospital here Wednesday night with injuries received when the small English model car in which they were riding went out of control while turning a highway corner and landed upside down in a ditch. None was believed severely hurt.

The injured, who were on their way to a dance at Kenwick-on-the-Lake, are: Betty Wilson, Dorothy Linton, Rose Liccardo, Betty Costello, Patricia Joy and Doreen Malone.

Army Worm Pest In S.W. Ontario Is 'Well in Hand'

London, Ont., July 20 (CP)——Infestation of Southwestern Ontario crops by army worms seems to be "well in hand" through use of poison bait and there have been no reports of new outbreaks for two days, officials of Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph said today.

Army worms are present in grain and corn crops in most parts of southwestern Ontario. Although infestation has been in isolated plots rather than a blanket invasion.

Guelph officials said poison bait seemed to be "doing a good job".

Binder Mangles Hand of Child

Hensall, July 21 (CP).—Joyce Hayter, three, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hayter of Varna is in Clinton Hospital with severe injuries following an accident on her father's farm Tuesday.

Her father and uncle were cutting grain with the uncle on the tractor and Mr. Hayter on the binder. The child was sitting in the middle of the field and was unobserved by the men until the swath was cut to her.

The binder blade cut her two arms before the machine could be stopped. Part of two fingers on the left hand were taken off, the left arm badly mangled and the right arm cut between wrist and elbow.

Hospital authorities began skin grafting immediately.

B. C. FOREST BLAZE

Dense clouds of smoke arose from a 700-acre stand of timber at Meade Creek, 75 miles northwest of Victoria, as fire consumed 2,500,000 board feet of logs and blackened at least 5,000,000 board feet of timber as well as destroying logging equipment. The white lines in the background are old logging roads—(CP Photo.)

Ontario-Born Man Heads Brotherhood

Cleveland, July 21 (AP).—William Parker Kennedy, 57, Canadian-born one-time brakeman, Tuesday night was named president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to succeed A. F. Whitney who died Saturday.

The independent union's eight-man board of directors elevated Kennedy from the post off general secretary and treasurer.

The Brotherhood has 215,000 members in the United States and Canada. It includes brakemen, switchmen, conductors, yardmasters, stewards and other employees directly engaged in operating the trains.

Kennedy, a tall man with wavy, sandy hair, and a penchant for bow ties, is a native of Huttonsville, Ont. He moved from Canada to Chicago at the age of 10.

Guided to Safety From Blazing House By Flashlight Beam

Shelburne, July 21 (CP). — Guided by a flashlight beam in the hand of an unconscious man, 21-year-old James Wood rescued Fireman William Henry from a blazing house here Tuesday. Shelburne is about 52 miles northwest of Toronto.

Henry, an engineer for the Ontario Highways Department, had joined Shelburne firemen in battling the blaze. He entered the house and when he failed to return, Wood went in after him and found him lying unconscious at the top of a staircase. The youth said the lighted flashlight in Henry's hand "cut a path right through the smoke".

Three elderly occupants of the house escaped uninjured. Origin of the blaze was unknown.

All-Time High For Hog Prices

Toronto, July 20—(CP)—Top-quality hogs Tuesday brought all-time high prices on the Toronto Livestock Market. Grade A dressed hogs sold at $34 a hundredweight, equal to the peak price first set June 11. After June 30, prices dropped for a few days to as low as $30 a hundredweight but since have climbed steadily.

Boy Thought Drowned Is Found Unconscious

Sherridon, Man., July 21 (CP).—Leonard Head, 12, missing four days in northern Manitoba and believed drowned, was found on Tuesday unconscious in his canoe on Cold Lake, 20 miles north of here. Sherridon is some 400 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Hospital authorities today reported him in good condition. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Head of Sherridon.

He set out Friday on a trip with his canoe, equipped with an outboard motor. Severe storms swept the lake Friday and Saturday, and it was feared the canoe had capsized and the boy had been drowned.

He was found yesterday by Walter Sebastian and Sid Tucker, both from the nearby Cold Lake settlement. He told rescuers he had not eaten since Friday at supper time.

"My dad told me if I was ever in trouble to pray and I would get a miracle," Leonard said. "Last night I prayed eight times."

SIXTY YEARS OF BLOWING

Faversham, Kent, England, July 21 (CP).—Hezekiah Seggery, 70, has played in the Faversham Gospel Hall band for 60 years. He played a trombone then and has graduated through every instrument to the double bass.

6TH TYENDINAGA

Sixth Tyendinaga, July 21.—Several from this line took in the celebration in Belleville the 12th.

Mrs. Jean Kerryhart was taken to Belleville Hospital by ambulance one night last week. Friends hope she will soon be feeling better.

Lee Goodman spent the weekend at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Benedict and family, Cannifton, were Sunday visitors at Mr. Chas. Treverton's.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Shaw and Douglas spent Sunday evening at Mr. C. Goodman's.

Miss Marguerite Lancaster is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Goodman, Frankford.

Mrs. Harry Bates and William of Belleville spent Sunday afternoon at Mr. J. F. Treverton's.

Mrs. Bob Lancaster and Bobby spent a day recently with her mother, Mrs J. Cearly, Corbyville.

CARMEL

Carmel, July 21.—Mr. J. P. Dier of New Westminster, B.C., is visiting his son, Mr. P. Dier, Mrs. Dier and family.

Friday night guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Dier were Mr. Jas. Campbell, Mr. Archie Powrie and son, Mr. Irwin Powrie of Toronto. The latter was soloist at the wedding of Mr. Fred Dyer and Miss Elva Coughlin in Bridge Street Church on Saturday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Brintnell and children of Madoc spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brintnell.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. T. Ollson and children of Dorchester called at the same home last Sunday.

Brighteners

Tokyo—(AP)—The Mizusawa latitude observatory sent out a call in this country of dark-haired people for a strand of blonde hair.

Just any hair won't do, particularly Japanese haid which tends to be coarse. The observatory's hygrometer — used in measuring the degree of moisture in the atmosphere — needs a delicate type for sensitivity.

The last time the observatory got a strand of hair from a French woman. That was 15 years ago.

The man came in, asked for a camera he could aim by sound, found one he liked and bought it.

"I was too flabergasted to ask what he intended to do with the pictures," said Gillins.

Detroit — (AP) — Firemen tossed young Lloyd Slop's $1,600 life savings out the window Tuesday—then helped gather up the cash.

Slop, a 19-year-old student, kept his worldly wealth between the pages of two schoolbooks.

He arrived at his boarding house home Tuesday just in time to see the books and bills flying out the window. A blaze had started in the closet of his room.

Firemen, police officers, Slop and his mother found all the missing money on the lawn and in the bushes. Then a policeman escorted Slop to a bank where he deposited it.

Fort Walton, Fla. — (AP) — The law has caught up with the barefoot burglar of the Fort Walton bank.

Constable Oscar Bengtsen announced Tuesday he had obtained a full confession.

"Me and Smoky done it," said an eight-year-old boy, just so high.

The lad admitted taking three dollars in small coins from the bank's soft drink fund for employees. The bank was entered last Saturday about daybreak by someone breaking the glass in the door. Footprints around the door indicated the burglar was a barefoot boy.

Smoky, a dog, was not held.

The boy was turned over to County Judge Wilbur Osburn. Now the judge must decide what to do with him.

PUT ON YOUR PARKAS AND RED FLANNELS AND LET'S GO SKATING!

While the rest of Canada is thinking in terms of shedding clothes to keep pace with the high temperatures, the summer ice-skating scholars' wardrobe consists of furs and flannels. At Simcoe, Ont., where the figure-skating school is in full swing, temperature hovers around 20 degrees. Nancy Minnes, left, and Mary McKenzie, right, show the current summer styles on the ice.

Yacht is Workshop Of Sailing Dentist

Washington — (CP) — Sam Johnston ran away from home at 15 and sailed to Africa and South America as a merchant seaman. That was 21 years ago.

Today, at 36, he's a dentist—but he manages to keep life exciting and different. This spring he hung his shingle on the 87-foot yacht Tred Avon, tied up at Buzzard Point in the Potomac River.

Because he likes variety, Johnston and his crew — his wife, Lucy, and their sons, Donald, 12, Bill, 14, and Harold, 11 — sailed in June to Chesapeake Bay.

"We hope to dock for a time in Crisfield, Md.," said Dr. Johnston. "Of course, I'll be in business as usual. Some of the people in that area never have been to a dentist."

Although the big yacht was at Buzzard Point only six months, the Johnston family has been living aboard for several years. It was their home while Johnston attended the University of Maryland dental school in Baltimore. The Tred Avon has 18 rooms—"counting all the cubby-holes"—and five baths. The dentist's office is behind the wheelhouse.

And how do people like having teeth pulled and filled "at sea?"

"They like it,'" says Johnston.

No Joy in Tropics, Antarctic Favored

Wellington, N. Z. — (CP) — Another blow to the myth of idyllic life in tropical South Sea islands is the New Zealand government's experience that, among its weather stations scattered widely over the Pacific, the happiest is on bleak Campbell Islands.

These are in the sub-Arctic, 290 miles south of New Zealand.

On beautiful tropical and sub-tropical islands, with cooks and native servants to wait on them, officials find that men quarrel and are only too glad to leave when their spell of duty is over.

The staff of five at the mist-shrouded Campbell Islands, where nothing grows but ussock and the only living creatures are sea birds and seals, live in perfect harmony, return full of enthusiasm for the life, and volunteer for further spells of duty there.

The men at the Campbell Islands have no servants, do their own cooking and work very long hours on weather and other scientific observation. Government officials think the reason the station is a happy one is that the men are kept busy they have no time to brood over their extreme isolation.

LADY LAW-MAKER USES PRIVILEGE TO CHANGE MIND

Edith Miller, lady legislator from Idaho, accepted a proposal of marriage on the floor of the Idaho House of Representatives from fellow Representative Edwin Snow. Then she turned the tables on cupid and married newsman Sandor Klein. She met Klein when he covered her acceptance of Snow, objected to parts of the story as Klein had written it and called him into conference. They had more conferences, began dating and cupid pulled a switch that led them to the altar.—Central Press Canadian.

DISABLED PIGEON STARTS TO WALK

Pigeon with endurance is Snowball, owned by Skee Wicksof of Kitchener, Ont. The homing bird was found walking on the highway at Brantford, completing the last 35 miles of a 500-mile trip from Decatur, Ill., on foot, after being peppered with buckshot. Pellets disabled one wing.—Central Press Canadian.

Mental Telepathy Tested Over BBC

London —(CP)— Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Piddington, a young Australian couple, recently broadcast a trickproof demonstration of mental telepathy from a BBC studio.

Mrs. Piddington, 26, was able to "receive" two selected colors "transmitted" by her husband; drew on a blackboard a complicated design of a triangle enclosing a swastika, and finally translated from a "thought message" the meaning (but not the exact words) of a line selected at random from a book.

There appeared to be no possibility whatever of collusion between the pair, and any "cheating" during the broadcast would have required the co-operation of a panel of six judges.

Mrs. Piddington sounded tense and nervous as slowly, word by word, she worked out the meaning of a sentence "transmitted" to her from another studio.

Syd Piddington, 31, first began experimenting with telepathy while a prisoner of war in a Japanese prison camp. After the war he married Lesley Pope and the two of them began experiments leading up to the BBC demonstration.

Now the Piddingtons are booked for a series of eight weekly broadcasts designed to test transference under scientific conditions.

Annual Battle for Sunday Freedom In England Mostly Noisy Argument

BY ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 21 (CP).—With the usual vigorous sound effects on both sides, Britain's almost-annual battle for Sunday freedom is on again—in earnest.

Supporters of a "do as you please" Sunday have reformed their ranks for another assault on the Lord's Day Observance Society, jealous guardians of Sabbath "blue laws" since the early 19th century.

"It's an urgent matter of freedom," says 43-year-old John Parker, Labor member of parliament for Bagenham, Essex and a leader of Britain's newly-formed Brighter Sunday Association.

"We shall fight any desecration of God's hallowed day," retorts H. H. Martin, who has spearheaded the Observance Society's fight against continental-type Sundays.

The Brighter Sunday Association was formed early this month at the suggestion of holiday resorts and theatrical organizations. Its aim will be to obtain legislation making all Sunday sport, recreation and entertainment a matter of local option. Scotland, which has its own [illegible] subject, is not affected.

Bright or Blue?

Two of every three persons in England and Wales now may attend Sunday movies, but Sunday plays are largely taboo. Seven years ago a move to permit Sunday theatre was defeated in parliament by eight votes.

Parker's group will prepare a new private members' bill for submission to the House of Commons. It does not expect that the bright-or-blue Sunday issue will reach the parliamentary battleground until after the next election.

One of the bill's objectives would be to "demolish" legislative anomalies which Parker claims are created by Lord's Day Observance Acts of 1625, 1677 and 1780.

For instance, he says, an entertainer's right to sing on Sunday may hinge on his costume. If he's wearing a business suit, it's all right; if he sports a bowler hat or other embellishment, his performance may be interpreted as an "act" and thus be illegal.

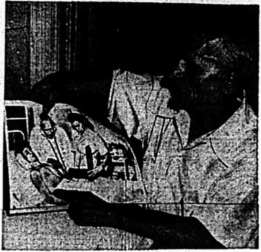
Matter of Choice

"We're not trying to impose any laws and we're not going to interfere with Sunday worship," says Parker. "We just want Sunday activities to be a matter of choice. Sunday is the only full day a man has to himself. He finds he can do nothing and go nowhere."

Replies Martin:

"These Brighter Sunday people are chasing a bogy. My society has been going for 118 years. Why should I worry about them?"

Parker, meanwhile, has other worries. His campaign will be conducted between chapters of a book he is writing on Newfoundland. He became interested in the subject while Dominions Under-Secretary in 1945 and made a three-week fact-finding tour of the new Canadian province last September.



SAYS RUSSIANS KEPT HIM PRISONER

John Rangaves of New York is shown studying a radiophoto of his 21-year-old son, Christus, who is under treatment in a Berlin hospital. The young U. S. soldier, listed as A.W.O.L. since Jan. 16, told U. S. authorities that he was arrested by Russian police as a spy suspect and kept in brutal, animal-like captivity for the five months he was missing. The Russians finally released him recently. U. S. military police are checking his story.—Central Press Canadian.

Enjoys Relief at Last From Nervous Indigestion

Suffered 3 Years Gas, Bloat and Belching; Got Bad Headaches; Nervous, Sleepless Nights; "Like Different Person Since Taking Syntona."

"For three years I had stomach disorders which brought on nervous indigestion and I suffered endless distress until I began taking Syntona," said Mrs. E. Dunn, of 573 Catherine Street north, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I got such horrid feelings that I became depressed and worried. After meals I would bloat up with gas, belch hot, sour liquids and get a suffocating feeling just like there was a lump in my throat. My nerves had become so jittery I couldn't get to sleep for hours after lying down at night. Nearly every morning I awakened with a bad headache and a lame feeling across my back.

"I tried everything I knew of, but got no relief. Then I read about Syntona helping other people and decided to get some. In a few days I began to feel some better, so I kept on taking it. Now my food digests nicely without souring or forming gas and my stomach never becomes upset. The distressed, suffocating feeling passed off and I haven't had that horrid, nervous condition since. I sleep well, don't have headaches or lame back in the mornings, my tongue is clear and generally I feel like an entirely different person."

Syntona, made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Aids elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

London Dockers Call off Strike, Return on Monday

CSU Head Says Union Will Continue the Struggle

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 22—(CP)—London's dockers today voted at a mass meeting to call off their strike in support of the Canadian Seamen's Union and return to work Monday.

Harry Davis, C.S.U. President, told a mass meeting in Victoria Park that "in view of the present position" the C.S.U. had decided to call off the strike in Great Britain.

"Our struggle in Canada and the rest of the world will continue," Davis said.

The C.S.U. declared "white" the Canadian ships Beaverbrae and Argomont whose blacklisting brought on the dockers strike a month ago.

Blames Ship Owners

Davis thanked the London dockers for their support. He blamed the strike on Canadian ship owners and "our Canadian anti-labor government."

"This was not a planned conspiracy directed by the Kremlin and Moscow,' said the C.S.U. president.

The dockers' unanimous vote to return to work followed a meeting earlier in the day between C.S.U. chiefs and the strikers' lock-out committee.

The strike is estimated to have cost 15,600 strikers £400,000 ($1,600,000) in wages. Vital exports and food imports were held up while the government marshalled servicemen to work strike-bound cargoes.

Service personnel at work at the docks today totalled 11,397—only 4,000 fewer than the number of dockers on strike.

The C.S.U. called the strike March 31 after Canadian deepsea ship-owners signed contracts with the rival Seafarers' International Union.

Signs of Break-up

There had been signs earlier that the strike —denounced by the Labor Government as Communist-inspired — was breaking up.

One group of workers had voted to remove a cargo of wheat from one of the Canadian ships. Another group of 1,000 strikers Thursday adopted a resolution expressing willingness to return to work if the main body of strikers voted to do so.

The government, which is operating the seized docks under a state of national emergency, meanwhile sent an additional 600 troops to handle cargoes today. That raised the total to 11,397 service men at work.

Before accepting the back-to-work resolution the dockers passed one demanding that 76-year-old Lord Ammon be dismissed as chairman of the National Dock-Labor Board.

Prime Minister Attlee fired Ammon as Deputy Speaker of the House of Lords Thursday night in a clash over board policy in handling the strike.

Told Scheme Jeopardized

The board had told the strikers they were jeojardizing the entire dock labor scheme, which guarantees them a weekly income. The Cabinet repudiated that statement.

Eats Bananas, Becomes Mighty Mite in Marines

Cincinnati, July 22 — (AP)—Glenn Bathalter was a mite light—but he ate 10 pounds of bananas and became a mighty mite—so he joined the marines.

The Covington, Ky., youth had been trying to join the Marines for three years. The first time he applied, he was 22 pounds under the 148-pound minimum. He tried again Thursday and still was seven pounds shy on weight.

Glenn sent out for 10 pounds of bananas. He peeled and ate, peeled and ate. Two and a half hours later he nudged the scales slightly over the weight limit and became a full-fledged "boot."

Walkout Favored By Ford Workers

Detroit, July 22 (AP)—Final moves are under way to enable the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) to pull the Ford Motor Company production employees out on a wage strike.

Michigan's labor mediation Board is preparing for a secret strike poll of the 75,000 Ford workers in this state.

A strike to back up current wage and contract demands—including $100-a-month pensions—already has been approved in a U.A.W.-conducted vote among 106,000 Ford employees.

7 to 1 For Strike

That poll showed that they are 7 to 1 in favor of a walkout, if necessary, although they were idle for 24 days in a speed-up strike that shut down Ford plants in May.

But the state balloting is necessary to comply with terms of Michigan's labor law.

In other states, the strike vote conducted by the union is ample authorization for a walkout, and Ford workers may be called out by the U.A.W. executive board at any time.

The U.A.W. filed a 10-day strike notice with the mediation Board Thursday, but said it would take no walkout action until the vote was completed. That may require three weeks, Board Chairman Noel P. Fox said.

Once such a vote is taken, there will be no legal barrier in the way of a strike.

Obstacles Being Cleared

Economic obstacles, too, are being cleared away by the union. Last week at Milwaukee, the Auto Workers International convention approved a special assessment which could build up a $10,000,000 strike fund.

Ford has been singled out by the U.A.W. as its first target in a drive for health and welfare benefits and a fourth-round wage increase as well as the pensions. The Ford contract expired July 15, but is being continued on a day to day basis.

PERMITTED TO STAY

Halifax, July 22 (CP).—Seventeen of the 23 Estonian refugees who arrived here Saturday from Sweden in an 80-foot schooner have been given permission to stay in Canada, an Immigration Department official said Thursday. The other six still are undergoing examination. The 17 who were admitted had obtained Canadian visas before leaving Sweden.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—Synopsis—The cooler drier air now covers most of Northern Ontario and Western Ontario by early afternoon. Showers and thundershowers precede this cooler air but skies will clear during the afternoon in most of Southern Ontario. Skies will be sunny throughout Ontario on Saturday with maximum temperatures in the low eighties in Southern Ontario.

COTTAGE FIRE CLAIMS 2 LIVES THREE INJURED

Twins Die Following Oil Lamp Explosion

Nantel, Que., July 22. (CP)—Two young members of a vacationing family were burned to death and three others injured Thursday night when a flash fire following an explosion levelled a summer cottage near this village in the Laurentians.

The dead:

Doris and Harry Whellan, 15, twin son and daughter of Mr and Mrs. Dennis Whellan of Montreal, owners of the cottage.

Injured:

Miss Therese Rondeau of Montreal, 20-year-old provincial government employeee vacationing with the Whellans. She suffered first-degree burns and cuts.

Robert Whellan, 19, brother of the twins, and Jean Benoit, 18, of Montreal, a friend. Both suffered minor burns.

Miss Rondeau is described as having a good chance of surviving. She said the twins came home about 10.45 p.m., and tried to light an oil lamp. There was an explosion which spread to a naphtha stove. The reservoir in the stove exploded, spreading flames about the one-storey wooden building.

Miss Rondeau escaped from the burning building by jumping through a window. Eyewitnesses said she lay screaming and bleeding outside the cottage for half an hour before she was brought to the hospital.

The girl told a nurse that she heard motorists, who stopped to watch the fire, discussing among themselves whether they should pick her up. She said they finally decided against it "because they would dirty the seats in their cars."

She was finally brought to hospital by Detective Arthur Normandeau, a provincial police officer, who suffered burns about the hands in a vain attempt to rescue the twins.

Mr. and Mrs. Whellan were in Montreal at the time.

Cut in Freight Rates For Kingston Cheese

Kingston, July 21 (CP)—A concession in railway freight rates for Kingston cheese board has been announced Wednesday Effective July 18 at the rate of 37 cents a hundredweight, formerly granted only to carloads containing at least 30,000 pounds of cheese, will apply to carloads of 24,000 pounds or more.

RESIGNED FIRE CHIEF LEADS MEN FIGHTING BLAZE

Lindsay, Ont., July 22 — (CP) —Cliff Campbell, who resigned as Lindsay fire chief, Wednesday, led his former fire-fighters today in halting a $10,000-blaze that damaged two stores here.

Campbell, who will join the been laid against William Christment shortly, and his men confined the fire to Fulton Stewart's photography and gift shop, but the adjoining Stephen's Barber Shop was damaged by smoke and water.

Residents of second and third storey apartments over the stores were forced out.

'Would Rather Die' Than Go Back To Chain Gang Says Young Fugitive

Windsor, July 22—(CP)—Fugitive from an American chain gang, Lawrence (Larry) Guy, 19-year-old Canadian, said today he "would rather die" than go back to "tortures," he suffered for six months.

Thursday American officials made their first attempt to return Guy to a Tennessee chain gang to serve at least 2½ more years. Guy won a preliminary skirmish to retain his freedom but he expects further extradition proceedings will be launched.

He said he had been beaten by chain gang "captains" because he was too small to work as hard as other prisoners.

The five-foot-five, 140-pound youth said he sawed his way to freedom through a kitchen window of a County Penal Farm in Tennessee.

He had pleaded guilty to stealing $1,200 and was sentenced to three years on the Penal Farm.

He told police here that the money was all returned to the owner, a relative of a man he was travelling with. Detective Inspector James Yokum asked him to sign a waiver to be returned to the States. When he refused, Guy was released. Inspector Yokum wired authorities in Tennessee to that effect and the next move is expected to come from the United States.

Guy, in an interview, said chains were put on his legs the first day at the farm and that both his legs swelled.

"I went to a doctor and he looked at my legs, wrapped some pieces of cotton around them and then told me they'd be all right," he said.

Two CNR Engines And Freight Car Are Derailed

North Bay, July 22. (CP)—The main line of the Canadian National Railways' Transcontinental route was cut Thursday night when two locomotives and a freight car were derailed at Bala Park, about 25 miles northwest of Washago in the Muskoka Lakes district. No one was injured.

The derailment occurred about nine o'clock. Railway crews were not expected to have the line open until late today.

The C.N.R.'s Trans-Canada trains are being re-routed through North Bay. Trains from the west are being re-routed from Capreol to North Bay and south to Toronto. Westbound trains are following the same pattern with some minor changes.

A freight train was travelling at low speed when the derailment sent its two locomotives off the tracks.

Tax Collector Missing

Peterborough, July 22 (CP) — Provincial police have reopened investigation into the disappearance of Thomas Rice, 61-year-old tax assessor and collector from Omemee, 15 miles west of here. Rice left his 100-acre mixed farm March 1 to go to nearby Lindsay and turn over $273 tax collections to a meeting of Emily township council. He never appeared at the meeting. It was not until May 2 that his wife and family reported his absence to police. No trace of Rice has been found.

COURT AWARDS FIVE MILLION FRANCS TO STARS

Paris, July 22 (AP)—Thirty-four French stage and movie stars have been awarded a total of 5,000,000 francs ($15,000) because of a newspaper's alelged indiscretion about their private lives.

The stars—including Annabella, Danielle Darrieux, Jean Gabin, Michele Morgan, Edith Piaf, Tino Rossi, and Micheline Presle—had sued the weekly paper, Samedi Soir, for 15 times that much.

Samedi Soir will appeal.

North Atlantic Alliance One of Greatest in History

Washington, July 22 (AP).—The alliance of countries in the North Atlantic Pact is one of the most formidable in history.

Their estimated present armed strength totals nearly 600,000 more than that of the Russian bloc. The figures on military manpower, not counting reserves, compare about like this:

Atlantic Pact countries — 5,758,000.

Russia and satellite countries —5,171,000.

In naval power, the Atlantic Pact countries are far ahead. In air power, the balance might be close in numbers of planes but the western powers probably have farther-flying and harder-hitting bombers. (The atomic bomb figures in here, too.)

These comparisons are all based on official and unofficial estimates; some of the estimates in the cases of the Soviet countries are admittedly little more than a guess.

In industrial strength, the Atlantic Pact countries are far ahead, too. They top the Soviet dominated countries four to one in 1950 steel production goals, over three to one in pig iron, two to one in coal. In 1946—the last year for which oil comparisons are possible—the west's lead was 10 to one.

Plucky Engineer Saves Passengers After Train Hits Gasoline Truck

Montebello, Calif., July 22 — (AP)—His clothing burning on his body, an engineer Thursday rode his train through a gigantic wall of flames to save 150 passengers from harm.

H. E. Byers, 55, Los Vegas, Nav., was at the throttle of the Union Pacific's streamliner "The City of Los Angeles", when it struck a 7,300-gallon gasoline truck and touched off an explosion heard for miles. The driver of the truck was fatally burned.

Flames roared hundreds of feet into the air, witnesses said.

Byers stayed at the controls and pulled his train through the holocaust. Flames sweeping in through the window at the clothing away from his upper torso.

He is not expected to live, said hospital attendants.

TIGHTER COLLABORATION

Prague, July 22—(AP)—A government spokesman said today Czechoslovakia is moving into tighter collaboration with Russia because of "concentrated attacks against us by the Vatican and Reactionary Governments." This statement was made by Antonin Gregor, Minister of Foreign Trade, at a meeting of the Society of Czechoslovak Friendship.

BRITISH CARS SELL WELL

Toronto, July 22 — (CP) — Sir William Welsh, British motor car representative, said Wednesday that sales of British cars in the United States were about one-third higher in the first five months of this year than they were last year. As for Canada, he stated, there just aren't enough of the cars on hand to meet demand.

FLIGHT CANCELLED BECAUSE OF STRIKE

St. John's, Nfld., July 22 — (CP)—Radio operators at Gander airport went on strike today for increased wages and better working conditions. At least one scheduled flight was cancelled as a result of the strike.

The number of men involved, their present wages and nature of their demands was not known here.

WINNER GETS NICE TRIP

Toronto, July 22 (CP).—A trip to Peru with expenses paid is offered to the winner of this year's Miss Canada contest, to be held here Aug. 18-19. The trip, sponsored by the Peruvian Tourist Bureau, will enable Miss Canada to attend the October Fair in Lima.

YOUTH GIVES SELF UP AFTER URGING BY GIRL FRIEND

Wanted on Many Break-in Charges

Toronto, July 22. — (CP) — Suburban Long Branch police said today that a total of 50 charges of housebreaking have been laid against William Christianson, 17, after questioning by police from eight municipalities.

The youth, allegedly pursuaded by his girl friend to "come clean," admitted the break-ins after police had established 40 of them Thursday.

Other Charges Likely

Police indicated there would be other charges in addition to the 50 now listed.

Christianson was arrested Monday in a suburban East York home and charged with housebreaking. Since then he has been shuffled back and forth between police officers in the eight suburban municipalities.

Police say the total value of the loot listed in the break-ins exceeds $70,000, including some $50,000 in bonds and varying amounts in cash, jewelry and household articles.

They said the youth agreed to confess to the break-ins after his Toronto girl friend, told him she would wait for him. Police declined to reveal the girl's name.

Methods Described

Describing Christianson's methods, police said he used taxis to ride to the scene of his housebreaking activities. They said two taxi drivers, Douglas Shambrook, 26, and Robert Theodore, 24, have been arrested on receiving charges in connection with the case. Christianson pointed out the two men yesterday at a downtown Toronto intersection.

Police said Christianson will probably be questioned by Hamilton and Oshawa police as well.

Man Dies, 6 Persons Injured When Car Crashes Head-on Into Transport Near O.S.D.

Four Belleville Girls Among Those Who Are Injured

One man was fatally injured and six others are in Belleville General Hospital as result of a car-transport collision which occurred shortly after three o'clock this morning directly in front of the Ontario School for the Deaf gateway, one mile west of the city.

Kenneth Moore, flight sergeant with the R.C.A.F. sctationed at Deseronto, a passenger in the ill-fated car died shortly after admission to Belleville General Hospital. Several of the others were critically injured.

Attended Wiener Roast

Three men, all of whom are believed to have belonged to the R.C.A.F., and four Belleville girls were returning from a wiener roast at Twelve O'Clock Point, five miles south of Trenton, when the accident occurred. The driver is thought to have dozed at the wheel.

Injured and in hospital are Miss Shirley Meagher, Octavia Street, fractured spine; Miss Lois Stickle, 178 Charles Street, loss of practically all her front teeth; Miss Dorothy Lummiss, Reg. N., formerly of Marmora, fractured jaw and facial lacerations, Miss Edna Ervine, 40 Chatham Street, possible fractured spine.

The two injured men are Eric Walker, R.R. 4 Trenton, driver of the car, badly lacerated shoulder and facial injuries and Harry Deyeramont, (address unknown), cuts. The two men were transferred to Trenton R.C.A.F. hospital.

According to reports from the scene of the accident the mishap occurred well on the north side of the highway. The driver of the westbound transport saw the approaching car and attempted to avoid the accident by swinging into the O.S.D. laneway but the approaching car caught his left front fender and then crashed directly into the side of the truck.

Following the impact the transport buckled across the O.S.D. laneway, while the car crushed to a standstill almost at the point of impact.

The entire front end of the 1947 model coach was completely wrecked, while the windshield and steering wheel were shattered as occupants of the car were thrown forward by the force of the impact. It was stated the car was not travelling at a fast rate of speed.

Five of the injured prsons were rushed to hospital in Bush's Ambulance while two others not so seriously injured were taken to hospital in the provincial police cruiser.

May Have Broken Back

Details of the injuries suffered by the six occupants of the car were not immediately learned but one girl was stated to have a broken back, while another girl had several teeth knocked out.

Dr. F. R. Ross attended the injured at the hospital. Provincial Constables Cockburn and Fletcher with Cpl. Ervine investigated.

Reports Scores Of Women Are Molested

Toronto, July 22. (CP)—Civic officials said Thursday they have received reports that scores of women have been attacked or molested on dark Toronto Streets at night. At the same time, police launched an all-out search for the two men who assaulted and raped a 30-year-old telegraph-office clerk last Sunday.

Acting Mayor John Innes told reporters he has received 'alarming letters' from numerous women reporting brutal attacks in recent weeks. He said he ordered Traffic Commissioner Tracy leMay, to conduct a survey of areas considered dangerous for women at night and to report on what steps can be taken to eliminate these spots as hiding places for "sex fiends".

Controller Innes quoted from one letter this said:

"The women of Toronto are becoming terrified. Many are afraid to be out on the streets after dark."

Last Sunday, two men seized a 30-year-old woman on a North Toronto street, took her in their car to suburban North York and attacked her. Detectives said on Thursday they have discovered what type of car was used by the two men and will check every owner of new-model cars in Toronto.

Marketing of Coarse Grains Starts Aug. 1

Ottawa, July 22 (CP).—Marketing of coarse grains through the Wheat Board starting Aug. 1 will not affect the method of arranging for premium payments on barley.

The country elevator, which will act as agent for the wheat board, will as before handle the premiums.

The brewing trade pays a special premium for barley which is particularly good for malting purposes. In cases where this premium is paid, the brewing company will pay it directly to the elevator without the transaction passing through the wheat board.

POTENTIAL MARKET FOR 500,000 TONS COAL

Toronto July 22. (CP)—Western Canadian coal operators have been advised by Mines Minister Welland S. Gemmell, that there is a potential market for 500,000 tons of western coal a year in Northern Ontario. This would top by 200,000 tons the amount of coal previously marketed in Ontario in any year.

The information was given at a two-day conference here, arranged by the Minister of Mines at the request of the western operators who have expressed concern over inroads being made by competitive fuels, oil and gas in Western Canada.

New Graduated Measuring Glass Used Soon in Toronto Cocktail Bars

Toronto, July 22 (CP).—Arthur Welsh, Ontario Liquor Commissioner, announced today that a new type of graduated measuring glass will be introduced in Toronto cocktail bars "fairly soon" as a means of overcoming the practice of "short-changing" drinks.

His announcement followed a report in today's Toronto Globe and Mail that many Toronto bars "are gypping their customers to the tune of $800 a week . . . by short-changing on the amount of drinks served, using deceptive glasses."

Mr. Welsh said the new glass will be larger than the type currently in use and will be marked from one ounce—the smallest legal amount of liquor which may be sold—up to and beyond the normal requirements of barmen.

Liquor Control Board officials said that inspectors "have been ordered to visit bars in the city and confiscate "shot" glasses for a check against bureau of weights and measures glasses.

This action was precipitated by the newspage story written by two reporters who made a survey of cocktail lounges in the city and measured each drink sold them with a surgical measuring glass.

Their report published in the Globe and Mail read: "Six lounges short changed on the drink they advertised by a quarter of an ounce. Two short-changed by an eighth of an ounce. Three used misleading glasses but served what they advertised." Three served more. One was just right."

Police said they have received several complaints about the bars short-changing and that some had made representations directly to the Board.

Inspectors were summoned to a special session at the Ontario legislative buildings this morning to, draft recommendations and regulations to curb cheating the customers.

It is expected the Board may issue standard shot glasses marked by the Board.

James P. Maher Grand Master Of Masonry

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—James P. Maher, Toronto shoe manufacturer and distributor, will be Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Ontario for the next two years.

He was elected Thursday as 2,600 Mamons concluded their annual two-day lodge meeting here.

Others elected and appointed included:

Deputy Grand Master, Prof. Nelson C. Hart, University of Western Ontario, London; Grand Treasurer, Dr. W. J. Dunlop, Toronto; Grand Secretary, E. G. Dixon, Hamilton; Grand Senior Warden, W. D. Connor, Hamilton; Grand Junior Warden, J. G. Dodd, Toronto; Grand Chaplain, Rev. C. E. Kenny, Guelph; Grand Registrar, C. W. Powers, Ottawa.

Elected to the Board of General Purposes (two years):

C. M. Pitts, Ottawa; R. C. Berkinshaw, Toronto; Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven, Hamilton; George W. McRae, Toronto; H. L. Martyn, Toronto.

Appointed to the Board of General Purposes (two years):

J. N. Allan, Dunnville; A. L. Bennett, Galt; R. L. Dobbin, Peterborough; B. B. Foster, Ridgetown; B. S. Edmondson, Oshawa; (one year): James Poppleton, Barrie.

Among the district deputy Grand Masters elected were Ross A. Barrons of Cordova Mines for Peterborough and Carl D. Crosby, Belleville, for Prince Edward District.

Two-Man Slayer Hanged at Montreal

Montreal, July 22. (CP)—Maurice Lebel, 28-year-old truck driver from St. Guy Que., was hanged at Bordeau jail early today for the beer-bottle murder of two Trois Pistoles, Que., men on July 1, 1948.

The noose was slipped over Lebel's neck shortly after midnight. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Romeo Plouffe, the jail physician, about 12.30 a.m.

An air of secrecy surrounded the hanging and jail officials steadfastly refused to give out information.

News of the hanging came only after residents of the area around the jail phoned a newspaper in Montreal and asked why the prison bell had tolled six times.

The date of execution had been previously set for July 6 and no explanation was offered as to why the hanging had been put back an additional 16 days.

Lebel was convicted last February of the brutal slaying of bank manager, Louis Phillippe Breton and taxi-driver Wilfrid Dumais.

The bodies of the two men were found near Riviere Du Loup on Dominion Day last year.

Witnesses at Lebel's trial testified that three promissory notes in Lebel's name had been due July 2. There was also evidence that Breton had taken the notes, totalling $4,900, from the Banque Canadienne Nationale at Trois Pistoles, where he was manager on the day he was killed.

The notes were not found on the body.

A beer bottle which had evidently been used to kill the two men was found near the scene of the murder.

Stan Francis Takes Over Front Street Business

Another business change in this city was announced this week when Stan Francis assumed ownership of the former Thompson House Furnishings, ~~296 Front St.~~ Mr. Francis was an employee in this business for twelve years.

Formerly from England, he came to Canada in 1927 and was employed on a farm near Halloway. Leaving the farm after a short stay, Mr. Francis went into cheese making where he worked for ten years. He then entered the dry goods business.

Mr Francis is also a family man. He is the father of two children; John, 6 years and Ruth 18 months.

After redecorating the store, Mr. Francis plans to add a complete line of knitting wool to his stock. He is also expecting a new line of dress goods in the near future. The business will be known as Francis' House Furnishings.

Purse With Money Finds Owner

It took quite a bit of correspondence but a purse containing over $200 which was lost in Belleville has finally found its owner.

Early in June James L. Duncan, son of Mrs. E.M. Duncan, Campbellton, N.B. was passing through Belleville looking for a position as accountant when in some manner he lost his wallet containing $221 in cash . . and the address of his mother in Campbellton.

The purse was found by Mr. H. Reid, 17 Johnson Street, in Belleville, who wrote to Mrs. Duncan at Campbellton.

But Mrs. Duncan had not heard from her son for some weeks and was uneasy thinking her son may have become stranded without money. So she enlisted the aid of the Salvation Army and the son was finally located working in Toronto.

Oh yes, the purse. It was eventually forwarded to Toronto by Mr. Reid, after being written by the owner asking him to keep $21 for his honesty and forward the purse and the $200.

Carl D. Crosby Elected DDGM Of P.E. District

Carl D. Crosby was elected District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District, as the Grand Lodge A.F. & A.M. met in Toronto during the past week.

Right Worshipful Brother Crosby is a member of The Belleville Lodge No 123, and a Past Master, and is well and favorably known in the city.

Also named by the meeting was assistant Grand Organist J. A. Alexander, Consecon.

Woman Carried Down Ladder By Firemen

Lindsay, July 22 — (CP)—Mrs. J. Walters of Lindsay, escaped injury today when she was carried down an aerial ladder by firemen who spotted her screaming through a broken window on the second storey of her apartment building.

The woman, who with two other families was forced to flee from the building, was awakened by choking smoke. She found the only exit from the apartment, down a narrow staircase, blocked by dense smoke and smashed open a window.

The blaze, believed to have broken out in the developing room of a neighboring photographer's studio, gutted the studio and damaged three adjacent stores.

SHOTS ROUT INTRUDERS

Toronto, July 22—(CP) — Two would-be shopbreakers at a suburban Port Credit service station were routed Thursday night, police said, when an attendant fired two shots at them.

The attendant, Roy Gemmel, said he awoke to find them trying to get in. He said they fled and that he fired at them as they disappeared.

MISS MARY ANN ELLIS
(Madoc)

Madoc, July 22, (Special)—Miss Mary Ann Ellis died at her home in Madoc on Friday morning. She was in failing health for one year.

Born in Madoc township the late Miss Ellis was in her 89th year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis. All her life was passed in the Madoc district. She was a member of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church and when age and health permitted she took part in church work, being a member of the Women's Aid and the Women's Missionary Society.

Surviving her are two brothers, John Ellis, Madoc, and Allan Ellis, New York City. Also several nieces and nephews.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE MISS CLARA R. ARNOTT

The funeral of Miss Clara R. Arnott, late residence, 255 John street, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell street, Thursday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. E. A. J. Wicks, pastor of Grace Chapel, Dundas street.

The bearers were Allan Boyle, Maurice Callaghan, Clarence Bryant, Robert Naude, Alan B. Sprague and Frank G. Cushing.

CHARLES HENRY McGEE
(Stirling)

Injured in an automobile accident on the Ridge Road 19 days ago, Mr. Charles Henry McGee of Stirling died in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday. He was in his 79th year.

A retired C.N.R. foreman, Mr. McGee was born in the First Concession of Rawdon Township, the son of the late Archie McGee and Jane McCaw and had spent most of his life in the Peterborough district. Since the death of his wife in 1943, he had lived with his sister, Mrs. Ethel Hoard at Stirling.

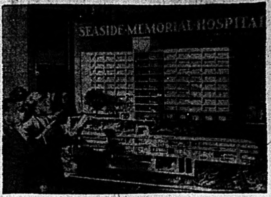
He was a member of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Stirling, and was also a life member of the Loyal Orange Lodge, and of the Royal Black Preceptory.

He is survived by two sons, William of Peterborough and Ernest of Toronto, one sister, Mrs. Ethel Hoard of Stirling, and one brother Clarence McGee of Peterborough.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

ELIZABETH ELAINE REID
(Sidney Township)

On Thursday afternoon the funeral of Elizabeth Elaine Reid, age 10 months and 16 days, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reid, fourth Concession of Sidney Township, was held from the home of her parents. The service there and at Thomasburg Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. C. W. Neeland of Stone United Church.



ATOM BOMB-PROOF HOSPITAL

Here is an overall view of the scale model of the proposed $8,000,000 Seaside Memorial Hospital, Long Beach, Calif., which would be the first atom bomb-proof hospital in the world. Looking at the model are Dr. Burns Chaffee, hospital trustee (left), and Councilman Bazil U. Carleson of Long Beach. The underground structure would have three levels all encased in steel, concrete and lead 22 feet below the surface of the ground. Experts believe that this amount of insulation would make the subterranean departments safe from atomic radiation.—Central Press Canadian.

Soldier Taken Ill Falls Over Span Of Causeway, Drowns

Kingston, July 22 — (CP) — Private Marquis Bruce Fisher, 21, R.C.E.M.E., Barriefield, drowned early today when he fell over the westerly span of LaSalle causeway into Cataraqui River. The body was recovered after two hours of dragging. Fisher enlisted in R.C.E.M.E. in Vancouver and entered Barriefield Dec. 7, 1947. He was formerly from Hamilton, where his father, Marquis Fisher, still lives. It is believed Fisher was taken ill and lost his balance while leaning over the causeway guard rail.

Dieppe Veterans Will Take Part In Commemoration

Toronto, July 22—(CP)— Sixteen Toronto and district men, veterans of the Dieppe Raid in 1942, will attend commemoration ceremonies in Dieppe August 19, it was announced today. They will form part of a 29-man detachment representing Canadian Army units composed of reserve force officers.

Start Operations To Raise Tug In 30 Feet Water

Point Traverse (Special)— Attempts to raise the tug, J. A. Cornett, which went down in thirty feet of water two and a half miles off this point on July 10, have begun.

The Sin Mac Line tug, Rival, with a salvage barge, is at the scene of the sinking making preparations for the raising. Divers are patching leaks and holes now.

Weather for the operation is near perfect with a gentle wind creating only a mild swell.

It has not been decided yet just what method will be used in the job of salvaging the sunken vessel.

Labor Retains West Leeds Seat

Leeds, England, July 22 (CP).—Labor retained its seat in the West Leeds borough in a by-election held yesterday.

Results announced today showed T. C. Pannell the victor with 21,935 votes. Bernard Mather, Conservative, polled 17,826. The majority of 4,109 compared with a 14,136-vote margin in the 1946 general election when W. Stamford retained the seat.

It was the 34th time since the 1945 election that Labor successfully defended a parliamentary seat without losing a single one.

The party standing remains at 391 seats for Labor and 202 for the Conservatives in the 640-seat House.

WANT APOSTLES OF COMMUNISM PUNISHED

Montreal, July 22 (CP) — The Montreal branch of the Native Sons of Canada, at a meeting here Wednesday, adopted a resolution requesting the Canadian Government to amend the criminal code "so as to punish all apostles of communism, president Salluste Lavery announced today.

Dysentery Claims Six Infants At Mattawa

Mattawa, July 22 (CP). — An epidemic of dysentery in this Northern Ontario lumber-town has claimed the lives of six infants within three weeks. Six other babies are in hospital, one in serious condition.

Dr. J. A. Bergeron, medical officer of health, said "there is nothing that we can do".

Dr. Bergeron said the disease was presumably caused by polluted waters. Mattawa residents have no waterworks system and must depend upon the Mattawa and Ottawa rivers for their supply, along with several wells. Of these wells the medical officer of health said that "very few are sanitary".

Only real hope of combatting the epidemic, municipal officials believe, lies in the installation of a waterworks and sewer system in the town. Mattawa council is now in the middle of an effort to have a waterworks system put in, and Mayor Albert Huot says the signs are "very hopeful".

Dr. Bergeron agrees. "As long as we have to depend upon rivers and wells for our water supply there is little that the health authorities can do," he said. "We can only stress the warning to parents to boil all water before use and keep flies away from the food of infants."

Quebec Liberal Party Leader Godbout Resigns

Quebec, July 22 (CP).—George Marler, Liberal opposition leader in the Quebec Legislature, announced today the resignation of Senator Adelard Godbout as Liberal party leader in Quebec.

Mr. Marler said he had been asked by Mr. Godbout to succeed him "temporarily" until a Liberal party convention is held to choose a leader for the party in Quebec province.

Mr. Marler said no date had been fixed for a Liberal party convention in Quebec. He could say however it would be held within the "near future" rather than "the later future".

While he would have the responsibility of calling the date of the convention he would not do so before consulting Liberal leaders throughout the province.

He would not say if he would be a candidate for the party leadership.

When asked if it was possible for a Federal member to present himself as a candidate for the post of Quebec Liberal leader, he said that "is possible".

IN MEMORIAM

WHITE — In loving memory of John Earl White, who died July 22, 1947 and Franklin Jay White, who died July 22, 1948.

Today recalls sad memories of my loved ones gone to rest
Two years have passed since death.
Its gloom and sadness came within our home
And took from us our only son
And one year more death called again
And took the father to be with his son.
It was hard to part with the ones I loved
God knoweth best, held wide His loving arms and said, "Come unto Me and rest."
How much I loved them no tongue can tell.
He knows how much I miss you
And whispers. "They only sleep,
Your loved ones are not dead."

Ever remembered by wife and mother. J22

ITALY SUSPENDS TRADE TALKS WITH YUGOSLAVIA

Rome, July 22—(AP) — Italy suspended trade talks with Yugoslavia because of the Tito Government's policy toward Trieste, government sources reported today.

Thetalks, abruptly halted this week, were practically completed, and an agreement providing for an annual exchange of goods valued at $45,000,000 was about ready for signature, these sources said.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 22 (CP). — All groups faltered slightly on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The slow and tedious advance which Base Metals had made through the week was halted and they declined slightly. Golds showed a majority of losses as did industrial stocks.

The highlight of the market was the performance of Joliet Quebec in the junior gold list. It climbed nine cents in the first three hours on news that Noranda was cutting into its property in the 1,200 foot level. Dome Mines slipped ⅛ at 18⅝ in the senior producers while Wright Hargreaves, another senior took a loss of three cents at $2.17.

Osisko Mines also came into some good progress in a tie up with Noranda. It climbed eight cents at 64. Steep Rock Iron Mine eased two cents on profit taking at $1.63. Sherritt Gordon was also lower by three cents at $1.94.

Industrials dropped to lower price ground as selected industrials took losses in fractions. General Steel Wares Preferred eased ¼ at 99¾. Canadian Car dropped to 10¾ on loss of ½.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—Produce prices on the spot market here this morning were quoted as follows:

Army Worms Infest Large Areas In Southern Portion of County

Appearing in destructive numbers in the Bay of Quinte area for the first time in over 30 years, hordes of army worms are causing considerable damage to farmers' grain fields in Hastings county.

Harry Ketcheson, well-known Holloway district farmer, stated that "thousands" of acres of grain in Hastings were effected by the worms. The worms had been noticed particularly in the Moira, Madoc and Foxboro areas, he said.

"The area effected is so great that the agricultural authorities have stated there is little that can be done to control them," he said.

Work at Night

The army worms, ranging up to an inch and a half in length are dark brown color with thin stripes. They work on the grain at night or in the cool of the morning and hide in the ground or under large leaf plants during the day.

The army worm in action will climb up the stem of a grain stalk and will nip off the head of grain and eat off the leaves.

Mr. Ketcheson said the loss in districts effected in the Hastings area would range up to 25 or 30 bushels per ten-acre field, although he admitted this estimate would be high in the majority of cases.

Army worms are quite apt to be working in a field although the farmers may be unaware of their presence. A casual inspection during the day will not reveal the worms in action as they hide during the daylight hours and go to work at night.

The last destructive attack of army worms was back in 1938, and earlier in 1914. However, they are present in limited numbers each year. Climatic conditions this year were such that parasites which ordinarily would control them have been inactive.

Thirty years ago Mr. Ketcheson said the army worms were much more destructive than this year. Then the worms even ate leaves off the trees.

Use Poison Mash

Normal measures for the control of the worms is to spread a bran mash made up of a mixture of bran, molasses and paris green.

However, the area in the Hastings district infected with the worms is so great that this measure of control would be impossible.

Peak of the army worms destruction was reached about one week ago, their numbers now apparently having been decreased through natural causes.

OUTDOORS

Tourists and natives are enjoying Canada's summer, a warm one, it is admitted, but one with infinite charm. The watering places and the resorts are filled with large numbers of people to reap the benefits of the infinite variety of appeals which are made to Canadians and visitors from the United States and elsewhere.

Children have long since put on the tan which marks them as youngsters who enjoy the great outdoor life which adds so much to their enjoyment and their vitality. They are away on vacation at resorts or in the country and are learning the ways of nature and of health. No children in any country are more blessed by nature than the boys and girls of Canada who show this blessing in their general health and their vigor of mind and body.

For those who are older the country has special appeals. There are many who are taking training in summer schools, while those who have artistic aspirations are making their way with easel, canvas brush and palette into the woodlands and to the lakes and streams to catch the glimpse of nature as she is.

Almost the entire population today knows the value of vacation and takes advantage of it in any choice of settings. But this was not always so for there was a time when many a person, a mother or housewife or husband or family did not have the opportunity of following in nature's paths and hearing nature's music.

But that day is past. Modern motorcars have brought good roads and created new assets for the nation and for the people. The outdoors has earned its right to be one of the great attractions to millions. The car and boat and train and plane lead to this wonderland of beauty.

All are healthier and more alert, more prepared for their tasks because so much of nature, not so highly regarded once as it is today.

This country is gifted with many blessings which she gladly bestows upon young and old. All are the better for this happy condition.

FORMER DESERT LAND YIELDS

A piece of Scottish land, six miles long and two miles wide, at Culbin, near Nairn, on the Moray Firth, given up for centuries as a useless desert has just given its first yield of rich timber. In future it will supply large quantities of pit props for United Kingdom mines, and within a few years this six thousand acres waste of rolling sand will become one of the richest forests of Britain. It has taken man 28 years to undo the damage wrought by a gale in a single night in 1694. For generations back in Scotland's history, Culbin — the granary of Morayshire — was a flourishing agricultural area. Twenty-eight years ago the Forestry Commission took over the waste. Early efforts to stem the tide of sand by growing trees failed. Now it has been saved by thatching. Today, four thousand acres have been planted with Corsican Pine, Scots Pine, and Lodge Pole Pine. The remaining two thousand acres are to be treated similarly.

BATTLING COMMUNISM

Communism is meeting more than its match in the in the battle Christianity is waging against the ruthless, unchristian forces of Communism in Czechoslovakia. The Reds know that they are the enemies of the Christian Church and are bending their strength to overthrow everything that is exalted by the church. The Reds know that the Christian Church is resolute against the forces which Communism represents, the forces of disintegration, barbarism, tyranny and selfishness.

Communism has made a desperate assault against the Roman Catholic Church in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere only to find the church firm on its foundations and prepared to carry the fight to victory over the forces of aggression.

The world sympathizes with the Czech people who have fallen under Communist sway but the Czechs have their faith and ideals and faith in freedom. Their long history shows the firmness of their spirit and their courage in defying the forces that would enslave their minds and souls if that were possible. Fortunately that will not be.

There have been great Czech leaders, lovers of progress and freedom. These too are the guarantee that the Czechs will continue to oppose Communism which is the opposite of everything for which Christianity stands.

VACATION

Time to rest and play a bit
Away from the shop and mill,
From toil and all the noise of it,
From press and lathe and drill;
A week or two where trees and streams
Have never known a crowd,
And time for thoughts and time for dreams
And quiet are allowed.

Away from all the screech and grind
Of traffic's endless flow,
To own at last that piece of mind
Which all men long to know;
Set free from every stress and strain
Which fill the busy day,
A little while at ease again
To drowse the hours away.

Afar from clocks which slumber break,
Proclaiming: "Time to rise!"
From grim commands employers make
And need for judgment wise.
Out of the year a week or two
Released from drive and thrust,
To do the things we want to do,
Instead of those we must.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 22nd., 1929

Mrs. David Fleming presided at the organ in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday last, owing to the absence of the organist Prof. Wheatley.

Mrs. Stanley Hagerman of this city caught a pike in Moira Lake yesterday which weighed over four pounds.

Mrs. W.D.Embury and daughters accompanied by Mrs. Farnell, have left on a motor car trip to Detroit, Mich., and points in Western Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Nurse of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, are spending a few days in town.

Miss Gladys Mattis is visiting her aunt in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gallagher of Chicago, Ill., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, Sidney Street.

Dr. J. Franklin Farnsworth is visiting his parents the Rev. E. Farnsworth and Mrs. Farnsworth. He has just returned to the city after completing three years' post graduate work at Baltimore, Maryland.

30 YEARS AGO

July 22nd., 1919

Mrs. A. Dutton is visiting friends in Cobourg.

Mrs. Johnson of Prairie City, Alberta, wife of Mr. George Johnson, at one time cigar manufacturer in this city, is visiting friends here.

Major J. E. McCorkell, D.S.O. left yesterday to enter upon his duties in a position he has accepted in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cummins and family of Chicago, Ill., are visiting relatives in the city. Mr. Cummins is an old Belleville boy.

The following composed the teams: Belleville — Delaney, Brown, Gerow Reeves, Connolly, Brennan, O'Neil, Watkins and Thomas Demorestville — Collier, Gerow Howard, Coolidge, Covert, Williams, Rochefort, Solmes and Thompson.

50 YEARS AGO

July 22nd., 1899

We learn from Mr. Harry McIninch, tally clerk at the boom in the harbor, that in the recent drive down the Moira River there were 162,853 pieces for the Rathbun Company, being divided as follows: Logs 116,853; jots 14,800; posts 6,623; cedars 8,312; floats 15,460. It took 29 days to put the drive through the gap.

Mr. Willian Lattimer of this city was selected yesterday as D. D. G. M. for this district for the Masonic Order. He was appointed at the meeting of the Grand Lodge.

Mr. William Paterson of the Syndicate Store is in Toronto on business.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The generally accepted notion is that when conscience pricks us, we respond by doing good, by mending our ways. But the fact appears to be that while the pricks of conscience make good men better, they make bad men worse.

Here is a familiar case in point. It is a well-known curiosity of human nature that we dislike those we injure. When we do a wilful injury to a person, it seems we have to justify ourselves to ourselves for taking a dislike to him. When our conscience pricks us, instead of proceeding to undo the injury we have done, we proceed, instead, to justify our behavior by seeking—and finding! — further grounds for our detestation of the injured party. Thus conscience spurs us on, not towards good, but towards evil.

They say that business has no conscience. Of course it has. In business it is often, perhaps generally, necessary to take advantage of competitors. The ethics of business decide just what kind of advantage may be taken. And ethics, like a barometer, depend on the pressure at any given time. But when the advantage has been gained, and taken, then the conscience of business starts pricking. And thus you find in the business world all sorts of personal animosities not merely on the part of the victims, but also on the part of the victors. The more successful a man grows, the fuller he is liable to be of scorn and contempt of those he has been obliged to ruin. Much of the obvious unhappiness among prosperous men is due to conscience having pricked them in the wrong direction.

Conscience, the dictionary says, is the moral sense of right and wrong. Moralists describe conscience as an inner voice. That's good. It is a voice with which a man may engage in argument. And any man is a mighty poor arguer who cannot justify himself to himself.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRUE RELIGION AND FALSE

Christianity is superior to all other religions because it is the religion of the heart. It deals with the inside of a man's life. Of course it exerts a profound influence upon his acts which are external, but it relates every act to an inner impulse which has been vitalized and renewed by faith.

Religions other than Christianity usually put their emphasis on externals. They emphasize conformity to certain customs. Jesus made it plain that He came to change the human heart. His object was not to patch up the old life, but to give new life. He came not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it. He demanded that new wine be put into new bottles, which was another way of saying that the new wine of the gospel belonged in the hearts of new men.

We can always detect falsity in religion by noting the extent to which it emphasizes the external and neglects the internal. If it puts its first emphasis on custom, tradition, ritual, it is one with the old superstitions, that the progressive gospel of Christ rendered obsolete. If, on the other hand, it primarily emphasizes consecration, faith, purity, and loving service, it demonstrates that it is definitely part of a kingdom which shall never end.

False religion is on; true religion is in.

Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan President's Blunt Military Aid Again Finds Self in Hot Water

By GEORGE RONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, July 22 — (CP)—It's nothing new for Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan to be in hot water.

The 55-year-old military aide to President Truman is noted for his bluntness of speech. Several times in his four years at the White House he has exploded verbally into uncomfortable headlines.

But Vaughan's outbursts generally are one-day sensations. Truman seems inclined to ignore or forget them. The public soon loses itself in some new Washington wonder.

This time, though, a member of Congress has demanded that Truman suspend Vaughan, his cheery, cigar-smoking personal friend from First World War days.

Cites Army Suspensions

Representative Paul W. Shafer (Rep. Mich.), citing the army's suspension of two other generals pending a Senate investigation of army contract handling, said Vaughan was "implicated in the same case." He gave no details.

Names of all three Generals were mentioned in a recent newspaper story inspiring the inquiry into dealings of "five-per-centers" who hire out to obtain government contracts, Shafer said that Vaughan is on public record about "five-per-centers."

Vaughan did tell reporters last July 6 that he knows of "about 300 persons in Washington" who engage in contract negotiations. He identified none of them.

Vaughan, frequently on the receiving end of stinging newspaper criticism, once remarked: "The principal thing which sets me apart from the other (presidential) aides is that I am more unpopular with some columnists and editorial writers, which is, in some instances, a decided recommendation. . ."

For instance, he announced his own promotion last year. He told reporters he was being made Chief Armed Forces Aide to Truman, with three assistants. Later the same day, Truman's Press Secretary, Charles G. Ross, called in newspaper men to say: "There is no change in the White House set-up. . . There seems to have been some misapprehension. . . There are no Chief Aides."

Vaughan took it all with good-natured bewilderment; he said he wasn't sore at anybody.

Other Remarks Recalled

But it took everybody back to the other time, for instance, when Vaughan let out the news that the President swims with his glasses on.

And the speech in which he described Winston Churchill as "A garrulous old gentleman." And his comparison, in the same speech, of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman:

"It's just like having a fancy dinner of caviar over a long period. Sometimes you like to get back to ham and eggs."

WOMAN COMMANDER

History's only woman field marshal was Madame Moreau, who was made a marshal by King Louis XVIII of France, in 1813.

Mackenzie's Column

U.S. Will Likely Be Cool to Baxter Proposition

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Beverley Baxter, distinguished member of the British Parliament declared during an economic debate in the House of Commons he was "not at all certain that the third British Empire will not see the return of the American continent."

"There is only one solution to the world's economic disaster which is approaching," said Baxter, a native of Toronto. "That is for the Americans and Canadians to find some way to come into the sterling economy, with free interchangeable currency, as this country, in the 19th century, went into America, after the Civil War, and built up American economy."

Well, now, that's a suggestion which makes us Yankees (and I dare say our Canadian neighbors) sit up and take notice. We are terribly allergic to anything which even slightly impinges on our sovereignty. Was Baxter speaking politically or economically, or both?

From the political standpoint the United States of course isn't going to tear up her declaration of 1776. That was rather well implemented at the time—and it stands. Canada, too, has made it clear that she intends to go her sovereign way, with no closer British tie than that of membership in the commonwealth.

Swan Song

As a matter of fact, this column believes that empires, in the generally accepted sense of the term, are on their way out. We may have commonwealths and other liberal forms of association, but empires—no.

However, we needn't labor this point, but assume that Baxter was thinking largely in terms of non - political association which would be of mutual advantage economically and in the way of military security. That is, an extension of the association which already exists and which the much debated Atlantic pact would further strengthen in the defensive sense.

However, my observation is that it will be a mistake if foreign countries believe there is no limit to which the United States will go. We hope that we have given generously of our moral support and our material wealth. We expect to give more.

But the time is rapidly approaching when Uncle Sam is going to tighten up on his material assistance abroad. He has his own people to think about and he isn't going to jeopardize their welfare by tossing his purse into the international kitty.

Nevertheless full rehabilitation depends, not on the largess of the United States, but on the efforts of the afflicted countries themselves.

Actually, Britain and most of the continental countries are making a gallant fight for recovery. Still, here and there one observes a nation which isn't quite pulling its weight, and it is well that all hands understand the United States is going to protect its own economic security and maintain its rights.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE DICTIONARY

There are a few books that should be in every home. Among these few I would name as first, a copy of the Bible. Then every well regulated family usually has a good cook book, and perhaps a good book on health, with simple suggestions about the care of the body—man's greatest piece of machinery.

One of the most important books, however, in addition to the ones named, I would say should be a handy dictionary. I am never without one, wherever I write. Not only is it important to spell correctly, but to know the meanings of words. Words are our tools of expression. It is not necessary to use big words with two or more shaded meanings. The simplest are the best, but the ones with the most meaning, or which most people will understand, are the best ones to use.

The famous Dr. Samuel Johnson dictionary was an event, both reading it today gives one a smile, for it was a very crude attempt though important at the time. Then later in America came the now famous Webster's dictionary, which is a top book today, with its constant revisions. Others have produced valuable dictionaries, and the latest should be the best. There are many to be secured that are plenty large enough, and efficient enough to satisfy the most critical. The smaller ones are all right for spelling, but the more elaborate ones are best for meanings.

It is amazing how anyone can improve his conversation and his thinking by studying the dictionary. It is an interesting and instructive book just to take in hand and open anywhere to just run through the meanings of words that you may know, or that you have never heard of! I know of no more fascinating study than that of words, and the uses that you can put them to.

ou can even put personality into words—and make them laugh and sing. And how comforting you can often make them, when addressed to others—many people of whom you know nothing, or whom you may never meet. Words are wonderful messengers of hope and cheer. Many have become household words, when formed in some striking manner. Like that phrase of Patrick Henry's, for example: "Give me Liberty or give me Death." And every school boy could name a number of such phrases, formed with the simplest of words—but with life to them. Don't keep house without a good dictionary.

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

NOT DEMENTED, JUST ILL

Provoked by the statement made here recently that every human being has the will to live, a reader declares that "to believe all people like to be alive is utter bosh! Many do not evince even the slightest desire to continue existance and others actually end their lives. They are not demented although mentally ill. They just can't face facts—or living!"

Without quibbling over the way you say it I agree. In fact I qualified the statement you cite, by saying "it is idle to assume that one individual has greater will to live than another, that is, if he is sane." And I added: "Any one who hasn't the will, the wish, the desire and the intention to live is demented."

To me the term "demented" means mentally ill. I wish it meant the same thing to everybody.

Insanity, dementia, mental illness, mental disturbance, derangement of the mind, lunacy, craziness, psychosis, madness, mania, whatever it may be called, in mental illness and should be regarded as illness in every instance.

Among the ignorant class some vague stigma is attached to mental illness. Intelligent people should teach children that insanity is illness and there is just as much reason to feel ashamed of a case of heart disease or undulant fever in the family as there is for feeling ashamed of mental illness in the family.

Most patients with mental illness are even more sensitive of the attitude of people around them in respect to their illness than are patients with physical disabilities or defects or deformities. Consequently a kind or considerate acquaintance or friend should endeavor always to behave toward the mentally ill individual as normally as possible —that is, as he or she would behave if the patient's illness were a physical illness, say anemia or osteoarthritis.

There is no point in denying that some cases of insanity are due mainly to the victim's own faults or wrong living, just as are some cases of hardening of the arteries or colon derangement or obesity. But it is well to remember that sooner or later insanity is sure to occur in every family, so none of us can afford to be smug or uncharitable about a case in a neighbor's family.

Even the legal definition of insanity has been modified recently in one State. Heretofore it has generally been defect of reason from mental disease which incapacities the individual from knowing the nature and quality of the act or if he knew what he was doing he didn't know it was wrong. The modified definition now proposed permits one who has committed a crime and knows that it was wrong to plead insanity on the ground that he felt an irresistable impulse to do what he knew was wrong. If this easy out becomes general law an irresistable impulse is going to save a lot of criminals from punishment.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

That Shadow

Clergyman, reader of Dr. Brady, cites stanza 5 of Whittier's "The Pumpkin":

And the prayer, which my mouth is to express
Swells my heart that thy shadow may never grow less.
(J. F. F.)

Answer — Thank you. That makes a half dozen sources readers have found. Being what I am by descent, I still believe the thing came from Ireland originally.

Bulgarian Bunk

Where can one obtain the Bulgarian Culture you recommended in your article.... or Metchnikoff? (Mrs. S. McH.)

Answer—I don't know. As I tried to make clear in the article, I believe ordinary buttermilk or plain sour milk has all the health virtues that you can get in Bulgarian, Acidophilus or other artificially cultured lactic beverage or food, or in kelph or yoghurt.

75 Wolf Cubs Leave for Camp Satur. Afternoon

Saturday is the big day for nearly 75 local Wolf Cubs. Leaving the Collegiate grounds at 1:30 for W.C.T.U. camp on Lake Consecon under the guidance of Akela Pat. Nicholls, these boys will spend eight days camping. Making up the group are boys from the first, second, fourth and eighth Belleville packs.

Assisting Mrs. Nicholls are Miss Lillian Summers, Miss Doreen Cunningham and Mrs. R. Walden, Mrs. H. Aselstine, and Mrs. Lillian Ashley. Included in the staff are four Service Scouts who will assist with the cooking and heavy work.

The younger boys will have their sleeping quarters in permanent huts while the older boys, scouts and leaders will live under canvas.

The camp leaders have extended an invitation to all Cub, Scout and Rover Scout leaders and members of the local association and group committee men to attend supper and Red Flower (camp fire) at the camp on Monday, July 25.

Next Sunday will be visitors' day at the camp. An invitation to all interested parents to bring a picnic lunch and stay for Red Flower is voiced by the boys. It is hoped that all who are able will come along and see the boys at work in a properly supervised Cub camp.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Religion and Psychology

By ROY L. SMITH

The contribution that the modern science of psychology has made to the daily affectiveness of those who are interested in living a good life is almost beyond computation. The scientists who have gone exploring amid our mental processes have come up with a long list of explanations and techniques which enable us to get hold on life and master it.

A complete new emphasis has been developed among the clergy, on the subject of counselling. Thousands of preachers are talking the language of the psychological laboratory, some of them without understanding more than a smattering of the jargon they so glibly pronounce.

Religion Was There First

It is very interesting to observe, however, that many of the procedures and processes set forth by the psychologists are only time honored principles of religion phrased in new verbiage.

The psychiatrist, as an illustration, will not attempt to bring order back into a disordered mind until the sufferer has made a complete statement of all his past activities, and exposed all his mistaken thinking to the cold light of reason. The scientist has a new name for the process. He calls it a "mental purge". But good religion has done exactly the same thing for thousands of years, calling it a "confession of sin".

The scientist talks about relieving the sufferer of his "tension", and the old-fashioned preacher had the same thing in mind when he talked about the "sense of forgiveness".

> The Sunday School lesson for July 24: "Prayers of Confession", Psalms 32; 51; 86:5; 130:1-5.

In similar fashion the Catholic confessional and the Protestant pastor have been dealing with mental sufferers for centuries and producing "cures" as remarkable as any that can be credited to the scientists. And in the Hebrew Psalms we make the discovery that the spiritual genius of the ancient Jews had arrived at many of the same happy outcomes, even though they had never heard of anything called "phychology", and never even dreamed that there was ever to be such a thing as a "mental clinic" or a "personality adjustment".

This week's Sunday school lesson consists of a series of prayers for forgiveness which were in common use among the Hebrews more than two thousand years ago. They have demonstrated their power to restore peace to disordered minds in every century where they have been given opportunity. There is something about the way they express the deepest desires of the devout heart which makes them usable in any generation under any circumstance, and they conform to every approved principle of the modern psychologist's laboratory.

They begin with a frank and honest confession of wrong doing. This is good religion, and it is also good science. The psychologist insists that the sufferer shall look at his own mistaken thoughts and actions with absolute candor and complete honesty. No man can hope for any sense of inner peace who is not willing to be honest with himself. Honesty with self must precede honesty with God. There is no real praying that does not begin with complete candor and a fearless facing of the facts, no matter how unpleasant they may be. This is exactly what the ancient psalmist does in his psalms, and the person who accepts his leadership will follow through on that line and come out with released tensions and a relieved mind.

Some Things Cannot Be Improved

If these Old Testament Psalms and their religious counsel seem to be old-fashioned, let us remind ourselves that there are some things that cannot be improved. There's the alphabet, for instance. No matter how modern we become it is sufficient to serve our every need. And the multiplication tables! Even with our improved and complicated scientific problems, we have no need for any better system than they provide. Or the spectrum! Who would suggest that it be brought up to date?

There are moral principles and spiritual procedures which have been demonstrated by time and cannot be improved. The authentication of thousands of years is behind them. Our problem is not to bring them up to date but to measure up to them in complete honesty and all fidelity. This is the challenge of these old poems of penitence.

WHERE TROUBLE STARTED

The lake seamen's strike of 1946, which tied up these eight ships in the Welland Canal and immobilized shipping throughout the Great Lakes, started the chain of events that led to the present London dockworkers' strike which has brought Britain to a state of emergency. Shortly after the 1946 strike was called, J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, president and one of the founders of the striking Canadian Seamen's Union, resigned in protest against the C.S.U.'s alleged Communist leadership and formed an independent union of his own. Jurisdictional disputes caused frequent tie-ups, culminating in the current C.S.U. strike and a sympathy walkout by London dockworkers.—(CP Photo.)

Sees U.S. Possibly Member British Commonwealth

London, July 22 (CP)—The possibility that the United States might become a member of the British Commonwealth was envisaged Wednesday in the House of Commons by Beverley Baxter, Conservative member for Wood Green.

"I am not at all certain that the third British Empire will not see the return of the American continent," the Toronto - born member said during a debate on the colonies.

"Americans are faced with a problem which they cannot solve—or how to sell goods to a world which has no dollars to buy them.

"There is only one solution to the world's economic disaster which is approaching and that is for Americans and Canadians to find some way to come into the sterling economy with free, interchangeable currency, as this country in the 19th century went into America after the civil war built up American economy."

STIRLING

Stirling—Mr. J. C. McGee and son, the Reverend Wm. McGee, enjoyed a motor trip to Quebec City, and through the northern part of New York state.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Holden, and Mrs. Arthur Wilson of Halloway, spent a recent afternoon with Mrs. Janet Utman.

Mr. Douglas Luery has returned from Grimsby where he was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Farrell. He also visited Niagara Falls and St. Catharines.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGee, and family of Detroit, are spending a week camping at Oak Lake, and visited friends in Stirling.

Friends of Joan Johnson, daughter of Mr. Harold Johnson, Front St. W., will regret to learn that she underwent an operation in Belleville Hospital last Wednesday.

Miss Dora Rodgers, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital, has returned to her duties after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rodgers.

Centuries-Old Crystal Glass Stages Comeback

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stourbridge, England, July 22 (CP)—The centuries-old hand craft of crystal glass work is making a 20th century comeback in Britain—a comeback almost from the brink of extinction.

Britain's crystal glassware industry, now worth $5,000,000 a year, still relies on the skilled hands of the glassmaker as it did four centuries ago. No machines has been found to match the beauty, intricacy of the precision of hand-blown, hand-cut crystal.

The craft almost died out during the war when factories went into war production. But now government officials and industrialists are waging a campaign to keep it alive, to teach it to younger hands.

Modernized Furnaces

In the hot factories dotting this Worcestershire-Staffordshire border area the glassmaker of today is aided by modernized furnaces and cutting lathes. But he still blows the glass with his own breath, mounds it with hand tools almost unchanged in centuries and cuts intricate designs with little more than his eye to guide him.

His crystal, heavy and sparkling, which he boasts is "fit for royal tables," represents one of the few hand trades left in Britain. His ranks are small. Half a dozen "glasshouses" concentrated in the Stourbridge area employ no more than 22,000, about two-thirds of whom are glassmakers and decorators.

The war hit the little industry hard. Most factories switched from crystal to manufacture of radio tubes and other war materials. Skilled glassblowers and decorators with a knowledge gained from their forefathers, left and never returned.

Now there is a dearth of skilled labor in the industry, particularly in the branches concerned with cutting the glass.

To attract young men to the factories, lectures are given in schools, tours of glassworks are arranged for prospective recruits, posters are hung pointing out the high pay and security of the job. The government has granted deferment from compulsory military service up to 21 years of ago for young men apprenticing to the trade.

Four Injured In Car Collision Near Brighton

Four persons, occupants of two cars reported to have been in collision near Brighton, were admitted to Belleville General Hospital Wednesday afternoon, all suffering from injuries ranging from severe bruises to fractured bones.

The injured are Mrs. Nadine Kruel, of Washington, Missouri, fractured foot; Mrs. Keena Baber, of the same address, several fractured ribs; Jack Hilf, Toronto, fractured ribs and Morris Finer, Toronto, bruises. Mr. Kruel suffered several cuts but was not admitted to hospital.

Details of the accident were not available today but Dr. Wilson of Brighton gave first aid at the scene, while Dr. E. M. MacDonald, attended at the hospital.

STORM-CENTRE

Now in retirement, J. A. (Pat) Sullivan precipitated the current seamen's strike when he resigned his presidency of the Canadian Seamen's Union during a 1946 shipping tie-up on the Great Lakes, claiming the C.S.U. was Communist-led. Sullivan formed the independent Canadian Lake Seamen's Union and signed contracts with several companies which had previously carried C.S.U. crews. He dropped out of an active role when the C.L.S.U. was absorbed into the more powerful Seafarers' International Union, an A.F.L. affiliate. Jurisdictional disputes between the new union and the C.S.U. led to the present deep-sea strike and a sympathy walkout by dockworkers in London and other British ports.—(CP Photo.)

George Baptiste Case is Enlarged

George Baptiste, Mohawk Indian Reservation, charged with causing a disturbance by obstructing police, will have his case tried on August 5th at Deseronto. The accused appeared in county police court today and asked for the enlargement.

The charge against Baptiste was laid following the disturbance which occurred in Deseronto two weeks ago when Police Chief Albert Marks and a member of the RCAF service police were mobbed by a group of Indians. The incident is said to have taken place when Chief Marks was taking a drunken Indian home.

Chief Marks and RCAF service police Therriault were admitted to hospital, as was Joseph S. Maracle, Deseronto Indian, who said he received a pistol bullet through the leg during the rumpus.

RAWDON

Rawdon. —Miss Teresa Forestell and her friend, Miss Margaret McKerral, have returned to their homes at Sudbury after spending the past two weeks with the former's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan.

Mrs. Alex Glover and Philip, of Belleville, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spencer and Marion, of Toronto, visited Rawdon relatives and attended the Spencer reunion at Searles Beach.

A special meeting for Rawdon circuit was held Wednesday evening at Mount Pleasant Church Hall. It was decided to dispose of the Rawdon circuit parsonage on Front Street, Stirling, and purchase a modern home on Mill St. It is understood the deal is about completed and that Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik will move to the new parsonage in September.

On Wednesday of last week Mrs. Merle Spencer entertained ten children to a delightful afternoon party. Among the guests were Misses Pauline and Barbara Holbert, Moira, who were holidaying with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Spencer.

Mr. John L. Bailey, one of Rawdon's pioneers, attended the L.O.L. celebration in Stirling.

Mrs. Irwin Reid underwent an operation in Toronto last week and is spending some time in the city.

Miss Barbara Ryan spent a couple of weeks in Toronto.

HALLOWAY

Holloway—Mrs. Rosie Spencer left Sunday for Toronto to spend some time with her niece, Mrs. M. Green.

Super Woman Sought by CNE

Toronto, July 22. (CP)—The Canadian National Exhibition is hunting for Canada's loveliest woman.

She must be a person who, as a wife and mother, provides for her family a rich and interesting life, yet is herself a vital and loving person.

Artists say she should have something of the stability and graciousness of women of the Maritimes; the gay vivaciousness and savoire-faire of chic Quebec; the alertness and good clothes-sense of women of Ontario; the free spirit of the westerners and the warm-heartedness of the female from British Columbia.

Alice Bradshaw, Canadian fashion artist, is drawing a composite picture of "the ideal woman". The picture will include as many of the pre-requisite qualities as possible. When complete, it will be published in newspapers across Canada and with it will go requets for names of women who come closest to resembling it.

The judges' selection will then be brought to Toronto as guest of the C.N.R. which opens August 26.

WEDDINGS

PARKS—LARGE

Emmanuel Church, Victoria Avenue, Belleville, was decorated with delphiniums and hydrangea for the marriage at 11 o'clock on Saturday, July 16, of Marion Amelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Large, Belleville, to Everett Sidney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Parks, of Massassaga. The Reverend W. Forest of Ottawa, performed the ceremony.

Miss Phoebe Wilder, of Belleville, rendered the wedding music and Mrs. S. Pomeroy, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "Because", and during the signing of the register "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a lovely picture in her bridal gown of white satin, featuring a low-cut bodice with net yoke buttoned up the back. The sleeves were long and tight-fitting, ending in points over the wrists. The peplum at the waist formed a bustle effect at the back with the skirt ending in a long train. Her embroidered veil of silk net fell from a halo of orange blossoms and seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red Sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern.

The maid of honor, Miss Bessie Boldrick, of Belleville, wore a floor length gown of pale yellow taffeta with cape sleeves and yoke of lace. The full skirt was caught with two lace rosettes showing a lace underskirt. Her headdress was of braided taffeta with lace rosettes. She carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses and fern, and wore matching lace mitts.

Miss Phyllis Large, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a floor length gown of powder blue taffeta with pleated collar and sleeves. Her headdress was of pink braided taffeta and rosettes. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and fern, and wore matching mitts.

Little Nancy Large, sister of the bride, was a sweet flower girl in her pale mauve organdy over mauve moire, having the bodice trimmed with a wide ruffle of same material. The skirt was ruffled and caught at intervals with tiny, yellow bows. A yellow satin ribbon sash, yellow gloves, and shoes, with a headdress of mauve organdy and mauve forget-me-nots, a nosegay bouquet of mauve sweetpeas, and yellow roses completed her ensemble.

Master Wayne Storms, nephew of the bridegroom, in long white flannels, and navyblue blazer, was train bearer.

Mr. Morris Parks, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and Mr. William Storms, brother-in-law of the groom, and Mr. Lawrence Large, uncle of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, wearing a gown of rose mesh with white accessories and corsage of mauve sweetpeas and fern, assisted by the bridegroom's mother in grey figured crepe with grey accessories, and corsage of mauve sweetpeas and fern, received the guests.

The bride's table was centred with the wedding cake, and the assistants were Mrs. K. Carr-Braint, Miss Kae Kerr and Miss June Young.

For travelling to Toronto, and points west, the bride chose a powder blue gabardine suit with white accessories and corsage of red roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Parks will reside in Parkwood Heights.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a black and gold evening bag; to her bridesmaid, a string of pearls and to her flower girl, a silver bracelet.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a chest of silver; to his groomsman, a leather key case; to the ushers, gold pen knives and to the train bearer, a gold signet ring.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Look Before You Leap" —Into Marriage

If there is ever a time to "look before you leap", I think it would be when proposed to by a man who would like to make you his third wife.

Naturally, it would depend on the circumstances which had left him without a wife the previous two times. If he had had the extremely bad luck to have lost two wives by death, that is one thing. But if, on the other hand, he had been divorced twice, that is something entirely different, and any woman who would marry under those circumstances without very careful investigation of the causes that precipitated the divorces has only herself to blame if things turn out badly.

When the woman in the case has already broken up one bad marriage herself, it is even harder to understand how she can become involved in the sort of mess described by one of my correspondents as follows:

"About fourteen months ago, I married a man 45. I am 41. This is my second marriage and his third. I had two children by my first husband, who was a woman chaser. I endured him for 17 years. Finally, when he went away with a woman for the sixth time, each time with a different one, I divorced him, and for two years supported both my children myself. Now my girl is 13 and with me. My boy is 18 and out on his own."

Before she married her present husband, this woman was told she would never have to work except for a few months, until their furniture was paid for. He told her he fully owned the home in which they would live, and had only about $300 in other obligations.

In the fourteen months the two have been married, this woman has worked steadily, and has handed over to her husband all her pay each week, except for a few dollars, the understanding being that he would pay off all his debts with this help from her. Presently she discovered, when bills began to come in, that not a cent had been paid on any one of them. When she asked her husband what had happened to all the money, he told her he had paid it on other bills. The amount she had given him in the time they had lived together was well over $3,000.

In despair and disillusionment, she left him, but his pleadings and promises to do better brought her back, and they started all over again.

"Now I find out he owes every store again," she writes, "and I don't know what to do. Besides all this, he is mean to my little girl, and is so untidy personally that I can't bear to have him touch me. What shall I. do, take my little girl and leave him, or what? I feel I have a right to some happiness. I have had to be a mother and work hard ever since I was seven years old, raising five brothers. I must decide what to do or go crazy. My doctor says my nerves are wrecked."

It would be a very strange thing if this woman's nerves were not wrecked, and since she has already proved to herself by the experience following the break-up of her first marriage that she is completely capable of supporting herself and her child, I think she is fully justified in leaving this worthless creature and making a decent life for herself. I doubt very much if there is any chance at all that her husband has either the will or the ability to try and pull himself together. If he is such a weakling at 45, he is not likely to turn into a strong character at 46 or 47 or 48.

I hope she will leave him to shift for himself, and I hope even more earnestly that she will never again allow herself to be trapped in another ill-advised marriage.

How Shall She "Go About" Writing a Boy?

Dear Miss Faifax:

I am a junior in high school and am very much interested in a college freshman who is 18. I met him while working last summer and we have gone out once since then. He is in summer school and I would like very much to write him. How may I go about doing so, and also how may I get him interested in me?

J. B.

Dear J. B.:

I can answer the first part of your question but not the second.

The way to go about writing to someone is to take pen and paper, sit down at a desk and go to it. If you don't get any answer to your letter, then you'd be silly to write again.

As for how you can get this young man, or any other, interested in you, if I knew the answer to that question I could make a fortune. The best answer I can give is to make yourself as attractive and interesting as you can so that people, whether girls or boys, will enjoy your companionship. Beyond that, fate takes over.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Elliott opened their hospitable home for the monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Shannonville United Church on a recent Monday evening. A large number of members and visitors were in attendance, including the girls of the Sunshine Class of the Sunday School.

Mrs. Sam Elliott, president, graciously welcomed all to her home. The meeting opened in the usual manner with Mrs. G. Fraser at the piano. The devotions were taken by the new minister, the Rev. L. Scott. Mrs. Claude Clarke, group leader, was assisted by Mrs. Lorne Uens, who read the Bible lesson, and Mrs. Robert MacFarlane who read "Lesson Thoughts".

The girls of the Sunshine Class sang the theme song, and Miss Marjorie Millar and Miss Bernice Houston favored with a duet.

The minutes of the last meeting were given by the Secretary Mrs. C. Mastin, and adopted as read. Roll was called and answered by the reading of short, helpful clippings which had been distributed by the president. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Fred Barlow for a card of sympathy sent to her at the time of her sister's death. Mrs. Elliott read the W.A. Constitution and Miss Beatrice Uens showed a block of an autograph quilt, which the Sunshine Girls are planning to make. Money was received from many who desired to help the girls in this new project by paying to have their names put on the quilt.

Mrs. Stanley MacDonald and Mrs. Damon Hinchey reported for the parsonage committee, and all were in favoh of making the needed improvements.

After the close of the meeting, grace was sung, and refreshments served by the hostess and her assistants. A social time was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Stanley MacDonald kindly offered her home for the evening meeting on August 11.

BETHANY W.A. AND W.M.S.

Corbyvilel — Mrs. Frank Walker was hostess to the ladies of Bethany W.A. and W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of 16.

Mrs. Horace Casey was in charge of the W.A. worship service. A reading was given by Mrs. Harry Walker. and a solo, "Jesus Savior Pilot Me" by Mrs. Douglas Tummon.

Mrs. Wm. Casey took charge of the W.M.S. meeting. Following the secretary's and treasurer's reports, business was discussed. The roll call next month is to be answered with a verse pertaining to "harvest."

The next meeting is to be an afternoon meeting, and to be held at the home of Mrs. Horace Casey.

Mrs. Vernon Hamilton gave an linteresting program opened by meditation "Where your treasure is, there will be Your Heart Also." and Mrs. Russel Ritz gave a temperance reading.

Mrs. Horace Casey favored with a solo "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go."

Mrs. Wm. Clarke gave a review of the Study Book, "The Christian Church in China." Mrs. Madden gave also a brief address. After the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Several ladies from Mount Pleasant catered for dinners and lunches at the auction sale Monday at the Williams' farm. The proceeds will go to the church redecorating fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen were entertained to a housewarming and birthday party on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Demorest, of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleland Reid and children, Mr. and Mrs. Will Blair, of Trenton, visited Mrs. John Reid and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Ried, on Sunday.

The Reverend and Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik and Judy, of Rawdon circuit, left on Wednesday to spend their vacation at Wellington. There will be Sunday School at Mount Pleasant, Bethel and Wellmans each Sunday morning and on July 31st., the W.M.S. will be in charge of church service at Mount Pleasant. It is probable that one may be held at Wellmans. The pastor will return in time for services on August 14th.

Women Golfers Entertain Cataraqui Club

Members of the ladies' section of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club took the major prizes on the club links yesterday when the section entertained that of the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club, Kingston.

Following an enjoyable afternoon's play, Mrs. George Faulkner was awarded the prize for low gross with Mrs. G. Wonnacott winning low net. Mrs. J. Dent, Cataraqui, won the putting prize.

Officials and members of the home club ladies' section expressed their appreciation of the generosity of the local merchants for the donation of handsome prizes.

Red-letter event of the Quinte Club will be its annual Field Day scheduled for Saturday, August 6. Prominent players from all parts of Ontario are expected to attend.

The Cataraqui Golf and Country Club will hold its Field Day on Thursday, August 11. A large number of Belleville players will participate.

GARDENING IS GOOD EXERCISE

"Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how does your garden grow?" Did you start making victory gardens during the war, become so intrigued with contact with mother earth that you are keeping right at it? Good for you! More luck to you! May your kind increase by the millions. Feminine shapes then would be slithered down to neater lines.

Some of our cushion-sitters, complaining of the avoirdupois that is creeping up on them would do well to follow your example, Mary. They would improve their musculature by pulling up radishes, beets and turnips, plucking crisp green beans from the vines. They'd be doing good by their families, they'd take a nip out of the monthly grocery bill and their bending movements would stimulate their livers. Yasum, a sluggish liver has caused many sallow complexions, and upset beauty carts.

There is satisfaction in hard, outdoor work. You air-wash your lungs. You have a sense of exhilaration as sunlight packs you full of vitamins. If you have never known much about growing things you will have a new interest. It is fun watching buds burst forth, more fun when they develop into good things to eat.

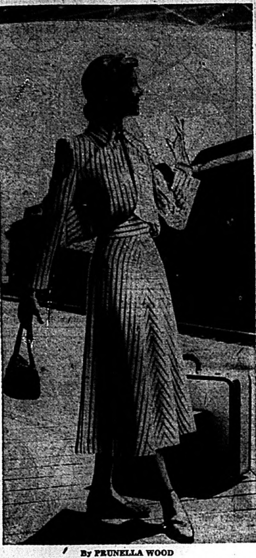
Being close to the soil takes a little beauty toll, of course. Your hands are likely to suffer unless you give them extra care and you should protect your complexion and hair from over-exposure to strong sunlight. If you collect freckles, don't use soap and water on your face just before going out of doors or directly after coming in. Apply a soothing cream; let it remain on for a time before removing it and laying on the glorifying makeup. A foundation cream and an oily powder will serve as protective measures against the sun's too ardent caresses. It is well, now and then, at bedtime, to lave the flesh with a mild bleach made by combining equal portions of strained lemon juice and peroxide.

Wear a broad-brimmed hat.

Wear a broad-brimmed hat to shade the complexion, and to protect the hair that is liable to sunburn, the same as the skin. The result shows not only in color changes and streaks, but in the character of the shafts. They become dry and brittle. An oil treatment before the shampoo will recondition the growth. Apply mineral oil to the scalp the night before the shampoo.

When you bring your daily harvest into the house, wash your hands thoroughly. Fluff up a strong suds and add yellow cornmeal; the tiny kernels will dig the dark lines out of your knuckles Apply a lotion. Once a week give yourself a hand massage. Cocoabutter or lanoline is a good medium for this treatment.

Teen-Age Traveler



By PRUNELLA WOOD

One of those new fabrics of cotton and rayon which has a linen look is used for this teen age suit for hot weather wear. It is inexpensive and pretty, with stripes of tan or navy on white, or with green on an ecru ground.

The skirt has a nice flair, and so has the back of the long sleeved jacket which curves up in front over the skirt's high waistband. A comfortable travel outfit, it is also a good church-going choice for the weekend in town or country.

Hints on Making Good Tea

(By KAY REX)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 22, (CP)—A tall, cool glass of iced tea is the ideal refreshment to serve in the garden of a summer evening. It also is an excellent beverage to serve at gatherings such as weddings, garden parties, bridge club gatherings.

But preparation of 50 glasses can become a problem if the housewife is not used to making such large quantities.

In its pamphlet, "Meeting Over Tea", the Tea Bureau suggests a home-made tea bag should be made by cutting a piece of cheesecloth 20 inches square. Measure 1 1-4 cups of tea into the square of cloth, bring the ends of the cloth together and tie with a long string, leaving plenty of room for the tea to expand. This is enough tea for 50 cups.

When iced tea is being made, fill the bag with 1 1-2 cups of tea leaves. Put this into a large, warmed container and pour over it one-half gallon of furiously boiling water.

When the tea has brewed for 10 minutes, remove the tea bag. Add 1 1-2 gallons of cold, fresh water.

To serve a glass of iced tea, first put ice into a glass, fill the glass with tea and serve with a thin slice of lemon on the side. Add simple sugar syrup to taste.

(Make syrup by heating equal parts of sugar and water together until sugar dissolves.)

The Tea Bureau has five golden rules for tea-making.

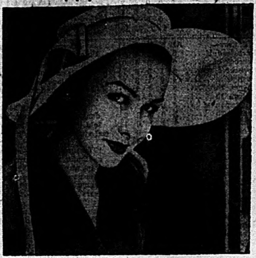
1. Use good quality tea— it produces better tea and yields more cups to the pound.
2. Bring freshly drawn water to a strong bubbling boil. Overboiled water or merely hot water will make tea taste flat and insipid.
3. Heat the pot or tea-making receptacle.
4. Measure the right amount of tea—for small quantities, one teaspoonful for each person, and one for the pot, gives the best results.
5. In a small teapot it takes a full five minutes to develop the true flavor of a perfect cup of tea, but longer than this for large amounts.

Raisin Drops are excellent to serve with afternoon tea.

Ingredients: 1 1-2 cups brown sugar; one cup lard or butter; three eggs; one teaspoon cinnamon; three cups flour; pinch of salt one cup cooked raisins; one cup nuts; one teaspoon soda; one-third cup hot water; one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream sugar and butter, add beaten eggs, dissolve soda in hot water, add flour, cinnamon, vanilla, then add floured raisins and nuts. Drop from spoon on greased tins. Bake in hot oven.

Happy Medium Hat



By ALICE ALDEN

The well-handled hat that strikes a happy medium between the casual number and the more-dressy sort of thing, is a good buy for wear with everyday summer things. Emme designed a good summer casual hat not in the usual felt but in white balibuntal straw. The spool crown is banded with gold grosgrain ribbon accented in front with a sequinned snowflake of lace and trailing long streamers over one shoulder.

New York Woman Probes Problems Of Single Folk

By MARIENNE IZSAK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York (CP).—Her name is Hilda Holland but it should be Cupid. Her main aim in life is to get as many spinsters as possible mated with the right kind of bachelors.

She says there ought to be an organization called SSU—Selective Service for the Unmarried or SOS—Select Our Spinsters.

She thinks a 'chain of accredited centres where people could meet and where applicants' background characteristics and requirements would be recorded, would be just the thing for any or recalcitrant people. She believes it would do away with 'charlatan marriage bureaux'.

Mrs. Holland herself divorced, is interested in the reasons people don't marry. Working with Norman E. Himes, she conducted a survey. Among her findings

1. Men and women of 18 to 25 are more honest in admitting why they hadn't married than older persons.

2. Many persons don't marry because of fear of sex, of not making a success of marriage, of making the same mistakes their parents did.

3. The fact that persons with the same interests and backgrounds don't get into the same channels at an early age is a deterent to marriage.

4. Many men are afraid to marry because they feel they can't support a wife (some of the men quizzed who had this fear made over $5,000 a year),

Men and women are afraid to marry because their friends' marriages haven't turned out well.

Men and women who don't marry at some time or other are sick. Mrs. Holland says. "No one is really happy while single. A woman may be able to fill her spare moments but not her life."

When asked why she had not remarried, Mrs. Holland laughed and voiced an answer.

'I'm over 35,' she said, 'That's the age group that doesn't tell the truth.'

Results of Mrs. Holland's investigations are being published in a book entitled "Why Are You Single?" It is a collection of thoughts by doctors and laymen on marriage and "desertion from the marriage process".

The Mutual Life of Canada has announced that eight members of its Belleville Branch have qualified for membership in the Company's production clubs on their outstanding records in the Club Year recently closed.

They are: Messrs. D. G. Williams, S. R. Burrows, C.L.U., and P. P. Everett, Belleville;.. J. G. Jeffery and R. Gamble, Trenton; W. N. Hurst, Tweed; C. H. Burr, Picton, and P. C. McGuire, C.L.U., Branch Manager.

Qualification for Club membership requires not only the underwriting of a large volume of protection, but, more important, the writing from year to year of "quality" business, that is, life insurance that is continued in force. These two factors, combined with a high personal standard of confidential service to policyholders, earn this recognition for Mutual Life representatives.

Brockville Shortstop Bobbles Batawa into 11th Inning Win And Third Place in Standing

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

It so happened that the shortstops of the Brockville Memoes and Batawa Shoemen staged an Alphonse-Gaston act in an exchange of pay-dirt errors at the Fair Grounds last night but the Memoes' bobble came at the most inopportune time with the result his miscue presented the Shoemen with a 5-4 victory and a spot in third place in the C.O.B.L. standing.

In fact, M'sieu Atkins, who shorts for the St. Lawrence River crew broke up a beautiful pitcher's duel that had lasted eleven innings when he fumbled and juggled a Texas Leaguer in the Batawa half of the eleventh that sent a Batawan scampering across the plate like a scared rabbit with the winning marker.

Unfortunately for Brockville, Atkins' error came when it was most needed—by Batawa. Back in the seventh with the Shoemen leading 3-1 and Gordie Muffitt hurling beautiful ball and apparently coasting in to a well-deserved victory, "Mouse" Bush handed the Memoes a couple of tallies that tied up the ball game and the boys teed off from the first hole all over again.

Muffitt had forced the first two batters to ground out. Then Ashley and Seeley got the fourth and fifth Brockville hits respectively. Muldoon bounced a bounding ball that hopped and staggered toward Bush. The "Mouse" juggled it and by this time both runners were in rapid motion and eventually crossed the plate with the tying runs.

Hurling Duel.

Gordie Muffitt and 16-year-old "Tommy" Tomlinson of Brockville hurled baseball that was good enough in any man's league despite the fact that the Shoemen erred five times as against the Memoes four. Muffitt let the Brockville bludgeons down with seven hits over eleven innings, struck out eight and issued but two passes. It was his best mound effort of the year.

The youthful Brockville southpaw also turned in a fine chore albeit he was touched for ten hits and struck out seven with two walks. He could have won as easily as he lost.

The Batawa bats gave Muffitt the first run in the second and added two more in the third. Brockville narrowed the margin with a single run in the fourth and then came the pair of hits and Bush's error in the seventh to tie up the score.

Both Muffitt and Tomlinson settled down and hurled runless ball until the eleventh when Brockville pushed over their fourth run to take the lead.

Gerry Wagar, pinch-hitting for Rankin rapped out a single to start the Batawa half and went to second on Muffitt's sacrifice. Beckstead fired his first hit of the game to score Wagar with the batter reaching second on an attempted plate putout. The Brockville catcher had Wagar tabbed at that but dropped the ball. Spencer looped out a high Texas Leaguer back of second base. Beckstead with two out was away with the crack of the bat, and when the Brockville shortstop obligingly dropped the ball, coasted home with the winning run.

Spencer and Mac Watson blasted out a pair each for the winners with Bridgeman getting a double and Bush a triple. Seeley and Dafoe rapped out two each for the losers.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Intermediate groups of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, the "forgotten men" of football, hope to be welcomed back into the Canadian Ruby Football Union this year and have their champions recognised as Dominion title-holders with haughty looks and disdainful glances on the part of CRU officials chucked into the discard.

That is what tall bespectacled Bill Fry, former vice president, and now secretary-treasurer of the Intermediate ORFU told this corner yesterday when he dropped in on an unofficial visit to this city, "his former home town."

"The master-minds of the CRU abolished such petty trifles as junior and intermediate Dominion football championships way back in 1934," the former Belleville insurance man, who now gets his mail at Agincourt, Ont., said. He has been connected with ORFU activities since he left this city fifteen years ago.

"Last year," he said, "that august body which apparently hasroom only in its money-minded noggin, for the senior gridders condescended to recognise the junior ORFU champions, but it was no soap as far as our groups were concerned."

Fry stated that the Ontario Intermediate body had been in contact with the Quebec Football Union (intermediate) and the organization has agreed to toss in its assistance in an effort to gain recognition of intermediate champions by the CRU. Cobourg won the Dominion Intermediate championship last year, but in name only. It is definintely not recorded on the official books of the CRU.

• • •

Fry contended the CRU "paid too much attention to the moneyed senior teams and the metropolitan centres. Small towns which can boast intermediate entries only have as much right to be recognized as the star-packed teams in the upper brackets." "In fact," he added, "the small fry of football, as intermediate and junior squads are dubbed are the only amateurs in the game. Cobourg, to my knowledge was the only team in the ORFU Intermediate Group that finished slightly out of the 'red' last year. And they had to win a Dominion (unofficial) title to do that."

Senior football teams in Canada, Fry said, might better spend some of those '$10,000' chunks of money they toss out every year to bring in, train and equip some of those golden glamor boys of the gridiron from the USA on the furtherance of junior football squads at home.

"Brother," he exclaimed "imagine how far ten thousand bucks would go towards financing a junior squad."

Four groups will operate in the intermediate ORFU this year, Bill said. In the eastern group will be Cobourg, Trenton, RCAF Trenton and more than likely, Kingston. The central group will see Peterborough, Oshawa, Orillia and Oakville in action. Western Ontario will be represented by Sarnia, London, Chatham and Wallaceburg with teams from the Niagara Falls District playing under the colors of Niagara Falls, Dundas and others.

Jimmy Follwell ,of the Belleville Follwells, former football star of this city and points west has gone or is going to the Pacific Coast to open a new Dominion Entoymological Laboratory, we learned yesterday. Jim for the last three years has been physical and sports director at Ajax, in connection with the University of Toronto.

AN IMPROVEMENT, WOT?

Well, that's better. Basebll fans who trekked to the Exhibition Grounds last night to watch the Brockville Memos and Batawa Shoemen go through their diamond tricks were not disappointed. In fact they were pleasurably surprised. For despite the fact that some costly bobbles were committed by both squads, they saw one of the best ball games of the current COBL or any other loop season. The errors, two of them costly added but spice to the entree and for the first time in many a baseball week, the faithful remained in the pew until the second out in the eleventh innings of the overtime pastime.

An error nearly lost the game for Batawa, and by the same token it won the game for them with both shortstops holding leading roles. The Shoemen were breezing along behind some fine Gordy Muffitt hurling, with the score 3-1 and it appeared to be in the well-known container for the righthander. Two went down in the seventh when Ashly of Brockville lashed out a hit. Seeley drove him home with another clout and then it happened. "The Mouse" miscued on Muldoon's bounding hit to short and the tying run came home.

And so it went until the 11th frame. Then it happened again. Brockville shoved over what appeared to be the winning run in their half of the chukker. Mr. Wager (Gerry) pinchhitting whammed out a single and scored the tying run when the diminutive Beckstead, lashed out a grass-cutting hit to centre. He reached second on the throw to the plate. Peacock went down for the second out—and the fans chewed fresh gum in anticipation of another long drawn out game. But up strolled M'sieu Spencer. He looped out a towering Texas Leaguer. Atkins, Brockville shortstop raced over behind second to make the catch. It looked easy. The ball hopped, jumped and leaped out of his glove as Beckstead away with the hit raced across the plate for the winning run. It was drammer, kiddies, good to see.

Gordy Muffitt hurled one of the best games of his season scattering seven clouts and striking out eight. Sixteen year-old "Tommy" Tomlinson late of St. Mary's College, Ogdensburg, has all the earmarks of a starry southpaw of the future. The youngster, cool, as the proverbial cucumber turned in a fine mound exhibition despite the fact he was nicked for ten clouts. He whiffed seven. He has a fine style and delivery and should go places. He lost a tough game and it was through no fault of his that he was charged with the loss.

And while on the baseball subject, tonight sees the fast-travelling Picton Athletics team clash with Kiwanis Juniors at Exhibition Grounds. The "Spaniards" are riding high these days with three straight victories under their belts and right now they are sitting pretty in second place in the league standing. Kiwanis have lost their last three starts, the third one to Picton. And they're not feeling to happy about it. So tonight's fray should see some neat diamond pastiming with Dyer of Picton likely facing Semark of the junior squad. Game at 8:30.

Canadian Pulls Upset Win Over Aussie Net Star

By Pierre Dubois
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 22 (CP)—Brendan Macken of Montreal, whose inspired performance Thursday gave Canada her first match-triumph over Australia in Davis cup tennis competition, today returns to action in the doubles fixture of the North American Zone tie. The teams resume the five-match series deadlocked at one victory each.

Frank Sedgman squared the round in the other singles match Thursday with an impressive straight-set win over Henri Rochon of Montreal, Canada's No. 2 man. Sedgman also returns to action today, paired with John Bromwich, the ambidextrous captain of the Aussie squad.

Rugged Walter Stohlberg of Vancouver will pair Macken, Canada's No. 1 player in the tie who upset Billy Sidwell in the opening singles match. The Aussie's No. 2 player bowed to the 26-year-old Macken only after a five-set thriller of 56 games that lasted three hours.

Macken's victory surprised the invaders who had predicted they would win the tie easily without the loss of a match. Australia entered this year's tie with a record of four consecutive whitewashings over Canada since 1914.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Today I should like to emphasize the importance of swinging your club down to the ball inside-out across the direction line as pictured. A ball so hit, delivers the maximum of straight flight and at the far end of the shot such a ball has overspin that gives it a faint hook as the ball's momentum dies away. And, after hitting the ground, the overspin rolls the ball perhaps ten or fifteen yards farther than if it did not have this overspin. To make certain that you get an inside-out swing, you should think of starting your hands down s-l-o-w-l-y from the top. And by down, I mean almost straight down. Your hip and shoulder pivot will carry the clubhead out and around so that your clubhead will retrace the path it made when you swung it back, around and up. Again notice in this picture that with the head held in the fixed address position, our player's left shoulder is rotating upward, the left arm and club-shaft are virtually straight and the right shoulder is rotating under the chin, while the uncocking hands are delivering the full power of the wrist-lash to ball. If you're a slicer, the chances are that you're an outside-in hitter with your hands ahead of the clubhead at impact.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 22 (CP)—Ever since sports promoters started to charge admission, sport has been big business.

Individual sportsmen cultivated little mannerisms and idiosyncracies which had crowd appeal, and variations of games were tried to make sure the fans didn't become bored.

But it looks to Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle as though the sporting world is taking the final step which will make it a blood brother to the Wall Street corporations.

"It seems to me," says Andy, "the trend in sports business is toward collectivism and front office brass at the expense of individualism. A manager or coach is a sort robot, motored from the front office and pulled, as he operates, by invisible and oppressive strings. He goes through certain mechanical motions, but has learned that the less expression he puts into his work, the more he gratifies someone higher up who resents ink being spilled, in a publicity way, over anyone but himself."

Cites Example

As an example Andy points out that the old-fashioned types of coach and manager seemed to have disappeared. The explosive, fire-spitting coaches who prodded their teams along with a few searing adjectives have been replaced by signal-wagging, amiable bunch who sometimes even make friends or umpires.

"Yet I can recall, in hockey, when the flame-throwing hell-raiser-seemed as essential to the game's progress as a fine centre player or a good three-man line," writes Lytle. "There was a pretty fair light heavy boxer named Pete Muldoon who managed the Seattle team for a time. Pete, although he knew less about hockey than I do about the amorous habits of the tapir, was a successful hockey coach because he and nobody else ran the club, and one of his main assets as a coach was an ear-searing vocabulary unmatched by any of his contemporaries."

Right Around Home

Clarence (Hap) Day, coach of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team, inconspicuously sweats and pushes the Leafs into enough National Hockey League finals to rate a place in a spotlight every time the Leafs play at the Gardens, but, says Andy, "the only time we, as interested bystanders, think of Day in connection with the hockey Leafs is when (general manager Conn) Smythe releases periodic statements that he's the best coach in the business."

Ike William's Potent Fists Stop Bolancos in World Lightweight Bout

By BOB MEYERS

Los Angeles, July 22. (AP)—The championship dream of Mexico's Enrique Bolanos lay in shambles today, broken to bits by the devastating fists of deadpan Ike Williams, lightweight champion of the world.

Bolanos went down and out before a furious fusillade of punches in the fourth round of their scheduled 15-round clash Thursday night. A crowd of 18,000 paid $108,274 to see the scrap.

It was Enrique's third crack at the Trenton, N.J., Negro and his third defeat at the hands of the 25-year-old champion, and undoubtedly his last.

The Mexican fighter weighed 133 and Williams 135.

This was not the same Williams who took 15 rounds to win a split decision over Bolanos in May of last year. Nor was it the Williams who stopped the then green challenger in eight rounds in 1946.

This was a Williams who walked out and started swinging away almost before the echo of the opening gong at Wrigley Field.

Champion Ike showed from the start that he intended to finish the chore quickly, to erase the memory of those 15 rounds when he took a stomach beating from Enrique a year ago.

The end came in sight early in the third when Bolanos" left eye started closing from the champs' jolting right smashes.

Later, George Parnassus, Bolanos' manager, claimed his boy had been "thumbed" in the eye in the second round. But Referee Jack Dempsey said he didn't see any foul play with the thumb.

Sky Falls

Bolanos persuaded his corner to let him go out for the fourth. Half blind. he battled on even terms for the first minute, striving to hurt Ike just once. He connected but that was all.

Then the sky fell on Bolanos. Williams uncorked a withering left hook. Enrique sagged and dropped to both knees. Dempsey the old time heavyweight idol, began counting. Bolanos tried to rise at six, and was on his feet at nine.

Williams closed in quickly, driving home a series of rocking blows to the head and body. Bolanos bled freel·· at the nose and mouth .He collapsed again under the beating.

Simultaneously, Dempsey and Enrique's handlers halted the proceedings, with 20 seconds left in the round.

Williams, from the outset was much faster, more business-like than last year and was much stronger.

Bolanos inflicted no apparent damage at any time.

Palica Hailed as Dodgers' New 'Casey' as Flatbush Fusiliers Open Vital Series With Cards

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Erv Palica is hailed as "the new Casey" in Brooklyn where the hard-pressed Dodgers today open a vital four-game series with St. Louis Cardinals.

Day after day Palica is waved from the bullpen to save the skin of a regular Brooklyn starter just as Hugh Casey used to do. Erv worked in seven of the last 11 Dodger games, winning four and losing one when the decision has gone his way.

Ironically enough, he copped his seventh victory of the season Thursday because Casey, the old Brooklyn fireman, failed to stop a Dodger uprising. Luis Olmo, who may be the prize of the returning Mexican jumpers, nicked Casey for a game-winning pinch-hit single that supplied Brooklyn's 7-6 edge over Pittsburgh.

The Dodgers really needed that triumph over the Pirates because the Cardinals 3-1 victory over Boston already was posted on the scoreboard. Now with a 2½-game lead, they can't lost first place unless they blow the whole series.

Harry Brecheen lifted the Cards over Boston, 3-1 with a five-hitter while the Birds handed Johnny Antonelli, the Braves' $70,000 bonus dandy, his fifth loss. Antonelli has been beaten by the Cards four times in his brief career.

Enos Slaughter warmed up for Brooklyn with two singles and a double but Stan Musial went hitless in five starts.

Bobby Thomson led the New York Giants to their fourth straight victory with a pair of homers and a double. The Scot from Staten Island drove in six runs off Herm Wehmeier, Ed Erautt and Ewell Blackwell in the Giants' 9-5 triumph.

Yankees Win.

Hank Borowy, apparently making a career of beating Chicago since the Cubs traded him to the Phils, turned back his old mates for the fifth time, 8-4. Borowy was hit hard but weathered the storm for his ninth victory.

New York Yankees took the rubber game of the Cleveland series, 5-3, stretching their American League lead to 5½ games on Vic Raschi's 15th victory.

Raschi, who has lost only three, scattered eight hits. Once again Joe DiMaggio was the big man, driving in two runs with a single that sparked a three-run rally against loser Early Wynn in the third.

The revived St. Louis Browns finally came to the end of their six-game win streak in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader with Philadelphia but not until they had broken loose with an 11-run inning.

With Roy Sievers hitting a grand-slam homer, the Brownies scored 11 runs in the sixth inning of their 15-2 twilight win over Dick Fowler. They were nosed out in the second game, 3-2, on Hank Majeski's game-winning triple in the eighth inning as Alex Kellner registered win No. 13.

Detroit slammed out 14 hits, including homers by Pat Mullin, Dick Wakefield and George Vico, to whip Washington 6-3. Freddie Hitchinson, relieving Ted Gray in the fourth, worked 5 1-3 scoreless innings for his sixth win. Rae Scarborough was the loser.

The Boston-Chicago game was rained out in the American.

Ontario Senior Baseball Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

The fourth-place Niagara Falls Fords know how to take advantage of errors.

They did it Thursday night and a desperate slide by pinch-hitter Johnny Laslo in the ninth inning gave them a 7-6 victory over the Niagara Falls, N.Y., Bugays in a Niagara district senior baseball game.

In a senior intercounty game, London Majors strengthened their hold on fourth place by trimming the fifth-place Brantford Red Sox 8-2 at London.

In a nickel belt senior league righthander Gordon Luck won his sixth victory as his Creighten Cubs edged out the Frood Tigers 5-4 in 10 innings at Sudbury.

It was Pete Losina's error at first base that gave the Fords their chance to cinch the game. They succeeeded in loading the bases with two men out before Laslo made his dash.

The Fords moved into the ninth frame leading 6-1 and managed to stem a Bugay's threat only after five runs were tallied.

At London, Tommy White started on the mound for the Majors and limited the Red Sox to eight scattered hits. Opposing hurler Al Gavey held the Majors to two hits and one run for the first five innings, and then gave up a single, double and triple . . good for three runs.

The Cubs tallied one run in the first inning, one in the third, two in the fifth and then got the winning marker in the tenth. The Tigers tallied one in the first, two in the second and one in the eighth innings.

Two games are scheduled in the Nickel Belt League tonight: Garson Greyhounds meet Coniston Buzzers and Copper Cliff Redmen clash with Sudbury Shamrocks. In the Niagara District league, St, Catharines Stags clash with the Bugays.

FOUND BLOOD PRESSURE

In 1773, Dr. Stephen Hales, an Englishman, discovered that the blood had a pressure and was the first to measure it.

Stewart Warner, Anti Tank Win Softball Games

Garry Lewis's line drive home run to left field in the bottom of the eighth inning last evening knocked Howe and Hagerman out of the playoffs and gave Stewart-Warner a bitterly contested 6-5 game. In the nightcap Hank Hazard, peppery catcher for Anti-Tank, stole home in the bottom of the sixth to give Anti-Tank a 10-9 victory over Energetic Club and move them out of the league basement.

Howe and Hagerman needed the win to keep their playoff hopes alive. They ganged up on Alemite starter Dracup for three hits, three walks, and an error for five runs in the second frame to take a four run lead.

Alemite counted their second run in the bottom of the second on two errors and a sacrifice, counted a third in the fourth on two more errors and punched over the equalizers in the sixth on a walk and two singles.

Howe and Hagerman put two men aboard in their end of the seventh with one away and failed to score. With Doyle on third and Adams on second, Cross unloaded a line drive to centre field that set both runners in motion, but Hammett came charging in to make a shoestring catch to force the runners back. Tomaso popped out to third to retire the side.

A double play nipped an Alemite rally in the seventh and in the eighth the plumbers put two more men aboard without being able to score. With two away in the bottom of the eighth, Lewis came to bat and lined the first pitch served up to him into left centre field for the ball game.

Adams went the route for the losers walking two, striking out four and being tagged for six hits and six runs. Dracup notched his fifth win for Stewart-Warner, walking nine, striking out six and giving up seven hits for five runs.

Howe and Hagerman left 14 runners stranded during the eight inning game.

In the nightcap Anti Tank fought an uphill battle with Energetic Club finally coming off with a 10-9 win on the strength of Hazard's theft of home in the bottom of the sixth. The win moved the gunners out of a last place tie with Energetic and broke their season long win famine. It was another defeat for Energetic making them the only club in the loop which has failed to win a game to date.

Anti Tank took a two run lead in the bottom of the first stanza that was eclipsed by three Energetic counters in the top of the third. The teams paired runs in the fourth and Energetic took what looked like a deciding lead in the fifth by pouring over five runs on three hits, three errors, and a fielder's choice.

Anti Tank rallied for six counters in their end of the fifth to tie up the score. Four singles, two doubles, and a triple rattled off the tankers bats as 11 men came to the plate. In the sixth Hazard singled to open the frame and worked his way to third as two men went down. Then he came sliding in with what proved to be the winning run.

Wright went all the way for the winners striking out four, walking one, and being hit for 10 safeties and nine runs. Hopkins toiled vainly for losers striking out seven, walking three, and giving up 11 hits and the ball game.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When you play bridge you try to win. To win you need the most number of points. To win the most number of points you strive to reach contracts that pay the most.

Bonus points are paid for contracts that reach game or slam. Therefore, every good bidding system includes rules that help a pair to reach game or slam. The aim is to collect the bonus points.

The basics are primarily pointed toward arriving at the safest games. To these are added special features, known as conventions, with which the system is extended to investigate slam.

In any deal a player may hold nothing or a gob or anything in between these two. If he opens the bidding, what does he show? The type of hand that may reach a game with what partner may hold.

An opening of two no-trump shows a hand that contains seven or eight high cards. If he has only seven, his hand is such that it may produce one more trick with some card other than a high.

A game in no-trump requires the taking of nine tricks. Therefore, to reach a game of three no-trump, partner needs one high card. By a high card is meant an ace or a king or a queen.

With such a high card, even a queen, partner should not pass. He has the ninth trick needed for game with what the opener has promised. He should help reach a game in no-trump, at least.

South opens with two no-trump when holding this hand:

♠A 10 9 5
♥A K J
♦K Q 6
♣A Q 9

He has seven high cards. His jack of hearts may produce a trick. Or his ten and nine of spades may produce the eighth trick. He needs only one more trick for game and hopes partner has it.

If north has one high card it would be a queen or king or ace. With either, partner should not pass. The least he should do is bid three no-trump. What a partner will share must be held by the pair.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 22 — (AP)—Yvonne De Carlo of Vancouver, a girl who likes to travel, plans a fall European trip, during which she'll entertain United States troops in Germany.

The shapely star says she'll motor through the continent and also visit D.P. camps in Austria. She plans to write articles on conditions there. She has been invited to visit Egypt and Turkey.

"With all my exotic roles, they probably think I'm one of them," says Yvonne.

The gal is underweight, but has little chance of regaining the poundage during "Buccaneer's girl." She has five big fights in the film. I watched her do one with Andrea King, and the girls pulled no punches.

The wardrobe department has a monunmental chore on this film. a monumental chore on this film. a boy. 'Twil' be a neat trick. But it was done with Jane Russell in "The Paleface."

Friday Footnotes

Betty Grable's good films lately have been with Dan Dailey, so the pair will do a repeat, probably in the fall. . .

Robert Keith left "Mister Roberts" on Broadway to do a part in "My Foolish Heart." He'll return to the long-run show, which he says continues at capacity business.

What next? Carmen Miranda is sporting umbrellas on her towering headdress for "Nancy Goes to Rio". . .

Indications of better times for actors: 92 players are on M.G.M.'s latest contract list, biggest total in some time. . .

Pamela Britton (she chased Frank Sinatra in "Anchors Aweigh") is back in films after three years in "Brigadoon." She's in "Key to the City". . .

Fred Astair next teams with Red Skelton to play Tunesmiths Kalmar and Ruby in "Three Little Words." Fred says his prize nag, Triplicate, is through racing and is doing well at stud.

Dempsey-Allen To Scour Canada For Heavyweights

Los Angeles, July 22—(AP)—Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey and veteran boxing promoter Jack Allen of Toronto soon will begin scouring the broad miles of Canada in search of heavyweight fighters.

Allen conferred today with Dempsey on plans for an all-Canadian Heavyweight Boxing Tournament which will be launched at Toronto Septmber 19.

The object is to unearth a Canadian worthy of going after the World Championship vacated by Joe Louis.

"We have about 20 prospects lined up now, and we expect to have between 60 and 100 young fighters in the tournament,' Dempsey said.

Allen said the tournament will be staged in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, with a seating capacity of 15,000 for boxing matches.

Dempsey if any prospects look exceptionally good a training camp may be set up in Canada, with experienced trainers on hand to school the boxers.

Six Boats Enter For Famous Harmsworth Race

(By The Canadian Press)

A field of six boats is prepared for the Saturday test at Detroit that will determine which three will represent the United States in the Harmsworth International speedboat regatta this month.

A lot of edge was taken out of the race when Achille Castoldi, the Italian challenger, withdrew this week from the July 29-30 race because he was unable to get his boat ready.

That left E. A. Wilson, of Ingersoll, Ont., as the only challenger for the trophy, but he is rated a most worthy one. Wilson has built a new boat, Miss Canada IV, for the race, and also may use his Miss Canada III.

My Sweetie, owned by Horace Dodge of Detroit and winner of the gold cup race on the Detroit River course July 4, is rated a favorite among the American contenders.

The 58-year-old Dodge indicated he would pilot the boat himself with Wild Bill Cantrell, who drove My Sweetie in the Gold Cup, assigned to pilot Dodge's second boat, Lotus.

Two wealthy Californians, R. Stanley Dollar and Henry Kaiser, have crews busy tuning up their craft. Kaiser has entered his Aluminum I while Dollar will shoot his Skip-Along.

The other contenders are Astraea, owned by Cameron Peck of Chicago, and Such Crust I and Such Crust II owned by Detroiter Jack Shaeffer.

Tom Brook, President of the Canadian Champion Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, said Thursday at Calgary his team definitely will not play Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four in a pre-season exhibition game in Ottawa.

He was commenting on a report from Ottawa which said Rough Rider officials were in communication with the Calgary club on the possibility of a mid-August exhibition game in Ottawa's Lansdowne Park.

At Quebec, Gene Letourneau, chief examiner of the Quebec Boxing Commission said Thursday night the commission has lifted a six-months suspension on Toronto boxer Teddy Swain.

Swain was suspended when he failed to appear for a bout in Quebec against Ernesto Aguilar of Cuba July 4.

Plans are complete for staging of the Hamilton Power Boat Association outboard regatta Saturday afternoon.

Entries have been received from outboard owners in St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Windsor, London, Dunnville, Simcoe, Port Colborne, and many centres in the United States, as well as from the local organization.

Lorne Main and Walter Stohlberg, Vancouver Davis Cup tennis stars, said at Montreal Thursday they have entered the Dominion championships scheduled to be played in Halifax Aug. 1-6.

Nearly 150 power boats from the hydro-plane class to outboard motorboats from Canada and the United States will race in the annual Valleyfield Boating Club regatta at Valleyfield, Que., Saturday and Sunday, it was announced Thursday night.

The classic, to be raced on St. Francis Bay, is jointly sponsored by the Canadian Federation and the American Power Boat Association.

Paul Sawyer, whose 225-cubic-inch hydro-plane Belligero won all races in its class last year, is entered again.

Other entrants in this class include Johnny Haineault, Cornwall, Ed Pine, Belleville.

Wow! Listen, Score 74 Runs In Four Games

(By The Associated Press)

Good news for the baseball factories—International League clubs score 75 runs in four games!

One carload of new white baseballs is needed after Thursday night's furious action.

Jersey City and Syracuse led the run parade as the Little Giants made more hits and less errors to win a dizzy game from the Chiefs, 16-13.

The 'Lil Giants cuffed four Syracuse hurlers for 23 hits—five by Jack Lohrke—as Roger Bowman wobbled to his ninth pitching victory. He gave up 15 hits.

Syracuse committed six errors and the Giants four in the wild game which saw Carden Gillenwater, Sammy Meeks and Bob Usher hit home runs for the losers. Usher batted in six runs.

Rochester gained second place by outlasting Buffalo's league-leading Bisons, 14-9.

Dick Vole sparked a 15-hit attack on four Buffalo hurlers with two home runs and a single and driving in five runs.

Another circus saw the Baltimore Orioles score four times in the 14th inning to down the Newark Bears 10-6.

Al Widmar, the league's winningest pitcher, turned in a smart relief chore to pick up his 16th triumph against seven setbacks.

The cellar-dwelling Bears made six errors, two in the 14th, to help Baltimore to its 13th victory in 17 games.

The lone exception to the evening's nonsense was the Montreal-Toronto tilt which saw the Leafs gain a 5-2 decision from the Royals.

Chet Laabs knocked in four runs with a double and single to make Oscar Judd's ninth pitching triumph an easy one.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Satturday walk with pop, and pop said, Now there's a pitifil figure.

Meening a man in a car sitting there looking out the window kind of anxious, and I said, What's he looking for, pop?

He's looking for a needle of generosity in a haystack of selfishniss, pop said. He's looking for another driver to give him a push so he can get his motor started, and if nobody helps him out his whole outlook on life will be warped and he'll never help anybody elts out under similar circumstances, because selfishniss begets selfishniss and he'll tell himself that nobody ever helps him, so why should he help others? But if somebody lends him a helping hand, he'll always be reddy to retern the favor, because kindniss begets gindniss and he'll tell himself that it's up to him to do as others do in a good hearted werld. By gollies, the way his car is faced down grade, I beleeve I can fix up his whole future for him by giving him a push with my bare hands, pop said.

And he got in back of the car and leened agenst it and it started to roll, and the man quick put on his brakes saying, Hay, what's going on here? and pop said, You're waiting for a push, aren't you?

I'm waiting for my wife, and if she found me half ways down the block instead of rite here at the very spot she expects me, she'd be good and sore, the man said, and pop said, Oh, I see, give her my best regards.

And we kept on going, me saying, G, pop, what'll he tell himself now? and pop saying, He'll tell himself that even a kindly impulse can go haywire if you give way to it too hastily just to prove something.

Being what pop was probably telling himself.

Expect Decision On Rent Control In Autumn

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—Fate of rental controls moved towards a cabinet decision today as officials singled out Toronto, Ottawa and Edmonton as the three top crisis cities in Canada's housing shortage.

The Cabinet was reported due to decide before parliament meets in September whether to let the control lapse March 31 or to continue them in some form or other. The administrators in the prices board are proceeding on the assumption that they will end March 31 because of indications given by Finance Minister Abbott.

The problem in the two eastern cities is rooted in the lack of serviced land within the city limits and the reluctance of adjoining municipalities to permit projects until somebody provides them schools and services, said Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young, general manager of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. The problem in Edmonton is largely based on its tremendous rate of growth—around 10,000 newcomers yearly.

Gen. Young noted a falling off in the demand for more expensive houses across Canada. This was mainly due to shortage of cash for big down payments. Demand would swing upward sharply if down payments were in the $500 to $800 category, he said.

"For houses ranging between $12,000 and $15,000 demand has definitely reached the saturation point," he said. "It is possibly reaching that point, too, for houses costing between $8,000 and $11,000."

Demand for rental accommodation, however, was by no means satisfied, even in more expensive brackets.

SUICIDE IDENTICAL

Woodstock, July 22 (CP).—Police today identified William R. Irwin, 76, as the Ontario Mental Hospital patient who committed suicide Thursday by walking in front of a freight train. Coroner said there would be no inquest.

$20,000 Cheque Given By Noranda Mines For Athletic Assoc.

Rouyn, Que., July 22 (CP)—J. O. Dubois, treasurer of the Rouanda Athletic Association, said Thursday he had received a cheque for $20,000 from the Noranda Mines Ltd.

The Athletic Association is building the Rouanda forum, a recreation centre for the twin mining cities of Rouyn and Noranda and will launch a concentrated drive to sell shares in the project next week.

Mr. Dubois said he did not yet know if the cheque was an outright gift or was meant as payment for shares in the association.

The forum should be completed by fall, Mr. Dubois said.

Brighteners

Portsmouth, O., —(AP)—Rev. Marion Stiltner will have to preach to his flock without the aid of a loudspeaker.

Judge Fred. W. Everett Thursday ordered the loudspeaker silenced after Milo Mullins, who lives near the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ, complained that the minister's voice was "noisome and discomforting."

Elwood, Ill.—(AP)—Six members of a Bee Keeper's Club performed a honey of a job at the Graham Chapel, a rural church near here.

They donned sun helmets and mesh masks over their faces Thursday and killed some 60,000 bees which had blocked the front entrance of the church for three weeks, halting services.

Lloyd Ravenscraft, club president who headed the three-hour cyanide gas attack on the bees, said: "we took the sting out of the situation but preserved the honey."

London, (Reuters—The Sea Cadets stood stoically in the sweltering sun listening to Admiral Lord Mountevans recount his experiences on his last expedition to the South Pole.

Several of the boys collapsed from heat exhaustion. The Admiral suggested his audience sit in the share, then finished his story of the frozen wastes.

Rough Riders On Early Quest For Grey Cup

Ottawa, July 22—(CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders are Grey-cup hunting early this year.

Some 35 of them sweated under the watchful eye of coach Wally Masters Thursday as they started spring training.

As the players worked out on the field, club officials were working in the front office and announced:

1. They are winnig their tug-of-war with Edmonton Eskimos over former Hamilton tiger back Ralph Bartolini who is due to check in Tuesday. Bartolini earlier had gone west to play with the newly-formed Edmonton club.

2. Even if Calgary Stampeders could make it — which president Tom Brooke said in Calgary Thursday night they can't—there's no possibility of a pre-season game between the two clubs that clashed in the Dominion final last fall. Ottawa's Lansdowne Park won't be available. Riders may play Winnipeg Blue Bombers or Hamilton Tigers.

Three additions to this year's edition of the club that lost out to Calgary in last fall's east-west classic turned out for the practice. They were quarterback Andy Gordon, a United States import from Villanova University; outside wing Bill Stockman from the University of Toronto and halfback Bill Larochelle from the University of Western Ontario.

Four other American players—linemen Eddie Michaels, John Wagoner, Don Talcott and halfback Bob Paffrath—won't arrive in Ottawa until August.

Also out was star halfback Tony Golab who said he hoped to lose about 10 of the 218 pounds he's carrying.

1949 EXPANSION PROGRAM

We are enlarging our selling organization in Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Stirling, Deseronto, Madoc and surrounding areas. An opportunity of a lifetime.

If you are out of employment or if you feel your present position is unsatisfactory, we would like to talk to you.

We desire men 21 to 45 years of age. Selling experience not absolutely necessary as we will train you in our methods.

UNBIASED SCIENTIFIC APTITUDE TESTINGPLAN

Tells whether you possess the fundamental qualities necessary for successful salesmanship. You will enjoy taking this test. It is free and upon completion our factory representative will give you a personal interview. Should you qualify, we will give you the benefit of associating with an experienced salesman.

APPLY ROOM 117

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

She shrank against his arm on the dark stairway. A piercing scream had been borne out to them from behind one of many mysteriously closed doorways. Immediately one door was flung open on a floor above; a man ran out, and ran past them downstairs. A woman, silhoutted against light shouted after him.

"Tell him quick, Joe and don't bother about no ambulance!" this woman shouted. She closed the door with a resentful look at Chris and Fanny, and as they went on upward they heard the cry beginning again, a cry that had terror as well as pain behind it.

"Is it a baby, Chris?"

"I guess so, honey." They were in their own rooms that already looked so settled, that were already home, Chris slid his load down on the kitchen sink, and Fanny put her load down too. Her face was very serious as he put his arms about her. "I don't know any more about it than you do, sweet," he said.

They cooked their dinner together; Fanny setting the table neatly, lighting candles, coaxing a little bunch of wilted daisies to stand up in a pale blue glass.

"I'd sort of like to go downstairs and see if everything's all right with her," Fanny presently said.

"With her?"

"The woman that was crying."

"It seems to me I'd be kind of leery of getting friendly with-- However, you do as you like," Chris answered. "I love you," he said suddenly, watching her. "I love that blue dress. I love knowing your dresses, Fan, knowing that you don't like eggs, and that you sleep on your face--and the way your wrists are--thin, with veins, and the fresh way you smell when you've just brushed your hair and washed your face---"

"Do you darling?" Fanny murmured, her hands linked loosely about his neck. For he had come about the able to be beside her now, and was kneeling with one arm around her . She leaned forward and rubbed her face against his cheek.

"You're so fond of kids, Fan. But you were only one, weren't you?"

"Only one. My father died when I was less than two years old, and my mother when I was in high school. I used to walk home with two girls named Amy Leonard and Mary Price; this was in San Diego; and I can remember how good it used to feel to be sixteen and have such chums, and look down at the bay, walking home, and the gulls over at Coronado And I remember finding my grandmother at the house that afternoon--Amy and Mary and I'd been planning a surprise party for a girl named Muriel Moses, and I was so pleased to find my grandmother there--she lived in Los Angeles--

"My mother'd been badly hurt--she'd walked out between two parked cars just in front of the market, and a truck was backing up--At first they thought that she was alright, and she went home in a taxi, and telephoned my grandmother, and told the maid I wasn't to be frightened.

"She talked to us; she seemed all right. But she died that night."

"We get married," Chris mused his arm still about her, "and we don't know much about each other".

"You were an only son, Chris."

"Yep but my mother's living --and Anna. You know. I told you. My mother married again, she lives in Bellingham now, way out in Washington. She's fine," Chris said affectionately, "and Anna's a peach! wish I could have seen you in your middy blouse and sweater. Fan, walking home with the --what's-their-names."

"Amy and Mary. Mary's married now living in Texas. But I never hear from Amy. And I'm married, too, and living in New York on nothing a year."

"That's right; it's Saturday night. Let's go to it and see where we stand."

This was an enjoyable rite, involving as it did pencils, scrap paper, Fanny's list of prices from the chain stores, Chris's imposing account book. Tonight, just after their move, it was especially exhilarating. They were in the new home, with a month's rent paid, and they had Fanny's little heap of silver on one end of the table, Chris's salary envelope intact on the other, and three dollars or more in the pig. They had somewhat lost track of what was in the pig, and would not know until either their deposits or their impatience burst his china sides open, but they were sure there could not be less than three dollars within him. While they settled their weekly budget Boris, the pig, always lay on the table between them; bland, pale brown, in an attitude of somnolent relaxation.

"Twenty-two ten, not counting Boris," Chris announced.

"Chris we haven't!"

"I say we have."

"Oh, Alla!" exalted Fanny, her eyes shinning. Presently, recalled, she began busily on menus; this afternoon's shopping had give her a wondered start. "Tomorrow, pot roast," she murmured; "Monday, meat pie from pot roast. Tuesday, soup from pot roast. Breakfast, eggs and sausages. We have coffee, we have sugar, we got butter----"

"Fan, you don't suppose it's going on like this?"

"How 'like this'?"

"Well, hand to mouth, as it were. We've been married nine weeks, and I'll be darned,' Chris said mildly, rubbing his chin on her hair, pony fashion, "if I know how we do it!"

"We can do it indefinitely," said Fanny. "But how perfectly stupefying it would be if I really got a really good job, Chris, on the radio; I mean fifty a week, say. Loads of people do, and I've at least got a start. And then, if you got a raise, or a case---"

"If Mockby took me to Florida on the Bucknell case."

"Chris!" The thought electrified her; she fell to day-dreaming over her list of yellow turnips apples, cornstarch, vanilla. "Our table costs us about four-and-a-half a week, Chris," she told him. "And we eat enough, don't we?"

"Eat enough! I eat twice too much.' He was very brown and handsome, smiling at her; his teeth when he smiled showing white in his dark face.

"Madge might be here in a day or two, Chris," Fanny said suddenly, following a line of thought that contemplation of him often suggested.

"So you said."

"Shall you feel funny, meeting her, Chris?"

"No." He gave her a surprised look. "Why should I?"

"Well," Fanny said marking the red-checked table runner with a fork, "you were crazy about her, you know."

"Well, heavens--last year! That all seems like baby talk now, Fan."

Fanny said nothing, and presently Chris asked curiously:

"Anything make you think she isn't well over it?"

"No-o-o!" Fanny answered hastily.

"As a matter of fact," Chris said touching up his account look lovingly, laying his head to one side to get the effect of the last neat entries, "as a matter of fact, Madge didn't have the crush; I was the one. She's a flirt, you know: look at the way she's treated Mack. He's the one that won't want to see her, but you watch her get hold of him again."

"Do you think she's so attractive, Chris?"

"Madge. Sure she's attractive. She's got something that makes men go crazy. It isn't that she's pretty. But she's a sort of . . . Helen of Troy; a sort of tradition among the fellers; every one of them wants her as soon as he sees her!"

Again Fanny made no comment. She was fussing with the melted wax at the candle tip now, forcing it about with a fork, pushing it up into a cuff about the flame.

"I'm glad we got the new place before she came," Chris remarked.

There was a stir in the hall; a laugh outside and a tap.

"Who is it?" Chris got up, in the bare little room with the guttering candles and wide-opened uncurtained windows, and went to the door. He opened it, laughed; Fanny heard him gasp with surprise.

Madge, rather pale, laughing excitedly, breathless from the climb, was framed against the one feeble glow of light on the landing.

"It is you!" Madge exclaimed. "I didn't know what kind of den I'd gotten into! I was scared to death!"

She put her hand on Christopher's shoulder, raised her lovely face.

"I'm back!" she said. "You knew Mack and I broke it off? You had my letters? Kiss me!"

Afterward she came over to kiss Fanny; the girls arms were tight about each other, and they laughed and cried together. Then they all sat down, and sometimes it was Madge chattering in the old way, and sometimes Fanny, explaining, and sometimes a word from Chris over his pipe.

PRIME MINISTER CATCHES ONE AND ONLY FISH

Holidaying at Baie de Chaleur, N.B., Prime Minister St. Laurent tried his hand at fly casting. He caught a four-pound trout shortly after this photo was taken and was the only fisherman of his party to make a strike. Others quickly changed to his lure, but had no luck.—Central Press Canadian.

KING'S NEPHEW RUMORED ENGAGED

Despite frequent denials, friends of the Royal Family have spread the rumor that the Earl of Harewood, son of the King's sister, the Princess Royal, would be married to an Austrian-born commoner, 22-year-old Marion Stein, a pianist. The 26-year-old Earl is shown in London, after his release from an Austrian prison camp in 1945. He is eleventh in succession to the British throne. It will be the first engagement of a Royal Family member to a commoner since the marriage 13 years ago of the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Simpson.—Central Press Canadian.

Churchill Charges Govt. is Leading UK to Bankruptcy

Says National Resources, Reserves Have Been Wasted

Wolverhampton, England, July 23—(AP)—Winston Churchill said today that the British Labor Government has led Britain into imminent peril "of Communism and national bankruptcy."

The Conservative Party leader said an economic collapse is looming which would "carry many other countries with us into chaos and communism."

In a major policy speech prepared for a party rally at the Wolverhampton Football Stadium, Churchill said the Socialists have failed to put forth any effective plan to meet the danger.

Darkened the Future

Churchill's address came on the heels of the Conservative party's 20,000-word statement of policy entitled the "Right Road for Britain" which was published Friday night.

"The have squandered the reserves and resources which had been gathered in the past," said the 74-year-old wartime Prime Minister, "and have darkened and narrowed the future of every man, woman and child in this famous island."

He said every other country west of the iron curtain has made a better postwar comeback than Britain — even beaten Germany and Italy.

Churchill told his listeners the cure for Britain's condition is to "return to a system which provides incentives for effort, self-denial, initiative and good housekeeping."

And he promised that the Conservatives will apply the cure if they are restored to power in the next general election, which must be held between now and mid-1950.

40,000 Tickets Sold

All 40,000 tickets for the soccer arena of this midland's industrial city were sold out for Churchill's address, which was billed as the major opening gun of the election campaign !

Wolverhampton, a sprawling community of 133,000 is 15 miles from the steel centre of Birmingham.

Churchill made the trip from London by plane.

The pugnacious political veteran lashed at his Labor Government opponents with the biting oratory of his wartime speeches.

He denounced "the new cataract of state monopoly which these shallow, socialist bigots are thrusting upon us" — the Labor steel, cement, sugar and insurance

Will Reverse Process

"All these depend upon the result of the election," Churchill added. "For if the nation gives us the power—I tell you very plainly this afternoon—we will reverse or prevent every one of them."

He explained why the Conservative Party election platform pledged to retain most of the nationalization projects already placed into effect by the Labor Government.

"It is physically impossible to undo the harm that has been done," he declared. "You cannot thrust the coal mines and the railways back on their private owners after their property has been commercially ruined."

BOOTLEG MINING CONVICTION FIRST IN CAPE BRETON

Back in 1748 Troops Sent in to Halt Practice, Records Short

Sydney, N.S., July 23 (CP) — Bootleg mining — for generations a barometer of industrial strife and depression in Cape Breton Island's soft coal belt — sent James MacKay to jail today.

MacKay, 46-year-old resident of nearby Glace Bay, started serving a 60-day jail sentence after conviction Friday on a charge of receiving stolen goods — bootleg coal.

The sentence was believed to be the first ever passed in Cape Breton in connection with illegal mining and was regarded here generally as a test case in the ancient drive by police and the Dominion Coal Company to halt bootleg mining.

History Goes Back to 1748

But the bootlegging goes far back. Records show that in 1748 the governor sent troops from Halifax to Cape Breton to stop the practice.

During a 1909 strike, when the United Mine Workers waged an unsuccessful 18 - month - long struggle for recognition, bootleg pits were opened by striking miners.

In the strikes of 1922, '24 and '25, bootleg mining flourished without interference from company police or the militia, called out during each of the three bitter labor disputes.

During the depression years of '30s bootleg mining again became a roaring business. Hospitals, schools, churches and householders purchased the illegal fuel openly.

A police drive, the end of the depression and a series of cave-ins, one of them fatal, combined to halt operations.

The Nova Scotia government then passed legislation making bootleg mining illegal, whether on one's own land or not.

In the latest case, evidence showed MacKay sold a lot to Anthony and Leonard Wadden for $1,200, of which $1,000 was paid in coal which the company claimed was taken from an abandoned mine on the property.

The Wadden brothers testified they worked the mine on the property and gave MacKay 250 tons which they valued at $4 a ton. The bootleg mine, concealed by a barn over the pithead, was equipped with mechanical hoist and electric lights.

Defence counsel E. McK. Forbes claimed the area was abandoned by the company and therefore anyone could take the coal.

Prosecutor Ross MacKimmie maintained that the terms of the company lease showed that coal veins in the district were granted to the company for 99 years.

RECALLS DAYS OF McGEE

Toronto, July 23 (CP) — The days when D'Arcy McGee, one of Canada's Fathers of Confederation, could be heard in the Commons are recalled by Mrs. Robert Jamieson, 98 on Monday. She was in Ottawa, herself, then, on a honeymoon with her husband, who was reporting a parliamentary session for the Kingston Whig.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 23 (CP).—Synopsis: Temperatures were chilly Friday night in Northern Ontario with frost reported at White River. In Southern Ontario overnight temperatures fell to the low 50s in some localities.

Warmer air, however, is sweeping northeastward again and will give afternoon temperatures in the low eighties in most parts of the province over the weekend.

Numerous thundershowers were reported west of Lake Superior Friday night, and they will move into the lower lakes district during the evening.

Pirates Board Fish-Buyer's Boat Escape with $3,000 in Daring Robbery

Vancouver, Jul 23—(CP)— Pirates struck Thursday night in the storm-swept waters of British Columbia's salmon fishing grounds, escaping with $3,000 in a daring sea-robbery.

According to scant reports from police, the pirates boarded the Alco, a fish-buyer's boat, while the vessel was cruising in River's Inlet, 200 miles north of Vancouver.

The victim has been indentified as a man named Weaver.

Provincial Police at coastal points between Prince Rupert and Vancouver immediately started an air-sea search net for the armed sea-bandits.

Reports indicate the money was to be used by Weaver for buying fish from gill-netters and seiners on the sock-eye grounds.

At the present time Rivers Inlet area is the centre of a salmon fishery industry, comprising about 1,000 boats.

All fish buyers have been warned by radio-telephone by Provincial Police to take special precautions aboard their boats which carry hundreds of thousands of dollars during the sock-eye season.

HOUSE IS UPSET BY WINDSTORM FOUR ARE INJURED

Heavy Damage Caused In Eastern Township

Sherbrooke, Jue., July 23 (CP) —Workmen today were clearing roads in this eastern township area of uprooted trees and masses of debris left in the wake of a devastating wind storm Friday night which injured four persons and caused thousands of dollars damage.

Hardest hit by the terrifying wind was the neighboring hamlet of Rock Forest where half a dozen barns, two homes and a church were damaged.

Bertrand Verdoux, 11; Madeleine Martin, 15, and Jean Rosby, 16, were in the small frame house of Antoine Verdoux when the wind hit it. The building was turned over and the youngsters received lacerations and possible fractures.

Mrs. Robert Leslie was doing the evening milking — the storm occurred about 8.15 p.m. — when the barn was lifted 20 feet off its foundation. A falling beam killed the cow being milked but Mrs. Leslie suffered only cuts and bruises.

Church Severely Damaged

St. Roch's Roman Catholic Church suffered severe damage and although the spire still is standing today, it is cracked and probably will have to be pulled down.

Four persons worshipping in the church escaped injury.

The road between Sherbrooke and Rock Forest was almost blocked with fallen and uprooted trees.

The roof of Louis Turgeon's house was blown off, and the veranda of Aure Blanchet's home.

Some residents described the storm as a "twister", others as a hurricane. At any rate, it was part of a 400-mile storm belt moving across Eastern Canada. Brief, heavy rains occurred in Montreal but no serious damage occurred.

115 Pilgrims Journey to Shrine Of Brother Andre

Montreal, July 23 (CP) — In the soft grey of mid-morning a group of 115 pilgrims — mostly Americans — Friday began a journey of faith they hope will free them from the wheelchairs they sit in or the crutches they carry.

Chiefly from Minnesota, Kentucky, Iowa and Illinois, they were brought by taxi and special buses to Bother Andre's Shrine on the side of Mount Royal in the midst of Montreal.

They arrived here last night and spent the night aboard their railway cars on a siding.

The pilgrims — all members of the Roman Catholic faith — spent the day at the shrine.

For many it was a yearly pilgrimage to the shrine which stands high and round-domed on the side of the mountain overlooking the city where Brother Andre — a lay Brother now dead more than a decade — worked to help the ailing and sick.

During his time he started the work on the shrine which, now a colossal edifice on the north slope of the mountain, stands beside his tiny one-roomed original chapel.

One paralytic in a wheel chair, sporting a 10-gallon hat and a broad grin, said cheerfully to a nurse who wheeled him along: "It's good to be back again."

Saturday the pilgrims will stop over at Cap De La Madeleine, near Three Rivers, and then continue on to Ste. Anne De Beaupre for more devotions at the shrine there.

Automatic Derail Device Saves Train from Plunging into Canal, Passengers Jolted, None Hurt

Gamebridge, Ont., July 23 (CP) —An automatic derail device—throwing the locomotive from the tracks—prevented a crack Canadian National Railway Vancouver-Toronto train from plunging into the Trent Canal near here Friday. Gamebridge is 40 miles north of Oshawa.

The engineer was reported to have said the brakes failed and he could not stop the train for a red signal indicating the canal bridge was open.

The locomotive plunged down a 12-foot bank into a ditch and came to rest on its side. The tender was thrown on its side and the baggage car remained upright.

All the sleeping cars and coaches of the train stayed on the tracks.

Passengers reported a "terrific jolt," but none was injured.

Kenneth Cockburn, attendant at the Gamebridge swing bridge, said the bridge had been open for an American yacht 15 minutes before the train, C.N.R. No. 4, came into sight, four hours late.

He said he had set the signals back along the track indicating that trains must stop for an open bridge and had also adjusted the safety derail device which is 500 feet from the canal.

He told police that the train did not seem to be approaching fast and he believed it was going to stop for the signal. Instead it went past. hit the derail and picthed down the embankment.

Scalding steam from the damage engine's boiler cooked soy beans growing in a farmer's field beside the wreck, police said.

The fireman said he jumped when he saw the derail switch. The engineer told police he did not know how he got from the train.

Members of the train crew were: Engineer Jack Wallace, conductor Russell Buckerfield, and fireman Edwin Rood, of Toronto.

Canadians May Solve Problem Of Domestics by Accepting Small Families of D.P.'s

Ottawa, July 23 (CP). — The Labor Department is trying to exploit a relatively untouched field of immigrants for Canada.

Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Minister of Labor, said Friday in an interview an attempt is being made to persuade Canadians wanting domestics that they can solve their problem quickly by agreeing to accept small families of displaced persons.

A circular letter had been sent by the departmnt to persons who had applied for single D.P.s as domestic help.

"We're trying to put the thought in the heads of people who want domestics badly that if they'll take a couple they'll get them right away," Mr. MacNamara said.

Mr. MacNamara said there was a number of reasons for the shortage of single girls among displaced persons who are interested in emigrants to Canada.

Many girls in D.P. camps were afraid to leave their parents, fearing they would be absorbed behind the "iron curtain" and that they would never see their families again.

He said the government is not relaxing its care in choosing families to come to Canada. It was just that in finding places for families, the scope of D.P.s to choose from would be widened.

In the circular Mr. MacNamara said most people who want domestics are prominent in the community and in many cases the man of the house runs a business where the head of a D.P. family might be employed.

What is needed is a guarantee that work will be provided for any person in an immigrant family who won't be doing domestic work.

Mr. MacNamara particularly mentioned farmers who can use domestic help along with help on the farm. In such circumstances the wife of a family could work in the home, the husband in the fields, and young children could go to school. Grown up sons and daughters could also fit into the scheme of things on large farms.

Climbs 100 Feet To Top of Tank Escaping Press

Oklahoma City, July 23 (AP)—Giovanni Rossi Lomanitz preferred a high, hot seat atop a water tower Friday rather than talk to reporters about charges of Communist activities.

The house un-American activities committee Thursday accused Lomanitz, 28, of being a Communist party organizer.

The committee said this activity took place early in the war at Berkeley, Calif., where a group of young scientists worked on atom bomb research.

Reporters discovered Lomanitz working as a $1.20 an hour laborer at power company plant under construction near here.

Fellow workers warned him that reporters and photographers were looking for him. This sent him up 110-feet of steel girders to the top of the water tank.

He remained there for almost two hours in 100-degree temperature.

He took the laborer's job June 21 after he was discharged from a teaching job at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. His dismissal followed an appearance before the committee.

He refused, on constitutional grounds, to answer questions concerning alleged Communist affiliations.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER SOUGHT BY POLICE

Ottawa, July 23 (CP)—Police are looking today for a hit-and-run driver who fatally injured Harold T. McClelland, 38, of Cantley, Que.

McClelland was working on the street car tracks in midtown Ottawa shortly after midnight when a car struck him.

Police said the driver immediately turned off his lights and continued at highspeed.

Constable Unhurt As Gun Discharges In Scuffle

London, Ont., July 23—(CP)—City Police Constable Wilfred Samletzki escaped injury Friday night when his .38 calibre revolver was discharged during a scuffle with a mental patient he was taking to hospital in his cruiser.

The bullet passed between Samletzki's arm and his chest. His uniform was untouched by the bullet and his only injury was minor powder burns on his right hand.

The chain of events leading to the incident started when a mental patient from Westminster Hospital stole an automobile from the Highland Golf Club. Constable Samletzki responded to a call and after a short scuffle took the patient into custody.

The patient was placed in the Samletzki cruiser and the officer headed for Victoria Hospital to have cuts and abrasions on the man's face and head dressed. En route a scuffle developed in which the revolver was discharged.

Following the discharge of the shot the officer continued to hospital where the patient was treated and then returned him to Westminster Hospital.

11 INJURED AS CAR HURTLES INTO STADIUM CROWD

Westboro, Mass., July 23—(AP) —Eleven persons were injured Friday night as a car left the Westboro Stadium track during a stock-car race and hurtled into a crowd of spectators. A crowd of 9,000 saw the car go out of control, plunge through a guard rail then leap a nine foot wire mesh fence and land in a section of wooden bleachers.

BUS IN FLAMES PLOWS INTO INN LODGE DESTROYED

Several Occupants In Lodge Dash to Safety

Piedmont, Que., July 23 (CP) —A flaming bus plowed headlong into the Old Lantern Inn in this Laurentian mountain resort today and started a fire which levelled the hotel lodge and an adjoining restaurant.

This was the third hotel on the Laurentian Montreal-the-North Highway to be levelled by fire in a week.

Louis Marie Belanger of Montreal, driver of the bus was slightly injured when he jumped from the vehicle as it cut a path across the main Laurentian highway and into the building about 2 a.m.

St. Jerome Police Captain A. Joly said several persons in the lodge dashed to safety before the fire reached that section.

Police added that the driving shaft of the bus broke and the constant friction of the shaft against the underbody of the bus and the road set fire to the gasoline tank.

The driver tried to bring his vehicle to a stop when he noticed the broken shaft but could not do so.

There was no immediate estimate of damage.

Last Saturday the Petite Chaumiere, another Laurentian hotel, was destroyed by fire and Wednesday night the Chez Nous hotel at St. Martin was razed.

U.S. Bill Proposes Registration of All Red Organizations

Washington, July 23—(AP)—A bill to clamp down on communist organizations and slap heavy penalties on persons who filch government secrets was approved Friday by a Senate judiciary subcommittee.

It would:

1. Require registration of all communist and communist-front organizations.
2. Deny Federal employment and passports to communists.
3. Require communist literature and broadcasts to be so labeled.
4. Make it a crime to conspire to bring about a foreign-dominated dictatorship in the United States.
5. Set a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison for passing secret government documents to communist or foreign agents.
6. Extend the statute of limitations in such cases to 10 years.

Convert Ships While at Sea

Montreal, July 23 (CP). — British shipbuilders have developed something new—conversion of ships while they are at sea.

For weeks now the shipbuilders have been making trips across the Atlantic converting several former baby aircraft carriers of Second World War vintage into grain-carrying freighters. Their work continues even while the ships are in port here waiting to take on cargo.

TWO DEAD IN PLANE

El Paso, Tex.—July 23—(AP)—Two Fort Bliss army officers were found dead in an L-17 plane Friday after it crashed during a thunderstorm 10 miles east of San Marcial, N.M. A passenger in the plane was critically injured.

Panther Slips into Gorilla's Cage, Desperate Battle Ends as Gorilla Shot

Spokane, Wash., July 23 (AP) —A black panther and a 300-lb. gorilla locked in a bloody two-hour fight Friday night after the cat slipped under the gate of an adjoining cage at a travelling wild animal show.

The gorilla finally was shot and killed after attendants made vain attempts to get the animals apart.

Ruby Smith, trainer and part owner of the show, fired three bullets from a .32 calibre pistol into the body of the gorilla.

A crowd estimated at 400 persons was cleared away before the shots were fired.

The panther was badly cut about the head and shoulders.

After the battle, the panther was fed meat and attendants pulled the carcass of the gorilla out of the cage. Rags soaked with chloroform were pushed into the cage to "calm down" the raging cat.

The panther, gorilla and a 600-lb. lion were being exhibited in a giant cage separated by gates that opened from the bottom.

Al Meyers, manager of the show, said one gate apparently was left unlocked after the cage was cleaned Friday and was partly pried open by the gorilla. Then the panther slipped underneath and leaped into the gorilla's cage while the huge lion roared and tried to get into the fight.

The panther chewed away at the gorilla's arms as the latter attempted to protect himself with his massive paws.

Meyers said one arm of the gorilla was almost torn off in the

Dysentery Sweeps Mattawa District Twelve Babies Die

Panic Strikes Settlement, Water Supply Suspected

Mattawa, Ont., July 23 (CP).—A dysentery epidemic which has killed 12 babies and affected upwards of 50 others is raging through rural settlements surrounding this little lumbering town and its threat is striking chill fear into parents' hearts.

The Ontario Health Department has sent a doctor and a sanitary engineer here to investigate the cause of the outbreak. Impure water is suspected, since many residents obtain their drinking water from the river and others use wells into which filth may be seeping.

Some mothers in and around this town at the junction of the Ottawa and Mattawa rivers have gone without sleep for days to watch their children for signs that the sickness has struck.

Just Seem To Fade.

Settlers who have walked into town with desperately-ill infants in their arms report that children "just seem to fade" within hours after fever betrays the presence of the dysentery.

One mother whose baby died in the epidemic told a reporter:

"In 12 hours, you'd never have known my baby."

Dr. J. A. Bergeron, the town's medical officer of health, said laboratory reports show no special bacteria but he thought it possible that the water had "something to do with it". He said the water in the Ottawa and Mattawa rivers here has been condemned for a long time.

"But a lot of people have to use the water," said Dr. Bergeron. "I have warned them to boil it before drinking it. But up to now, many people took the warning as a joke."

The problem of adequate sanitary protection for Mattawa has been aggravated by the recent influx of people from the nearby hydro development at La Cave. The newcomers have found temporary living quarters in shacks, garages, trailers and in already-overcrowded houses. Their coming has swelled Mattawa's population to approximately 2,800 persons.

Plan Waterworks System

Town officials say they plan to put in a waterworks system as soon as permission is given by the Ontario Municipal Board for the project to be undertaken without debentures.

"We have done some drilling just outside of town, over by the mountain," said Dr. Bergeron. "We have found an underground lake of pure spring water there big enough to supply three times our population. We could put in a 150,000-gallon reservoir that would give 100 pounds pressure all over town."

Tests have proved that water so pure that chlorination would be unnecessary. Some if it is being used now by the hospital.

Toronto, July 23 (CP)—The little lumbering town of Mattawa, Ont., is on the verge of panic over an outbreak of dysentery which has killed 12 babies and affected upwards of 50 others.

Bruce McLeod, in a dispatch from Mattawa to the Globe and Mail, tells of this near-panic which is spreading through the picturesque community at the junction of the Mattawa and Ottawa Rivers.

"You don't see it along the busy main street or in the hotels and restaurants of this booming community," McLeod writes. "But there is little sleep for the anxious mothers who watch their infant children for signs of the 'vomiting death'."

McLeod quotes Dr. J. A. Bergeron, medical officer of health for the town as saying he does not know what is causing the disease. Laboratory tests have shown no special bacteria.

"We can't blame it on the water altogether," Dr. Bergeron said. "It is possible, however, that the water has something to do with it."

Penicillin Not Effective

Another Mattawa physician, Dr. R. B. Marchildon, said that he has tried penicillin and sulpha on the malady but they have had no visible effect.

McLeod continues:

"While I waited in the doctor's office, a farmer walked in with a two-year-old child in his arms. 'She was fine when we left for town' he said. 'About four o'clock she developed a fever. Now she's vomiting. It comes as quick as that.'

"One of the mothers who lost a baby told me: 'In 12 hours you'd never have known my baby. She seemed to fade like that.' And she snapped her fingers."

GIVEN FINAL BURIAL

Clyde, O., July 23 (CP).—Pte. Roger Young of the United States army, who gave his life in a one-man suicide charge of a Japanese machine-gun nest to save 19 of his ambushed buddies, was laid to final rest here Friday Immortalized in the famed ballad by Frank Loesser, Pte. Young was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor — highest United States military decoration —for his heroism May 31, 1943, in the steaming jungle of New Georgia in the Solomon Islands.

Eyskens is Asked To Form Government

Brussels, July 23—(Reuters)—Gaston Eyskens, Finance Minister in Belgium's Socialist Government which resigned following the general elections last month, today was asked by Prince Charles, the Belgian Regent, to try to form a new government.

Eyskens reserved his reply.

Eyskens is the second Premier-Designate to be called by the Prince Regent since the elections.

The first was Paul Van Zeeland, veteran Catholic Senator and prewar premier. After eight days of negotiations, Van Zeeland, who planned to form a government which would return the provisionally-exiled King Leopold to the throne, abandoned his efforts to form a Cabinet.

The Socialists and Liberals both refused to join such a government.

Argos to Build New Clubhouse

Toronto, July 23 (CP) — The Argonaut rowing club is going to build a new clubhouse to replace the structure destroyed by fire two years ago.

A meeting of the general membership of the club decided Friday night that a new two-storey brick-and-steel building will be erected on the same site as the old one. The first storey will be the boathouse. while on the second floor there will be lounges, meeting rooms, lockers and showers.

STUDY GLIDING

Kingston, July 23 (CP) — The fine points of gliding are to be looked into here during the first week of August when the Queen's University Gliding Club holds a course under sponsorship of the Soaring Association of Canada. Twenty-five glider pilots and instructors from British Columbia to New Brunswick have said they will attend.

TWO FIRE CALLS

City fireman answered two alarms Friday night, with trouble in both instances being checked before extensive damage resulted.

First call was to the rear of the garage of J. B. Boyce and Sons where trouble was reported on a hydro pole. The second call was to a car fire on Front Street where wiring on a car said to be owned by W. Corrigan, 10 Bridge Street, East, was afire. Damage was held to the loss of wiring, the blaze apparently being caused by a short circuit.

Stock Not Sold To S. Francis Says Miss E. Thompson

In connection with a story in Friday's edition in which it was stated that Stan Francis assumed ownership of Thompson's Home Furnishings, 296 Front Street, Miss Evelyn Thompson stated today that this is an error as Mr. Francis did not buy her out as she had sold out her stock at a sale in June and after her lease expired,, disposed of the residue of the stock to an out-of-town firm.

Miss Thompson stated that Mr. Francis has not been in her employ since last October.

Big 'Muskie' Landed After 30-Minute Fight

Thirty minutes for 32 pounds of muskie is the way which Stewart Anderson, of Weirton, West Virginia, figures his fish.

At least that was the way it was Friday morning in the Trent River where Mr. Anderson, in company with Jack Birkhimer, also of Weirton, hooked a 32-pound muskie just north of Frankford. It took him 30 minutes to bring the big fellow up to the boat where it was netted by Mr. Birkhimer.

Mr Anderson and Mr. Birkhimer are two of a family fishing party of 16 of which there are seven fishermen who are staying at Bona-Vista, one mile south of Glen Ross.

The two men were casting in the river from a boat when the big muskie caught his line. The lucky fisherman had aching muscles and a blistered finger to show for the 30-minute battle. The big fish was 51 inches in length.

Birkhimer netted the big fish in a home made net made from suspension line of a parachute. He was with a parachute division of the United States Army. It was the third year which the Anderson party have stayed at Bona Vista and is the first time such a large fish was hooked.

Two Injured Girls May be in Cast For Six Months

Seriously injured early Friday morning in an auto accident which took the life of Kenneth Moore of the RCAF at Trenton, Miss Shirley Meagher and Miss Edna Ervine will be in casts for from four to six months, it was stated today by their attending physician, Dr F. R. Ross.

Miss Meagher was the most seriously injured suffering a fractured spine but Miss Ervine had a crushed vertebrae which although stated not to be as serious, would have to be treated in the same manner as the injury to Miss Meagher.

The two other girls injured in the accident will need dental attention. Miss Dorothy Lummiss, Reg. N., suffered a fractured jaw, and Miss Lois Stickle lost most of her front teeth. The two airmen injured in the accident were transferred to RCAF hospital at Trenton.

The accident which claimed the life of one man and sent six to hospital occurred in front of the Ontario School for the Deaf gate west of the city when the car in which the young people were riding crashed into an oncoming transport.

Moore Clan Enjoys Annual Reunion At Oak Lake

An exceedingly enjoyable time was spent on a recent Sunday at Oak Lake when the Moore Clan met for their annual family reunion picnic, with about 100 in attendance.

Mr. Herbert Moore, was master of ceremonies, and swimming and short impromptu speeches were the order of the afternoon. After a most bountiful dinner, business connected with the annual get-together was attended to. This included the setting of the date and place for the 1950 reunion picnic, and the forming of a committee composed of Mr. Ervin Moore, of Frankford; Mr. Percy Moore, of Shannonville; Mr. Sylvanus Moore, of Wallbride, and Mr. Herbert Moore, of The Ridge, to look after the details involved, and the program.

The youngest member of the Clan was tiny Judy Moore, of Glen Miller, who, at six and a half months, enjoyed the day, and the water, as well as the older members. All returned refreshed to their respective homes, feeling that the day had been well spent.

Out-of-Town Patients Will Pay Increased Rates at Hospital, Action Taken to Ease Taxpayers' Load

Approval of a differential rate for paying patients at the Belleville General Hospital who are not residents of the city was given by members of City Council at a special meeting held Friday evening.

Under the new schedule of rates private patients entering hospital from outside the city will be charged an additional $2 per day; semi-private patients an extra $1.75 per day, and public ward patients an extra $1.50 per day.

The differential rate schedule was approved by council, which recommended the rates go into effect as a means of relieving the operating loss burden from the taxpayers of the city of Belleville. The hospital is owned by the city.

Operating Loss

In passing the above recommendation members of city council approved a recommendation of the finance committee of the hospital which felt the operating loss at the hospital was occasioned to a substantial degree by the loss on indigent patients. Of the total of 9,209 indigent patient days during 1948, 3,546 were occasioned by the county.

The actual patient day cost for indigent patients at the hospital amounted to $6.96, according to the hospital finance committee. Against this statutory payments by the municipality concerned amount only to $2,50 per indigent patient day, plus a government grant amounting to 55 cents per day.

In their report the hospital finance committee pointed out that they had met on two occasions this year with a special committee from county council to consider the question of a contribution by the county to cover the loss to the hospital in indigent patients accepted by the county.

New Expenditures

Cost figures presented to the county council committee did not take into account any amounts in respect to capital expenditure from improvements amounting to some $58,500 last year and an anticipated $70,000 for 1949.

In view of the fact that the hospital services to county indigent patients continue to be carried on and that these constitute a major source of operation loss to the hospital the committee did not feel that the whole of this loss should be borne by the taxpayers of the city.

Members of city council went on record as approving of the recommendation for the extra charge made by the hospital finance committee.

Nine Cases of Polio with Two Fatal Reported Here by Health Officer

Nine cases of infantile paralysis, including two fatal cases, have been admitted to Belleville Hospital, it was announced yesterday by Dr. R. S. Gibson, deputy medical officer of health.

All of the cases were from the surrounding district with none being from Belleville.

The polio patients after diagnosis and immediate treatment at the hospital have been transferred to Toronto or Kingston at the direction of the Provincial Department of Health.

Not Epidemic

It was pointed out that the nine polio patients thus far reported could in no way be considered to be epidemic in nature.

In commenting on the most recent information available concerning this disease the Medical Officer of Health quoted from a recent pamphlet issued by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The quotation on precautions is given in full as follows:

"The virus that causes the disease is known to escape from cases and carriers along with discharges from the nose, throat and bowels. Hence, when infantile paralysis occurs in your community it is important that your children be protected as much as possible from contact with other people. They should not be permitted to play in or near sewage-contaminated streams or ditches. Movies, theatres, parties, dances, picnics, crowded boats, trains, or other crowded places should be avoided until the outbreak is over.

Keep Away From Illness

Children should be kept away from homes where there is illness. If there is a yard, let the children play in it. The general rules of health, including proper diet to insure good nutrition, are always important. Parents should see to it that children wash their hands before eating and after toilet; that they do not use public towels or common drinking cups, that they cover the nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing; and that they keep fingers away from the nose and mouth and put nothing in the mouth slightest degree by others. A child should never be kissed on the mouth.

It is desirable to keep the house as clean as possible. Use plenty of soap and water; fight flies, mice, rats, and other vermin; and remember that fresh air and sunlight are destroyers of germs."

Three Injured at Emily Street As Shunting Engine Hits Auto

Three persons were injured, one suffering the possible loss of his left arm, when Friday night an auto was struck by a shunting engine of the Canadian National Railways at the Emily Street crossing within the city limits.

Malcolm Cronkwright, 44, of Plainfield, suffered a badly mangled left arm, while his wife, Clara, suffered a broken left arm and their daughter Shirley, age 10 years, received cuts on the face, on her left hand and over the eye.

Police stated the Cronkwright car was proceeding east on Emily Street when the shunting engine backing down the siding struck the car on the left side almost completely wrecking the side of the vehicle.

The train was in charge of conductor Everett Windover, R. R. 3 Belleville, and Robt. Thompson, R. R. 6 Belleville. The car was damaged to the extent of about $400 while the rear standing platform on the engine was also damage.

The injured were rushed to hospital by Bush's ambulance where Mrs. Cronkwright and her daughter were treated in the emergency ward. Dr. R. S. Gibson attended the injured man.

Egg Buyers Get Shock at Prices

Continuing the upward trend which commenced two weeks ago, the price of eggs went right on up on the local produce market Saturday as farmers quoted 73 cents per dozen for firsts.

Vendors noted that purchasers appeared shocked by the additional increase in price and as result went a bit easier on purchases. Price asked last Saturday was 65 cents per dozen.

Fowl seemed fairly plentiful with mature birds selling at 45 cents the pound and spring chicken ranging from 50 to 55 cents.

Corn was plentiful on the outside market with vendors asking 60 cents the dozen. Potatoes sold at 65 cents per basket or 80 cents the peck. Bunched vegetables were a dime with the exception of radishes which sold at a nickel. Cabbages were a dime as were vegetable marrow.

String bans sold at 20 cents the box, cucumbers a dime each and cauliflower ranging up to 25 cents each.

Raspberries held at 45 cents for both blue and red varieties; huckleberries were 50 cents the quart or $2.50 per basket. Black currants were 60 cents and the red variety 25 cents. Gooseberries were 20 and 25 cents. Cherries sold at $1.50 per basket.

One vendor offered whitefish at 35 cents per pound, cleaned.

Only a few farmers offered young pigs with prices ranging from $10 to $15 each, according

Taximan Fails To Surrender Money to Bandit

Montreal, July 23 (CP) — A 28-year-old alleged gunman from Valleyfield, Que., was booked by police early today on a charge of armed robbery and car theft shortly after he ran a stolen taxicab up against a Hydro-Quebec pole in downtown Montreal.

Police said that taxi-driver Regent Valiquette was held up by a passenger at 2 a.m.

Instead of surrendering any money to the gunman who had stuck "something hard" in his back, Valiquette jumped out of the cab and ran away, while the bandit took charge of the automobile.

Soon after a police chase ended suddenly when the gunman lost control of the taxi-cab and struck a pole.

Marsh Fire North Of Campbellford Out of Control

Seymour, Ont., July 23—(CP)—A marsh fire which broke out Friday 13 miles north of Campbellford is still burning out of control today.

It is travelling underground at a depth of six inches or more and residents of the district are fearful that it may spread to nearby farm buildings.

The fire is believed to have started from a cigarette butt. The blaze extends over an area about one square mile.

Davis Returning 'To Continue Strike in Canada'

London, July 23 (CP).—Harry Davis, president of the Canadian Seamen's Union, left London airport today for Montreal following settlement of the London dock strike.

"I am going back to continue the strike in Canada," Davis told reporters.

"There does not seem to be much success there, but we intend to carry on," he added.

The dock strike was called off Friday after crippling the port for 25 days and seriously straining Britain's food reserves.

The way for the dockers to return to work was cleared when C.S.U. leaders, headed by Davis, decided to call off the British end of the walkout. The C.S.U. issued the strike call when Canadian ship owners signed contracts with the rival seafarers' international union. British dockers went out in sympathy with the C.S.U.

Skits and Displays Add Circus Flavor to Scout Jamboree

Connaught Rifle Ranges, South March, Ont., July 23 (CP).—This big tent city looked like a fair grounds Friday as Ontario Boy Scouts, dressed as clowns, hula-hula dancers and circus animals, romped and cavorted through a two-hour show.

Many Ontario points were represented in an afternoon of skits, demonstrations and displays.

Scouts were there from Kapuskasing in the north to Windsor in the south, and from the head of the lakes in the west to the Ottawa Valley in the east as more than 700 Scouts of the big Ontario contingent took their turn at providing the daily entertainment at the first Canadian Boy Scout jamboree.

Today is the last complete day of the big rally that brought 3,000 Scouts from Canada, the United States and Cuba. Selected scenes from pageants and displays presented during the week will be repeated this afternoon. Tonight a monster campfire is scheduled and the boys break camp Sunday after religious services.

Such established Ontario institutions as the County Fair and the King's Plate were shown.

But it had its serious moments when 49 pairs of Scouts, each pair carrying a banner representing a county or a district, marched past while Ontario Field Commissioner Art Paddon of Toronto explained the background of each county. Ray Bryson of London was responsible for that pageant.

Field Commissioner Fred Bues[illegible] of Toronto, was in charge

Len Knight, of Oshawa, led a burlesque band as the boys started off a parade that was quickly followed by a three-ring circus, produced by Don Boyd, of Toronto, and Alex Ross, of Port Arthur. Other skits were directed by Scoutmaster Wilf Groulx, of Port Arthur.

Doug McConney, of provincial headquarters, organized boys from Perth, Brighton, Port Arthur, Fort William, Geraldton and Toronto into a precision gymnastic team.

Thirty-two boys on hobby horses gave their version of the R.C.M.P.'s musical ride. They were led by Alex. Boyd and Sid Young, of Toronto.

John Wilcox, of Ottawa, directed a program of pioneering in which Scouts from Hamilton built a 60-foot rope bridge, suspended 10 feet above the ground between two trestles.

Kapuskasing and Northern Ontario Scouts gave a demonstration of log cutting and boys from Kitchener and Waterloo built shelters from Scout staves and ground sheets.

"The Horse of Another Color" —a polka-dotted nag — with John Frame, of Toronto, up, won the Boy Scout version of the King's Plate. "The horse" was running backwards when it crossed the wire and edged out the favorite "Laxative" by a tail.

Scouts garbed as hula-hula girls and ballet dancers, directed by Don Boyd, George Adams and Bob Richardson, of Toronto, danced their way through several numbers and Toronto's John Graham brought down the house with a fan dance, complete with

Fair Prize List Stated to Be Best on Record

The directors of the Belleville Fair met Thursday night and discussed the new prize lists which are already available and were pleased to know that the 1949 edition of the prize list for the fair is the best on record. Considerable thanks can be given the many who donated special prizes, which, added to the regular prize list, made the prizes very attractive.

The advertising material is all ready and is being distributed. The space in the buildings and outside has nearly all been spoken for the fair in August.

The board is making plans for four big days and nights. Belleville Municipal Band will be in attendance the four evenings. Conklin's Midway and other tented displays will make the grounds look like a tent city. Lucky Lott will perform the first day and evening. Racing and judging of all exhibits will create great interest during the last three days of the fair.

While the Belleville Fair ranks fourth in the province as a Class B Fair, for attendance, it is hoped that with an extra day and night that the fair will take the lead in the province as a fair in the above class.

All children twelve years and under will be allowed to attend the fair every day and evening during the four day fair. Probably no other fair gives the children so many privileges, and many thousands will attend and enjoy themselves.

Successful in Music

Barbara Meiklejohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Meiklejohn, of Springbrook, and Miss Ruth Mumby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mumby, of Harold, both pupils of Mrs. Harold Elliott, A.T.C.M., Stirling, were successful in the June piano examinations of the Royal Conservatory of Music. The former received honors in Grade VIII and the latter honors in Grade IV.

Mr. W. Hewitt, of the Royal Board of Examiners, Toronto, expressed his keen satisfaction on the artistic rendering of all numbers and the musical ability of these two candidates.

ELDORADO

Eldorado — Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Blackburn and Mrs. Alex Hamilton spent a few days in Toronto and visited their children who are patients in the Sick Children's Hospital there.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Arnold and family of Toronto spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Neil and family of Oshawa are spending their holidays with Mrs. Neil's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McCann.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Post of Belleville spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann and Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCann.

BIRTHS

BELLIS — Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bellis wish to announce the arrival of a son, Donald Thomas, Sunday, July 17th., at Belleville General Hospital. J22

Sidney School Area News Report

Two meetings were necessary to cover the amount of business involved and to plan the repairs for the summer. On Monday night a special meeting was held in Bayside school with all members present. The regular meeting was held the previous Monday at Wallbridge.

J. Both, of the Diamond Construction and Engineering Co. was present as he wished to lease ten acres of land near the old quarry in order to open a quarry of his own. The board was in favor of the proposal and arrangements were made to interview the present tenant of the farm.

Bills totalling $26.44 were received for repairing the roof, chimney and electric circuit at the Quinte View school. This damage was done when lightning struck the chimney of the school during the storm in the early hours of June 14. The secretary was authorized to send bills to the insurance adjustor for payment by the company. Several rows of bricks had been knocked from the chimney, and these in falling had damaged the roof.

Reforestation Successful.

A large per cent. of the red and white pines planted on the island last spring has stood the dry weather exceptionally well. But the low water level in the bay has allowed the cattle from the pasture to make their way to the island. The board decided to fence off this part and have it used as a park and a picnic ground as well as a reforestry plot. Arrangements are being made with Mr. Reddom whereby more land will be available for tree planting next spring.

Fire Insurance.

After a good deal of discussion and investigation the board decided that a much cheaper rate and a more effective means of insurance could be procured by insuring the schools under one blanket policy. In order to bring the replacement cost of the buildings and contents in line with present day prices, the insurance on some of the schools was increased. Consideration was also given to the improvements made since some of the policies were issued. The proposed total insurance amounted to $140,000, and was placed with the Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies of Belleville. Eventually this will amount to a saving of several cents per hundred dollars on some of the present policies.

Use of Schools.

In order to protect the caretakers in case of any loss or damage and to keep within insurance regulations, it was decided that the caretakers of the schools should be advised to make sure that organizations or groups requesting the use of the school, have obtained permission from the board through the trustee in that locality. The board wishes to encourage the use of the schools for community purposes, provided they know that some person is responsible for seeing that they are left in satisfactory condition.

Summer Repairs.

The board this year is planning where possible to repair the swings, fences, sports equipment and to purchase enough wire screen to make several softball backstops. These will be put at schools where there is the most difficulty in recovering balls and where they will prevent the balls from going out onto the road. Flagpoles will be put in operating condition, and a start begun replacing others. A new chimney will be built at Mapleview, while the roofs on several need patching. These items along with what has already been done will constitute the bulk of the summer work.

All Teachers Engaged.

The Sidney school area was affected by the teacher changes to about the same extent as other years. Qualified replacements have been secured for all the positions. They are as follows: Mrs. Marie Dolan, Belleville, for Belcrest school; Miss Mary Shannon, Marmora, Hogle's school (S. S. 4); Mrs. Lillian Cornwall, Parham, for Harder's school (S. S. 5); Mr. Earl Everson, Smithfield, for Glen Miller; Miss Marianne Rutherford, Colborne, of Johnstown; Miss Mary Hamilton, Corbyville, for Wallbridge; Mrs. Iona Laidlaw, Peterborough, for Turner's school (S. S. 16); Miss Nina Hudgins, Newburgh, for Maple View (S. S. 23).

Scout and Guide Activities

Approximately 75 Cubs from the various packs in Belleville went to camp today at the WCTU camp on Lake Consecon. Through the kind co-operation of Dr. E. M. MacDonald and Dr. J. H. Bateman the Cubs were given a medical check. The camp leaders have invited the other members of the Leaders' Club along with the group committeemen and local association members to supper and the evening Red Flower on Monday, July 25. They plan to leave from St. Thomas' Parish House at 6:30 p.m.

Several of the Cubs have birthdays during camp and these will be celebrated with a birthday cake and all the trimmings.

Patrol Leader Harry Smith and Troop Leader Bob Gibson of the First Belleville (St. Thomas) Troop and Patrol Leader Reuben Kline of the Second Belleville (Christ Church) Troop attended the first Canadian Scout Jamboree at the Connaught Camp near Ottawa this past week and from all reports had a wonderful time.

A SCOUTER'S NOTEBOOK

(A corner devoted to presenting the aims and ideals of Scouting.)

The Scout promise:

On my honor I promise to do my best;

To do my duty to God, and the King;

To help other people at all times;

To obey the Scout law.

If you study this promise you will see that it covers a great deal. So for simplicity we will break it down into two parts, the first of which will be explained this week. On my honor I promise to do my best.

Honor means much more to you as a Scout than it does to most people. The whole basis of scouting depends on the honorable and upright actions and thoughts of the leaders and boys in everything they do. The next thing that should be pointed out is that you, as a scout, are not compelled to promise that you will do the various things mentioned in the promise. You merely promise to do your best. Don't think for a moment that this is a loophole to break down the scout promise. Lord Baden-Powell realized when he wrote this promise that under extenuating circumstances it would be impossible for a boy to live up to such a promise. Therefore the scout is only asked to do his best to carry out the promise. So boys you can see that when you are invested and take this promise you assume a full-time job in doing your best at all times to live up to the high ideals of scouting and of manhood laid down by our founder.

THE QUESTION BOX

(Anyone wishing a question concerning scouting answered kindly send it along with your name and address to R. K. Smith, 31 Hillside street).

Q. What is the purpose of all the first aid and ambulance work in scout tests?

A. Scouts either singly or in a group are expected to be able to assist other people at all times. This in a great majority of cases doesn't require first aid training, but the occasion invariably arises when someone with this experience is needed. Scouts in most centres are schooled in their first aid work by qualified instructors and examiners. These may be either members of the medical profession or perhaps St. John Ambulance personnel. Not only does this training assist scouts in helping others but it also trains the scout to live a cleaner, better life.

Q. Why do they hold scout get-togethers such as the First Canadian Scout Jamboree in Ottawa and the World Rover Jamboree in Norway?

A. First of all it must be remembered that scouting is a world-wide organization which is expected in practically every country except those controlled by dictators. These jamborees are held so that the boys from all over the world or throughout the whole country can meet, live and play together. Friendship between all races, creeds and colors is one of the main points in the Scout training. The jamboree is this training put to a practical use so that the boys can learn more about each other. Lord Baden-Powell desired that every scout should earn by hard work all those things that go with scouting, such as uniform, tests, badges and promotions. The holding of jamborees gives the scout a little extra incentive to work hard to gain his tests and earn money so that he can attend.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

GOLDEN BALL

Invasions are ordinarily most unpleasant affairs; but when they are carried out yearly in early May by tiny balls of golden feathers, nobody complains. Yellow Warblers seem to actually prefer populated areas in Canada. City parks and gardens are favorite nesting sites, but in late Spring and early summer it is almost impossible to walk through and residential section of even our largest cities without hearing several cheerful little voices singing "chwee, chwee, chwee" from hedges or tree tops. Strangely, the female occasionally sings also.

However, only a few days after their arrival there is great difficulty in spotting the musicians, because by then the leaves are fully out. Mrs. Yellow Warbler is particuladly hard to find amidst the foliage, for she often has a greenish tinge to her yellow plumage. Her husband is usually a trifle brighter yellow, and the small red flecks which she generally has on her breast are less distinct than his. They are known to some people as "Wild Canariae," but they are smaller than those domestic pets: some under five inches.

The nest of our best known Warbler is a masterpiece of workmanship. As a rule it is discovered just above eye level, securely fastened to upright forks in tall hedges or flowering bushes. Vegetable fibres have been neatly quilted together by the little pair, and a felt lining made of willow catkins, dandelion blows, or other plant down.

Few kinds of birds are smart enough to outwit Cowbirds. But when the Yellow Warblers find a big egg which Mrs. Cowbird has surreptitiously laid among their own precious little ones, they promptly build another storey to cover all the eggs, and start again. Three-storey houses are fairly common, and some observers have come across four-storey homes when Mrs. Cowbird has been foolish enough to try her trick three times on the same pair.

Yellow Warblers should be welcome wherever they nest: which is as far north as the tree limits and on mountain slopes to an altitude of at least 1,500 feet. They eat the dimutive insects that destroy our leaves. When there is a family to feed there is little time for singing. Later, unlike most species, these birds often begin again, and, though the songs are not as long as in springtime, they keep it up to a certain extent until they leave us toward the end of August for Central America, Brazil, or Peru.

$1,000 Added To Reward Fund

Toronto, July 23—(CP)—Chief Constable John Chisolm said today he received a letter from an ananymous person offering a reward of $1,000 in victory loan bonds to the person who gives information leading to the arrest of the two men responsible for the rape of a 36-year-old Toronto woman a few days ago.

This amount will augment the $500 reward offered by the Board of Police Commissioners.

Police are continuing their check on automobiles seeking a green 1948 or 1949 vehicle.

SMALL FIRE IN SHED

A routine run to the Houston Paul Street Thursday evening, was the only call turned in to the lumber Company premises on St Belleville Fire Department in the past 24 hours.

A small fire broke out in the chimney of one of the sheds but was extinguished with no further damage being done.

SIGNING OF THE PACT

The Atlantic Pact has been ratified by the United States Senate by the sweeping majority of 82 to 13 and all reservations were defeated.

This treaty is an achievement which is of the greatest importance to the world, not only of the nations which have signed but also of the rest of the nations.

This treaty is an achievement of the greatest importance to not only the signatory nations but to all mankind. Russia has by her criticism shown how important she realizes this pact is for the welfare of the democratic peoples and for the rest of the nations.

Its moral effect has been felt and will continue to be felt, for it is of the very essence of democracy to preserve liberty.

Seven of the twelve nations which signed the treaty have now ratified the measure, Canada, the United States, Britain, Belgium, Norway, Luxembourg and Iceland. In Italy and the Netherlands, the Lower Houses have ratified and action by the Upper Houses is pending. The French National Assembly is likely to ratify the measure this week-end. Portugal's National Assembly will vote on Monday and formal Danish announcement of ratification is yet to be made.

STREET SCENE

Driving a street car in any large urban centre is no job for a day-dreamer or the unalert. What with traffic, stop lights and pessengers who give "short rings," the man up front at the controls has to keep his mind on his work. Least of all does he have much time for sentiment or the "sparrow's fall," even though he might be a bird-lover at heart.

But it does happen sometimes. As a matter of record it happened in Toronto only the other day. And quite a little incident it was, too, in its unobtrusive way.

A pedestrian told about it in a letter to the editor of a Toronto daily. Walking north on Yonge Street he saw a southbound street car come to an unlooked-for stop. The motorman got out, crawled half under the front of his car and then in a moment or two backed out with his two hands cupped together.

Proceeding to the west sidewalk of the street, the motorman climbed a grassy bank and went half way across a lawn to a clump of shrubs where he gently deposited his precious freight. The object of the motorman's solicitude was a fledgling robin still in the awkward stage and none too certain of itself on timed wings or toothpick legs.

That's all there was to it. Just a fleeting curbside episode in a city's pulsing life. Yet it sort of gives one a lift of the heart. For simple nobility is a rare ingredient in this frantic world. He's a good one, this motorman, and no mistake about that. Be sure of it, this shining deed of his will stand to his credit on the long scroll that tabs us all.—Hamilton Spectator.

BUG'S LIFE

A fascinating laboratory at the University of Wisconsin is described in the science column of The New York Times. Each day this laboratory must produce 8,000 adult flies, about 1,000 cockroaches, 1,000 clothes moths, 500 pea aphids and hundreds of milk bugs, red spiders, carpet beetles and other elite of the insect world.

The Times says millionaires' are not reared as tenderly as these insects. Because they are susceptible to disease, the bugs must have the right kind of food and the temperature in their bug houses must be controlled. Visitors to the laboratories are warned not to frighten them.

Their quarters are flooded with fluorescent light. The cockroaches are fed high-grade dog biscuits and the clothes moths treated with vitamin B.

The purpose of all this bug raising is to provide test cases for experiments with insecticides. After a lifetime of tender care they are gently placed in cages and then squirted with polysyllabic chemicals until they expire. The quicker they quit buzzing, the more satisfied are those who nursed them along with every care a bug could ask for.

Sounds like some of the more advanced social security schemes comments the Winnipeg Tribune.

A man of 93 says the secret of long life is not to worry. And now if we had the secret of not worrying we should be all set to live to 93, comments Ottawa Journal.

Accustom yourself to that which you bear ill and you will bear it well.—Seneca.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TWO ROLES

The roles are different. Once
I had
The patience of a doting dad.
I think I did the best I could
To act as every father should.
When squabbles rose, as rise they will,
From childish voices, loud and shrill,
I asked the cause and tried to be
A fair, impartial referee.

But now the grandpa role I play,
And different are the lines
I say,
And different every action, too,
From what a dad must say and do.
The conduct which their father
riles
I look upon with loving smiles,
And when too heated grows
the fray,
I get my hat and walk away.

As grandpa I have lost the poise
And calm required for standing noise.
I find that much that childhood does
I'm not as patient as I was.
When in or out they start a row,
I'm neither judge nor umpire
now;
I promptly get my coat and hat
And say: "You parents settle that!"

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 23rd. 1929

Mr. Allan Lennox, who for the past ten years has resided in Berlin Germany, is visiting his brother, Mr. H.A. Lennox, Coleman Street. It is twenty years since the brothers met and they are having a happy reunion. Mr. Lennox's arrival here was well timed and he will be an honored guest at an important event tomorrow afternoon at which his nephew and namesake, Allan Lennox, will be one of the principals.

Mrs. J.W. Davison, Foster Avenue, left yesterday on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. J.F. Munroe, Mrs. W.D. Geen and Mrs. W.P. Allore are spending some time in Montreal and Quebec City.

The Rev. John Lyons, Vicar of St. Thomas Church and family left today for their summer home at Plevna, Ontario, where they will spend several weeks.

30 YEARS AGO

July 23rd. 1909

Police Officer Arthur Harman and his wife have left for Montreal and will sail on the steamer Laurentic for the Old Country. Their many friends wish them a pleasant and safe voyage.

Mr. P.J.M. Anderson. County Crown Attorney is in Stirling today on legal business.

Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Henthorn of Montreal formerly of Belleville are visiting relatives in the city.

Ald. Green's horse became frightened at a passing automobile on Front Street this morning and started to runaway, but was captured before going far.

The Masonic Grand Lodge will meet in Belleville next year.

40 YEARS AGO

July 23rd. 1919

The Board of Education will for school purposes this year The public schools will take $40,969,00 and the high school will take $25,518,00. The amount required is $9311.00 more than last year. This is accounted for in the increased salaries to the teachers and the night school expenses. The board has recommended that the salary of Mr. W. Jeffers Diamond, the secretary to the board be increased from $450.00 to $750.00.

Mr. Kenneth Henderson of the staff of the local C.P.R. telegraph office is spending his vacation at Oak Hill Pond.

Miss Doris Brook of the post office staff is spending her vacation at Dalhousie Lake.

50 YEARS AGO

July 23rd. 1899

Mr. and Mrs. Tousaw of this city are spending a vacation at Iroquois, Ontario.

Baron and Baroness Von Sallet (formerly Miss Eva L. Browne of Belleville) are summering at Atlantic City.

Mr. Norman L. Massey, B.A. formerly of Albert College, has been appointed principal of the high school at Athens Ontario.

If the street railway line were extended to the cemetery it would be well patronized.

Early this morning fire was discovered in the Hub Hotel on Front Street and before it was extinguished by the firemen, considerable damage was done by smoke and water. Williamson's grocery store adjoins the hotel and the stock in the store was damaged by smoke and water.

Miss May Price has returned home after visiting friends in Winnipeg.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

All over America, large numbers of country people still hold the superstition that when there are unusual numbers of seventeen year locusts, there is going to be a war.

The seventeen year locusts is the sturdy insect that, in most parts of Canada, sits up in a windy tree and sings in a long-drawn-out, penetrating, high musical zing. It is also called the harvest fly and the cicada. It is almost as big as the end joint of your thumb. On its wings is clearly featured the letter W. And in the American south, its eyes and head are suffused with a lustrous red.

The most arresting thing about this insect is the fact that it actually is 17 years old whe it sits up there in a breezy afternoon pine or oak and, sings. For sixteen long years, that insect has been a grub down in the earth subsisting on the juices from plant roots. Sixteen years is a long time to be a grub in order to enjoy a week or ten day of adult and winged freedom in the wide air. Uncles find this insect very useful when moralizing to young ten-year old nephews. They point to the invisible creature, zinging so piercingly in the tree, and tell the boy that it is a bug six years older than he is. That puts nephews in their place.

One of my nature-student friends saw a great sight the other day. A blue jay, which is a pretty rowdy bird, caught a cicada and started to fly away with it. The agonized cicada started to buzz. Now, it must be fairly startling to be a blue jay and have, on the end of your slender beak, an insect that suddenly starts to roar like a vice-president buzzer.

The startled jay made a floppy emergency landing on a limb, held the cicada down with its foot, and examined it in consternation. The buzz ceased. The jay resumed its journey. The cicada burst into furious song again. The jay made another very bad emergency landing and firmly pecked the offender to definite silence. The insect was possibly ten times older than the bird.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE BEAUTY OF FIDELITY

It was with the word "duty" on his lips that the great Lord Nelson died in the battle of Trafalgar.

Some years before he had startled the world by his brilliant naval victory known as the Battle of the Nile. The delicate son of a Church of England clergyman was destined to climb from the rank of coxswain to that of admiral in his Majesty's navy. On the October morning of 1805 when Admiral Lord Nelson gave the order to begin the Battle of Trafalgar, he knew that the destiny of England was at stake and that before the day was over it would mean either that Britannia ruled the waves or that Napoleon ruled the world. He gave the immortal signal "England expects every man to do his duty." Later in the day as he lay dying in the arms of Captain Hardy, Nelson murmured, "Now I am satisfied. Thank God I have done my duty."

There is something complete about the life when with his last breath man can declare that he has done his duty. The ends to be attained in life are comparatively simple duty to the requirements of life as we encounter them.

One does not have Nelson's position in order to live and die heroically. He need only have Nelson's spirit.

HOME TREATMENT OF EARACHE

A little while ago (remember?—it was not over ten years ago) I gave here instructions for administering (not talking, for you can't properly take it by yourself) a hot mustard foot bath (HMFB) and gave my opinion that it is the No. 1 first aid remedy for acut alveolar abscess ("ulcerated tooth acute coryza, acute bronchitis, acute sinusitis or acute pneumonia.

To be effective the HMFB must be administered to the patient in bed under blankets. That's why you can't take a HMFB without a nurse to manage the technique. You must go under the covers when the bath begins and you cannot come out of the blankets for half an hour or more after the bath is finished. Not if you want to get the full effect of the bath. If you lose your temper entirely and pitch everything to Tophet and get up and cool off you lose the benefit of the bath but you may be assured there is positively no risk or danger involved in such behavior.

The pain of acute earache, acute alveolar abscess or abscess at the root of a tooth, acute sinusitis, etc., is due to congestion and inflammation. The effect of the HMFB is to fill the surface vessels with blood, equalizing distribution of the blood and thus to relieve congestion or tension of blood in the ear, at the root of the tooth or in the sinus.

One critic was annoyed because I said HMFB without a nurse to administer it is scarcely worth while. He asked whether a hot mustard ear bath would relieve toe ache. I had to admit the suggestion seemed feasible—at least for one with long ears.

One of my finest teachers when I was an intern routinely treated pneumonia with hot mustard foot baths—one every two hours in the early stage, less frequently after the first few days. I cannot recall that he ever lost a battle with pneumonia.

The next best home remedy for acute earache, in my opinion, is irrigatian of the ear canal with boiled and still comfortably warm water containing a tablespoonful of salt and a tablespoonful or citrate of soda to the quart.

To irrigate the ear canal hang the fountain syringe or container not more than two feet above the ear, draw the ear upward and backward with one hand while you direct the stream of water through a straight nozzle into the ear canal but do not insert the nozzle or touch the ear with it. Hold a basin under the ear against the side of neck to catch the outflow, Such irrigation as warm as the patient will endure, may well be continued for several tankfuls, or repeat every half hour for half a dozen times. Citrate of soda, by the way, is the same home remedy you use to prepare Dr. Brady's Fool Proof Cough Medicine—that is, if your druggist doesn't get shirty and refuse to supply a couple ounces of it when you ask for it—citrate of soda, sodium citrate. It was formerly much used in the baby's bottle to prevent curdling. So don't let any one tell you it is dangerous."

Never drop any oily preparation into the ear, except olive oil salad oil, cooking oil or other bland oil to smother an insect lodged in the ear,

QUESTION AND ANSWERS

Twenty Years Too Late

We feel disappointed that you have not answered numerous requests for your opinion of the action of the A.M.9. in ousting Dr. Fishbein. (H.F.C.)

Answer—It was only delayed action—twenty years to late. It remains to be seen whether the organization will ever recover the standing it had before the voluble Dr. Fishbein took over as dictator.

Operation Unsuccessful

Two years ago had an operation for piles. which was not successful for I still have piles. (D.E.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping please) for pamphlet "It is Stupid to Suffer from piles."

Cranberries to Pineapples

Your wishing cranberries were pineapples was magnificent. It is the appearance of touches like that in your column that makes the column so readable. Nothing like a good belly laugh to keep people well. (..., M.D., C.M.)

Answer—Thank you, doctor.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OTHERS

How easy it is for any of us at times to think that we are the only ones to be considered in this life. Other people have their rights and we owe it to ourselves, not only to respect those rights but to be as helpful as possible in seeing that they get those rights, for in the larger sense, we are doing something for ourselves when we do something for others.

We owe to others more than we ever realize. Not until we miss or lose them, does their significance dawn upon us. Then it is too late to give out appreciation. I have noted that those who are so lavish in their affection toward others, and who, somehow, never tire of doing things to make others happy, are often imposed upon, but the satisfaction of having done a good turn, here and there, gets its own abundant reward, nevertheless. Inward satisfaction is something to be cherished.

I once knew a woman, who was a neighbor, in Iowa, when I was a boy in school. She carried a perpetual smile always. I am sure that I never looked upon her that she didn't have that beantiful expression upon her face. Well, she never knew a day she did not do some kind act for some one—it mattered not whether to a stranger or a friend. Her memory is one of the inspirations of my life.

You are always ahead when you do something to make another happy. There is nothing like giving yourself away! It's better than giving gold away—and it has a lasting quality, which gold does not. People who practise this giving themselves, never die. They live for generations in the lives of others.

Many of us are extremely sensitive, without others knowing about it. Others are the same. This is why we should take care that we do not wound another, for such hurts sometimes never heal. And the memory stores away hurts the same as it stores away kindnesses and generous deeds.

More precious than any diadem is the planting of hope, or a kind word, in somebody's heart. It lives and thrives there—and spreads out as well inspiring a like act in another heart, in fact it may influence a harvest of such acts, that may reach around the world. We are all others.

Youngster's Rythm Began Music Career

Victoria, July 23—(CP)—Don't stop your children from waving sand-shovels—they may be conducting an orchestra.

Take Miss Margaret Foote, an English composer holidaying in Victoria, who was "discovered" by a seaside bandmaster in England when he found her keeping time to the music with a toy shovel.

Although no child prodigy—she had no piano until she was eight—Miss Foote would pick up tunes from the local cinema and reproduced them on the instrument when she had persuaded her parents to get one.

When she began to study she discovered she had the rare gift of absolute pitch, which enables its possessor to name a note without comparing it with others.

At 19 she graduated from the Royal Academy of Music and began teaching and composing.

Her latest composition, "Holiday Suite," has been accepted in part by Western Music Company in Vancouver for sheet-music publication.

The tumbler test will identify colors which are not fast, so you will know how to wash them. Dip a sample of material in question—a belt or a snip from the inside seam—into a tumbler of warm water for 10 minutes. If water becomes discolored, be sure to wash the article separately in lukewarm water for both suds and rinses. Roll in towel to remove excess moisture, unroll at once, dry in shade wrong side out.

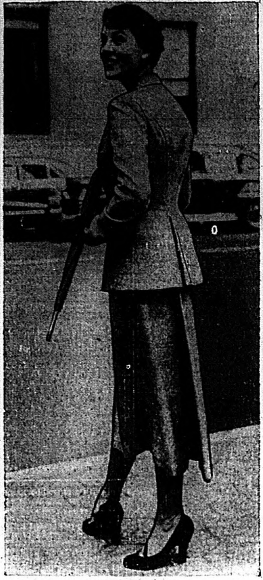
Tweeds From London



By PRUNELLA WOOD

A new coat and skirt design from England is made of good tweed which has broad shadow stripings of subdued green and beige color. The jacket curves smoothly into the waistline and has hip pockets which curve toward the back; a nice lead-in to the peplum back, and the floating skirt panel which gives this model a fresh look.

This is a fashion imported from England, the second collection brought over by a London designer who has a cut which suits American figures, too.

Saves for 13 Years To Buy Gravestone

Peace River, Alta., July 23—(CP)—For years 78-year-old Mrs. Agnes Mash saved all she could from her old age pension to buy a tombstone for her husband's grave.

Finally, after 13 years, the stone arrived and Mrs. Mash took the long trip to Peachland, B.C., to see it erected over his grave. She hired a trucker to take the monument to the cemetery and watched as it was erected.

When she returned to the place she was staying, she said she felt ill. She lay down to rest and died in her sleep.

Youthful Redhead is Top Executive for Jet Company

By MARIENNE IZSAK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, July 23 — (CP)—"Cynthia Holloway, General Manager." is the imposing title on the door. If you walked into her office in London you would find a vivacious 27-year-old redhead seated behind the desk.

She is general manager of Power Jets, a British concern responsible for many war-time developments in jet-propulsion and gas-turbine engines.

"I was rather a dunce at mathematics and science in school and yet here I am with a job like this," she laughs.

The "job like this" is one that requires her to travel all over the world, acting as liaison officer for her company, talking with engineers and urging co-operation between Britain and other countries developing gas-turbine engines. She was interviewed the other day in New York.

The secret of her rapid climb to success?

"I was lucky," she confesses. "My employers was in the Air Force and I had been in the W.A.A.F., so that gave us something in common. He was very helpful—instead of simply telling me what to do, he'd explain how it should be done and why."

Rapid Promotion

After her discharge from the Air Force, Mrs. Holloway got a job with Power Jets as secretary. Being a young company with lots of room for advancement for those with ambition, it promoted her rapidly.

Mrs. Holloway manages to combine successfully her career with her home-making. Her husband, a water-transport engineer, helps with the cooking, marketing and housekeeping in their apartment in Chelsea.

"He's really a better cook than I am," she acknowledge, "although I'm better at making soups"

She is amused at people's reaction in the United States when they find the general manager of Power Jets is a personable young woman.

"They expect to find a portly gentleman along the line of Colonel Blimp, I guess," she smiles. "But men in England aren't surprised—they got used to working with women in all sorts of jobs during the war."

Mrs. Holloway finds her job too intensive to permit hobbies. "But I did make this hat—the frame came from Paris and I sewed the ribbon on it." The hat was made entirely of lavender ribbons and she wore a pale lavender dress to match.

"I'm afraid I'm just not the domestic type—I love my work too much," she said in mock sorrow.

Kill Harbor Seals To Improve Codfish

Halifax, July 23—(CP)—If a plan formed by the Fisheries Research Board of Canada materializes, Nova Scotia housewives will soon be able to put better tasting and cleaner codfish fillets on the table.

The long-distance scheme calls for a drive against harbor seals. It seems that the cod-worms which get into the cod and affects its appearance, and in many cases its taste, are harbored in adult seals.

Previously a bounty of $5 was paid for the snout of a harbor seal. Since then fisheries experts have discovered that the snout of a harbor seal can't be distinguished from that of a number of other seals.

Once again science lent a hand. Research men discovered that the jaws of harbor seals are different from other species and fishermen and hunters now have to produce the jaw bone of a harbor seal to collect the $5.

C.N.E. to Survey Canadian Fashion During 400 Years

Toronto, July 23 (CP).—Four centuries of Canadian fashions, from the costume of the early North American Indian woman to that worn by the women of today will be presented as one of the feature highlights of the women's division at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The 10 mannequins to show these fashions are being specially made for the purpose by Art Bingham, leading Canadian display man. He is searching into historical records for typical measurements and physical characteristics of women living in this country at important periods since the late 1500's.

There will be shown the authentic costumes of the early North American Indian woman, the early French settler, the first English woman colonist, the "Merry Widow" type of the 1890's, the fashionable Canadian woman as she appeared in 1914 and her modern daughter.

An important part of the display, it is hoped, will be the costume worn by Queen Elizabeth during her visits to the Canadian Senate, now the property of the Royal Ontario Museum, as well as one of Queen Victoria's gowns which Mrs. Kate Aitken, the Exhibition's women's director, hopes to obtain from the British Museum.

The entire display will be set up under glass protection in the east wing of the women's building on the Exhibition grounds.

HAPPY PURCHASE

London—(CP)—A look of horror crossed the face of Mrs. Thomas Elliot when she dropped her string shopping bag—and the week's groceries—into the river. But in the bag was a box of ping-pong balls which kept it afloat long enough for a boatman to rescue the lot.

Mrs. Charles Siple Honored by Friends On Eve of Departure

A delightful surprise and farewell party was held at three p.m. on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McCabe, 102 Chatham St, by immediate friends and neighbors, in honor of Mrs. Charles Siple, who with her husband and family, left on Thursday for their new home in St. Thomas, Ont.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with lovely summer flowers of snapdragons, gladioli and ferns and the tea table, over which Mrs. C. C. French presided, was charming with its lace cloth, centred with a silver basket of pastel tinted sweetpeas, pastel pink candles and silver service.

After a social time together, the surprise of the afternoon culminated in the carrying in of a prettily decorated pink basket by Miss Helen Arnott and little Diane Ford which was placed before the guest of honor.

As Mrs. Siple unwrapped the lovely cups and saucers, and dainty linen, she graciously thanked the donors for their good wishes, and the beautiful gifts, inviting all to visit her in her new home at St. Thomas.

WEDDINGS

ADAMS—TEBWORTH

On Tuesday evening, July 19, a quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at Christ Church, Belleville, when Audrey Marie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tebworth, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Joseph Patrick, son of Mrs. Stella Adams, and the late Mr. Frederick Adams. The Venerable Archdeacon Arthur Smith, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, officiated.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of poudre blue net, with white accessories, and corsage of red roses and bouvardia.

Miss Dorothy Tebworth, the bride's sister, was her only attendant, gowned in a dress of coral crepe with white accessories, and wearing a corsage of pink and white sweetpeas.

The bridegroom was ably assisted by his cousin, Mr. John Bawden.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride and groom. Mr. Len Cooke proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by several of the guests.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left for Toronto and points west. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a double strand of pearls, and the bridegroom's gift to his groomsman was a leather wallet.

On Monday preceding the wedding, a delightful cup and saucer shower was held by girl friends of the bride at the home of Mrs. W. Bell, Geddes Street, in honor of Audrey's approaching marriage.

Lady Bowlers Hold Trebles Tournament

The ladies' section of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club held a trebles tournament at the local greens on Tuesday of this week. Weather conditions were ideal and 21 rinks participated, coming from Kingston, Deseronto, Brighton, Stirling and Campbellford.

The greens were in excellent condition and competition was keen. The first high three prize went to a Brighton rink skipped by Mrs. J. Hulin. The second high three went to Mrs. J. O'Connor's rink of Belleville. The two-high was won by a Kingston rink skipped by Mrs. R. Hinton. The one-high and no-win high were also won by Kingston rinks, skipped by Mrs .G. Steeves and Mrs. E. Mooney. Between the second and third games the ladies partook of a delicious pot luck supper in the club house. The supper was convened by Mrs. J. Legault and her committee.

Tea hostesses at the Belleville Bowling green on Thursday afternoon were Mrs. M. Button, Mrs. M. Vanner and Mrs. C. Clarke. Bridge winners were—Mrs. E. Liddle, Mrs. E. Sandercock, and Mrs. A. Singer. The winning rink—Mrs. McBride and Mrs. Jackman.

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE W. I.

Uniondale Women's Institute held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. Jack Scott, 6th of Sidney. There were 20 members present, the roll call being answered by "Naming a Vegetable with its Proper Vitamin from the First Letter in Your Name".

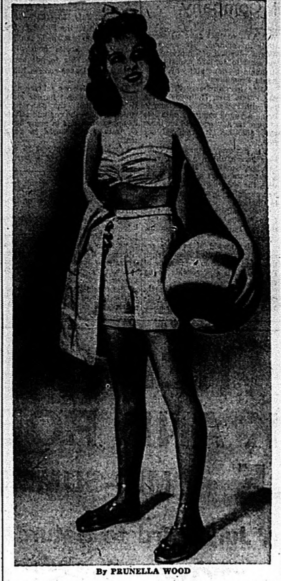
A committee, consisting of Mrs. Wardle and Mrs. Rose was appointed to look after articles for the booth at O.S.D. on July 29. Each member also is to donate one dozen tarts and one pie, or two pies.

Report of the executive meeting was given by Mrs. Bert Bush. It was decided that Uniondale serve dinner on the last day of Belleville fair. On August 3, a lawn social will be held at Foxboro under auspices of the "Film Council", each Institute donating home cooking.

Report on District Annual was given by Mrs. Geo. Burkitt and Mrs. Morley Sine. "Agriculture and Canadian Industries" was given by Joyce Morris and the report on the girls' trip to Guelph was given by Jean Morris.

Refreshments were served and a vote of thanks tendered Mrs. Scott for opening her home.

Cotton Trio for Sunning



By PRUNELLA WOOD

Never an end to the cool play togs of this summer which is just as well since the dogdays are just about to come up.

This brief and very tailored three-piecer is of colored cotton shirting, trimmed flatly with starched lace . . . bra-band, slim shorts, short box coat.

A good sun tan promoter, a cool chore costume, an easy exercise suit, as suggested by the big, bouncy, rainbow rubber playball, it's a cool julep in cotton.

Princess Margaret is Vivacious, One of Popular Figures of Day

By NORMAN CRIBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 23. (CP)—Princess Margaret has had lots of curious listeners around her since she returned to Buckingham Palace from her Italian vacation.

Everyone remotely connected with what are called "royal circles" seems eager to talk to the winsome girl—19 next August—who has won her way into the hearts of millions by just being natural and charming.

Margaret is a vivacious talker and in her enthusiasm has a way of recreating scenes and adventures in conversation. Friends cluster around her at all hours of the day and evening absorbing her high-spirited reminiscences of the Italian scene.

But, popular as she is at home and abroad, the King's younger daughter has earned herself one or two "old-fashioned" looks during the last few months. These looks come, not only from members of the Royal Household, but from some of her more staid relatives.

Light-Hearted Princess

The fact is, the light-hearted Princess, with her bubbling wit and curiously informal attitude to formality, has become a bit of a holy terror to many. Palace officials sometimes talk in scared whispers of her escapades, as if afraid of talking out of turn.

In any other high-spirited girl of 18, such antics would be considered natural and amusing. But, say court officials with a dubious shake of their heads, "she's a grown-up Princess now, you know."

There was a time, for instance, when the King and Queen entertained a Scottish clergyman at Balmoral, Margaret, asked to perform at the piano, sang one of the saucier songs from "Oklahoma!" which she had seen in London.

The Queen looked a little worried. She had heard this song before—at strictly family parties. As Margaret approached the last verse, the Queen leaned forward and whispered "not before the minister, dear." But Margaret carried on to the end—and the minister laughed uproariously.

At a dignified public function in London, Margaret sat listening while Princess Elizabeth delivered an impressive speech. A second or two after Elizabeth finished, Margaret was clearly heard to say: "Jolly good, old girl."

The "old-fashioned" look on that occasion came from the chairman, a revered city alderman.

Most recognize, however, that behind her gay demeanor, the Princess has a quick mind and a fairly well-informed outlook on life.

She may not be a copybook Princess, but she has the capacity to be at one with most of the boys and girls of her generation and by her wit and humor to make herself one of the most popular figures of the day.

HEIRESS HUTTON SERIOUSLY ILL

Heiress Barbara Hutton Troubetzkoi is reported critically ill in Paris, her weight down to 84 pounds. Barbara's serious condition became known when probate court in Dedham, Mass., granted her custody of her son, Lance, 13, until Sept. 15. Under a previous agreement, the boy's custody was to have been shared by his father, Danish Count Curt Haugwitz Reventlow.—Central Press Canadian.

Mrs. R. Haggerty Honored by Relatives On 75th Birthday

Rawdon.—On Tuesday evening, July 19, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clancy entertained about 40 guests at their spacious home on the town line, in honor of Mrs. Clancy's mother, Mrs. Richard Haggerty, who celebrated the 75th anniversary of her natal day on Tuesday.

Seven of Mrs. Haggerty's ten children were present with their families, and it was regretted that two daughters, Mollie, of Windsor, and Ruth, of Toronto, and a son, John, of Ottawa, were unable to be in attendance.

Mrs. Haggerty was delighted to have her family gathered in her honor and the evening was spent in social chat and music.

The guests included Mrs. Haggerty's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson, of West Huntingdon.

Among the relatives in attendance were—Mr. and Mrs. Warren Haggerty of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy and Gordon, of Moira; Mr. and Mrs. Don Haggerty and Jack; Mr. and Mrs. Morley Haggerty and John; Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace and James; Mr. and Mrs. Barton Haggerty, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dunham, all of West Huntingdon; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray, John and Carol, and Mr. and Mrs. George Pollard of Stirling.

The Clancy family served their guests dainty refreshments. A decorated birthday cake with 75 candles was cut by the guest of honor.

The family sang "Happy Birthday Mother" and all wished Mrs. Haggerty many more years of happiness.

Seven Women Have Unique Circular Letter

Guelph, July 23. (CP)—There are seven women in Canada who can't stop writing. Not talking—writing.

Since they were graduated from Macdonald Institute at the Ontario Agricultural College here 34 years ago, the women have created the longest letter in the world.

During their college days they were close pals and called themselves the Friendship Circle.

They are: Mrs. Hugh C. Elliot, Galt; Mrs. Milton Johannes, Blair Ont.; Miss Kate Schwenger, Burlington: Mrs. Roy Rundell, Goderich; Mrs. Lillian McMartin, Martintown, Ont.; Miss Florence Petey, Hensall, Ont.; and Mrs. P. Wright, Tisdale, Saskatchewan.

On graduation, the classmates decided to keep contact with each other and to do so invented a circular communique which has been continuously on the circuit since 1916. It has been lost only once during those many years. In 1939 it was misdirected through an error but was located in a post office.

The "epistle" makes a complete round of the seven at least four times a year. Each correspondent adds her contribution to the parchment and sends it on to the next on the list. When the original note gets back to the author it is clipped off to avoid bulkiness. Several miles of paper have been used.

The weird part of the friendship is that not once since the group was graduated 34 years ago have they all met. Mrs. Elliott said today, however, that plans are under way for all seven to gather at her Galt district home next Summer to mark the 35th anniversary of their graduation.

S. medical mission ship, Willis Shank, sailing late this month on its maiden trip along the Alaskan coast. Miss Pendray is a native of Victoria, B.C. while Miss Hunter comes from Lacombe, Alta. The voyage will last 10 months.—(CP Photo.)

QUEEN LION

Resplendent in her regal robes is golden-haired Janice Harvell, 17, of Carolina Beach, N.C., who is shown after being crowned "Miss International" as thousands of delegates to the 32nd Lions International convention whistled and stamped their feet in New York's Madison Square Garden. She defeated four contestants from Cuba, Peru, Mexico and Canada in winning the title. She is five feet four and blue-eyed.—Central Press Canadian.

MADOC

Trinity W.M.S. Honors Life Member's 80th Birthday

Madoc—A very interesting and pleasant evening was spent at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dafoe, Moira Lake, on Tuesday evening last when they entertained the members of Trinity W.M.S. for their July meeting with 18 in attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. P. H. Nayler took charge, opening with a poem "The Passing of the Years."

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and business was conducted. An invitation was received from Mrs. Jas. Kincaid to hold their next meeting at her home, early in August. Mrs. E. Moore and Miss Holmes to be lunch conveners. Mrs. Manley Fox thanked the members for their cards and visits during her illness.

Miss Marion Love, convener of the program, took charge and opened with quiet meditation on Psalm 84, with Mrs. E. Moore, Mrs. L. Bernett and Mrs. F. Fleming assisting. A poem "You Gather Glory' 'was read by Miss Love; a hymn "Evening Prayer" was read by Miss Fay Fleming; Miss Annie Holmes also gave reading "Just for Joy".

A pleasant part of the evening's events was the honoring of one of their members, Miss Alice R. Wood, a life member of the society, on the occasion of her 80th birthday. Miss Wood was presented with a lovely corsage, and a shower of birthday cards from the members. A special birthday cake was part of the dainty refreshments served.

Friends of Miss Wood attending were, Mrs. Will Gray, and Miss Vankleek. "The Happy Birthday" song concluded the social hour.

Shades of 1946. It looks as if Brooklyn and St. Louis will stage another photo finish in the National League.

Separated by only 1 1-2 games with 10 full weeks to go, the one-two clubs appear ready for a long scramble to the wire. Boston still is in the race and the Philadelphia Phillies and New York Giants have an outside chance, but at this point it figures to be either the Dodgers or Cards.

George (Red) Munger clipped a full game off the Brooks' slim lead Friday night with a 3-1 victory in the opener of the year's first "crooshul" series in the National. The Cards could leave town in first place if they could sweep the four-game set ending Monday.

Stan Musial got the Cards off to a fast start with a first-inning homer. After the Brooks tied the score in their half of the first St. Louis grabbed the lead for keeps in the third on Diering's single, an error, infield out, walk and Nippy Jones' fielder's choice. Munger drove home the final run in the sixth.

The Braves moved within six games of the Dodgers by downing Pittsburgh 5-3 but their victory may have been costly. Vern Bickford was carried off the field with an injured left instep after being struck by Cloyde McCullough's line drive in the seventh.

Yanks Tame Detroit

Del Crandall's two-run triple in the fifth inning helped Bickford to a 4-3 lead when he left the game. The Braves picked up another run for Bob Hogue in the seventh as they handed reliefer Murry Dickson his 12th loss.

Robin Roberts saved a victory for Russ Meyer by taming Cincinnati with the bases loaded and none out in the eighth inning for a 2-1 Phil triumph.

Hank Sauer's 19th homer with a man on, helped Chicago down New York Giants, as Johnny Schmitz survived 11 giant hits to go the route.

Tommy Byrne tamed Detroit with five hits, 8-2, protecting New York Yankees' 5 1-2 game lead over Cleveland in the American League. A four-run spurt in the fourth that sent Virgil trucks to the showers with his seventh loss settled matters after Byrne gave up a two-run homer to Pat Mullin on a shaky start.

Thurman Tucker, Larry Doby's replacement in the Cleveland outfield, drove in both runs in the tribe's 10-inning, 2-1 squeaker over Washington. His second single scored pitcher Mike Garcia with the tie-breaking run in the 10th.

Vern Stephens hit his 24th homer and Ted Williams blasted No. 23 in Boston's 4-2 verdict over St. Louis Browns. Mel Parnell gave up eight hits to six off Ned Garver in registering his 13th win.

Chicago routed Philadaelphia A's 12-0, scoring eight runs in the first inning. Connie Mack let Carl Scheib take a beating for the complete game, giving up 18 hits and eight walks.

Leaf's Blatnik Among Loop's Top Hitters

New York, July 23. (AP)—If Montreal fails to retain its International league championship this season, it will be through no fault of its batters.

Statistics released today disclosed that the Royals, who are currently engaged in a four-day battle for second place, boast the three leading hitters in the league —in addition to having the highest team batting percentage.

Bob Morgan is the League's No. 1 stickman with .355 mark. Morgan replaced teammate Kevin Connors, last week's leader who dropped 9 points and fell to third place at .331.

Sam Jethroe, fleet Negro flychaser, completes the Royals' domination of the top three positions with a .340 average, good for second place. Average include games played Wednesday, July 20.

Russ Derry, Rochester outfielder, has hit the most home runs, 25 and teammate Steve Bilko has batted in the most runs, 95.

Bob Hooter, Buffalo's ace righthander, tops the pitchers with a record of 11-1.

Completing the top ten batters among those with 250 or more at bats are:

Bilko, Rochester, .325; Johnny Blatnik, Toronto, .323; Ray Coleman, Buffalo, .315; Glenn McQuillen, Baltimore, .313, Carden Gillenwater, Syracuse .312; John Welaj, Toronto .310; and Anse Moore, Buffalo .309.

Aussies Lead 2-1 in Davis Cup Matches

By PIERRE DUBOIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, July 23—(CP)—Canada faces elimination from Davis Cup play today with Frank Sedgman, Australia's sensational young tennis ace, coming up against Brendan Macken of Montreal in the first of the remaining two singles matches of the North American zone title.

Australia took a 2-1 match-lead in the series Friday when Sedgman and his team captain, lanky John Bromwich, stroked their way to any easy straight-set triumph over Macken and Walter Stohlberg of Vancouver in the doubles fixture. Scores were 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

The sturdy 26-year-old West Coast star came through with a sparkling performance to earn most of the applause of 2,000 spectators during the match, played in threatening, sultry weather.

Meanwhile, the blond Montrealer's game had fallen far below the superb form he showed Thursday when he upset little Billy Sidwell in a five-set opening singles thriller. Macken was charged with 48 errors in an erratic performance compared with 23 for Stohlberg. Each had seven placements.

Flawless Display

The most flawless display came from the 30-year-old Bromwich who paired with Sedgman to win the doubles title at Wimbledon, Eng., in 1948. Bromwich made the least number of errors—15—in a masterful exhibition of control.

Sedgman 21, again impressed although in a less polished performance than he turned in Thursday when he tied the series with a straight-set triumph over Henri Rochon 25, of Montreal in a singles match.

Few observers Friday night would give Macken a chance to equalize the series for Canada Friday against Sedgman whom some experts from Australia see as the future No. 1 amateur player of the world. Sedgman can win the best-of-five series for his team with a victory over Macken.

If the Australian turns the trick, 19-year-old Lorne Main of Vancouver will play in the other singles match which would have no bearing on the cup tie result. Fans here have been clamoring for a match between Main and Bromwich, both ambidextrous players, and only the result of the Sedgman-Macken meeting will decide whether it will come off.

Should Macken upset Sedgman, the tie will have to be decided by a meeting between Rochon and Sidwell. Except in the case of illness, no player substitution is permitted under cup rules after the teams have announced their starters.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JIM BASTABLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 23 (CP)— The 1949 football season still is in its teething stage but sports writers have already noticed signs of disciplinary whip-cracking.

Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle commenting on a verbal blasting by Coach Teddy Morris to his Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Interprovincial Union, said: "It is customary for professional club owners to crack such whips but, as a rule, they do it behind the closed door of the dressing room and not in the presence of twitchy-eared reporters."

No Place for Laziness

Morris told the Argo members at a special dinner recently: "If you're going to be lazy, you're going to be detrimental to the team. My advice is to stay away from us. We don't want you."

He added: "We had fun last year but we didn't win because some of the boys were too lazy to play hungry football."

Lytle comments: "They say, in one breath, they have no control over players' conduct while, admitting in another, that they really do tie a player up as neatly as if he signed a pro contract by attaching his name to a Canadian Rugby Union certificate".

Will Canada ever be a threat in international track competition?

Dan (Kitchener-Waterloo Record) Odette thinks not. He feels the Dominion's track and field stars could improve on their showings "but it's doubtful if the Dominion would ever be a country to be feared" in international contests.

Commenting on the British Empire games trials here last week Odette said:

"In the trials only a few of the 200 who took part came anywhere meeting the standards. Lack of qualified coaches and need of better facilities have been two stock answers . . . But you can't blame that on coaching or not having proper facilities."

Locke's Luck!

Lytle also supplied an interesting anecdote from Bobby Locks, South Africa's gift to the realm of golf.

While in London recently the golfer was put up at an exclusive club where he noted an oldish gentleman buried in his newspaper. To him Locke observed it was a beautiful day. The accosted one looked up, pressed a service button and to the responding servitor said:

"This gentleman wishes to discuss the weather."

Wings Rise To Fame Due To J. Keane

(By The Associated Press)

The rapid rise of the Rochester Red Wings to a contending position in the International League pennant race is attributed to a lot of reasons but one seldom mentioned in Johnny Keane.

Keane, 38-year-old skipper of the Wings, is serving his first season as manager of a Triple-A team but he came to it highly recommended.

He began his managerial career as a player-manager with Albany of the Georgia-Florida League in 1938, winning the pennant and the playoffs his first season.

Including that season, Keane has managed four pennant and playoff winners and has never finished out of the first division in eight seasons. He was in the service from 1942-45.

The second-place Wings polished off the league-leading Buffalo Bisons 7-2 Friday night to pull to within 3½ games of the Bisons. The triumph was Rochester's sixth straight over Buffalo and their ninth in 13 meetings with the Bisons.

Rookie Tom Poholosky limited the Bisons to seven hits, three of them going to his opposing pitcher, Saul Rogovin. The triumph was Poholosky's 12th. against five losses.

Poholosky nursed a 3-2 lead going into the seventh when the Wings sewed up the game with a four-run drive that Russ Derry highlighted with a two-run double.

Leafs Win

Jersey City Giants took over third place from Montreal Royals, downing Syracuse 2-1 in 14 inings while the Royal bowed 12-9 to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Red Hardy of the Giants, and Hank Perkowski of the Chiefs, engaged in a scoreless duel for 13 inings. The Giants, with the aid of an error, scored twice in the 14th. The Chiefs struck back with one in their half but Hardy struck out Perkowski with the tying run on second to end the game.

The Leafs weathered a six-run, ninth-inning Montreal rally in downing the Royals. Montreal outhit Toronto 18-13, but four errors and six walks helped the Toronto cause.

Earl Harrist pitched the Newark Bears to a 7-2 triumph over Baltimore Orioles. Bobby Young's two-run homer in the first inning accounted for the Baltimore scoring.

Picton Safe In Second Slot Take Jrs. 10-8

Picton Athletics strengthened their hold on second place in the Belleville and District Baseball League at the Exhibition Grounds last night when they handed the Kiwanis Juniors their fourth straight defeat in a ten-inning battle by a score of 10-8.

Picton took the lead in the second inning when they scored four runs to break a first inning 1-1 tie. The Juniors pushed three runs across in the third to come within one run of their opponents. The Athletics strengthened their lead when McDonald slid home in the seventh.

In the eighth the Juniors came from behind to take a one run lead. Galbraith, pinch-hitting for Brown, led Lockyer and Strachan across the plate to put the Kiwanians in the lead for the first time in the game. Dyer turned his triple into a run in the ninth to tie the score and save his ball game.

Picton wound it up in the tenth by scoring three runs and holding the Juniors to a single tally. Perry reached first on a hit off Strachan, stole second and made third on an error. Strachan was replaced by Wright whose first pitch went wild to score Perry for the winning run.

Picton's right hander, Frank Dyer, went the ten innings striking out eleven, offering nine hits and walking three. Strachan, who was replaced in the tenth, was tagged for eleven hits, striking out four and walking four. Wright offered three hits with one strike-out.

Picton .. 140 000 101 3—10 14 6
Kiwanis 103 000 030 1— 8 9 5

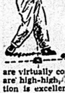
Better Golf

By Sam Snead



Without seeing the flight of the ball and observing only the player when his hands are hip-high in the follow through, as pictured, you can tell with amazing accuracy what happened on the shot. Now, look look at the player pictured again. His left side is virtually a straight line. His weight is forward. His forward hip and shoulder pivot are virtually completed. his hands are high-high, his shoulder rotation is excellent and note this—although his hands are high-high in the follow-through, he is still—get that—still looking at the spot where the ball was. "x" marks the spot. I would say without hesitation, that this player's shot with wood—I say wood, because of the width of his open stance—has travelled 240 yards straight down the fairway. If I had seen this shot, I would expect to see his ball hook faintly just at the far end of the flight, then roll, due to its overspin, for nice additional straight line yardage. Golf form tells the story. If you have good golf form, as this player has, you can't help but play well. And enjoy the 19th hole celebration.

Houstons Move up Northern Wins In Softball Tilts

Houston Knotholers moved into second place in the Commercial Softball League Friday evening when they overwhelmed CNR Nationals 10-1 in the first game of a scheduled double header to reduce the Nationals' chances for a playoff berth to a mathematical possibility. In the nightcap a surprised Northern Electric crew rallied sufficiently to pull themselves out of a deep hole and go on to win a free wheeling contest from McFarlanes, 16-11.

Both games were played in a high wind which bothered both the players and the fans. Huge dust clouds blew up across the diamond whenever a player moved and the first game was halted, momentarily, several times in order to let the dirt blow away.

The Knotholers had little difficulty disposing of the trainmen as Bob Hunter set the opposition down with four singles. He walked three and whiffed five.

Houstons used up two CNR hurlers in their 11-hit attack. Jim Brisban started for the trainmen and in four innings struck out two walked none and was tagged for eight hits, seven runs and the ball game. Sid Galpin went two frames in relief walking one, and giving up three safeties for three runs.

Line-ups:

C.N.R. Nationals. — Carr ss, Ronsky 3b, W. Bellis c, Hurrie 1b, Bolster lf, Nichol 2b, A. Bellis lf, Galpin cf, p, Brisban p, cf.

Northern 16, McFarlane 11

In the nightcap an aroused McFarlane's Woodenware nine looked for three innings as if they might take the measure of the league-leading Northern Electric crew as they opened up a substantial lead.

Stung into action by this bold challenge, the electrics rolled out the heavy artillery, ran daringly on the basepaths, and generally played wide open ball to overtake and subdue the Woodenware gang 16-11.

It was the last game for McFarlane's and the loss left them with a season's record of eight losses and two wins in ten tries.

McFarlane's opened the scoring in the top of the second counting five runs on two singles, three errors, and a walk, that drove Electric starter Connie Harris out into left field. Carson came in and retired the side with no more damage being done.

Northern came back swinging in the second half of the inning to push over four runs on three singles, and two walks. McFerlane's promptly belted out two more runs with Frank Baldwin riding home on Jack Moore's homer to centre field. Electrics counted once in the third, blanked the opposition in the fourth, and scored five runs themselves to go into the lead for the first time.

Pitcher Baldwin unloaded a homer to left field in the fifth for the Woodenware with no one aboard. Northern hammered out five hits, took a walk, and mixed the lot with three errors to pour in six runs in the fifth and get out of reach of the McFarlane attack which scored three more in the sixth.

Harris started for Northern and in one inning, struck out three, walked two, and gave up one hit for five runs. Lum Carson was hit hard for eight safeties, walked none and struck out 10, as he went six frames in relief to claim the win. Frank Baldwin couldn't hold the Electrics as he toiled vainly walking seven, striking out four, and being blasted for fourteen hits and the ball game.

Lineups:

McFarlane's: D .Moore c; C. Peters 3b; Holland 1b; O. George cf; Skinkle lf; B. Young rf; F. Baldwin p; . Moore 2b; Scanlon ss.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 22—(CP)—The cry is 'clear the fairways" for this year's Ryders Cup tournament at Ganton in Yorkshire.

When United States and British golfers meet in September the sponsoring Profesional Golfers' Association wants them to have elbow room.

For many of the estimated 25,000 fans who will see the two days of the match it will be grandstand golf. An octagonal stand holding 600 will give views of the play at the fourth, fifth, seventh, ninth, 11th and 12th holes. There will be smaller platform stands at nine other place on the course.

From them, spectators who don't want to mill with the thousands following the game will be able to see a good deal of the play in comfort. Those who trams around the course will be controlled by 200 stewards and about 10 miles of rope—some fixed as permanent fences around fairways and greens and, the rest handled by "rope men" moving with the players.

The P. G. A. money worries about Britain's 1951 return visit to the United States have been solved.

Cmdr. R. T. C. Rowe, association secretary has guaranteed £5,000 (20,000) for the trips. He hopes to get the amount after negotiations with Scarborough Corporation for the September match.

"That's the minimum," said Rowe. 'Any profits above that will be ours, too. The sum may reach £6,000, but it will all go back into golf. People do not realize the heavy expense of running a major golf tournament.

"From the time the United States players land here we shall be responsible for their hotel and entertainment expenses while in England.

'And we must put aside at least £5,000 to meet the costs of sending Britain's team to America in 1951.

He reckons the September match will cost the P. G. A. between £1,500 and 2,000.

British fight promoters are seeking greater control over the radio broadcasting of their shows.

The British Promoters' Association, meeting in London, decided the British Broadcasting Corporation's representative should be invited to future meetings to discuss broadcasts.

Leading impresario Jack Solomons said it is essential that oration's representative should regulated so as not to affect another promotion on the same day.

Concern was also expressed with regard to televising contests and it was decided to join the Association for the Protection of Copyright sport.

Fish and the Midday Sun

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables

All my life I've been listening to the rules of angling that are laid down by the old-timers. Without doubt, experience often is a great teacher but that rule is by no means conclusive. Simply because a man has lived a hundred years, it doesn't follow that he has learned all there is to know.

Just the same, it is truly a monstrous task to sell a fisherman of many years' standing a new idea on fishing. Mr. Oldtimer has been fishing, man and boy, for sixty-odd years. Don't come around telling him how to fish. He knows how.

One of the lasting fallacies of the old school is the idea that fish won't bite under a hot midday sun. A great many of them actually believe that early morning and late evening are the only times to fish during the hot summer months. To continue to fish after the sun has climbed well up into the heavens is simply a waste of time.

Heavy Midday Catches

If you happened to see my news story along about this time last month, you will recall that I spoke about record catches. Among other things, I said that a very high percentage of these had been taken at midday, right under a broiling summer sun. This statement is not made carelessly —it is a matter of actual, factual record, arrived at by not a little work and a gerat deal of correspondence.

Of course, this midday rule is in no sense a "blanket" one, applicable day in and out. For that matter, I have never heard of a rule that applies to fishing all the time. There are always exceptions. Without question, early mornings and late evenings will show you some good fishing as often as not. By the same token, midday fishing sometimes isn't worth the whistle. Better let me explain.

At the times of new moon and full moon the major Solunar Periods occur at noon and midnight. It is then that you will find midday fishing to pay off.

Conversely, when the Solunar Periods occur during mid-morning or mid-afternoon; then the noon-hour falls within the time of inactivity and you may just as well take your ease in the shade until zero hour comes along.

Cites Instance

Some years ago, a party of us were fishing up at Grand Lake Stream, Maine. We had been leisurely about arising and having breakfast so, of course, we missed the early morning minor Solunar Period. We went through the motions during the remaining hours of the morning with but little success and finally knocked off for lunch about noon.

I knew that a major feeding period was scheduled to come in about noon but the others would pay no attention to me. While the guides were cooking lunch, I persuaded one of the party to go with me. We took one of the canoes and paddled around to the other side of the island.

When we returned an hour later, lunch was over and we had to content ourselves with what was left. We listened patiently while they took us to task for holding up the party. Then we untied the stringer from the stern of the canoe and displayed a catch of bass that fairly made their eyes buldge.

After that our plans for each day were made with the help of the Solunar Tables. Incidentally, there was the hottest midday sun that the State of Maine can produce but we caught fish to beat the band.

Here and there about the country there are guides and camp owners who are honest about wanting their guests to have the best fishing that each day affords. Thus, the schedule of meals is arranged so that it will not conflict with the schedule of Solunar Periods.

Keyed to Solunar Periods

One camp in Vermont keeps its guests posted as to the times of the daily Solunar Periods, and meals are served either early or late so that the camp patrons can fish through the Solunar Periods and still get regular meals. After all, it is a fishing camp and it is only proper that fishing should come first.

This summer, keep in mind that noon-hour fishing very often is the best of the day. Look up the times of the daily Solunar Periods. Believe me, this plan will pay you ,dividends in beter sport.

--Bums Bench--

"Why," asked the Giant fan, "Don't you write something about the way that Bum Branca gets knocked out all the time but still gets credit for winning games? That 10-3 record of his is the phoniest thing I ever saw." . . . That, besides the plagiarizing Brooklyn's favorite word, bum, was being most unfair to Ralph Branca. But it did emphasize the part a "strong bench" has had in keeping the Dodgers ahead of the onrushing Cardinals . . . for the records, Branca has won seven complete games. He has been knocked out a dozen times and got credit for winning three of those starts . . . since July1, the bums have been using three or four pitchers a lot oftener than just one, but they've had the necessary relief men on the bench, not to mention pinch-hitters, good reserves and, in other words, the "Bench" to keep the club rolling.

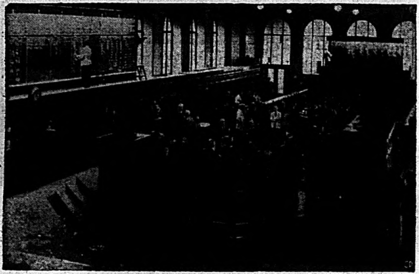
FOR THE CANADA STEAMSHIP LINES

Canada's largest ship (above) will slide off the ways at Collingwood, Aug. 4, in a feat of launching unique in Canadian shipbuilding. The vessel is being slid into water sideways off 47 three-ton timber logs under the keel. Work was started on the vessel in October, 1948. Empress of Canada is 20,000 tons, 582 feet long.—Globe and Mail.



TRADING LULL

Traders are seen during a lull in the activity of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange pit. The exchange is a landmark in Winnipeg — a city founded on the grain trade. Before the Second World War the exchange was the world's largest food commodity in the market, but only rye and flax will be bought and sold through it when the Canadian Wheat Board takes over the marketing of coarse grains Aug. 1st.—(CP Photo.)

"RAFFLES" RETIRES FROM ACTIVE LIFE

Gerald Dennis, the Adonis Raffles who out-did the Raffles of fiction, is shown (centre) between two detectives as he left Westchester country courthouse, in New York State, on his way to jail after he was sentenced. Dennis must serve several concurrent sentences which may not be less than 18 years to the term of his natural life. He drew the life "rap" under the Baumes law as a fourth offender.—Central Press Canadian.

SCIENTISTS GUESSED WRONG

Though scientists have warned that being catapulted from a plane going more than 250 miles-per-hour would cause severe if not fatal injuries, Sergt. Victor James and Capt. Vincent Mazza, both 32, have proved the scientists wrong. During a recent test of an emeregncy ejection chair over San Pablo Bay, near San Francisco, Calif., the men were individually catapulted from a plane doing 555 m.p.h. In the photo, Capt. Mazza is shown being shot from the plane. His seat is barely above the edge of the fast-moving plane.—Central Press Canadian.

FLOWERS OF THE FOREST

ARRIVES FOR ADDRESS OF SHRINERS

TORNADO DAMAGE

A three-minute tornado did this job on a village of 600 persons near the Ontario-Quebec border. The wreckage of a sawmill at Cheneville, Que., 50 miles north of Ottawa, is shown in the foreground. The roof of the house across the road was torn away, as were those of 50 other houses in the village. The 80-foot top section of the church steeple in the background was hurled to the ground. Damage was estimated at more than $150,000 but there were no serious injuries.—(CP Photo.)

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY, DIRECTS POLICE TO $10,000 CACHE

Victor Desmarais, one of the two men who surrendered to police after a spectacular bank robbery and attempt to steal a plane, led police to where the bulk of the $10,000 stolen from the Larder Lake bank, was cached —Central Press Canadian.

The money, returned to Larder Lake, Ont., bank officials is quickly counted. Desmarais had hid the money after the failure of the two robbers to fly a plane to escape. The second accused, Leo Martial, tried to lead police off Desmarais' trail by saying he had been drowned.—Central Press Canadian.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

"You keep changing your rules too often to suit me," writes a new reader. "I remember your saying a partner should not bid with less than three tricks. Now you say a queen is enough."

He has me mixed up with a couple of other fellows. Or the lunar system, which changes with the moon and rotates with the seasons. No rule in Horse Sense has ever strayed from the original.

Each opening bid has its own minimum qualities. Therefore, each calls for responses that fit its minnies. Consequently, replies to each different type of opening require different values.

An opening of one shows five tricks. So, responder bids only with three or more. The idea is that there will be no game in the pair if partner has less than three tricks. So, with two or less he passes.

An opening of two in a suit shows enough for a game. So, partner bids something whether or not he has anything. The idea is that they have a game even if the responder has nothing.

Between these two kinds of openings is an opening of two in the no-trump department. This shows a minimum of seven and a maximum of eight high cards. And high cards are aces, kings, queens.

So, answers thereto show values that are different than the others. To make a game, responder needs less than he does in answer to an opening of one; more than he does to an opening two in suit.

What the reader evidently refers to is the reply to an opening of two no-trump. With no high card, partner passes. With one or more high cards, even a queen, partner makes a responding bid.

South opens with two no-trump when north has the hand seen here:

♠Q 8 7
♦J 7 4 2
♣8 6 5 4

The north response is three no-trump. His lone queen is enough for it. This is the one high card his partner lacks for a game.

Each answering bid fits the bid in question.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 23 — (AP)— Jack Benny jokes about being perennially 38, but to many movie stars age is no laughing matter.

Probably nowhere in this troubled world is age so important a factor as in Hollywood. Some stars conceal their birthdates with atom-bomb secrecy. Many areled by studios, press agents or vanity to falsify their ages.

This can start at an early age. Until recent years, Shirley Temple's announced age was a year younger than she actually was. Reason: Her studio wanted to make her more precocious.

It's enough to drive an "obit" editor batty. Recently I had to check the birth date of Bing Crosby. His brother, his studio and the book of his life gave three different years. The correct one seems to be 1901.

Have a Laugh

The official studio biographies always provide a snicker. They will say, "Miss Glomm was born Jan 26." That's all. It would seem that film stars are born on days, but never in years.

Most of the stars' ages can be obtained from old records. Only Hedy Lamarr and George Raft have managed to keen theirs a mystery. Someone who should know once told me Raft is 53.

Al Jolson proclaims the news that he is a mere lad of 60 and offers his driver's licence as proof of the date. But a driver's licence is far from official, and his friends say he is beyond 70.

Gloria Swanson makes no bones about being 50. She admits it freely because most people think she's older, having been in the public eye so long. Likewise, people are surprised to learn Loretta Young is only 36; she's been in the movies 22 years.

Diplomatic

A Hollywood reporter has to be diplomatic concerning ages, as I have sometimes discovered by trial and error. Once I was talking to a veteran glamor girl about movie stocks. She said she had bought into one company when the stock was 40, but it quickly plummeted to nine.

"You'll never see 40 again," I commented unwittingly.

Luckily the gal had a sense of humor and replied, "You can say that again, boy."

AVALANCHE KILLS FIVE

Vienna, July 23 (Reuters). — Five persons were killed Friday in an avalanche while they were crossing a 9,000-foot-high slope in the Gross Venediger District of Eastern Tyrol. Two others escaped.

In Manhattan:

Canadian Dancer Gives NY Musical Much-Needed Lift

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, July 23 — (CP)— "Miss Liberty" has all the makings for a magnificent musical.

Robert Sherwood wrote the book. Irving Berlin provided the music and lyrics. Moss Hart directed the show. And the cast, including the Canadian-born Allyn McLerie, is talented and engaging.

But the result is a trifle disappointing. Perhaps it's because so much was expected of such a team. The show moves ponderously and jerkily through the first act.

The mood alternates abruptly between serious drama and rowdy comedy. The musical becomes serious when it deals with the meaning of the Statue of Liberty as a symbol of hope for immigrants from Europe. It turns to comedy over the newspaper circulation war between James Gordon Bennett of New York Herald and Joseph Pulitzer of The New York World.

Cheerful Side

But the choregraphy, by Jerome Robbins, is excellent. Miss McLerie, a native of Grand'mere, Que., who was brought up in Brooklyn, shows an elfin grace in her dancing Mary McCarty sings some of the Berlin numbers with fine feeling. Ethel Griffies is magnificent as a rather disreputable old flower-seller in Paris. And Oliver Smith's sets are first-rate.

The best one of the songs is "Homework" and as far as the music goes, "Paris Wakes Up and Smiles".

Notes at Random

The Shelton-Amos players are to appear in summer stock for six weeks at the Grand Theatre in London, Ont., starting Aug. 15. In October they are billed to go on tour through Western Ontario. Hall Shelton and Ruth Amos are well known in Toronto, where they played for six consecutive seasons. . . "Inside U.S.A." has extended its run in Chicago until the end of next week when it will close to give the star, Toronto-born Beatrice Lillie, a much-needed rest. . . "Two Blind Mice," starring Melvin Douglas, and "At War With the Army" closed their New York runs last Saturday. That leaves only 13 shows running on Broadway. . . William Eythe is only temporarily out of the cast of the revue, "Lend an Ear." Previous reports said his role was being assumed by Hal Hackett. Actually Hackett and several others are filling in until Eythe returns from a trip to Hollywood.

Ontario Senior Baseball Notes

Kitchener Legionnaires have made a move to regain their spot in a three-way tie for first place in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

A 3-2 victory last night over London Majors put Kitchener within a half-game of the top spot which they shared until Wednesday night with Galt Terriers and Waterloo Tigers. The Legionnaires were set back 4-1 by Brantford Red Sox Wednesday but last night's game showed that they don't intend to stay down.

In last night's other Intercounty game, Stratford Nationals turned back Guelph Maple Leafs 4-2.

Garson Greyhounds trampled Coniston 13-0 in a Nickel Belt Baseball League game in which they pounded three Coniston hurlers for 13 hits. In another Nickel Belt League fixture, Fox Didone went all the way to win his first game of the season in pitching Copper Cliff Red Men to a 7-3 decision over Sudbury Shamrocks. Copper Cliff advanced into fourth place while Garson's victory left the Greyhounds in a tie for the cellar spot with Coniston.

A Timiskaming Senior Baseball League match between the tail-end Kirkland Lake Greyhounds and the second place Hollinger Bombers ended in a 3-3 tie. The game was called at the end of the 12th. inning because of darkness.

In the Kitchener-London Intercounty game, Legionnaires counted all of their runs in the first inning, while London picked up one in the second and the other in the sixth. All the way through it was a pitchers' battle between two southpaws, Kitchener's Carl Fischer and London's Joe Ladensack.

After a shaky first inning, Ladensack settled down and pitched good ball, giving up six hits in all, fanning seven batters and walking two. Fischer yielded 9 hits, didn't pass a man and struck out five.

A walk, singles by Box Bloxam and Ross Doherty and an error by Ladensack gave Legionnaires all their runs. Majors scored their first run on Gord McMackon's double, a wild pitch and Gil Robertson's single and counted their second tally on three hits in a row by Ken McFadden, Bechard and Jack Parry and a force-out at second.

At Stratford, Guelph Maple Leafs jumped on right-hander Bill Russ for two runs in the first inning but found him unbeatable over the rest of the route as he doled out five hits and no runs.

Nationals got one back in the second on a hit, error and a long fly. They knotted the score at 2-2 in the fifth on two singles and a wild pitch. Their two-run margin of victory came in the eighth frame on four runs and a pop fly.

Batting stars for Stratford were backstop Irish Miskimmons and centre-fielder Billy Flick, who both had three hits in four appearances at the plate. Catcher O'Connor had a like record to top Maple Leafs.

Today's card in the Intercounty loop: Guelph at Brantford; Stratford at Waterloo; Kitchener at Galt and London at St. Thomas. All are night games except the St. Thomas fixture.

In the Niagara District League, Bugays meet Welland, St. Catharines is at home to Kicks and North Tonawanda journeys to Niagara Falls Fords.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was singing to herself while she pored pop his ferst cup of coffee this morning, saying, Isn't there an old proverb, William, that says a little revendge is relished by the wisest men.

Well, werds to that effect, I beleevve, pop said, and ma said, anyway, it's true, and I'm the living proof, because I had a little innocent revendge and I'm as happy as a mornink lark.

Who was the victim? pop said and ma said, Rita Hayworth, the present Princess Ally Kann.

Yeee gods, tell me more, pop said, and ma said, It all happened in a dreem, so that's what makes it dubbly innocent. I dreemed I haunted the mailman waiting for an invitation to their famous wedding in France, but it never arrived, and really. William, Imean really, I was so mortified I didn't know which way to tern my humiliater blushes.

What about the revendge, I've got to hear about that? pop said and ma said, It was perfect. I dreemed I was walking along, when suddenly three was a great hubub of police sirens, and it was the former Rita Haywerth dashing along behind the diamond studded wheel of big silver car accompanied by an official escort And low and behold, she stopped rite alongside of me with a cherry wave and a cordial smile and apologized profusely for her secreterry's negligence. I murmured some noncommittal reply or other because I felt sure she was leeding up to asking me a favor, aand sure enough in the next breth she wanted to know if I would give her the recipee for my famous angel food cake, ma said.

Of course your terned her down cold? pop said, and ma said Well naturelly, that's the whole point.

And she kept on swinging to herself and pop took 2 more cups of coffee.

Whipper Billy Watson Draws Of Newsboys, Fans Otherwise With Atkins But Wins Hearts

Nearly two thousand excited wrestling fans chewed their finger nails, twisted and squirmed in their seats and in general showed a well-deserved desire to tear the roof off the Memorial Arena last night.

An irate Whipper Billy Watson sat in his corner awaiting the appearance of his foeman, Fred Atkins, so-called British Empire wrestling champion, who at the moment was nonchalently taking a shower bath.

It seemed that the second fall which evened matters between Watson and Atkins was a few minutes short of the 60-minute time limit. Atkins claimed that he was entitled to a five minute rest which automatically ended the bout while a fuming Whipper encouraged by the vociferous acclaim of fandom sat waiting for the "man who did not come to dinner".

And Referee Ernie Powers of Hamilton upheld the Australian's claim. He was probably as fed up with the proceedings as was Atkins, and called the show off.

However the master-minds might take a flea in the promotional ear and have such things announced after this. Fans last night were highly indignant over the trend of things, and it might better behoove the promoters to cater to the wants of the patrons than to the sometimes childish whims of a so-called wrestling champion.

That Armband Again.

The bout itself was livened by the outstanding efforts of Whipper Watson. As far as Atkins is concerned he went through his now familiar and disliked villain routine plus the armband which covers an alleged injury. He has worn the appendage now for four weeks Mebbe he doesn't heal quick.

Atkins by his unorthodox tactics and unwillingness to "play clean" as a champion should is wearing out his welcome in these parts. Fans here would like nothing better than to see somebody snatch the bauble of the British Empire wrestling championship from his snooty brow and give everybody a change of scenery. It's about time.

The card was an excellent one otherwise with Pat Flanagan doing a swell job in his pinch-hitting for the late Phil Lawson. Both prelims were exciting and well fought as was the main bout with the exception of the childish tactics of Atkins.

Whipper Watson won the hearts of sixty Ontario Intelligencer newsboys and others with a highly informative talk on safety.

The Whip gave each lad an autographed picture of himself following the talk in which he demonstrated his various holds. He asked for membership to the "Watson Safety Club" and he received a unanimous response.

The boys were the guests of the Memorial Arena at the wrestling match.

CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER ASPHALT

Waterloo, N.Y. July 23—(AP)—John Estes, 24, was crushed to death Friday when nine tons of asphalt landed on the cab of the truck he was driving. The truck plowed into an embankment and the impact caused the asphalt to slide forward onto the cab.

Three Men Held After Shooting Of Racketeer

San Francisco, July 23 (AP)—San Francisco police today arrested three men in connection with the shooting of racketeer Mickey Cohen in Hollywood last Wednesday.

Police said the three, picked up were James Tarantino, publisher of a Hollywood night club magazine; Hy Porter his San Francisco representative; and J. Tenner, San Francisco nightclub owner.

All three were booked on a technical charge.

In Los Angeles Tony Brancato, one of three men wanted in the Southern California city for questioning in the Cohen shooting, was apprehended early today.

At the same time, Joseph E. Messina, 35, a prize-fight manager, who surrendered Friday, was released today.

"His alibi will stand up, at least for the time being," police said.

Gambler Cohen and three other persons, including an attorney-general's agent assigned to guard him, were wounded by heavy slugs fired from shotguns as they emerged from a movie-colony playground called the Sunset Strip, adjoining Hollywood.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF TERRORISM

Cairo, July 23 (Reuters) — Mohamed Mahmoud Yussef, son of Mahmoud Yussef Pasha, deputy-director of Egyptian King Farouk's royal household, has been arrested in Alexandria on a charge of Terrorist activities. Mohamed, a student at the military college, is alleged to have participated in a number of acts of violence, including an attempt to blow up the old Anglo-Egyptian union building.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

Madge wore brown, her color. It made her eyes hazel, and set off her clear skin. She looked smart, dainty, from her shining brown pumps to her saucer hat that was tipped on her dark curls. She was at a hotel for the present.

"But Phyllis has the most adorable place down in Greenwich Village," Madge told them happily; "simply adorable, such big rooms, and every one with some sort of little terrace or balcony or roof, and all brick with a big back garden! and she only pays seventy for two rooms; I know, because she wants me to go in with her. She's had a most attractive girl named Sonya Leslie with her, but Sonya's simply coining money, and she's going to move uptown. She writes words for songs . . . imagine. She wrote the words for . . oh, well, 'Pig-Latin Kiss,' but that's old. She writes lots of 'em. She wants to be in the same building with her married brother and his wife's Ursula Kent of the . . . well, what does she do? Tap dance, I think. Anyway, she's always in the Durringham Follies; that sort of thing."

There was more. Chris listened, smiling broadly; Fanny sat listening, too, her narrowed eyes sometimes looking up at Madge, her rather brooding gaze returned to her own hands, still resting on the marketing list. It looked oddly cheap — sordid; turnips, cornstarch, apples. While she was slaving away saving pennies, Madge was coming to New York by Panama, meeting fascinating folk, going fascinating places.

"Oh, and I forgot — has anyone seen Mack?"

"Chris had a postcard from Hollywood that he had been working there and was coming on here this month."

"I can see . . ." Madge was being very attractive in her penitence and appeal, "I can see you though I treated him badly. But I really didn't . . . . ."

The light shone in her brown eyes; she had long lashes; her straight nose was a little blunted at the tip; her mouth had deep dimples each side, and there was a hint of cleft in her chin.

When Chris went to get his hat to walk with her to the omnibus, or to find a taxi in this impoverished region, the girls had a moment alone. Then Modge looked quickly at Fanny and asked in an undertone:

"Happy Fan?"

"Oh . heavens---!" Fanny ejaculated, with a laugh and a shrug, bright color in her face.

"Does he know?" It was Madge's turn to flush darkly.

"What do you thmk I am?'

"Knew you wouldn't. You're a good sport Fan. I'd have told on any girl in the world. He was sick?"

"Desperately sick. Pneumonia and bronchitis and every thing."

"Hospital?"

"No. I took care of him."

"H'm!" Madge mused. "You in your note at the hotel where you were, but you've just moved in today?"

"Just this afternoon."

Madge go up smiling at Chris, and he and she went away together, Fanny left alone, attacked her dishes resolutely, moving about the unfamilar place busily. But her heart felt sore; she felt poisoned and dull and cheated--stupid----

Chris was gone so long that she could slip down one flight of stairs and tap lightly at the door they had passed that afternoon. Red light was showing dimly through the hall transom; they were still awake.

She was admitted; there were whispers, dark smiles. Fanny had a glimpse of the new boy; very small and crabbed-looking danred in a scoop of dreadful blanket.. The place smelled of flannel and oil and cigar smoke and fried onions, but the proud mother smiled radiantly at her neighbor: "I lose my boy," she said simply. "Now God give me a fine boy."

Fanny went upstairs feeling awed, somehow very happy.

There was no pretending that Madge's presence did not complicate things. Madge took up her residence with the fascinating Phillis, and after that what Madge and Phyllis did had the right of way, was amusing, original, dashing, and what Chris and Fanny went over to dine at the delightful apartment, with its terrace looking down upon Washington Square; Phyllis was extremely gracious, and Madge her sweetest self, but somehow the occasion was a failure.

"Shall we go down and have our coffee in 'The Red Ink-Bottle'?" Phyllis asked, after the meal. "I think you'd like it."

"Oh let's go to the lovely Russian place we went last night!" Madge begged.

"My dear you havn't seen one tenth of the places! I'm educating her," Phyllis told the others. "It's not as amusing as the 'rive gauche', but you may as well know your way about!"

Phyllis lived a thrilling life; she apparently had plenty of money; she had traveled; she knew everyone worth knowing. All the playwrights and writers and critics were her friends; she dressed in startling smocks and dragging Oriental draperies; she had a colored maid so devoted that Clora would never take her Sunday off if Phyllis was expecting guests; she was too much interested. For dinner there were artichokes and sherbet and broilers and alligator pear - things that Fanny had not even priced for months!—and then there was coffee at "The Red Ink-Bottle," wandering afterwards through enchanting streets, and loitering in enchanting places--sheds made into restaurants and basements made into theatres, and puppet shows, and finally to some man's studio, high under a skylight, where in-darkness they all sank down in great couches and listened to a Russian playing the violin. The man next to Fanny she was not quite sure that she had ever met him--grasped her hand warmly, and she let him hold it unprotesting. The whole thing was like a dream.

She and Christopher walked home, very late; Chris amused and sleepy and Yawny; Fanny very silent. Their own neighborhood—the line of common little stores, the basements with ice and coal lining them, the smells and sounds, the external invitation, "Apartment to Let, All Conveniences" swinging on dirty signs in the doorways as the hot night wind went through the street—all these sickened her, made her want to scream.

"Darned interesting, that girl," Chris said, undressing.

"Phyllis?" Fanny said, managing to make her voice sound as if her thoughts had been elsewhere.

"Yep. Don't you think so?"

"Well, I think she's n awful liar, Chris," Fanny answered lightly. "I mean all that stuff about the man on the boat who followed her around and turned out to be Lord Dressington — I don't believe it."

"Would she make that up?" Chris asked, shocked.

"What Madge gets out of it," Fanny murmured, as if to herself.

"Oh, Madge isn't her kind;she's just amusing herself, she doesn't take all that seriously!"

"What——" Fanny was turning down the bedcouch, folding the cover, shaking the pillows, "what makes you think so?"

"Because I know Madge. She's smart. She's got.. her tongue in her cheek all right; she'll get a lot of fun out of this, and meet a lot of interesting people, and then she'll drop Phyllis like a hot brick."

"Honorable!" Fanny commented in a trembling voice, getting into her thin kimona. She pushed her hair off her hot face with a frantic gesture.

"What did you say?" Chris called from the Black Hole. Fanny made no answer; she moved her big chair to the window and sat there looking out, her arms folded, a grim expression on her face

"What's the matter, darling?" Chris asked alarmed, coming in with a fresh washed face and tousled wet hair. "Aren't you coming to bed?"

"No"! said Fanny loudly.

"Why not?" Chris demanded blankly. He stood looking at her for a long, amazed minute during which Fanny continued to stare out of the window. But swiftly he was kneeling beside her, on his knees, his arm about her. "Aw, what is it, darling?" he asked, in his tenderest voice, "what is it, sweet? Did it kind of make you mad, seeing all those girls had, having them show off that way? Don't you care, Fan: I'll buy you dinners, and a terrace apartment too, one of these days. Or I'll tell you what we'll do: we'll get an old car, and we'll cruise up through New England and find an old farmhouse——"

Fanny turned suddenly, put her arms about his collar, buried her face in his neck.

"Oh, Chris," she sobbed, clinging to him, laughing at her own absurdity. "You're so good to me, and I love you so! I'd rather—I'd a million times rather be here with you than anywhere! But they talk—they act—" She stopped.

Orders New Trial In Birth Case

London, July 23 (AP)—An Appeals Court ordered a new trial on the question: Can a man be the father of a child born 12 months after he last saw his wife?

Charles Jones charged that his wife had been unfaithful, and asked a divorce. The divorce court rejected his charge.

In ordering a new trial, Lord Justice Bucknell said justice would best be served by having a new trial limited to taking expert medical opinion, with other testimony already received admitted as evidence. Lord Justice Asquith agreed.

In a dissenting opinion, Lord Justice Denning said a 360-day gestation period was "quite fantastic."

He urged that a judgment be returned allowing Jones' appeal and granting him a decree "here and now."

Jones contended at the divorce court hearing last March that the child was born in August, 1946, just 360 days after he left Britain for a tour of duty with the R.A.F. in Germany.

He testified that he did not return home until 186 days before the birth.

Divorce Commissioner George R. Blanco-White, who heard the case originally, said medical evidence eliminated the possibility that the 8½-pound baby was premature. He dismissed the divorce action.

"Mrs. Jones is a respectable woman who swears she has not committed misconduct," he ruled. "I do not think it is right to condemn her on speculation.

"The question reduces itself to a simple question as to whether the court's knowledge, judicial knowledge or natural laws enables it to say without any satisfactory evidence that 360 days between coition and birth is an impossible period, and therefore, if that period has elapsed, the woman is guilty of misconduct.

"I think not."

WHITE-ON-BLACK PLATES

Guelph, July 22 — (CP) — Prisoners at the Ontario Reformatory are hard at work these days turning out Ontario's 1950 automobile licence plates. Made here since 1931, the 1950 white-on-black plates are expected to number more than 2,000,000, due to the rapid growth in the province's car population. Some 50 men, working in two shifts of eight hours each, are doing the job, which takes about nine months.

Several Thousand Scouts, Tourists Add Some Color, Life to Ottawa

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 23—(CP)—Canada's capital was invaded this week but scarlet-coated Mounties just stood quietly and watched.

Laughing, bare-kneed Scouts, honeymooners, more Scouts, American tourists, and still more Scouts converged on Parliament Hill, shaking the peaceful serenity of the sprawling stone buildings in which Canada's laws are made.

The tourist season was on in earnest, but that wasn't half of it. The Boy Scouts were holding their first annual jamboree at Connaught Rifle Ranges in a tent city outside Ottawa.

Poured Into City

At the rate of 700 a day they rolled into the capital in special buses to see the sights.

Romping gaily across the spacious green lawns in front of the Parliament Buildings and treading self-consciously through its long corridors, the Scouts from all parts of Canada made it known that they weren't missing a thing.

Armed with cameras, the Scouts bathed the buildings in a rainbow of color. Neckerchiefs of every hue streamed in and out.

They munched hot dogs, whistled at pretty girls, asked all sorts of questions, took pictures of the Peace Tower, clustered in awe around the Mounties who stand guard at the gates to the buildings, studied points of historic interest and stared at the long, sleek automobiles of the diplomatic crops that pulled up on Parliament Hill.

Background

In contrast to their bubbling enthusiasm was the quieter side of life on the hill.

There were still the young couple necking on the shores of the Ottawa River; the thinkers and ponderers sunning themselves on the benches, and the lawn-sitters.

There were also the people who preferred lying down on the soft carpet of green. Many of them catch a nap during lunch hour on the grass. Others are veterans of the art who can be found virtually every sunny day in their favorite spot.

One old-timer, who makes his headquarters there, said he thought this might be something of a record tourist year. He'd never before seen so many people visiting the buildings.

"It's easy to tell a tourist," he offered. "They come in bunches. They carry cameras and they're always in a hurry. Can't see what they've got to hurry about. Look at me. You'll never see me in a hurry. Guess I'm just like Parliament."

PECULIAR TASTE SHOWN BY YOUTH

Toronto, July 22 (CP).—Police arrested a Toronto youth today for having a peculiar taste in clothes. They said they nabbed the youth with a bag crammed full of women's panties. A search of his home revealed more lingerie, they said, stolen from clothes lines in the neighborhood. They said nothing else was ever touched on the lines. The youth was charged with theft.

SCOTCH SHORTAGE EXPECTED

Montreal, July 22 — (CP) — A world shortage of Scotch whisky can be expected in the next year or two, Leycester Anderson, Scottish distiller, said here Wednesday. Mr. Anderson, chairman of the Leith firm of J. G. Thompson and Co., said in an interview that Scotland's whisky production dropped from 29,000,000 gallons in 1939 to 3,000,000 in 1942. In 1943-44 there was no production.

Regina Editor Will Take Long Way Home

Sydney, Australia, July 23 (CP) — D. B. Rogers, editor of the Regina Leader-Post and member of a party of Canadian newspaper men who visited Australia last week, plans to leave Sunday for Hong Kong via Lebaun on his way back to Canada.

The remainder of the party, completing the pre-inaugural flight of Canadian Pacific Air Lines new trans-Pacific route to Australia, landed back at Vancouver Thursday.

Mr. Rodgers, a director of The Canadian Press, hopes to meet Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, Canadian Ambassador to China, at Hong Kong. He will fly back to Canada from Hong Kong by way of Tokyo and the Aleutian Islands.

Thursday, Mr. Rogers met privately with Prime Minister Chifley and External Affairs Minister Evatt.

"CAT-DRIVERS" AT WORK

Sawyer Stoll Lumber Company drivers at Massanoga, think nothing of hauling out from 25 to 30 Hemlock logs on one load with their caterpillar tractors. Ken Boomhour is shown below with a cargo that would have put Paul Bunyan to shame.

These logs ultimately reach the Sawyer Stoll Company yards at Kaladar, in the form of fine band-sawn lumber, sold to the wholesale and retail trade at this point on No. 7 Highway.

Four-Week Strike Ends as Dockers Make Good Pledge

Men Begin Work on More Than 150 Ships for Unloading

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 25 (CP)—More than 15,600 dockers, stevedores and lighter men went back to work today in the port of London and officially ended the four-week strike which started when two Canadian ships were labelled "black" by the Canadian Seamen's union.

This the strikers made good their pledge, taken at a mass meeting Friday, that they would resume normal working of the London docks this morning.

"They've all gone back to work smiling," one dock official said. "Many of them are so badly out of the pocket (low in funds) they'll probably work overtime with a will."

The men began work on more than 150 ships holding needed cargoes, including the Canadian vessels Beaverbrae and Argomont over which the strike started when they were called "black" by the C.S.U.

Tackle Grain and Other Cargo

While porters started unloading 1,200 tons of grain from the Beaverbrae, stevedores tackled the rest of her cargo of logs. The ship, which has been idle since March 3, is expected to be unloaded by Wednesday.

But there is still a big pile-up of goods and shipping must be dispersed before port schedules can be brought up to date.

Meanwhile, William Bell, of Chatham, N.B., a Beaverbrae seaman attacked last night in a dockland pub, still was on the danger list in hospital, although his condition was reported "fairly comfortable."

The other injured Beaverbrae crew member, Donald Hudson, 23, of Fort William, returned to his ship after being treated for head injuries.

Bell was stabbed with broken glass and kicked about the head and body as he lay unconscious on the floor of the pub. The attackers fled before police arrived.

J. Church, operator of the pub, told a reporter:

"Just before closing time a party of 15 Canadians entered the public bar where Bell and Hudson were sitting in their usual places in the corner having a quiet drink, as they have been doing for some months.

"Eight of the men went straight at the two seamen and beat them up with bottles and glasses."

Meanwhile, a double guard of seamen was placed on the Beaverbrae this morning while detectives interviewed Hudson. All visitors had their credentials examined at the gangway.

NEW TORTURE USED ON ANTI-REDS LETTERS CLAIM

"Electric Boot" Claimed Used in Moravian Prison

By HUBERT HARRISON

Vienna, July 25 — (Reuters)—Letters reaching British officials here say that new tortures, allegedly more terrible than those used in German concentration camps during the war, are being tried on anti-Communist Czechs in the forced-labor camps of Czechoslovakia.

One of these letters claimed that in the police prison at Uherske Hradiste, in Moravia, "electric boots" are one of the various instruments of torture. These consist of a chair with a foot rest on which are fastened two boots, the soles of which are an electric grill.

The prisoner is placed on the chair, the boots are put on and firmly fastened. Then electric current is switched on.

The unfortunate prisoner, with the tender soles of his feet being slowly grilled, soon is ready to confess to anything which the police demand of him.

Training of Communist 'Gestapo'

The letters also tell of the system of training members of the Communist "gestapo."

The State Security Department has organized courses, these letters say, in a castle at Zizelice, during which prisoners "are thrown to the young trainees as prey."

One letter claims that the Czech political police cover their faces with masks so that their identity is not known to their victims.

Other letters received say that although the nationalized Czech economic system is becoming less and less efficient, the police system is a marvel of organization.

Czechoslovakia, these letters declare, "is crawling with policemen of all kinds, with well-paid informers and agents provocateurs."

The prisons are packed. Small cells, intended for two men, contain 12 prisoners or more so that they can sleep only by leaning one against the other.

The letters reveal the presence in Szechoslovakia of small resistance groups. But they can achieve little owing to the efficiency of the police system. Those who are able are escaping, at the risk of their lives, to Austria.

Four Boys in Buggy Struck by Car

Kitchener, July 25 — (CP) — Four boys driving home in a buggy from a swim were set upon by three men Sunday night after the automobile in which the men were riding struck the buggy. The boys were Jesse Martin, 18; his brother, Henry, 10; David Martin, 18, a cousin, and his brother, Menoah, 10.

Jesse Martin told police he pulled out to the side when the car, with one headlight on, approached. He said the car driver turned out the other light and the car hit the buggy. Three men got out and demanded $50 damages for their car.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 25 — (CP) — Synopsis: A band of thundershowers spread eastward through Ontario Sunday night. Somewhat drier air moved into Northern Ontario following the showers, but hot and humid weather is in prospect in the lower lakes district today.

Little change is expected in the lower lakes district for Tuesday.

ELEVEN VICTIMS IN ONTARIO OVER WEEKEND

Two Year-Old Baby Killed Sitting on Tracks

(By The Canadian Press)

Eleven persons lost their lives in Ontario during the weekend—only one by drowning. Two persons died of burns, two in train accidents, two in falls and the others in a variety of mishaps.

At Renfrew, Alex Delarge, 65, was burned to death while trying to save farm equipment from his burning barn. Also dead from fire burns is Jack Woods of Brantford, victim of a flash fire July 14 in a Brantford abrasive plant.

Albert St. Cyr, aged two years, was killed when he wandered onto railway tracks and sat on a rail in the path of a freight train two miles south of Haileybury.

And Gordon Stevens, four, of Toronto, was killed when he ran into the path of an automobile near Keswick Beach on Lake Simcoe.

In Toronto, John Szabo, 45, died of injuries suffered when he fell from a 30-foot ladder. He had been helping paint a friend's house.

From injuries suffered when caught in a sand-mixing machine, James Watts of Paris, died in hospital.

At Kitchener, Mrs. Caroline Giles, 82, died from cuts suffered when she fell in her basement. And hit by a car while track welding in Ottawa, Harold T. McClelland, 38, of Cantley, Que., died in hospital.

Leslie Smith of Ancaster, was killed when a truck in which he was a passenger was in collision with another truck in Hamilton.

After being hit by a train, 17-year-old James Parker of Dryden, also was fatally injured.

At Sebright, on Lake Simcoe, north of Toronto, Adam Knezeak of Warren, O., was drowned when his boat capsized.

Bader-Inspired, Legless Canadian Makes Success of Life in England

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Shoreham, Sussex, England, July 25 (CP)—Henry (Hank) Freese, formerly of Carnduff, Sask., is one of those Canadian soldiers who make opportunities out of misfortunes.

Five years ago, while serving with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Sicily, tall, good-looking Hank was "blown up" by a stray shell. He woke after 16 days of unconsciousness to find himself without legs from above both knees.

Today he digs his own garden, plays with his six-year-old son, Royston, on the lawn, drives a car and works in the engineer's office of Brighton Borough Council.

Hank, as some of his army buddies said "just didn't know when he was licked." He had himself fitted out with artificial legs and after a spell of "home sweet home" in Canada returned to England and took a course in mechanical drawing and draughtsmanship.

"Oddly I never tried this kind of work before," he said. "In Canada before the war I was more or less established as a baker. It wasn't till after I'd lost my legs that a Canadian army psychiatrist put me on the right track.

"I fell for the idea right away and I've never regretted it. This work is right in my line and I prefer living here to anywhere else. So does my wife."

Thought of Bader

For a while after I came to I was in despair. Then I thought of Douglas Bader, a legless R.A.F hero. It was his courage that inspired me and made me feel life wasn't so hopeless as it seemed at first."

Just the same, Hank found getting used to artificial legs a painful and weary process.

"Oddly the only thing that defeated me was the Canadian snow. I simply could not walk in it. That's why Rita and I decided to return to England."

Soon after he joined Brighton council, Hank passed his test for a driver's licence. He uses his car for work and, when he's not busy in the garden, takes the family out in it.

Dysentery Believed Abating In District of Mattawa

Mattawa, Ont., July 25 (CP)—A dysentery epidemic which has claimed the lives of 12 young children in this district appears to be abating.

With the cause of the outbreak, which has brought illness to upwards of 50 other children, still undetermined, doctors say no new cases have been reported in the last 24 hours.

Eight of the most severely ill babies were sent to Toronto Sunday night for treatment. Dr. J. Bergeron, Mattawa's medical officer of health, said it was hoped the transfer of these children would help to stop the spread of the disease.

Two Ontario government experts are continuing tests to track down the source of the malady, which some residents blame on impure water. Dr. R. A. Westman, a baby specialist, and E. W. Johnson, a sanitary engineer, visited the northern Ontario town Saturday, went to homes in which babies have died and took samples of well water.

Waterworks Needed

Residents of this booming town of 3,000 persons at the junction of the Ottawa and the Mattawa River, 40 miles east of North Bay, are continuing to boil drinking water.

Mattawa has no town waterworks and its citizens obtain water from wells or from the river. River water has been condemned for some time and medical men believe impurities may be seeping into some of the wells.

Mayor Albert Huot, a railway telegrapher, says he and his council want to start installation of a modern waterworks system. He is awaiting word from the Ontario government's stand on Mattawa's application for funds.

Several adults, in addition to the young children, have been stricken with the strange illness which starts with a high fever, followed by severe intestinal pains and vomiting. A 26-year-old man went to hospital and a hotel clerk had to leave his job.

Toronto, —(CP)— Eight young children suffering from dysentery, which claimed the lives of 12 infants in Mattawa, arrived here today for treatment at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Dr. J. Bergeron, medical officer of health in the small northern lumbering town, said at Mattawa Sunday it was hoped transfer of the youngsters would halt spread of the disease.

They travelled in two ambulances by way of North Bay and were put to bed on arrival at the hospital. Authorities said their condition is unchanged.

Father Flies Son to Israel; Poses Problem for Authorities

New York, July 25 (CP)—A father who said he was taking his small son to a movie but instead boarded a plane for Israel against the wishes of the estranged mother posed a problem today for authorities who wondered how to go about prosecuting him.

At last reports the father, Irving Horowitz, 37-year-old clothing manufacturer, and his son, Stephen, three, were well on their way to Israel.

From London last Tuesday, where he arrived after a trans-Atlantic flight Horowitz said that he would never come back to the United States and if his former wife, Edythe, wanted to see little Stephen again she would have to join them in the new Jewish state.

Today Samuel Gitlin, assistant district attorney, said he would go before a grand jury and ask for an indictment against Horowitz on a charge of kidnapping. The official said he hoped some way could be found to bring back the fugitive father and son.

But it was noted that there is no extradition treaty as yet between the United States and Israel.

Last March 10 Mrs. Horowitz, 28, received a separation from her husband and was awarded custody of Stephen, their only child. The father was given permission to see his son two days a week.

P.G.A. Blacklists South Africa's Bobby Locke

St. Paul, Minn., July 25—(AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association announced today it has blacklisted Bobby Locke for any P.G.A.-sponsored event.

The P.G.A.'s Tournament Committee said its unanimous decision against the South African golfer was "deemed necessary" because of his failure to keep commitments at exhibitions and tournaments.

The announcement was made by George Schneiter, the Association's Tournament Bureau Manager.

"There were numerous complaints filed against Mr. Locke, but the committee prefers not to disclose any specific ones," he said. "Actually, from time to time, different things have entered the picture to make the action necessary."

New York, July 25—(AP)—The smouldering feud between Bobby Locke, British Open Golf Champion, and the United States Golf Officialdom flared into the open last Thursday when Locke withdrew from the $15,000 Inverness Invitational Golf Matches at Toledo.

Stanley J. McGiveran, chairman of the matches, said the withdrawal "was a very belated one" and disclosed he recommended to the Professional Golfers Association that Locke be barred from all future American tournaments.

Locke, now in Britain, snapped back with:

"As captain of the British P.G.A., I think I have had disgraceful treatment from the American P.G.A. I can only think that there must be some small heads ovc, there if they want me to 'make' their tournaments."

Fashion in Furs May Mean Hungry Indian Trappers

Bourlamaque, Que., July 25 — (CP)—Modern fur fashions are causing hardships among Indians of Canada's northland, Bishop R. J. Renison of the Moosonee diocese of the Church of England said in an interview here.

Bishop Renison, who late last week returned from a 3,105-mile journey to the 30 mission posts in his docese, said:

"Women don't have long furs anymore. The skins have to be scraped to paper thinness and the long fur often has to be clipped to suit them. They are being worn as ornaments, not as protection from cold."

Fashion's dictates for short furs mean hungry Indian trappers, the 73-year-old Bishop said.

But he didn't place all the blame on the women. "Men", he said, "once were proud of their fur-lined coats."

But for Dominion Government Family Allowances and Old Age Pensions, he said, the Indians would undergo severe hardships this winter owing to "the vagaries of fashion" and fur farm competition.

However, he said, the trading posts of the Hudson Bay Company that buy the furs from the Indians have undergone "wide modernization."

The Company has ended flat rate barter for furs. Now buyers must go to Montreal to learn to grade furs at the point of purchase. As a result, the Bishop said, the itinerant and black market dealer has been driven out of the north where he formerly got the cream of the fur crop.

Bishop Renison spent 41 days touring the 350,00 square miles of his diocese. When he visited the new mission of Whale River he confirmed 125 Eskimos.

TORONTO COUNCIL TO CONSIDER SUNDAY BASEBALL

Clergy, Others Offer Opposition to None

Toronto, July 25 — (CP)—Toronto's city council goes to bat today to consider Sunday baseball.

Though nominally it's only baseball which will be under discussion, in reality the whole field of organized non-commercial Sunday sports may be affected and, perhaps, Toronto's Sunday blue laws.

The council will be asked, on recommendation of three members of Board of Control, to grant permits for use of city playgrounds for two "test" baseball games on separate Sundays.

But some council members, aroused by widespread public interest in the question, have indicated they will ask that it be shelved until a vote can be taken at civic elections next New Year's Day.

After a week of vigorous sound effects and plenty of publicity, sides have been drawn.

Pressing for sport on Sunday is Controller Allan Lamport. Behind him is a large segment of Toronto citizens which wants a "bright Sunday" instead of the normal Toronto Sunday, which, to quote the controller, is "dull, dull, dull."

The opposition is composed of clergymen and many others who believe that use of parks by non-commercial teams on Sundays would be the "thin edge of the wedge."

Today's meeting was precipitated by Dan North, president of the North Toronto Baseball Association, which has 20 teams of boys under 21.

Applies for Permit

Mr. North said he has thought for some time that his boys should be able to enjoy themselves with a game of baseball on Sundays. The larger crowds

Hauls 21-Pound Grey Trout From Papineau Lake

Bancroft (Special) — What is believed to be a record haul for grey trout was captured over the weekend by Ontario Provincial Police Constable W. E. Smith of Belleville.

Constable Smith, fishing in Papineau Lake boated a beauty which tipped the scales at 21 pounds, 10 ounces after a stiff battle.

Papineau Lake is eight miles east of Maynooth. Constable Smith is holidaying with his wife in that district.

Thousands of Acres of Sask. Farmland Appear Dying for Lack of Moisture

Cadillac, Sask., July 25—(CP)—Hundreds of thousands of prairie farm acres appear to be dying in this corner of southwestern Saskatchewan. Short patchy stands of scorched wheat with unfilled heads dot the flat, parched fields. Grass along the roadside is a dusty brown.

Four thousand farmers in the southwest have acknowledged no hope of a crop by cancelling their hail insurance. More are expected to do likewise.

Representatives on 2,000 farmers in the five municipalities surrounding this village 200 miles southwest of Regina Friday asked for assistance until—a familiar byword in the 30s—"next year".

They met with government agriculture officials to devise a scheme whereby money could be given farmers to provide their hospitalization fees, their winter's coal and groceries and feed for their livestock.

Resolutions were passed calling on the provincial and municipal governments to provide the financial assistance and recommending that the Wheat Board retain wheat for seed in the drought areas.

In return for the assistance the farmers were prepared to work on local projects such as road building, irrigation, planting, shelter belts and the seeding down to grass of prairie roadside. Others would go as harvesters to various parts of Canada.

The fodder-short farmers have another problem. In some parts of the province, where hay is abundant, some owners are reported trying to get "black market prices."

But while the southwest was plagued with its worst crop failure in a dozen years, to the north-east and southeast and in some central Saskatchewan areas the possibility of bumper crops was promising.

The cropless farmer today, unlike the 30s, now can benefit as high as $500 from a fund established under the Federal Government's Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

Bill Would Give Sweeping Powers To Supply Weapons

Expansionism of Soviet, Communism Breed New Fears

Washington, July 25 — (AP) — The Truman administration asked Congress today to vote a $1,450,000,000 foreign-arms-aid program, saying Russia and international Communism make this outlay necessary.

It is a first step under the new North Atlantic Treaty, with "future programs" yet to take shape.

The draft of a bill submitted by the State Department simultaneously with a special message from President Truman would give the President sweeping powers to ship guns and other weapons—but not atom bombs—to friendly countries all over the world.

The department summed up the reasons behind the administration's action in these words:

"The political aggression and expansionist aims of the Soviet Union, abetted by the malignant growth of international Communism, have bred a new fear and insecurity in the world."

The report said Canada should be encouraged to obtain more arms and other military equipment in the United States. This would enable the Dominion to meet its many security responsibilities.

The full reference to Canada:

"Collaboration between the United States and Canada in the solution of mutual-defence problems has been the practice since 1940. Both countries now are signatories to the North Atlantic Pact, and, in addition, they are associated in the permanent joint board on defence. Because of various factors, Canada is unable at present to procure arms and equipment from the United States in any quantity. To enable Canada to make her maximum contribution in fulfilment of her North American, North Atlantic Pact and United Nations Security responsibilities, Canadian procurement in the United States should be encouraged."

Nowhere in thousands of words of explanatory and background material on the arms program, did the State Department enter directly into the argument over what further steps the United States pledged itself to in joining the North Atlantic Treaty.

It did say, however, that "helping free nations to acquire the means of defending themselves is an obligation of the leadership we have assumed in world affairs."

More than $1,000,000,000 of the proposed military help would go to Atlantic Treaty countries in western Europe — such countries as Britain, France and Belgium. Said the State Department in a 41-page pamphlet prepared for Congress:

"Their defence is our defence and will continue to be of deep concern to us as long as their military weakness invites aggression."

The aid plan now proposed, the pamphlet said, would provide only "urgently needed" arms for western Europe and "futile programs" will be necessary.

BILL WOULD—Page 3

CANADA OFFERED CASH-AND-CARRY SHARE OF U.S. PLAN

Would Mean New U.S. Dollars for Dominion

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 25 (CP)—Canada has been offered a cash-and-carry share of the United States plan for arming the non-Communist democracies.

That suggested role was outlined today by President Truman in a message to congress and in the state department's formal draft of the long-awaited program. The same pay-as-you-go participation is suggested for the Latin-American republics.

Truman recommended that Canada and the American republics be assisted in obtaining defence equipment from the United States "at their own expense."

The state department, noting that Canada now is unable to get much of this equipment, said "Canadian procurement in the United States should be encouraged."

There is no hint in today's statements that Canada might be called on to do a "supplier job" similar to the one she has performed under the Marshall plan for Europe's economic recovery.

Some observers have pointed too, to the possibility of a subsidiary arrangement whereby Canada would manufacture some of the military equipment needed by the United States for its own use.

With production costs thus reduced, Canada at the same time could make cheaply many of the things the Canadian armed forces require, it was suggested.

One result of any such arrangement would of course be a new source of United States dollars for Canada.

Today's outline of the arms program indicates no such dollar benefit to the Dominion.

Shot While Hunting

Cornwall, July 25—(CP)—Accidentally shot Sunday while hunting, Robert Simpson, 22, was removed today to his home in Eastview, Ont., suffering gunshot wounds in the head and face. Hospital officials said he may lose the sight of his right eye. A shotgun Simpson was using backfired. The accident happened at Aultsville, 18 miles west of here.

SHRINERS RETURN FROM CHICAGO

Belleville Shriners who attended the meeting of the Shrina Imperial Council in Chicago last week, at which 80,000 members of the Shrine were present for four days, arrived home on Saturday. A special train from Toronto conveyed the Shriners from that city and other places in Ontario to Chicago.

The Belleville party was composed of P. M. Till, Garn Dobbs, John A. Thornbury, William Ketcheson, Harry Abbott and Dr. J. Russell Scott.

JAS. J. LEONARD PROMOTED CUSTOMS COLLECTOR AT PICTON

Former customs and excise officer at Belleville and at Corbyville James L. Leonard of this city has been promoted to collector of customs and excise at Picton, it was stated today by Lt.-Col. E. A. Geen, customs collector at Belleville. Mr. Leonard's place at Belleville is being taken by Avone Scott, Grade I customs and excise officer.

MOTOR-BIKE DRIVER INJURED IN CRASH

Leonard Rowland, Westmount, Montreal, was admitted to Belleville hospital at noon on Saturday after suffering injury when he ran his motorcycle into a stopped car on the Lower Bridge.

Rowland was following a car driven by Clarence Smallwood, R. R. 1 Roblin, when he failed to realize the car was stopping for a red light and crashed into the rear of the vehicle. He was thrown from his motorcycle to the pavement and suffered slight groin injury and shock.

BABY MISSES BOTTLE BUT PARENTS DON'T

Alone in a parked car outside a hotel at 11 o'clock at night is no place for five kiddies ranging up to six years, according to local police.

Just this was reported to local officers of the law Saturday night by a passerby who found a six-months old baby loudly protesting.

Investigation by police revealed the parents had left the kiddies in the car while they enjoyed a few rounds of beer at a local hotel. Police ordered the father to report to the police station.

Novel Coins Seen In Collection Of R.C. Andrews

"No labour—no bread" is the inscription on one side of an old halfpenny token, owned by Mr. Robert C. Andrews, 264 Coleman street. The likeness of a man using a flail accompanies the inscription. Oxen pulling the plow are engraved on the other side, in keeping with the inscription, "Speed the Plow". The coin, one of a collection, is believed to have been used in an English colony.

Coin collections are valuable, not only monetary value, but for historical purposes. They are indicative of the progress made in the making of convenient medium of exchange. The inscriptions and engravings often bring to mind important events from the past.

Mr. Andrews has a number of coins which prove this contention. A worn English coin, with only the likeness of George III visible, will remind the history student of the American War of Independence. George III was the ruling monarch at that time.

An 1813 halfpenny token bearing the inscription "Pure Copper Preferable to Paper" shows that the public at that time must have been skeptical of paper money preferring something with value of its own.

Coins are also a means of preserving the memory of an outstanding person. An 1816 piece bears the inscription, "Sir Isaac Brock The Hero of Upper Canada" along with an engraving of his head and shoulders.

Other interesting coins in Mr. Andrews' collection are: one coined by the East Indies Company in 1835 for the value of a quarter anna, a Bank of Montreal halfpenny token dated 1844, and an English four-pence coined in 1839 during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Firemen, Farmers Combat Fire In Dry Grass

City firemen and neighboring farmers co-operated Sunday afternoon to combat a grass fire which for a time threatened the farm buildings of Mr. H. Grills, R. R. 6, Belleville, near Gibson's Crossing, east of the city.

The grass fire, running through the tinder dry grass, spread rapidly and a call was put through for assistance of firemen to prevent the flames reaching the farm buildings. After apparently being extinguished the flames flared up the second time and firemen were called out a second time.

Sunday morning firemen were called to the apartment house at 1 Moira Street, West. where a chimney fire was reported.

Saturday noon the department was called to the city dump with firemen being continuously on duty fighting a dump fire until two o'clock Sunday morning. Firemen ran 850 feet of two and one half inch hose to combat the fire.

OBITUARY

MELZER EDWARD FERGUSON

Melzer Edward Ferguson, 143 West Moira Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Sunday morning. He was in failing health for the past two years.

Born at Rockport, Ontario, the late Mr. Ferguson was in his 59th. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ferguson. Prior to his illness he was engaged as a salesman with the Weston Bread Company and resided in this city for the past ten years. Before coming to this city to reside he lived at Elgin and also at Campbellford. He was a member of Holloway Street United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Ella Coons; three daughters, Miss Doris Ferguson and Miss Melba Ferguson, both at home, and Mrs. Patrick (Marjorie) Hamilton of Uxbridge; two sons. Donald Ferguson and Ernest Ferguson, both of Belleville; one sister, Mrs. Ida Halliday, Kingston.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE MRS. BERNARD LaBARGE
(Actinolite)

Tweed, July 25 — (Special) — The funeral of Mrs. Bernard LaBarge, who lost her life by drowning at Actinolite on Tuesday last, was held from the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Fred LaBarge, near Tweed, to St. Carthage Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father F. D. Hyland, assisted by the Rev. Dean Garvin and the Rev. Father Buckley.

Interment took place at St. Carthage Cemetery.

The bearers were Joseph Sexsmith, Joseph Kehoe, John Abrams, Bud Price, Bud Pigden and Louis Woodcock.

The late Mrs. LaBarge was born nineteen years ago at Actinolite and all her life was passed in the district where she was born. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fobert. She was a member of the Roman Catholic Church at Queensboro.

Surviving her are her husband; her parents; one son, Leon, age one year and nine months, and one daughter, Rose Marie, age eight months; four brothers, Thomas Fobert, Actinolite; Charles Fobert, Actinolite; Alfred Fobert, Sudbury, and Vincent Fobert, Batawa; three sisters, Mrs. Patrick Cassibo, Tweed; Mrs. John Laton, Actinolite, and Mrs. Manuel Either, Timmins, Ontario.

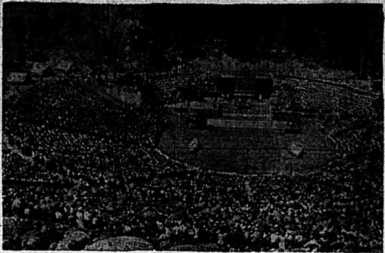
Police Blotter

"Very confusing" is the way which police considered the story of a Picton resident who reported over the weekend that two Belleville men had robbed him of his wallet containing over $100 in bills. He said the incident had taken place in the footbridge gangway.

Police said the complainant had been drinking but nevertheless they checked on the two men named by the Picton man. A search of their persons failed to reveal either the lost purse or the money and they were allowed to go.

A car registered in the name of Gilbert Schwazer, R. R. 8, Belleville, was driven into a deep ditch along North Front Street near the Superior Cleaners Sunday night. Police failed to find the driver and had the car towed away.

A Foxboro woman reported losing a wrist watch in a local five and dime store.



30,000 GERMANS AT CHURCH SERVICE

On Sunday, 17th. July, the Catholics of Berlin, the eastern sector of Berlin and the eastern zone, celebrated the golden jubilee of Pope Pius XII. The celebration, held in the Berlin Olympic Stadium, was attended by 30,000 Catholics. A speech by Pope Pius in German was broadcast over the radio, and the Catholic bishep of Berlin, Cardinal Graf Preysing, also addressed the crowd. This view of the stadium during the celebration shows part of the huge crowd.

Victoria Park Gets Face-Lift, Projects Under Way at Present

After being under water for a number of years, the southern part of Victoria Park is beginning to take on a semblance of its former condition when it was the locale of happy picnic parties.

The grass has been cut between the old bath house and the harbor, while the parks board has set out a number of benches for the benefit of residents' seeking to defeat the humid weather.

Time and the elements have gotten in their destructive work on the bath houses, and chairman of Victoria Park, William Lindsay, reported today that they will eventually have to come down. The work of razing the buildings will be for another year, however, the result of a very limited budget for work on Victoria Park.

But with the $1,000 allotted for work at Victoria Park, Mr. Lindsay has arranged for cutting the grass on a portion of the park area not overrun with marsh grass.

Also a new dock on the east side of the park is being repaired with Mr. Herbert Collins supervising the work. A new dock built from used telephone and hydro poles and from used bridge timbers is being constructed, the dock measuring slightly over 200 feet in length. Depth of water is sufficient to accommodate pleasure cruisers.

This week a bulldozer will be put to work to level off piles of dirt and rock fill in the triangle at the park entrance which has been drawn and dumped to raise the level of the park area.

Village Tax Rate Down From 1948, Set at 62¼ Mills

Tweed (Special)— The tax rate for 1949 was established at 62¼ mills by the village council. This is down 2 mills from last year and is attributable to the fact that the high school rate was reduced 2 mills. This will be good news to local taxpayers. A number of tenders for the various waterworks extensions in the village had been received from various contractors. If these are considered reasonable for the proposed extensions, the council must then approach the Municipal Board and Provincial Board of Health, for their permission to issue the necessary debentures and proceed with the work. Six or eight extensions to various parts of the village are planned.

Discuss Account

There was considerable discussion on an account of $600.00 presented by Foster's Dairy for supplying water to the village system. Some members of the council thought the amount was exorbitant, and that it should be revised. Finally the matter was left with Councillor Trudeau to seek an adjustment. Alex Wright asked the council to assist him in obtaining further work in addition to the collection of garbage. "I find the garbage contract does not bring in sufficient money to keep my family." he declared. The council agreed to help him wherever possible in removing village refuse etc.

Robt. A. Wood sought a permit to dismantle an old barn on Colborne Street, on which property he proposes to build a suitable shed for the storage of farm vehicles and implements. "This should make an improvement in the appearance of the present lot," Mr. Wood noted.

Might Protest

Councillor Graham thought there would be a petition of protest if a shed, such as Mr. Wood had in mind, was erected. "Some people living on Colborne Street feel that the thoroughfare should be restricted insofar as business places are concerned," he declared. After some discussion, Mr. Wood agreed to submit plans and sketches as to the type of building he proposes to build.

Constable Spratt asked for an increase in salary. He said at the present time, he was paid $125.00 a month and he did not consider this sufficient. He said he was given mileage for out-of-town trips. The council unanimously agreed to raise his salary to $150.00 a month.

Councillor Trudeau said the present system of water meters is not altogether satisfactory. "Some residents with meters claim their accounts are exorbitant," he said.

Reeve McCarey was of the opinion that all business places, particularly those using a considerable amount of water should be placed on the meter basis. Two lots on North Victoria Street were sold to Grant Baker for building purposes.

Tweed Readies For County Birthday Party

Tweed (Special)—Tweed municipal council at a recent meeting, voted to place decorations in Memorial Park and assist Reeve S. A. McCarey in every way possible, to help make the Centennial Celebration a success. Reeve McCarey who is the 100th warden of Hastings county, said a big crowd is expected from all parts of the county. The Canadian Legion is assisting to arrange the program.

Constable George Spratt reported that some residents especially boys are shooting off firearms in an indiscriminate manner in the village. It was pointed out that a provincial by-law makes it a criminal offence to use firearms within the confines of any village. Constable Spratt asked that a by-law be passed making it a criminal offence to use firearms on one's own property. "People's lives are endangered when thoughtless citizens use guns within the village, and I think the police should take immediate steps to lay charges against those responsible," one councillor said. Constable Spratt said he would watch future violations carefully.

Two Shaken Up As Truck Upsets

Allan Lee, 231 Kent Street, Whitby, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital by Bush's ambulance, Sunday, when the truck he was driving turned over on Highway 14, near the Ben Gill cheese factory.

He was badly shaken up and is suffering from slight shock. A soldier, a passenger in the truck, was shaken up as well.

The truck, owned by Gordon Harris, Whitby, was extensively damaged.

MUSICIANS' SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Waterloo, July 25 — (CP) —A Musicians' School for Boys has been officially opened at nearby Bandberg. Young bandsmen from Woodstock, Norwich, Waterloo and Kitchener were the first group to move in. A two-hour concert was given by more than 30 boys.

Car Overturns, Five Escape Serious Injury

Five persons narrowly escaped serious injury late Saturday night when the car in which they were passengers overturned on Highway No. 2, four miles west of Belleville. The occupants, two men, two girls, and a ten-year-old boy, were shaken up.

The boy, ten-year-old Billy Van Alstine, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital by Bush's Ambulance, where a cut on his arm was closed with five stitches. He was later taken to his home near Bancroft.

Miss Canada IV "Perfect, Fast" Says A. E. Wilson

Ingersoll, July 25 — (CP) — Miss Canada IV, only Canadian entry in the Harmsworth Trophy races next weekend on the Detroit River, is in "perfect" condition and "plenty fast," owner E. A. Wilson of Ingersoll said today.

Mr. Wilson, whose son Harold will pilot the boat in the International event, said the sleek motorboat went through a 30-mile run Sunday at Gravenhurst and "everything was perfect." He declined to make any predictions.

The Miss Canada will be brought here Tuesday from Gravenhurst and will leave for Detroit Wednesday in time for a two-day test over the Harmsworth course.

79-Year Recluse Robbed of $22,000

Denver, July 24 (AP). — Mrs. Katherine Kreig, 79-year-old recluse told police Saturday she had been robbed of $22,000 in $100 bills. She said a man awakened her by striking her in the face, held a flashlight in her eyes and said: "Don't move or I'll kill you. Where is the money?"

She gave him a purse containing $7, but he rummaged behind a dresser and found a black hand bag containing the $22,000, then fled.

World's Best Paid Playwright Shaw 93 on Tuesday

Ayott St. Lawrence, Hertford, England, July 25 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw will be 93 tomorrow—and he doesn't look a day more than 90.

He has the same attitude toward money now as he had then, too. He likes it.

So how the world's highest-paid playwright feels and what he thinks of the world in general on this great occasion remains secret to a would-be interviewer who called today.

True to form, Shaw brushed off a birthday interview request as follows:

"Interview? Birthday interview, certainly—if the young man offers me a nice, big commission"

Not being authorized to do anything of the kind, the young man turned to Shaw's friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Winsten.

Mrs. Winsten said the famed Irish pundit will mark the anniversary of his birth by ambling down the hill to sip sweet apple juice with Winsten, his crony and biographer.

Mrs. Winsten said Shaw looks "just as well or better than he did at 90".

These days he writes mostly letters—in a workroom cluttered with piles of books and pamphlets on George Bernard Shaw. He also is working on a new booklet whose subject is —a bit of a mystery. His housekeeper, Mrs. Alice Laden, would say only that it's "strictly non-political".

He has just completed a 12-minute puppet play.

The title:

"Shakespeare and Shaw."

U.K. Not Seeking U.S. Dollar Loan

London, July 25 (AP). — The government is not at this time seeking a United States dollar loan, treasury sources said today.

A treasury spokesman said officially there is "no comment" on a report by Senator Homer Capehart (Rep. Ind.) that Washington was talking about a new loan of $8,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000.

The exact figure of Britain's foreign debt both dollars and pounds—has never been made public. Best estimates place it at more than three billion pounds ($12,000,000,000).

It includes the $300,000,000 Canadian loan, a $400,000,000 United States credit granted in 1946, additional United States credits under the Marshal Plan, and unpaid bills to India and Egypt for purchases made in blocked sterling during the war years.

Sunken Tug To be Moved

Picton, July 25 — (CP) — A salvage tug and barge are anchored on the shoal on which the tug J. A. Cornett sank July 10, off nearby Point Traverse. The tug is lying in 30 feet of water on the edge of the lake shipping lane. An attempt will be made to move her close to shore before trying to get the water out of her.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 25 (CP)—All groups but western oils edged into slightly higher price ground on the Toronto stock exchange today. Base metals continued their advance for the second week and industrials showed signs of strengthening after last week's fractional lapse.

Seagrams added 3-8 at 17 7-8 and Loblaw gained 1-4 at 27 3-4. Mercer Mills hit a new low for the year, losing 5-8 at 6. Stelco preferred managed a half point increase at 82 1-2. Dominion Stores also ran up a 50 cent advance to $27. Canadian Breweries were on the down side taking a 1-4 loss at 20 1-2 was another gainer in the industrial list, adding 1-8 at 7. B. A. Oil, Great Lakes Paper and Union Gas were all losers.

McIntyre Mines lost 1-4 in the senior producers list. Kerr Addison was also down, losing 1-8 at 16 3-8. La Luz, in the same group lost one cent at $2.25. Yellowknife Bear, a junior issue added nine cents at 80 and Negus Mines tacked on an eight cent increase to $2.18. Bralorne was the heaviest loser in the senior list, taking a drop of 15 cents to $9.75.

Base metals were fairly active in the first three hours. Consolidated Smelters added 5-8 at 94 7-8 and Osisko continued its rise, gaining 13 cents at 77 cents. Waite Amulet was also ahead and registered a 12 cent increase to $8.85. Also higher were United Keno Hill, Lake Dufult and New Calumet, which gained 11 cents at $1.23.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 25 — (CP) — Prices were steady to strong on good quality cattle on the local livestock market up to noon today. Lower grades were weak. Calves were steady; hogs were unsettled with bids lower and sheep lost $1. Lambs were unsettled with bids $2.50 a hundredweight lower at $26.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle 4,800; calves 700; hogs 400; sheep and lambs 600. Left from Saturday's trading were 800 head.

Good to choice weighty steers sold at $22-$23 with good light steers at $21-$22 and good heifers at $20.50-$21. Fed yearlings sold at $20-$23.

Calves were steady at $21-$23 for good to choice with plain to medium vealers at $16-$20. Grass calves sold for slaughters at $13-$15.

Sheep sold at $10-$12.

REMOVE PINS OF SAFE DOOR

Toronto, July 25 — (CP) — Safecrackers who removed the pins from the door of a safe and smashed the combination, escaped with $400 cash and $1,000 worth of stamps from a Toronto drygood store and sub-post office.

INJURED AT WASAGA BEACH

Wasaga Beach. Ont., July 25 — (CP) — Struck by an automobile, Bob Gibson, 20, of Toronto, lay unconscious on the beach outside a dance hall for 20 minutes early Sunday. A companion, Chris Benner, also of Toronto, called police and a doctor.

Later, police in Collingwood, charged Charles Hudson of Collingwood with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

RECALLS DAYS OF McGEE

Toronto, July 23 (CP) — The days when D'Arcy McGee, one of Canada's Fathers of Confederation, could be heard in the Commons are recalled by Mrs. Robert Jamieson, 98 on Monday. She was in Ottawa, herself, then, on a honeymoon with her husband, who was reporting a parliamentary session for the Kingston Whig.

YOUNG P. C. STARTS PROVINCE-WIDE DRIVE

Toronto July 25—(CP)—Young Progressive Conservatives from all parts of Ontario have started a province - wide drive to bring in new members to the party. The young PC's met with Ontario Premier Frost and provincial cabinet ministers for informal talks on policy during the weekend.

Canada's New Submarine-Killers To be Completed in Two Years

Ottawa, July 25 — (CP) — Keels will be laid soon for the first three ships of Canada's new fleet of submarine-killers.

Shipyards in Halifax, Montreal and North Vancouver will start work on the $8,000,000 escort ships, the first "major war vessels" to be completely designed and built in the Dominion.

They're the first of a new type of vessel made necessary by the rapid advances in submarine warfare made during and since the war. The first is expected to be ready for tests in two years.

The ships are designed for mass production and experts say the design has been kept simple — the superstructure has been simplified, and the elaborate masts and elevated bridge usually associated with warships are gone.

The superstructure is to be aluminum over a steel hull. It's the first time such large-scale use has been made of aluminum in a fighting ship and designers say it will save weight and is easier to keep clean.

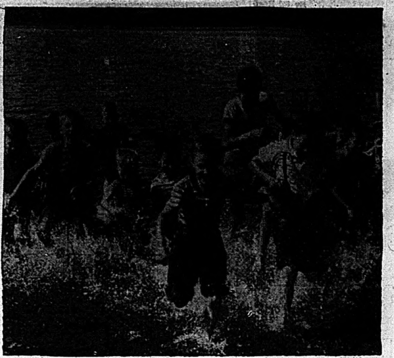
But aluminum corrodes when it comes in contact with steel and special precautions must be taken when fastening the aluminum to the hull.

Chief designer of the ship is Capt. A. H. Baker, recently transferred from the British to the Canadian navy. He says a new flush-deck design, the low bridge and the use of aluminum are ahead of current British naval design but in line with British naval thinking.

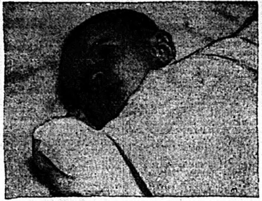
The ship will combine both British and American ideas. It will use both asdic and American radar and will be compartmented so it can survive at least two torpedo hits, unless one of them strikes the magazine.

One American feature will be introduced for the first time in the Canadian navy — bunks replace the traditional hammocks.

11 DEAD, MATTAWA FEARS SPREAD OF EPIDEMIC



Unaware of the invisible danger in the polluted waters, Mattawa youngsters play every day in the Mattawa River. With 11 deaths from dysentery in the town and dozens of persons sick, residents of the town fear more deaths, clamor for piping of pure water from nearby spring.



Mattawa's dysentery epidemic is most serious when contracted by babies up to two years old. Jean Monrtoy is one of the seven babies now suffering from the disease. (Central Press Canadian)

Dr. A. A. Bergeron, M.O.H., at Mattawa, Ont., where a dysentery epidemic has caused the death of 11 children, has asked assistance from the provincial government. He blamed crowded dwellings were an underlying cause of the disease, spread by impure water. —C.P. Canadian.

Missing Balloon Believed Seen Near Bancroft

Bancroft, (Special)—A balloon, believed to be the one which escaped from its moorings at the United States Army radio and navigational equipment centre at Gimli, Manitoba, was sighted over Bancroft, Sunday.

It blew over the Bruton Fire Tower, Bruton Township, dragging a long length of heavy cable. Forestry officials at the tower think that the runaway balloon might be down in Hay Lake, south of Whitney. Whitney is about 100 miles north of Belleville.

The balloon, which slipped its moorings in Manitoba during a high wind, halted air traffic from Toronto to North Bay and Ottawa, for two hours Saturday afternoon, when it blew into the air traffic lanes across southern Ontario.

TACKLE FOOD PROBLEM

New Delhi, July 25 (Reuters).—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India Sunday called on provincial and state premiers to tackle India's food problem "on a war footing". He told a meeting of 18 premiers of provinces and states the Indian government's decision to stop food grain imports by 1951 is "irrevocable".

POLIO VICTIM ARRIVES IN AMERICA FOR TREATMENT

New York, July 25 (AP). — Janice Dawe, five-year-old English poliomyelitis victim, arrived here Sunday with the hope that doctors in the United States can make her walk again. Kenneth Dawe of Southampton, her father, said: "Four months ago we decided to come as immigrants and we sold everything at home. We thought if we stayed in England we could do nothing for the child."

11 INJURED AS CAR HURTLES INTO STADIUM CROWD

Westboro, Mass., July 23—(AP) —Eleven persons were injured Friday night as a car left the Westboro Stadium track during a stock-car race and hurtled into a crowd of spectators. A crowd of 9,000 saw the car go out of control, plunge through a guard rail then leap a nine foot wire mesh fence and land in a section of wooden bleachers.

BILL WOULD

There was no estimate as to how many years these programs might have to run.

That will depend largely, the State Department said, on "the degree to which we and the nations associated with us can remove the threat of war."

Today's action was a follow-up to the long and bitter senate debate over ratification of the treaty. That ratification was voted last Thursday by a lop-sided 82 to 13.

Prospect For Arms Program.

But no such easy sailing appeared in prospect for the arms program.

The State Department also sent to Congress a 41-page booklet covering virtually all the main arguments for the program.

Of the $1,450,000,000 which the proposed law would let Truman spend, the booklet says most would go to western Europe—"an area whose importance to our security has been demonstrated in two world wars".

Tieing the military assistance proposal directly to the North Atlantic Treaty, the State Department said the program would "complement" the treaty by carrying out its principals of "self help and mutual aid."

Western Europe would receive $938,450,000 worth of arms, technical assistance and training services together with $155,000,000 to be used in stepping up military output. This would leave only $300,580,000 for military help to other friendly countries including Greece and Turkey, since $45,000,000 is earmarked for an emergency fund and $10,970,000 for administrative costs.

No Alteration in A-Energy Act

Other major provisions of the legislation as prepared by the State Department:

1. "Nothing in this act shall alter, amend, revoke, repeal, or otherwise affect the provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946." (That act bars the government from releasing atomic explosives. Hence this section means the President could not give other countries atomic bombs.)

2. Arms could be supplied to all countries which have joined with the United States in "collective defence" arrangements providing for "selp help and mutual aid." (This would apply to Latin American countries under the so-called Rio Treaty — a Western Hemisphere defensive alliance.)

The President also would be authorized to aid other countries (meaning Greece, Turkey and so on) "whose increased ability to defend themselves against aggression is important to the national interest of the United States."

Equipment

3. The President could obtain equipment for the aid program by (A) taking it out of government stocks, (B) buying it new and (C) helping the other countries to produce it themselves.

4. The President also could accept materials from other governments "as a condition of or in connection with "the United States help. This follows the general principle of wartime "reverse lend-lease."

5. To get the program underway without waiting for an actual appropriation by Congress, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be empowered to advance the President $125,000,000.

OPP Cpl. Ramsbottom Promoted Acting Sgt., Posted to Belleville

Toronto, July 25 — (CP) — Cpl. Harry Ramsbottom of Lanark County, formerly in charge of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Kingston has been promoted to Acting Sergeant and transferred to Belleville, Commissioner W. H. Stringer announced today.

The move completes the reorganization of the Belleville district headquarters staff, recommended by a recent Royal Commission inquiry. The inquiry grew out of charges of misconduct and maladministration levelled at fellow officers by Constable J. E. Keays.

Acting Sgt. Ramsbottom joined the force in 1929 and has served as a constable in London. Windsor, Kingsville and Harrow. In 1946 he was promoted to corporal and placed in charge of the detachment at Kingston.

INVENTION TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS

Invention is wideawake. There is a new one to be placed which will safeguard children from backing cars or trucks as well as protecting trucks and buildings against damage when the former are being backed up. The first safeguard is of course for children. Every person knows that there have been accidents in cases where children get behind cars and in some cases the drivers' own children have been victims on the driveway or on the road just in front of the owners' property.

The inventors of the new device which has been reported are two brothers, fathers of children, and their purpose is primarily to prevent children suffering injury or death by getting behind a motor vehicle about to back up.

The device is simple and economical to install on any type of motor or truck. "It consists of a long, thin bar not unlike a curtain rod. This bar is attached to the rear of the bumper. As soon as a car is put into reverse gear the bar automatically extends outward about eight inches beyond the bumper. The instant that bar touches anything, be it a child or an object, it establishes contact with a solenoid valve which releases a vacuum cylinder and automatically sets the brake. The brake stays set until the car is taken out of reverse gear. When the reverse gear is disengaged the extended bar at the rear immediately retracts to its original position above the bumper.

"The device is aimed primarily to protect small children but it also serves to eliminate damage to trucks and buildings when being backed to loading platforms. It sounds like an effective safeguard and is indeed."

There is almost no end to invention. It can go on as long as there is man's need. In this invention something has been achieved which will save many lives and remove one of the anxieties of drivers and parents. The danger which exists to children if a car is backing up is well known as there have been many accidents all too tragic in their results.

No age in all history has witnessed so many inventions and they will go on being made as long as there is need. In this fact is hope against many of those accidents which cause injury or death. Someone will put his mind to the task and find the safeguards.

QUEST OF NOAH'S ARK

In the Middle East there has been extensive exploration for years to get at traces of prehistoric civilizations for that part of Asia is known as the site of the earliest civilizations on earth. The story is one of the most entrancing in all experience for it is discovering facts which were never written in history but are marked by remains of great empires and civilizations. At present there is an exploration seeking traces of Noah's Ark on Mount Ararat but from the fact that the deluge is said to have taken place many milleniums ago, there would likely be no trace of it, though there might be traces of the Great Flood, says St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Now the Russians have taken a hand by forbidding exploration parties entering regions which extend into Russian territory or are adjacent to the Russian border.

The success of expeditions researching into antiquity in that part of the world where the earliest civilization rose have proven many statements in the Bible. Indeed the Bible has given the clue which expeditions have followed to unearth some of the most amazing facts of the dawn of life and especially of that period of history before history was written.

Somewhere in that part of the world saw the rise of man to heights which no one could have expected of him. Archaeology has accomplished miracles in revealing the story of great empires which dominated that part of the world which was the Eden of the human race.

The Ark is said to have been built of cedar wood or cypress which are durable and was 450 feet long, 75 feet in height and 45 feet in breadth. Some think if the Ark was in Ararat its outlines might be found in the strata of earth.

The question of the location of the place where the Ark came to rest is another thing for the Bible says it landed in the "mountains of Ararat." Mount Ararat is the highest peak and it is there the search is likely to be made.

RULES FOR GROWING OLD

Long years ago, my editor,
To whom I live a creditor,
"Hey, Eddie!" often called to me.
"This man has lived to ninety-three,
I think there might be somethin gto it.
Go out and ask him how to do it."

I've written many times the story
Related by the graybeards hoary
And I recall that each has told
A different way of growing old;
Some said by drinking; some by shunning;
Some by walking; some by running.

I read them now instead of write them,
Stories so old I can recite them.
"Remember, as the years go by,
Take into age a twinkling eye,
And keep a smile for youthful folly.
One can be old and still be jolly.

"At ninety, if you would be sprightly,
Obey your doctor and eat lightly.
With young folk, who so little know,
Be patient; they will wiser grow.
Old age is good if you remember
There's always Christmas in December."

Strength for the Day
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IN BASEBALL PARLANCE

An examination of the batting records of the most famous baseball players reveals that a hit is the exception rather than the rule. The very best players in the business frequently strike out, or are put out in some other way even before they get to first base. No man can make a hit every time he comes to bat. The player who would do that would very shortly command the highest salary ever paid a baseball player. It is even more likely, however, that within a year or two the baseball magnates would constitute unfair competition, they are.

Every game is a reproduction of human nature and gifts being as life. The daily game of living goes along very much like a baseball game, with its ins and outs, its strikes, its foul tips, its hot grounders which are hard to negotiate. Men slide the bases in life the same as they do in baseball. One of the most disconcerting things for a player is to give the ball an awful clout and then have an outfielder pick it off the fence. Every salesman knows what it is to have had a prospective sale ruined in like fashion.

Every man gets a home run once in a while, but even the best get few. Don't worry if you can't knock them every day. Neither can anyone else. And don't expect a hit every time you come to bat.

TODAY'S TALK
BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NATURE WITHIN HERSELF

There are no outside plumbers, carpenters, artisians, doctors, and others of man's repair crew, in the realm of Nature. Nature is one to herself. She creates and lives upon the substances of dying periods. Nothing is lost to her. No one rakes off the leaves of the pines and maples from my summer island retreat here in Nova Scotia. Walking through her sheltered forest of trees, I tread upon years and years of accumulated life of other years. Her mossy and needled paths are like walking over a richly padded carpet.

The weak and the strong strive together in Nature. There is a blending of interests. In the worst of droughts these forest trees survive and thrive, though their roots hug into a mysterious foundation of rocks and scant earth. I look out upon hemlocks that are hundreds of years in age—study, almost animate creatures of the wild.

Nature is the best essay in itself of self-reliance. No outside calls for help in times of stress. As Marcus Aurelius has written: Here is the marvel of her handiwork, that thus self-circumscribed she yet transmutes into herself every content that seems corrupt and old and useless, and from the same materials recreates afresh, so as to avoid the need of fresh substance from without, or of some place for her refuse."

What a laboratory and what a museum of knowledge of the past and present are revealed to to the alert eye and interested mind, in all the phases and extent of Nature! No earnest investigator has yet lived long enough to more than take the simplest notes of her wonders and intricate designs. Of all inventors and creative artists Nature is supreme. From her we go to school for a lifetime, and then die only scantily informed.

We shall never know the full why for so many varieties of birds, animals, and insects, and why they were created with so much beauty and intelligence (perhaps only inborn instinct), for they all continually challenge the intelligence of man. A single blade of grass, or a leaf from any tree, is a masterpiece of beauty and intricate workmanship—things of mystery and wonder.

New Volcanic Island Arising Where Krakatau Once Stood

Bandung, Java, July 25—(AP)—Krakatau, the island volcano that blew itself out of the water in 1883 and killed 36,000 persons left more behind than a fearful memory.

A new volcanic island is rising from the same spot in the Java Sea between Sumatra and Java. This monster offspring is called Anak (child of) Krakatau. Like its mother, is is a bad actor rumbling and belching clouds of sulphurous vapor.

But is it a menace that will result in another catashrophe for Indonesia? Scientists keeping watch over it think not—at least for the present.

Anak Krakatau is but one of 149 volcanic centre in the East Indies. Offical reports show the others have taken 130,000 lives since 1800.

The man responsible for keeping an eye on the troublesome mountains of the Indies is a 58-year-old Russian, formerly a Colonel in the Czar's Cossacks—W. A. Petroeschevsky.

He and a skeleton staff of nine keep tab of the string of mountains that stretch in a 3,000-mile arc to form the backbone of the East Indies archipelago. Since funds for the work are skimpy, only one peak is equipped with a seismograph to record earth tremors and a "tilt meter" to measure swelling in its crater walls. Checking the activity of others means flying over them by plane or cutting through jungles and climbing by foot to the craters' edges. Petroeschevsky has scaled 11 volcanos and observed 30 others from the air in the last two months.

"Before Krakatau blew in 1883, she was an island of fair size, five miles in length and three across. She hadn't erupted in two centuries," Petroeschevsky said.

"One day she started with a booming like artillery. That went on for 14 weeks.

"Finally, one day in August, the island disappeared under a cloud of black vapor that rose to almost 20 miles. Four great explosions the next day blew away two-thirds of the island."

Tidal waves circling from the area devastated the shores of Java and Sumatra, flooding hundreds of villages and drowning thousands of persons. A thick fog left Batavia in complete darkness."

Mackenzie's Column
Scales of Justice In Britain Well Balanced

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

England's sensational "vampire" murder case, which has resulted in the sentencing of John George Haigh to the gallows, provides an excellent example of how the scales of justice are balanced in England.

After his arrest, Haigh boasted that he had killed nine persons in four years and had drunk of their blood. However, he was tried only on a charge of slaying Mrs. Olive Durant-Deacon, a wealthy widow, and dissolving her body in acid. During his detention on this charge, Scotland Yard investigated the disappearance of a half-a-dozen Britons believed dissolved in acid by a "vampire" slayer. But Haigh never was charged with these other killings.

While the case was in this status the London Daily Mirror, which claims the world circulation record for any daily (4,000,000), was brought into court on a charge of publishing an article calling Haigh a vampire and saying he had committed several murders. English law prohibits publication of any information which might prejudice the trial of a defendant, and the Mirror was found guilty. The paper was fined £10,000 ($40,000) and an editor was sentenced to three months in prison.

British Law

Not only is the law rigid regarding newspaper publication in such cases, but not until after conviction is the prosecution permitted even to mention crimes which the accused may have committed prior to the case in hand. English courts are noted for operating expeditiously and on a common-sense basis.

The judge's job is to see that the truth comes out, and if the lawyers don't uncover the facts, the justice does it for them. For instance, I have seen a judge in a murder trial turn to the jury and say:

"You may disregard entirely the testimony of this witness. He obviously is lying."

I also have seen a judge lean over and ask a witness a leading question which resulted in the conviction of the accused. The defence offered no objection.

This paternal attitude of the judges often produces dry humor from the bench, and England through the generations has been famous for her witty justices. During my many years in London the newspapers almost daily published quips from the bench. Here is one that has stuck in my mind.

A witness had just testified that he went into the elephant house at the London Zoo to make a telephone call. The judge inquired solemnly: "A trunk call, I presume."

THE PACKSACK
OF GREGORY CLARK

For thirty years, a lady of my acquaintance has been bringing a succession of cats with her up to her summer cottage, in a sturdy wicker hamper. This hamper has long been familiar to the deckhands on the steamer that serves her summer resort, and to the local settlers who do the baggage delivery and that sort of service.

This year, the lady decided not to bring any cats or animals with her, because her cottage had been newly painted, and she wanted to do some decorating. But she had the old hamper all cleaned and varnished and sent it up with the rest of her trunks and dunnage bags to be used as a picnic hamper, for which it was ideally suited.

The lady arrived two or three days later than her bagage. When she stepped off the steamer, the local settler ran up to her in great distress:

"Your cat," he announced, "was not in the hamper when it arrived. The steamer people have hunted all over the place, enquired at all the other stops...."

"But..." protested the lady.

"The railroad people," went on the agitated settler, "swear the cat was in the hamper when they delivered it to the steamer dock. One of the railroad men fed and watered it. And the steamer men swear the cat was in the hamper when they put it off here."

"But...." tried the lady again.

"I picked that hamper up," asserted the settler, stoutly," within three minutes of it being put off the steamer; and there was no cat in it!"

"You see...." began the lady.

"I've searched all over this place," consoled the settler, "but nary a sign of the poor thing..."

"Listen!" insisted the lady. "There was no cat in it. I shipped the hamper up empty!"

Buck passing can still be done when there is no buck to pass.

MEDICAL HOKUM ABOUT THE TONSILS

One of the aguments which social service workers, school nurses, runners for brass "surgeons" and "specialists" and even school teachers used to persuade parents to send children to the "clinic" for removal of tonsils and adenoids—on the wholesale plan—in the good old days before this column, was the hint, promise or hope that removal of the child's tonsils and/or adenoids would raise the child's intelligence level.

Unquestionably in many instances children have appeared dull, stupid or even mentally subnormal before removal of tonsils and/or adenoids, and afterward have shown normal capacity to use their mental faculties. This is no mysterious consequence of the operation. It is simply the effect of relief of the obstruction to breathing and restoration of blood and cells to something like the normal.

But such happy consequences should be intelligently assayed by physician and parent, in order to prevent disappointment. Such improvement is not an increase in the child's I.Q. or intelligence level. No adenoids and/or tonsil treatment or operation will change that, for it is inherent. The improvement in the child's ability to use his or her mental faculties.

We shall discuss that aspect of the tonsil and/or adenoids question in talks to follow.

The most extensive and significant records we have in reference to the results of removal of the tonsils are those made by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser in his unparalleled observation of thousands of school children in Rochester, N. Y. over a period of ten years. Dr. Kaiser observed some 4,400 school children whose tonsils required removal; half of the children underwent tonsillectomy, the other half did not.

I have studied Dr. Kaiser's reports (in medical literature and in his book Children's Tonsils In and Out, published by Lippincott, '32) as earnestly and detachedly as possible and, although my conclusion may irk the author, I regard Dr. Kaiser's findings as she most cogent evidence that the major operation, tonsillectomy, is unwarranted in the treatment of enlarged tonsils.

"It is clear that in the past," wrote Dr. Kaiser in the book mentioned, "the indications for tonsillectomy have not in all cases been based on any accurate knowledge." That would apply to the present as well as the past, I (Brady) should say Dr. Kaiser mentions, in reference to the importance of complete removal of the tonsils, that "accurate observers have reported as high as 73 percent incomplete operations in a series of 403 cases..no question that in a given number of cases taken at random, even when the operating has been done by presumably competent surgeons..."

One of the many reasons why the brass specialists hate me is that I have been telling the world the truth about the shameful trade these "surgeons" ply in this line. I have asserted here many, many times that most such operations leave more or less tonsil tissue in the throat—and no one dares to deny it. The ever-ready operators still talk a thorough, clean, complete operation when they sell tonsillectomy to their credulous customers.

I have said, too, that it is fortunate for the victim that the "surgeon", save the mark, does leave odds and ends of tonsil and/or adenoid tissue intact. It is just plain stupid to regard tonsil or adenoid tissue as harmful to health—but these brass surgeons find that such stupidity pays. It is your throat or life, or your child's, not theirs. So if you are susceptible to hokum they need only a look to convince them and you that those tonsils must come out right away.

Use Sparingly and With Discretion

What is your opinion and advice about the use of figs? (C. S.)

Answer—A good one may get out of a predicament. Maybe you meant figs—they're fine to eat.

Not Below the Tracks!

If you once had an office on South Main Street in Elmira I was a patient of yours. (H. H. W.) I'd like the pamphlet How to Lose Weight.

Answer—Sir! That would be below the tracks. For the pamphlet send stamped self addressed envelope, or shall I put it on your account. If you see my other patient tell him I appreciate an occasional payment on account. My office was on Lake Street, on the other side of the tracks.

Wrong Idea

My daughter, 18, is so miserable during her periods that she insists it is an illness. I think some of it, at least, is wrong mental attitude. (Mrs. T. D. R.)

Answer—Menstruation is a function, not an illness nor a "weakness." Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet Hygiene for Girls and Health for Women.

Thirteen

I am thirteen years old and 64 inches tall and I weigh 151 pounds. My average weight is 126 pounds. I would like to know how to lose 25 pounds. (W. J.)

Answer—You mean that according to arbitrary tables a girl of thirteen, 64 inches tall should weigh 126 pounds. There is only one safe way for a girl of your age to reduce, Wanda, and that is under the close supervision of your own physician. For your health, your personal appearance and your happiness I advise you not to monkey with any reducing regimen without the approval of your own physician.

BEAUTY

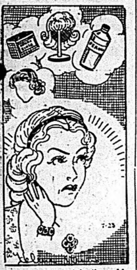
BLEACHING THE HAIR

Blonde pretties believe it would be a grand idea if golden tresses came with a color guarantee. They have a mean way of getting tarnished, though some halos retain their pristine sunshine throughout the years. They are the exceptions. The growth may take on a drab note or darken at the roots and, in the course of time, become a light brown. Hair that carries a beautiful copper sheen in girlhood may turn dark, so that the semi-blond is regarded as a brunette. This transition has been known to make some women very mad, the poor dears.

Whether or not gentlemen prefer blondes does not matter to the light-headed sister. What she wants is to retain the golden glints, one way or another. Dark tones can be bleached out, but this is not a job for the amateur who thinks she can play with a peroxide bottle with successful results. Usually she goes at the business blind-folded, seldom takes time to find out how bleaching preparations should be applied, or what special medium is best suited for her needs.

Beauty specialists are often called upon to repair the damage that has been done, and that is not easy. Only operators who have made a study of bleaching and dyeing can restore a mop of hair that has been subjected to home treatment. Often the growth must be conditioned for weeks before anything can be done.

The usual medium for bleaching is peroxide, as of course you know. A small amount of ammonia is added to hasten the change and therein lies the danger. A bit too much and the shafts are fairly burned. Over-bleached hair is not only unnatural in appearance, but the structure of each individual shaft is weakened by the ammonia; peroxide is harmless, has no effect upon the growth. Repeated bleachings, not properly accomplished, so change the character of the hair that it becomes jute-like. It is almost impossible to shampoo it. The soapy water runs off the strands like water off a duck's back. The hair has lost its power of absorption.



She wants to retain the golden glints, one way or another.

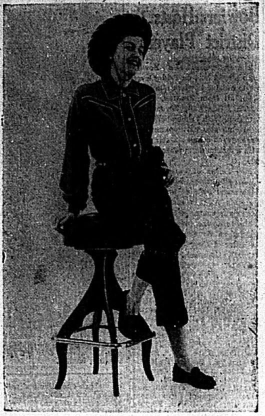
Better than the peroxide treatment, giving a more even color, is the so-called henna pack. There is no such thing as white henna. The term was created by some bright beautician and it has stuck.

The pack is made by combining powdered magnesium carbonate with enough peroxide to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream a little ammonia is added. No, my friend, we are not telling the proportions. You can't see the back of your head, and this is not a beauty treatment that should be self-administered.

The application must be watched carefully, removed the exact moment that the right color is attained. A shampoo follows and a lemon rinse.

Cosmetic chemists are making wonderful color rinses, and many women like them. The color lasts from one shampoo to the next, is not permanent.

Surprise Package



By PRUNELLA WOOD

The shirt this dude rancher wears with such a hard riding manner is a surprise package . . . it's the top of her fireman's red flannelette pajamas, doing an outdoor tour of duty. Piped with white in a Tom Mix manner, preshrunk so that frequent tubbing will not destroy cut and size, it is one for the dufflebag going to a cold climate vacation.

Pants for the shirt, not shown, are long and fullish, and the shirt is long too, with plenty of tuck-in comfort.

SUMMER ATTIRE FOR MEN IN THE WEDDING PARTY: WHITE SUITS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married in a garden wedding soon, and he would like to have me ask you if the white flannel trousers and navy jacket outfit is the only correct attire for a noon garden wedding. Is it?

Will you please give in detail a correct attire for a summer wedding, other than a blue jacket and white flannel trousers?

Groom's Mother

White suits are the alternatives and succesors of the blue-jacket-and-white flannel trousers as summer attire for the groom and his attendants. .and they deserve their great popularity, for they are both cool and cool-looking. As a matter of fact, they are so popular that nowadays, for summer weddings, they are worn not only at informal weddings, either indoors or in a garden, but even for quite large and formal weddings.

With a white suit the groom and his attendants will wear soft white shirts with soft collars; four-in-hand ties either of a plain color (blue perhaps) or blue foulard tie with a touch of white (polka dots perhaps) or any other color; white socks and all-white buckskin shoes; white handkerchief in the jacket pocket; straw hat, if any hat; on gloves. The groom's boutonniere will probably be white, usually one or two flowers from the bride's bouquet, and perhaps with a touch of green to make a contrast against the white suit. The best man and ushers may wear boutonnieres of cornflowers (particularly if they wear blue ties), or carnations, or asters. The bride's father, the man guest of bride's father, who is a member of the wedding party, and the honor, should wear white suits if the men in the wedding party do, and they may vary their neckties and boutonnieres according to their taste.

BEFORE GIVING NAME FOR REFERENCE, ASK PERMISSION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last month I was graduated from college, and now I would like to apply for a position in several places I have heard about. Yesterday when I was talking over with my mother and father the writing of my applications and mentioned several people whose names I would use for reference (one of my college teachers, for example, the minister of our church, and the head of a camp where I was counsellor for several years in the summer) they both said that they were 'horrified' that I would 'presume' to mention the name of someone for reference without first asking that persons' permission. I maintain that it will be all right if I tell them afterward that I gave their name as reference for I am absolutely positive that in in every case they will not mind my taking their recommendation for granted. What is your advice about this?

C. L. S.

Do precisely as your mother and father advise. .before you give the name of a friend or use anyone else's name as a refererence or recommendation, get that person's permission. It is certainly a 'presumption' as your parents say, a low in bad manners, to take this courtesy for granted . . . and this is a mighty poor way to begin your business or professional life. Undoubtedly your teachers or other people whose names you would like to give as references will be completely willing and cooperative but, believe me (for I have too often been put in this position myself) they will resent not being consulted first.

And also, afer you have obtained their permission and have used their names, you should thank each one, either personally or by a note, for his or her courtesy and a note of reference or recommendation, thank most particularly if this courtesy includes writing for this great favor.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HIS GIRL'S MOTHER IS UNREASONABLE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 21 and engaged to marry a girl who will soon be 18.

I just had an argument with her mother about her coming with me to spent an evening with my father. My mother is dead and my father and I live alone. My girl's mother absolutely will not permit her to come out with me because there is no woman in the house. She says it doesn't look right, and that it isn't decent. I can't understand it to save me. I never thought I would live to see the day that people thought like that.

Then, too, I was talking about buying a car, so my fiancee and I could go fishing Sunday afternoons. Know what I heard? No, sir! Can't do that! It couldn't be thought of for just the two of us to go out fishing alone. We went to a concert one night and there was a squawk raised because there is a bar in the building where the concert was. My fiancee doesn't drink and I very seldom touch the stuff and her mother knows that. But is was just the idea of a bar being in the building.

Why should my girl's mother be like this, and what would you do about it?

A.

Dear A.:

I can't possibly imagine why this girl's mother should be like that except that there are people so narrow minded and so unable to trust others that they are always suspicious that something wrong is going on.

I hate to say it, but I don't think there is a thing in the world you can do about the situation except try to endure it with as much patience as you can, until you are ready to marry the girl. When she is 18, she can marry you whether her mother likes it or not, and it sounds to me as though the sooner she did so, the better it would be.

AN UNHAPPY TWENTY-YEAR-OLD WIFE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am twenty and have been married not quite six months. I had my husband's baby before we were married. It has died since, and I am having another in December.

My husband never comes home until early in the morning, and if I ask him why, he says he was out with a bunch of fellows. But I don't believe him, as he has told me so many lies and besides, I have found lipstick on his shirts. He drinks quite a bit, too. and never saves any money at all. He hardly ever takes me anywhere anymore.

If I left him, I wouldn't get any support for myself or the baby, and I can't go home to my people as I have a stepfather, so it seems like I have no place to go. But I can't take any more.

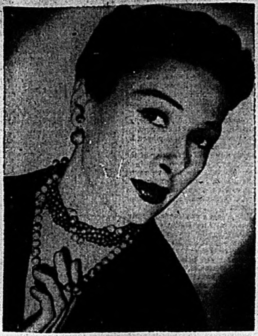
Mrs. M. D.

Dear Mrs. M. D.:

What you should do is to go to the nearest welfare organization, and tell them all about your situation. They will talk the whole thing over with you, and will, I am sure, help you decide what is best to do.

If you do not know the name of any such organization, write me again, giving me your name and address so that I can write you a personal letter, and I will try to tell you where to apply.

Costume Color Accent



By ALICE ALDEN

There is nothing like a few well-chosen accessories to perk up the wardrobe that starts to wilt at this time of year. Smart costume jewelry looks well with simple summer frocks and the right selection can do much for a costume. Castlecliffe stresses a twist or a knotted rope of persimmon beads to complement the lovely colors of summer, with earrings, and a bracelet or two for cap sleeves frocks..The persimmon shade is charming on its own, but even nicer mixed with clear bright turquoise.

Fashion Flashes

Down the aisles, come Fall theatrical openings, will sweep many a full-length evening coat, strongly to store buyers as well as to custom houses. American-Beauty red velvet, lined in black taffeta, makes a dramatic and different floor-length wrap cut with narrow, sloping shoulders and flaring out to a full hem.

It's coming along to the belt season, and there'll be many handsome new designs on the counters. New and attractive is a belt made of discs of cowhide joined by double metal links in a chain effect. A tapered self-buckle fastens the belt.

An important factor ffor comfortable, without-a-hitch long distance travel, is the right bag. An excellent choice would be a shoulder-strap model in green gray, brown, black or navy calfskin lined with natural chamois. I' has a generous, strap-closing, outside compartment and outside and inside zippered sections for the main part of the bag.

No inhibition about color this Summer. For never was there such an array of colorful clothes, whether for indoors or out, for town or country, for daytime or evening wear. For informal dining, we admired a deep-plunging pink silk shantung blouse teamed up with an enormous skirt of black chintz almost covered by a colorful print of exotic flower clusters and single tiger lillies. A black velvet ribbon tie sash picks up the bits of black that are visible on the chintz background.

One of these days you'll live in an... aluminum house

MANY PEOPLE, perhaps you yourself, already live in houses which are as much "aluminum" as others are "brick" or "stucco".

Just look at the amount of aluminum which already is going into Canadian buildings:

Roofing and Siding — Last year alone about 100 Canadian fabricators shaped thousands of tons of aluminum for use as roofs and exterior walls.

Windows — Today a score of Canadian companies are making aluminum windows and sash which have unique advantages: they never warp, swell, shrink or crack, and never need painting.

Insulation — Aluminum has outstanding insulating properties. Already numerous Canadian companies adapt it to keep homes warm in winter, cool in summer.

Gutters, Flashing, Trim, Architectural Hardware — Because aluminum is attractive and lasts a lifetime, dozens of Canadian manufacturers are now kept busy making it into all sorts of forms for use outside and inside the house.

ALCAN ALUMINUM

ALUMINUM COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.
Producers and Processors of Aluminum for Canadian Industry and World Markets
MONTREAL • QUEBEC • TORONTO • VANCOUVER • WINDSOR

Why Aluminum?

Aluminum is becoming more and more popular for use in home building because . . .

. . . it does not rust . . . is practically indestructible. Therefore maintenance costs stay low.

. . . it is light and easy to handle, is very strong, needs only correspondingly light supports.

. . . it has an attractive natural finish, and can be painted if desired.

. . . like other building materials, aluminum can be used in houses of any design.

Ask your architect or contractor about aluminum for building. He knows the story of Alcan's continuing research into its uses. So he can tell you about its overall advantages and how you can profit from them when building or remodelling.

WEDDINGS

ANDERSON — SCOTT

Stirling—A pretty summer wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 23rd, at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Scott, Stirling, when their eldest daughter, Vivian Shirley, was united in marriage to Robert Earl Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Anderson, of Stirling.

The ceremony was performed before an arch of evergreens, banked with potted plants and summer flowers, and Rev. H. C. Vaclavik officiated.

The bride, who entered the living rooms to strains of wedding music, was given in marriage by her father. She was a picture of loveliness in a floor length gown of white brocaded satin with a richly gathered bouffant skirt of silk net. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Miss Betty Rouse was bridesmaid, attired in a floor length gown of pink moire satin with full net skirt and shoulder-length veil. She carried red roses and carnations.

Mr. Glen Anderson was his brother's attendant.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served to about 45 guests where the bride's mother received in a frock of rose crepe with white accessories and a corsage of roses.

Those who served were Misses Eleanor Johnson, Ferne Snarr, Lois Irish, and Mrs. W. Lee, with Mrs. J. Irish and Mrs. D. Donohoe assisting.

The Rev. H. C. Vaclavik proposed the toast to the bride, and the groom responded.

The tiered wedding cake made a pretty centrepiece on the bride's table.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on a motor trip through Algonquin Park and points north.

The bride chose for travelling a gown of navy crepe with rose shorty coat and matching accessories. On their return they will reside in Stirling.

MITTS — KELLY

On Wednesday, July 20th, at 2.30 P.M., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelly was beautifully decorated with basket of hydrangea and summer flowers, which made a pretty setting for the marriage of their daughter, Veva Madelene and Robert Gordon Mitts, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mitts, Stirling, Ont.

The bride, charming in her bridal gown of white brocaded satin with sweetheart neckline. Her full length veil of white net was fastened to a wreath of white violets. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses. Given in marriage by her father, she took her place beneath an arch of evergreen which was decorated with white bells and pink and white streamers.

The Rev. W. H. V. Walker, of Stirling, performed the ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Walker.

Miss Shirley Kelly, sister of the bride, was prettily attired in a floor-length gown of blue rayon taffeta with shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas, carnations and bachelor buttons.

The groom was attended by Mr. Frank Smith of Halloway.

Following the ceremony a reception was held with the bride's mother receiving the guests in a frock of green printed silk with white accessories. She wore a corsage of sweet peas and bachelor buttons, and was assisted by the groom's mother in a dress of navy needle point with black accessories, and corsage of sweet peas and bachelor buttons.

Pink and white tapers fastened to the corners of a small table made an attractive setting for the three-tier wedding cake. A silver candelabra was at each end of the table.

The buffet luncheon was served to about 50 guests by Helen Bartlett, Edna McMullen and Muriel Finkle assisted by Mrs. H. Carter and Mrs. J. Hendricks.

The gifts of the bride to her attendants were, to her bridesmaid, a two-strand pearl necklace; to the organist, earrings, and to the girls serving, cups and saucers.

The groom's gift to the groomsman was a Lodge pin.

For travelling to Niagara Falls and points west, the bride chose a pink crepe dress with lace peplum, and lace trimmed bodice with white accessories. She wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas. On their return they will reside near Stirling.

Bride-to-Be Receives Many Useful Gifts

A delightful linen shower in honor of bride-to-be, Miss Jean Cook, was held at the home of Miss Dorothea Hetherington, 282 William Street, Belleville, Ontario on Tuesday evening, July 19th 1949.

The rooms were artistically decorated with streamers and summer flowers for the occasion. The bride was seated in a beautifully arranged chair under a prettily decorated archway and presented with a corsage of pink roses by the hostess.

The evening was spent making an autograph book with a picture and verse of each one present. Pictures were taken and appropriate music was played by Mrs. Marjorie Nesbitt. Miss Verna Fox and Mrs. Muriel Kerr rendered beautifully "I Love You Truly."

Balloons containing confetti and verses bearing instructions where the gifts might be found, were broken.

After the bride-to-be opened her gifts, she graciously expressed her appreciation, thanking each donor for the tangible evidence of good will, and for her future happiness.

A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Verna Fox, Bonnie Hetherington, Joan Faulkner and Geraldine Campbell.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Alice Cook and Mrs. H. O. Eastman.

The desirable sleek-as-a-seal look, so missing from swim suits during the past few years, is back again with the return of elasticized fabrics. Black satin lastex makes this form-fitting suit made extra attractive by latticed work in rows placed on either side and in the center front of the bra top. A slide fastener in back assures perfect fit.

Colors Can Add Quest to Meals In Home or Restaurants

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, July 25—(AP)—Here's a tip for those who would be successful salesmen or cooks. Woo your prospects with color.

So proclaims Howard Ketcham, an industrial design and color consultant, and he is talking to ladies who want to produce enjoyable meals as well as to businessmen who want to strike it rich.

"Color," says Ketcham, "has a powerful influence on the subconscious. We know that people everywhere like an atmosphere of mental ease and a sense of well-being. And color, when it is considered a part of and as important as design can achieve just this."

Claims Proven

All sorts of experiments and surveys have improved Ketcham's claim. For instance, there was the cafeteria which wanted to improve its salads sales. Ketcham suggested replacing the usual white crockery with pale-green plates. Sales went up more than 100 per cent within a few days.

A Philadelphia fruit store was remodeling. Ketcham suggested—to the horror of the proprietor—painting the walls a bright orange. But he did, and sales boomed.

"The orange color made the produce look appetizing," Ketcham said, "tying in nicely with the colors of the fruits and vegetables. It made them look even better under the stores incandescent illumination."

Light does strange things to color, and so do chemical processes. One of the big railroads installed fluorescent lighting—blue variety——in some of their dining cars. They were immediately deluged with complaints about their coffee. That was simple: The blue lights made the coffee look weak and gray—and the public was tasting coffee with its eyesight.

Tricky Business

Dealing with color preferences is a tricky business. For instance, red-handled toothbrushes sell fastest in the low-priced field. But when toothbrushes are high priced, people prefer amber handles. ?

In good years, Ketcham says, people buy automobiles of bright colors. In depression years, sales of brightly hued cars drop, and black and dark blues come up.

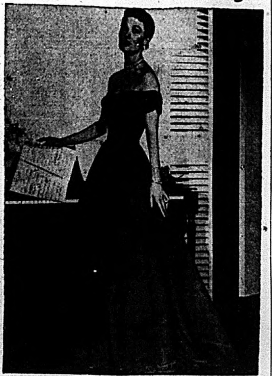
Classical College To be Established

Cornwall, July 25 — (CP) — Establishment of a classical college here, to be operated by the clerics of St. Viator, a Roman Catholic teaching order, was announced Sunday.

A large frame residence already has been purchased and is being remodelled as temporary quarters for classes opening in September. High school grades will be taught at first, with senior grades being opened progressively. Eventually, the clerics hope to provide a university arts course.

Principal of the college will be Rev. J. J. Downs, formerly of Rigaud, Que.

Picture Gown for Evening



By PRUNELLA WOOD

A rich, cool color for chiffon, terra cotta, is chosen for this dinner dress which looks lovely as it moves, makes a portrait frame over a table top.

The waistline is smooth and tiny-seeming; the off-shoulder neckline is softened by shirring which also shapes the upper bodice. The many layered, soft skirt is not hefty about the hips but billows out toward the carpet with the help of a matching taffeta petticoat. This is a gown for elaborate earrings and chokers.

Belleville Lawn Bowlers Hosts To District Players

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club played host on Friday evening to outside bowlers numbering 57 in all from Trenton, Madoc, Stirling, Cornwall, Toronto and Kingston. With 71 members of the local club also participating play was enjoyed on all sixteen greens with a maximum number of players.

W. Davison, Dick Babb and Mrs. B. Humphreys.

Express Appreciation.

The entire evening was arranged by the jitney committee of the local club headed by Jerry Hyde with committee members being Aust Watkin, Doug Row, Ray Grant and Charles Hyde. In giving out the prizes Jerry Hyde thanked the bowlers for their assistance in making the evening a success and also thanked the greens chairman, Fred Harper, and the greens keeper Jack Smith for their co-operation and paid an especial word of thanks to the ladies responsible for the preparation of the lunch, particularly Mrs. W. Gilbert and Mrs. J. T. Legault.

Mr. Russ Hubel of the Trenton club expressed the thanks of all the visitors to the local committee for the fine evening of entertainment provided.

It is planned to hold another of these affairs in September when guests will be invited from Deseronto, Brighton, Campbellford and Havelock.

If you haven't a mold with ring in center, and want to make a gelatin ring, place a small, wet glass right end up in the center of any suitable dish you have on hand, wetting it first. Pour the liquid jelly around the glass, and when ready to unmold, fill the glass with warm water, lift out, and unmold the ring of jelly on serving dish. The center may then be filled with whipped cream, cut-up fruit, or what you please.

HOUSING PROBLEM SOLVED

Silas A. Burgett poses with his rake in front of the 11-room house built by himself and his wife on the shóre of Big Crooked Lake near Brighton, Mich. They built the home when Mr. Burgett was 75 and his wife 70. That was five years ago. Mr. Burgett, a painter, developed lead poisoning in 1937 and the medicos gave him six months to live. Today doctors say he is good for another ten years. In building the house, Mrs. Burgett mixed all the mortar. Her husband laid the stones. They are now planning to build a smaller house.—Central Press Canadian.

Stan Musial's Powerful Bat Slaughters Brooklyn Pitching, Paces Cards to League Lead

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If you value your life don't mention to a Brooklyn rooter that Stan Musial is having an off year.

Should you be lucky enough to still be conscious when he gets through with you, he'll declare that the only reason St. Louis Cardinals are in first place in the National League today is that they own Musial.

You may argue that Musial, hitting only .299, is far below his normal batting gait. He'll counter with a blow-by-blow description of Musial's one-man wreckage of Dodger pitching this year.

Stan was the big gun in the Cards' 14-1 blasting of the Dodgers Sunday which shot them into the National League lead by a half game over Brooklyn. Musial hit for the cycle — a single, double, triple and home run. He also batted in four runs.

New York Yankees came from behind to defeat Detroit Tigers 6-3 in 11 innings. As a result Cleveland's 7-5 and 5-2 sweep of a doubleheader from Washington cut only a half game from the Yankees' 4½ - game margin.

Trailing 2-1, the Yankees tied the score at 2-2 in the top of the ninth when Johnny Lindell homered off Hal Newhouser. The Yankees came through with four runs in the 11th to ice the game.

Lemon Homers Twice

Bob Lemon relied upon his bat to register his 12th victory against four losses for Cleveland. The Indian righthander belted two homers, his fifth and sixth of the season, to establish the margin of victory in the opener. First baseman Mickey Vernon drove in 4 runs with two homers and a single in the nightcap.

The third - place Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with St. Louis Browns. The Browns blew a 7-1 early lead, but came through with two runs in the last half of the eighth to eke out a 9-8 victory in the opener. Jack Kramer, gained his first victory of the year as the Red Sox won the second, 8-4.

Philadelphia Athletics swept a twin bill from Chicago White Sox 7-2 and 6-4 for their fourth and fifth victories in their last 17 games. Joe Coleman and Charlie Shantz were the winners.

Pittsburgh came from behind twice to sweep a doubleheader from Boston Braves 4-3 and 7-6. The Pirates spotted the Braves a 3-0 lead in the first inning of the opener, but caught up with Johnny Sain in the fourth and beat him in the seventh. Bill Werle was the winner. A three - run ninth inning won the second game for the Bucs.

Cincinnati Reds took both ends of a doubleheader from Philadelphia Phils 10-1 and 4-3. A single by Dixie Howell pushed over the Reds' winning run in the ninth of the nightcap. Grady Hatton led a 13-hit Cincinnati assault in the opener with a single, two doubles and a triple.

The cellar - shackled Chicago Cubs knocked off New York Giants in both ends of a doubleheader 5-3 and 6-1.

MUTTON IMPORTS DOUBLED

London, July 23 (Reuters) — Britain doubled her imports of mutton and lamb — mostly from New Zealand — in the second quarter of the year, the Board of Trade journal reports. Total meat imports rose by two-fifths from the low first-quarter figure of 286,000 tons.

Ace Admiral Cracks Mark Held By Man-O-War

(By The Canadian Press)

A new trophy, for club competition, will be at stake at the Royal Canadian Henley July 27-30.

The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, parent body of rowing in Canada, has donated the $750 Maple Leaf Shield which will go to the club scoring the most points at the 27th renewal of the Dominion's sculling classic.

This step marks final acceptance by the C.A.A.O. of the club championship to which it first gave official recognition in 1946 when it adopted a point-scoring system used in the United States by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

The speedy Ace Admiral, with Johnny Longden in the saddle, clipped a full second off Man O' War's 29-year-old record for 1⅝ miles Saturday in winning the $50,000 added Sunset Handicap at the Hollywood Turf Club in Arcadia, Calif.

The classy four-year-old, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham, formerly of Woodbridge, Ont., uncorked a great burst of speed that sent him across the finish line a six-length winner.

Ace Admiral bettered the world and American record for the distance set by the great Man O' War in September, 1920, at Belmont Park. The record, later tied at the Hollywood meeting of 1946 by Historian, was 2:40 4/5. Ace Admiral was clocked in 2:30 4/5.

Last Mark won the Quebec's King Plate race for $3,500 with 50 guineas added as the gift of the King.

The race was for four-year-olds and up foaled in Canada. Last Mark's time for the mile and a furlong was 1.52 2/5.

Montreal Stelcos won the first game in the best-of-three Eastern Canada soccer finals at Toronto Saturday night when they defeated Hamilton Westinghouse 1-0. The second game will be played here today. Montreal scored the only goal, two minutes before half-time.

Sam Snead's purse of $2,600 for a one-stroke victory over Lloyd Mangrum in this month's Dapper Dan tournament boosted the West Virginian back on top of golf's winning list.

The victory gave Sammy total earnings for the season of $20,960. This moved him ahead of Cary Middlecoff, who has $20,024.57. Mangrum, the 1948 money leader, is third with $16,032.50.

At London, Ont., more than 80 trundlers including some from the United States took part in the singles competition that opened the 54th annual tournament of the Western Ontario Lawn Bowling Association on Saturday.

The A. A. Langord Trophy donated by the Londoner who is honorary life president of the provincial association was captured by Dr. Weston Krupp of Woodstock, who defeated E. Fairbairn of Tillsonburg, 21-14.

Stanley Dollar's Skip-a-Long was chosen Saturday night as the first of three boats which will defend the Harmsworth International Motorboat Trophy for the United States.

Canada and Great Britain both will seek the trophy at Detroit when the races are held July 29-Aug. 2.

Canada's challenger is Miss Canada IV, owned by Harold Wilson of Ingersoll.

Herb Crabb of Sarnia Lakeview fired a three over par 73 to capture the Western Ontario Public Links Golf Association Tournament at Thames Valley municipal course. He topped a field of over 150 entrants. Tony Matlock of Kitchener placed second, Jim Currie of London Highland third and Johnny Koval of Sarnia fourth.

Philip Mickman, 18-year-old schoolboy from Wakefield, England, failed Sunday to swim the English Channel. Mickman swam stoutly for 13 hours in the treacherous waters before becoming exhausted. He tried the channel last year, but failed.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Whipper Billy Watson is not only a fine exponent of the art of wrestling but an orator as well. He gave one of the finest talks on "Safety" to seventy newsboys of this newspaper last Friday evening we have heard in a long while. The kids were all attention as the Whip explained the rules, aims and objects of his own "Whipper Watson Safety Club". He asked for volunteers to join the club and seventy pairs of hands shot in the air with one sweeping motion.

• • •

Watson urged the boys to use care and caution all the time; to look both ways before crossing the street, busy or otherwise and to keep the eye at all times on moving vehicles. He told them to be obedient, do as their parents bade them and to live clean lives. At the conclusion of his talk the "Whip" using this corner as a guinea pig, demonstrated his famous Canadian Commando hold, half and full Nelsons and others of his famous wrestling grips. What he did to our adenoids, tonsils, jugular vein and spinal cord will be a long memory.

"Its okay, George" grinned the "Whip". "I'm only fooling—want me to get serious?" And we managed to shake the noggin while our face gradually changed from purple to normal. Seriously, the talk and demonstrations were greatly appreciated by the newslads who were later presented with autographed pictures of Whipper Watson and his late manager, Phil Lawson. It was a fine gesture on the part of Watson, and he attached at least seventy more fans to his large following here.

"Better Baseball for Young Canada" a two-week series of baseball schools for the youth of the province starts in Toronto on Monday under the supervision of Michael O'Neill, one-time big league pitcher and brother of the famous Steve O'Neill former Toronto Maple Leaf manager and now Cleveland Indians coach. The school will be given at various centres and will be held in Belleville, August 5th.

This, the most comprehensive program of education in the diamond sport ever attempted in this country, will operate six hours daily all next week in parks in the metropolitan area and the following week in the parks in the western, central and eastern sections of southern Ontario.

The schools will be climaxed by a doubleheader at Maple Leaf Stadium Saturday night, August 6, when the Toronto junior and senior all-stars will meet the Ontario junior and senior all-stars. Gross receipts from these games will be donated to the Toronto Minor Baseball Association for the promotion of the sport among the boys of Toronto.

• • •

These announcements were made today by Joe Ziegler, general manager of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club, on behalf of the three co-sponsors—the Philadelphia Phillies, of the National League, the Maple Leafs of the International League and the Toronto Telegram.

"All details of the project have been ironed out and we're now ready to educate thousands of Canadian boys in the fundamentals and finer points of the game—an opportunity which they've missed in previous years because of the lack of former big league players in this country," explained Ziegler.

• • •

"The educational school has been formally and enthusiastically endorsed by Baseball Commissioner A. H. Chandler. Due to the interest of Robert Carpenter, president and owner of the Phillies, and Joe Reardon, general manager of the Phillies' farm clubs, we were fortunate in obtaining Michael J. O'Neill as head instructor."

Said Reardon yesterday in a wire to the Toronto general manager: "O'Neill is the best man in our organization for the type of schools planned in Toronto and Ontario centres and the Phillies are only too pleased to assign him to the Maple Leafs and The Telegram for the two-week program."

The Toronto club's dynamo stressed that the schools are designed to assist ball players of all ages—the junior section being for boys 17 years and under and the senior section for youths 18 and over.

"This will cap our program of minor baseball for the season," he continued. "I believe that at the final doubleheader under the lights at our park—that's the night of Saturday, Aug. 6—even the oldest of our fans will be amazed at the progress being made by our boys both here in the city and throughout the province."

• • •

All schools will open at 10 a.m. and continue until at least 4 p.m. No written application is necessary for attendance at any of the sessions, but all players are asked to wear a baseball uniform, if possible, baseball shoes and a glove.

• • •

The game scheduled tonight between Point Anne and Kiwanis at Exhibition Park has been postponed because of wet grounds.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

More problems present themselves in a putt than in any other stroke. That's why you must practice. You have the roll of the green to consider, complicated by up-hill or down-hill roll, texture of grass and green condition—hard and dry or soft and wet. Let's first consider the up-hill putt. The only departure from normal putting form in an up-hill putt is that you should grip the clubhead more firmly than for normal putts. This helps to get the ball up to the hole, and in case you miss, a foot beyond so that the hole has a chance. Average players are short on up-hill putts and too far over on down-hill putts. Only practice will enable you to correct your judgement With practice will come confidence and you must feel sure of yourself to putt accurately. In putting, after you understand the correct form recently outlined here, and which I'll touch on from time to time, you are on your own. Nothing can help you but practice.

Leafs Blast Five Home Runs In Twin Bill

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs, who lead the International League in home runs, are off on another home-run spree.

Toronto started its streak meekly, collecting one homer on Friday and another on Saturday but Sunday the Leafs blasted out five as they swept a doubleheader from Jersey City Giants 3-0 and 7-3.

Until their current outbreak, the Leafs had walloped only six homers from July 10 to July 21.

Home runs by pitcher Jocko Thompson, Al Roberge and Ed Sanicki accounted for all of Toronto's runs against Andy Tomasic in the first game. Sanicki's belt was his 25th.

Roberge, who banged out three hits in each game, also homered in the nightcap as did Chet Laabs to boost the team's total to 97.

Veteran Nick Strincevich scattered nine hits and coasted to his 10th triumph. The victories moved the Leafs into a virtual second place tie with Rochester Red Wings.

The Wings were trounced 15-6 by the league - leading Buffalo Bisons. Both the Wings and Leafs trail the Bisons by 3½ games. The Wings are one percentage point in front of the Leafs.

Buffalo assaulted four Rochester pitchers for 16 hits in snapping a five game losing streak. The Bisons clinched the game in the third inning with an eight-run drive that Doc Cramer featured with a grand-slam home run.

Syracuse Chiefs turned back the fifth - place Montreal Royals twice 6-3 and 4-3 to take over sixth place from Baltimore Orioles who divided with Newark Bears.

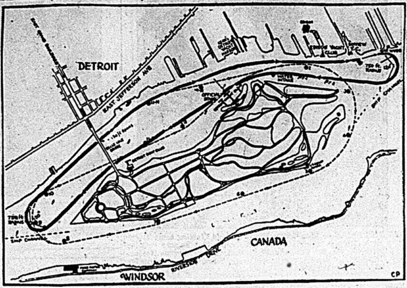
Sammy Meeks' 13th home run with a mate on in the sixth broke up the first game in favor of Syracuse. Carden Gillenwater blasted his 16th homer in the nightcap but it was Dutch Mele's two-out last inning single that drove home the winning run.

Vern Taylor pitched Baltimore to a three-hit 5-0 triumph over Newark after the Bears won the opener 2-1 in the ninth inning on a double, sacrifice and Mickey Witek's fly ball. The Orioles sewed up the second game with a 4-run sixth inning.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting—Bob Lemon and Mickey Vernon, Indians — Lemon swatted a pair of home runs to help his own cause as the Indians beat Washington, 7-5, in the opener; Vernon drove in four runs with two homers and a single and scored the other in Cleveland's second game 5-2 victory.

Pitching—Howie Pollet, Cardinals, won his 13th game with an eight-hitter as the Cardinals pummelled the Dodgers 14-1 to take over first place in the National League. The lefthander fanned five.



CHAMPION SHIP COURSE

The solid black line on this map marks the hazardous course with its 120-degree turns on which Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, Ont., will drive his Miss Canada IV against three United States entries for the Harmsworth Trophy and the international speedboat championships at Detroit next week. Original plans to route part of the race along the Canadian shore (dotted line) were dropped when owners of lake vessels objected to the speedy racers cutting through their shipping lanes. The turn at upper right of the map is opposite the summer home of Gar Wood, veteran Detroit driver who retained the trophy for the United States against a British challenger in the last international competition in 1933.—(CP Photo.)

Oshawa Trims Peterborough 8-4 In COBL Game

(By The Canadian Press)

First - baseman Joe Bechard of the London Majors is hitting at a steady pace in the Intercounty Senior Baseball loop. He's leading the batting department with .436.

Bechard remained on the top Saturday as he batted out three hits in four appearances at bat as the fourth - place Majors defeated the St. Thomas Legionnaires 12-4. The loss left St. Thomas in last place.

In other Intercounty games during the weekend Waterloo Tigers held on to first place by shading Stratford Nationals 3-2, the third - place Galt Terriers downed the second - place Kitchener Legionnaires 5-3 and Brantford Red Sox beat the seventh - place Guelph Maple Leafs 9-2. The win left Brantford in fifth spot.

In a Central Ontario game the second - place Oshawa Merchants gained an 8-4 decision over the Peterborough Marines at Oshawa.

In the Niagara district loop, Welland stopped Niagara Falls Bugays 15-0.

Also in the Niagara District circuit, Buffalo Kiks, tail-enders in the league, upset St. Catharines Stags, the loop leaders, 3-2. Niagara Falls Fords beat North Tonawanda Dodgers 7-0, scoring their third consecutive victory.

SIDELINED STAR

Inactive since he broke an ankle late in the 1948 season, hard-hitting Jeff Heath still appears on the roster of Boston Braves, whom he helped to the National League pennant last year. The 33-year-old Fort William native, who has spent most of his 13-year Major League career with Cleveland Indians, led National League outfielders in fielding and hit .319 for the Braves last season before the injury shelved him for the World Series.—(CP Photo.)

In the Nickel Belt League, Frood Tigers took sole possession of first place by defeating the third-place Sudbury Shamrocks 16-6.

Bechard Holds Lead

At St. Thomas, Bechard maintained his lead over Jackie Kinney of Kitchener, who has registered a .369 batting average. Jack Parry, London right fielder, remained in third place as he sniped a home run and a double during the weekend.

The heavy - hitting Majors belted three St. Thomas pitchers from the mound. St. Thomas' starting pitcher Jack Cabot was retired in the first inning when he gave up five straight hits — good for four runs. Lefty Garton took over for the next five frames. He was replaced in the 6th by Bill Wagner who allowed only three hits.

At Waterloo. Stratford hurler Vern Richardson and pitcher Johnny Barbeau of the Tigers waged a scoreless duel for the first six innings. The Tigers then posted the first run on three Stratford errors.

Barbeau was retired in the seventh frame when he gave up a double to third baseman George Franko with the bases loaded. Cy Bricker came to the rescue and was credited with the victory.

Southpaw Don Perkins displayed a steady performance on the mound for the Terriers as he posted his third consecutive win. He held the Legionnaires scoreless in the first seven innings, giving up three scattered hits.

The Terriers took a two run lead in the first frame and made victory secure with a three-run rally in the sixth. Opposing pitcher Don Cline was charged with the loss.

Whitehill Nicked for Loss

The Red Sox were greeted with 12 walks and eight hits off three Guelph pitchers as they registered their 15th victory in 28 starts. Brantford hurler Nig Parker racked up his eighth win in as many starts to keep his pace atop the league's hurlers.

Third - baseman Stan Lipka paced the Red Sox with a home run with one man on base while second - baseman Norm Hann's triple drove in three runs.

Ot Oshawa, winning hurler Paul Michael gave up eight hits that were good for three runs. He steadied down in the last two innings and gave up one run to pinch - hitter Bill Dadson. Ed (Gunner) Whitchall went the route for the Marines and was charged with the loss.

At Sudbury, pitcher Hugh Colby went all the way for the Tigers to win his third game against no defeats. Opposing pitcher Tug Parri dropped his third start in eight appearances.

One game is scheduled in the Intercounty loop tonight: Galt meets Guelph. In the Nickel Belt League, Creighton Cubs meet Coniston Buzzers.

Large Entry In Canadian Amateur Tourney

Riverside Golf and Country Club, Saint John, N.B., July 25 — (CP) — Approximately 132 golfers were expected starters in the hunt for the Canadian amateur golf championship opening here today.

Frank Stranahan, the defending titlist from Toledo, Ohio, received a bye in the opening 18-hole round. He is expected to arrive some time during the day.

Officials said Sunday night that the draw released last Friday, accounting for 138 players and not listing byes in the opening round, would stand until the tee-off time. Scratches reduced the field slightly.

The officials said revisions in the draw could be made as necessary. The total of 16 players drawn for a preliminary round—no qualifying round was ordered—will likely be sharply cut.

Stranahan will arrive in his own plane and bring a fellow townsman, Ollie Kay, with him. Kay has also been granted a bye.

Americans Enter

A dozen or so Americans are expected for the big amateur tournament, seeking to upset Stranahan. Dick Chapman of Osterville, Mass., checked in Sunday and said he was satisfied with a practice round he finished in close to par 70.

Buddy Lutz of Reading, Pa., and John Kraft of Denver, both scratch amateurs, are also considered among the best of the invading contingent.

There was some opinion that Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver may turn out to be the giant-killer and walk off with the title.

If a Canadian wins, it will be the first time since 1946, in the pre-Stranahan era, since the title remained in the Dominion.

Henry Martell of Edmonton was the last Canadian winner.

Mawhinney, a capable young golfer at either medal or match play, could be just the man to toss back the American invasion.

At least a half dozen others were not overlooked, including young Gerry Kesselring, of Kitchener, Ont., veteran Phil Farley of Toronto and another long time amateur competitor, Tommy Riddell of Montreal.

THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Toronto. July 25 — (CP)—Three Toronto automobiles and a bus were involved in a collision Sunday night just west of here. Three women, passengers in the automobiles, were injured.

Police said an automobile driven by Stephen Kawal struck Frederick J. Harding's car from the rear. A third car which police said was driven by David Chesney struck Kawal's car, knocking it into the path of the bus.

Injured were Charlotte Harding, 72; Mildred Sokoloff, 31; and Hilda Gould, 33.

ANDREW M. HARNWELL DIES

Toronto, July 25 (CP)—Andrew M. Harnwell, 82, died Friday. He was secretary - treasurer and director of 10 operating companies, including Standard Paving, Consolidated Sand and Gravel, Bloor St. George Realty, Gachin Holdings and J. Carrick, Ltd.

Ontario Golf Team Wins Willingdon Cup

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Riverside Golf and Country Club, Saint John, N.B., July 25—(CP) — It promises to be a long time before golf enthusiasts see the likes of the Ontario - Quebec struggle that was waged Saturday for the Inter-provincial golf team championship and ownership of the Willingdon Cup.

In a ding-dong, see-saw battle that lasted to the very end of 36 holes of medal play, the steadier Ontario team came through with an aggregate medal score of 601, winning over Quebec by two strokes and vindicating the confident pre-tournament guesses of self-acknowledged experts.

But the same experts took an awful beating when the Quebeckers almost upset the show. They were casually rated fourth or 5th among the eight competing provincial teams.

In the final analysis, Ontario owed its victory to the steady, consistent play of Captain Phil Farley of the four - man team and the brilliant, last - ditch display of 21-year-old Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener. Both Farley and Kesselring shot totals of 146 — six over Riverside's grim 70 par — to assure Ontario the title. Behind them came Don Varey of Brantford, with 151, including a remarkable two - under - par 33 nine. and George Eluck of Windsor with 158.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULERTON, JR.

New York, July 25 — (AP) — Some comments on Junior Golf in this space recently pointed out it is an expensive games for kids and they might do better at fishing instead. . A reply from Hugh Egan, Jr., of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce points out that his organization is doing its best to set up golf tournaments in which kids can afford to play. And in case they can't, Egan encloses a brochure on the "National Fishing Rodeo" which the J.C.C. is organizing in conjunction with "Better Fishing, Inc." . . . It will take place Aug. 27. . . Is there anything these guys overlook?

Tommy Burns the Australian welterweight, is due to reach the United States within a couple of weeks, but he's more interested in the movies than fighting. . Jack Solomons, the London fight promoter, may stage a rematch between Australia's Dave Sands and Tommy Yarosz of Monaca, Pa. . . The National Baseball Congress is looking for crowds of 60,000 at every game of its Non-Professional World Series at Tokyo in 1950. Plans call for a five-of-nine series between the champions of the Eastern and Western Hemispheres in late September. The Yankees' Vic Raschi won't return to William and Mary College next fall but plans to "rest up" until 1951 before resuming work toward his Master's Degree in Physical Education. MacGregor Hunter, Willie's 19-year-old son, will be the youngest golfer to compete in the Western Open since Chick Evans won it in 1910 at the age of 20. .

MAY BE HIS YEAR

After years of trying with Pittsburgh Pirates and their Indianapolis farm club, Edson Bahr this year has a chance of playing with a championship baseball club. Indianapolis traded the left-hander from Rouleau, Sask., to the St. Paul Saints of the American Association and Bahr celebrated last week by hurling a five-hit victory in his first effort for the Saints, who are engaged in a hot pennant fight.—(CP Photo.)

Canada Ousted By Australia In Cup Play

By PIERRE DUBOIS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 25 (CP)—Canada bowed out of Davis Cup play for 1949 Saturday, ousted by Australia four matches to one in the North American zone tie, but even in defeat her aces had helped boost the Dominion's prestige in the world of tennis.

Observers saw hopes for the future in the sparkling debut of a rising young star, 19-year-old Lorne Main of Vancouver. They also found solace in the fact Canada at long last had ended at four the string of whitewashings recorded by Australian in cup tie play.

The Aussies' three-member trio advanced against Mexico in the zone final at Wilmington, Del., next week by sweeping the final singles matches Saturday.

Their sensational rookie, 21-year-old Frank Sedgman, breezed to a 6-2, 6-2, 6-0 victory over Brendan Macken, 26, of Montreal while Billy Sidwell, 29, triumphed over Main after a hard battle. 8-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

In earlier fixtures of the five-match series, Macken gave Canada her first victory over Australia since 1914, pinning a five-set defeat on the 29-year-old Sidwell. Sedgman evened the count by drubbing Henri Rochon, 25, of Montreal in straight sets, and the young Ausie then partnered his team captain, ambidextrous John Bromwich, 30, to win the doubles event from Macken and Walter Stohlberg of Vancouver.

Montreal's Hall Wins Junior Golf Title

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Riverside Golf and County Club, Saint John, N.B., July 25 (CP)—It was the old story Saturday of the youngster with the most gimmick and nerve winning the Canadian Junior Golf Championship. So the title went to 18-year-old Bob Hall of Montreal's Hamstead Club, with a 36-hole total of 158.

For a long time—27 holes and more—it looked as if Bob would have to bow to Laurie Roland of Vancouver.

The blond west coast boy had a one-stroke lead over Hall after the first 18-hole round and appeared to be a shoo-in for the championship until the last half dozen holes.

Then he blew and there was no mistake about it. For the last five holes he was seven strokes over par and finished with a whopping six over par at the last hole, a 220-yard par three. That put him definitely out of the title hunt, three strokes behind Hall.

Pullen Finishes 4th

An up-and-coming young golfer from New Glasgow, N.S., 16-year-old Bobby Rae, took over third place. With all the assurance of a veteran, pint-sized Bobby fired a couple of 40's into a stiff north-west breeze during the afternoon and finished with a 36-hole medal score of 165.

The other provincial junior champions couldn't do much with the none-too-good scores shot by the leaders, scores that were far off the junior record of 147 set by Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver last year.

Don Pullen, of St. Thomas, looked on as a threat to the title relinquished by Mawhinney, now over the junior age, finished fourth with 166. He had 83's for both rounds.

Junior Tennis Tourney Attracts Large Entry

Ottawa, July 25—(CP)—Canada's top Junior tennis exponents, with a full-dress tournament all to themselves, swarm over the clay courts of the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club today as the 1949 Dominion Junior Championships get under way.

Officials counted on weeding out a maximum of chaff on the first day and scheduled a total of 111 matches, despite a forecast of scattered thundershowers. Top-notchers in the tournament will go to the United States Championships next week at Kalamazoo, Mich., and it is hoped to end the Canadian finals by Thursday.

Entries have been filed for a total of 10 events, including Junior men and womens singles and doubles and mixed doubles, and the corresponding events in the boys and girls or under-15 class.

TORONTO

who would turn out would mean the possibility of greater contributions when the plate was passed and the teams would be able to afford better equipment.

Mr. North had lawyers look into the matter. Here is what they found:

Board of Control cannot open the city's parks for commercialized Sunday baseball without breaking a federal statute, the Lord's Day Act, which forbids all commercialized sports on Sunday. If admission fees are charged the sport automatically falls into the commercial category.

But there is a loophole in the law. Nothing says that a collection cannot be taken from those attending. The collection must be entirely voluntary and, if the public wishes to see the game without paying, it is entitled to do so.

Armed with this information, Mr. North applied for a permit to use the city's playgrounds on Sunday.

Col. Gilbert Best of the Salvation Army, a director of the Lord's Day Alliance, said the Alliance is "definitely and absolutely opposed."

Rev. I. G. Perkins, summer minister of Riverdale Presbyterian Church: "Sunday sport appears to be the coming thing. If this is so, the churches should organize a recreational program. The men who have started this thing are in it to make money."

Controller Lamport had his innings over a Toronto radio station last week. "Unless," he said, "a resident is wealthy enough to own a car, belong to a golf club, own a summer cottage or have some other avenue of escape, there isn't anything he can do on Sunday. The Lord's Day Act — and the rest of this undemocratic and musty legislation — is unfair."

Fun in Missouri

Hattiesburg, Miss., July 25 — (AP) — Police tried to enforce Sunday "blue laws," but the shows went on and patrons got into the acts.

Shuttling back and forth in a steady rain from their theatres to the police station, 24 managers, projectionists, ticket-sellers and takers were arrested, released on bond and arrested again for a total of 86 times. Three projectionists made the trip eight times.

Three policemen reported movie patrons peppered them with tomatoes.

At the Saenger Theatre, a projectionist locked himself in the projection room in an effort to keep the show going. A policeman simply doffed his cap and used it to block the projection outlet. The screen went black. Patrons booed and yelled.

When police got an axe and a crowbar and prepared to break down the door, the theatre manager opened the room and the projectionist was taken off to jail.

While he was gone, organ music was played and couples danced on the stage.

To prevent their ticket-sellers from being arrested, some theatres closed the box offices and accepted "free will" donations at the entrance.

Sunday was the fifth consecutive Sunday police have tried to enforce Mississippi's blue laws which ban motion pictures after 6 p.m. on Sundays.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

GIVE OUR KIDS THE "BRAKES"

We can't expect little children to avoid traffic dangers unless we train them to do so at home—and at school. It's our job as parents to see that they learn and practice all the rules of safety. It's our responsibility as motorists to drive carefully at all times—but particularly in residential areas and near schools. Let's give our kiddies the "brakes" and help to reduce the accident toll! To save a life—or a lifetime of suffering is one of the most important aims of "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

If a bridge player had time to learn only one rule, his best would be T-A-N. This means takeout to a new suit first; assist the suit partner has bid, second; no-trump, last.

This rule is the hub of all bidding. It reminds a partner that his first obligation is to show his suit while he can. It advises him to then help decide their best trump suit before no-trump.

If the order in T-A-N is avoided for a round, the purpose would be to insert a signal, however, he goes right back to T-A-N.

An opening bid of two no-trump a hand that contains seven or eight high cards with or without a biddable suit. It is a hand that does not need the three tricks required in answer to an opening of one.

In answer to an opening of two no-trump, partner needs only one high card to help make a game in no-trump. A high card is either a queen or a king or an ace in any suit.

Therefore, partner with such a high card should not pass. His immediate response may be three no-trump. Provided, however, that he may follow the order of choice in T-A-N.

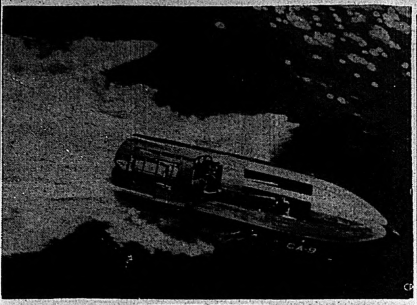
With no high card he should pass. With a high card he bids. Having a biddable suit of his own he should takeout to his suit. This tells partner he has a biddable suit and a high card.

South opens with two no-trump when north has this hand:

♠A J 9 8 3
♥8 6
♦10 8 6 3
♣J 6

First response is three spades. If south lacks good support for spades, he can still bid three no-trump. He knows north has a high card.

There can be nothing uncertain in this. South would not have bid at all if he lacked a high card. He simply admits also a suit that is biddable. Follow a tab that cuts out the gab.



HARMSWORTH CHALLENGER

Shown zooming through her last pre-race trials on Lake Muskoka, Miss Canada IV will contend with three American defenders to lift the Harmsworth Trophy from the United States at Detroit next week. Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, Ont., has kept Miss Canada's trial times secret, but he hopes to break Sir Malcolm Campbell's speed record of 140 miles an hour when he makes Canada's first challenge for the international speedboat championship.—(CP Photo.)

Hollywood, July 25 — (AP) — James Mason, who first reached United States fame with his rough manner with women, is returning to his dame-slapping ways.

In "East Side, West Side," he has to slap Ava Gardner, but he's not sure he'll like the assignment. "I'm the kind who slaps back," she has told him.

Mason is scheduled to finish the film in late August and they leave for Europe and a Walter Wanger picture with Greta Garbo. He'll take his wife and daughter, but will return after the picture is filmed. "I don't relish spending a winter in Europe," says the California convert, Mason.

Star Shorts

Montgomery Clift is due back here Sept. 14 to start "An American Tragedy." He's now in Berlin making the air lift film.

There was a Hollywood touch in the Mickey Cohen shooting on the Sunset Strip last week. The assassins stood next to the Bing Crosby building and fired their shotguns under a signboard showing Brian Donlevy quaffing a beer.

Clark Gable read my story telling how he upset the undershirt makers by appearing bare-chested under his shirt in "It happened One Night." So he plans to aid United States industry by sporting an undershirt in an undress scene in "Key to the City."

James Stewart is at his top weight of 167 pounds despite his strenuous scenes in "Broken Arrow." He and Gloria McLean plan a motor tour of the United States after their honeymoon. Among their wedding presents will be Jimmy's own cradle, which his parents have been harboring in their attic all these years.

AT THE BELLE — Bing Crosby shows Rhonda Fleming some Twentieth Century terpsichory in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," Paramount's Technicolor production featuring William Bendix, continuing today, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre.

'Egyptian Tomb' At Margate Dates Back to 2,000 BC

Margate, Kent, England, July 25 (CP). — A subterranean chamber, for more than a century regarded merely as a show place for holiday-makers, now is believed to be the work of craftsmen who came here in 2,000 B.C.

In 1835 a workman digging at Dane Hill, Margate, dropped his spade down what he thought was a disused well. A boy who was lowered down to recover the spade found himself in an Aladdin's cave" made up of millions of sea shells in all kinds of intricate designs.

Many antiquarians tried unsuccessfully to solve the riddle of the shells and decided eventually that it was not a genuine antiquity.

However, antiquarian Harper Cory used photographs from which the background had been blocked out to reveal the shell symbols.

"I believe these are the work of travellers who left Mediterranean shores at least 1,800 years before the birth of Christ," Cory said.

"The symbols prove that the chamber, 68 feet in length, is a mastaba or ancient Egyptian tomb. This may change the whole picture of early English history."

REV. G. P. DUNCAN, DIES

Toronto, July 25 — (CP)—Rev. George P. Duncan, 82, active in the Presbyterian Ministry for more than 40 years, died Sunday. He retired in 1937.

He held pastorates at Unionville, Port Credit and Stratford and served as Moderator of the Synod of Hamilton and London. During the First World War he was Chaplain of the 126th Field Battery and went to France with the 1st Canadian Division.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was bringing me home from downtown on account of ma having left me at his office to get rid of me while she finished her shopping, and the weather was hot as anything, and pop said, I've got an idea, practically an inspiration. I'm wearing a sport shert, so if I take my necktie off I'll not only feel cooler but probably look more poetic, he said.

And he took off his tie and stuck it in his pockit, and I said, Here's the Zipper Tea Room, pop. If we go in and eat some ice creem we'll both feel cooler, I said, and pop said, The greatest good for the greatest number, that's my motto.

And we went in and sat down at a little round table, and the waitress came up with an inquizitive expression, and pop said, I'll have a man size dish of vanilla ice creem, and my son will probably make up his mind in 3 or 4 minutes at the latest.

Oh, I'm sorry sir, I just noticed, we dont serve gentlemen without neckties, the waitress said, and pop said, Well, this is my ice creem outfit, but I dont mind dressing up and ordering something more formal.

And he took his necktie out of his pockit and put it on, saying, Now, one minute and 48 seconds, and I want 22 slices of toast made with yesterday's bread and done to a copper brown on one side and a platinum blonde tan on the other, and I want my tea brewed with 2 tea balls, one left in 4 minutes and the other left in 2 and a half minutes.

Goodness, the cook would throw everything in the kitchin at me if I gave her any sutch order. Take your tie off again and I'll bring you ice creem. Probably nobody will notice, she said.

Which nobody did, or elts they were too polite to show it.

Varied Nautical Program Features Successful Lions Club Regatta

Bancroft—One of the largest and most successful regattas ever to be held in North Hastings took place on Wednesday afternoon, July 20th, at Lake Baptiste under the sponsorship of the Bancroft Lions Club. Even though the president of the club Cecil McAlpine was the club's delegate attending the International Convention of Lions' Clubs at New York, his chairman of all committees, Lion Jack Brown deserves a great deal of credit for the efficient manner in which all his named committees carried out the preliminary work as well as the managing of the big event.

Clear sunny weather with a westerly wind, made for much of the regatta's success. The main section for all the events was the dock in front of Baptiste Station. The road was blocked off from the town line and also from Highway 62, and the area was used for parking of cars and all persons entering the grounds. Approximately 3,000 persons were in attendance. Two refreshment booths were kept on the jump owing to the hot afternoon.

Douglas Landry, of Peterborough gave of his talent by sketching anyone's portrait who so desired. One had to have an imagination at that to see one's resemblance of the completed free hand portrait but even at that the small stand brought in many a two bits for the club.

Bingo was in full swing during the afternoon, and those who were not interested in the aquatic events, and desiring a shady retreat from the sunny skies and other amusements, stayed pat with bingo. Portable telephones and a P. A. system were installed on the grounds and facilitated fast work in running off the many events.

Aquatic Events

Gordon Minty, swimming instructor of the Y. M. C. A. at Peterborough, was in charge of the dock and assisted by Fred Fleming in the starting of all the events. Lion, Wm. Hopper, was the official recorder.

The free-for-all amateur inboard power boat race had four entries but only three finished as follows: 1. Lloyd Nurse of Toronto; 2. Al Kincaid of Madoc; 3. Ronald Maxwell of Bancroft.

Boys' Swimming race, 10 years and under, 40 yds.—1. Geo. Cardwell. Peterborough; 2. Jack Watson, Bancroft; 3. David Grant, Baptiste Lake; Girls' Swimming Race, 10 years and under, 40 yards—Wendy Nurse, of Toronto.

No other entrants.

1st heat of 1.35 Power Boat Race—5 mile course: This was the main attraction as many northerners had never seen these boats in action before and the entrants being all outsiders made the runs more exciting. This heat finished as follows:

1st Bill Belfie, Gananoque; 2nd Ed Pine, Belleville; 3rd Ed Endres, Buffalo.

Boys' Swimming Race, 12 years and under, 40 yards—1st Alec Baptie, Peterborough; 2nd Gordon Ray, Bancroft; 3rd D. Laundry, Bancroft.

Girls' Swimming Race, 12 years and under, 40 yards—1st Marlene LaBarge, Bancroft; 2nd Shirley Ray, Bancroft; 3rd Tony Miller.

1st Heat 2.25 Power Boat Race—Five Mile Course—1 Ed Endres; 2 Ed. Pine; 3 Bill Belfie.

Men's Canoe Race, 1 2-3 miles—1 Clarence McImoyle, Lakefield; 2 Harold Watson, Bancroft; 3 Don Brault, Peterborough.

Boys' Swimming Race, 14 years and under, 60 yards—1 Donald Wood, Peterborough; 2 Elwood Palmatier, Bancroft; 3 Alec Baptie, Peterborough.

Girls' Swimming Race, 14 years and under, 60 yards — 1 Shirley Brown; 2 Beth Brown, both of Bancroft. (No other entrants).

Outboard Motor Race, 5 H.P. and under—1 Ivan Stringer, Bancroft; 2 Mr. Harrison.

Open Sail Boat Race, 6 miles—1 Leo Flaglar, Bancroft; 2 Mr. Cook.

Tandem Canoe Race—1 Herb Cardwell, Clarence Cardwell, Peterborough; 2 Harold Watson, Mr. Prentice, Bancroft; 3 Bob Cardwell, Don Brault, Peterborough.

Water Skiing—This event also took a great cheer from the crowd. Participants in this event were Jack Holland and Norma McIntosh of Bobcaygeon. They were towed by motor launches owned and driven by Mr. Nourse of Toronto and Ronald Maxwell of Bancroft respectively.

Boys' Swimming Race. 16 years and under, 100 yds.—1. Don Wood, 2. Alec Baptie, Peterborough.

Girls' Swimming Race, 16 years and under, 100 yds.—1. Ruth Israel; 2. Carol Laundry, Bancroft; 3. Shirley Ray, Bancroft.

Second Heat 1.35 Power Race, 5 mile course—1. Bill Belfie; 2 Ed Pine; 3. Ed. Endres.

Men's Open ½ - mile Swim — 1. Lewis McLennan; 2. Ken Stacey and 3. Frank Wright.

Outboard Motor Race, 10 H. P. and under — 1. Clarence McImoyle, Lakefield; 2. Bruce Canning; 3. Collie Stringer, Bancroft.

2nd Heat 2.25 Power Boat race, 5 mile course — 1. Ed Pine; 2. Ed. Endres; 3. Bill Belfie.

Women's Open ½ mile Swim—1. Betty Alcorn; 2. Inge Siedel.

Parachute Jump, 8,000 foot altitude, made by Charles Murphy of Belleville. (His 66th jump to date).

Parachute jump from 2,000 feet altitude by Mr. "X" who had the whole crowd spellbound most of the afternoon, was none other than M. J. (Nubbie) McAlpine of the partners of Hotel Bancroft and son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McAlpine, of Bancroft. Nubbie who is a veteran of World War II of the R.C.A.F. who had never previously parachuted showed a good deal of nerve and sportsmanship to jump. When asked if he received much of a jerk when his parachute opened he remarked "not much but it was a welcomed jerk!"

Four-in-One Canoe Race—1 Herb Cardwell, 2 Bob Cardwell, 3 George Cardwell, Peterborough; 4 Clarence McIlmoyle, Lakefield.

1 Prentice, 2 Harold Watson, 3 Mr. Watson, Bancroft; 4 Don Brault, Peterborough.

Crab Race—1 Herb Cardwell, Peterborough; 2 Clarence McIlmoyle, Peterborough; 3 Harold Watson, Bancroft.

Lucky Winner

Ending an afternoon of aquatic sports, the Lions Club brought their successful day to a close with a dance in the Bancroft community hall with music supplied by the Bancroft 6-piece Troubadour orchestra. The hall was crowded to capacity.

During the intermission at midnight, the drawing took place for the canoe paddles and cushions on which tickets had been sold. The ticket was drawn from the large container by a Peterborough resident and the lucky winner was a Mr. J. McKelbie of Baptiste.

Scotch Haggis, Skeletons Among Britain's Unusual Export Items

London, July 25—(CP)—Not all of Britain's exports are of the usual manufactured kind. In an all-out world sales effort, exporters are selling many strange things abroad.

oFr instance, there is a lively market for genuine Scotch Haggis. Canadians and Americans with close Scottish ancestry delight in eating real Haggis with the smell of peat on it.

They buy large quantities made in Britain and pay good prices for it. Not long ago innocent United States cutoms officials seized and burnt a consignment of fresh Haggis from Scotland, fearing that it might introduce foot-and-mouth disease to the country.

Then there are skeletons. Britain makes quite a good thing out of old bones left to the state for antomical research. For some reason many museums and laboratories abroad prefer British skeletons to their own.

Laboratories and colleges in the United States and elsewhere also import large numbers of British live frogs for experimental purposes.

Tout eggs, laid and carefully nutured in hatcheries in the Lake district, are flown regularly to Kenya, the United States, Venezuela, and Falkland Islands and the Bahamas.

Goldfish, already hatched out and reared in England, also find a good market. In South Africa they are required for the popular new sport of goldfish racing in long tanks.

Collie sheep dogs are sold to sheep-rearing countries. Mostly of the tough but highly intelligent hill strain, these dogs are bred and trained on the bleak fells of Lakeland, Wales and the north of England. At upwards of £100 ($400) each they form a useful minor export industry.

Mrs. Harvey Thilbert (left) holds her infant daughter, Shirley, who survived an attach of the disease which has claimed the lives of 11 Mattawa and district babies in a week. Mr. and Mrs. Mervine Sloan (right) are anxiously watching their infant son Gerry. He started vomiting yesterday — but a doctor thinks it's from teething. —Scott

Mayor Albert Huot carries his own drinking water from well half a block from his house. This is typical of Mattawa's many wood-framed wells. Water his worship is seen sampling is used by places of business. Note trailer at left. Overpopulation is aggravating town's sanitary problems. — Scott

SWEDISH CADETS VISIT CANADIAN CAMPS

Sea Cadet Richard Birgh, of Lund, Sweden, visiting Camp Major on his way to the British Empire Sea Cadets camp at Camp Ewing, near Montreal, chats with red-coated Constable J. W. Large-Scale Tree Planting Needed to Tame Unruly Rivers

Barrie, July 25—(CP)—Large-scale tree planting may help Ontario flood control groups tame unruly rivers.

Briefs put before the Ontario Legislature's select committee on conservation Friday urged that emphasis be placed on reforestation as a major part of any over-all conservation plan.

Presented by various Dufferin and Simcoe county organizations, five briefs said considerable tree planting has already been done in those counties but the organizations would like to seet it expanded. The Midland Kiwanis Club's brief said a survey showed that 200,000 acres in Simcoe county would be useful only if returned to forest cover.

With the other briefs presented near the close of the select committee's first week of its Ontario-wide tour, the Kiwanis submission called for expansion of present provincial tree nurseries and establishment of new ones. Briefs urged follow-up work by tree experts on private plantings and aimed criticism at "reforestation" plots that end up on the "Christmas tree" market.

The strongest recommendation for reforestation as a flood control measure came from a joint Dufferin-Simcoe committee, which also urged a Dominion-provincial survey of watersheds in the two counties with a view to making suggestions for averting floods.

The joint committee's brief said in part:

"Much expensive work can be done with flood control, having waterways deepened and dams built. But the most effective way is to have better control of the large amounts of water on our farms and in our forests.

"Reforesting, as well as being an important factor in controlling of floods, will tend to raise the water table. Then we won't have the serious shortage of water we have experienced during some years."

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"Your poor little fool, what do you care what they've got? We have each other," Chris said, kissing her, rubbing his cheek against her temple.

"I know." After a while Fanny gave a great sigh of shame and relief, and wiped her eyes against his pajamas, and pressed her lips against his hard young mouth. "I ador you!" she whispered.

• • •

"She's done it twice now: once with Phyllis and once alone," Chris said. "Today I was terribly busy . . ."

"I don't seem to understand." Fanny answered from the kitchen, "exaactly what it's about."

"The case at the office, you mean? Well of course, I don't understand it myself; there are a half a dozen fellows there that you'd think Mockby would have called in," Chris said readily, shifting papers at the sitting room table. "But he may want to keep the whole thing quiet . . in fact, I know he does. He told me to ferret out about it, and go up to the Law Library tomorrow . . and the luck of it was . . ."

"No-o-o-o!" said Fanny, appearing with a covered baking dish in her hands, and placing it, smoking, upon the table. "Toast, butter, water salt, salad . . we've everthing!" she added under her breath. "Gather up your papers there, Chris; it's time to eat. . . No, I didn't mean you prescious Bucknell case," she went on, sitting down, and pushing the damp hair from her forehead with the back of her hand. "I meant this . . this busines of Madge and Phyllis Maitland coming in to your office."

"They didn't darling . . Not much for me," Chris warned her. "Go easy!"

"Not hungry!" Fanny exclaimed, laying down her serving spoon in dismay.

"Well, I had iced chocolate and cinnamon toast and peach sherbet with the girls at five, remember."

"Oh, yes, I'd forgotten that," Fanny said in an odd tone. She served the scallop of corn and tuna fish carefully, looking questioningly at him over the salad bowl they had bought for fifteen cents on a happy Saturday a few weeks ago. "That's what I was wondering about," she went on. "What takes Madge and Phill down your way so often."

"Salad . . oh, sure, salad," Chris responded, answering her eyes.

"It isn't often," he protested. "It's twice now."

"Well, then, twice."

"Trying to find coppers, I think they said. They're cruising all round there looking for copper things."

"And they come in for you?"

"There's an awfully nice little eating place right near there, and they go in for sodas and sandwiches . . that sort of thing."

"Do you like Phillis, Chris?"

"Oh. she's all right. she dresses queer, though. But Madge looked stunning today."

"Madge did."

"Yep. She had on a sort of pale yellow, and a brown hat and belt . . . looked swell. Sure, I like Phyllis alright, but of course she isn't an old friend like Madge."

"Madge is a dear old friend."

"Sent her love to you, of course. She's seen Mack."

"You told me she was going to."

"Well he wants to be friends . says he won't worry her. She says she's going to talk to me about it; she's coming down in a night or two . . tomorrow, in fact."

"Oh? We'll have the tomato thing again; she loved it."

"No; I mean to the office. She wants to go into the whole thing, so I'll come home stuffed again. It's easy on the budget, anyway . . the woman always pays."

"Then I can have this scallop right over again," Fanny said slowly. "I'll trim it with bacon or something. I wonder why she doesn't tell me," she thought. "Funny." But she did not say it aloud.

It was some days later, when she and Madge were gossiping in Madge's beautiful flat, with the hot afternoon air burgeoning at the drawn window shades and came up. Then Fanny said simply, 'I understand you're seeing my young man now and then?"

Madge looked a little frightened, glanced toward the open door through which Phyllis's idle sleepy voice had been floating a few minutes earlier, and said quickly.

"He tell you?"

" He said you wanted to talk about Mack."

Phyllis sound asleep in the adjoining room, that the subject

A silence. Madge's delicate skin flushed deep red.

"Of course I don't want to talk about Mack," she said slowly. 'It's just—you know how it is. I've always liked Chris."

Fanny looked at her, flushed in her turn.

"Oh," she said simply. There was a silence.

"Don't say I can't have that, Fanny," Madge said then, very low." "Just that much. What harm does it do?

'I don't think it's for me to say is it?" Fanny answered.

"Please don't——take that tone. You wouldn't if you knew how—how simply it came about."

"Madge," Fanny said, "if you and Chris like to meet and have tea together, why should I object?"

"It isn't——it isn't like that." Madge protested uncomfortably. "He hasn't—that's what I don't want you to do, make him think it matters—that it's silly. I—you have everything, Fan, and that's all I have, all I want. You know how it is with me. '

"I don't." Fanny said with distasts. "It seems to me silly."

"You do, Fan—you know what I've been through, Fan. I wrote you."

"Yes, but you could have had him," Fanny said, refusing to sentimentalize. "You could have had him. Why didn't you love him then?

"Crazy, I guess." Madge whispered in turn, suddenly frantic and with her hands pressed tightly over her heart. Don't think I don't know what a fool I was, what I threw away." she said. "He was heartbroken, he was sick," she went on rapidly, evidently with phrases that had been long rehearsed in her heart. "You nursed him, and he turned to you; I don't blame you, and I don't blame him. But when I think what I could do for him now, Fanny, with Grandma's money: he could go straight ahead in his profession—he's ambitious——"

"I think you have an awful nerve to say that to me," Fanny observed dryly, as the other girl paused. "We're married; we're working out our problem as best we can——"

"You're married." Madge conceded breathlessly. Both girls were frightened to find themselves quarreling. "And he adores the ground you walk on; I know that. But, Fanny, surely he may have his old friends just the same? You know how I feel to him; I love Chris as you do—just seeing him come along in his brown suit—just watching his hands at the table and hearing that—husky voice—" Madge broke off, her own voice choked.

"He oughtn't be living in that slum." she presently burst out again, as Fanny sat perfectly still, looking at her speculatively. "You know. He ought to have leisure, quiet, when he goes home, not that—I don't want to hurt your feelings, —but not that—dreadful uproar. He doesn't eat enough——honestly, Fanny He's an important man; he's going to be an important man; everyone knows that—"

She stopped, frightened at her own audacity.

"So what?' Fanny asked inflexibly, in the pause.

"So—so—so if I had been around when he was ill, Fanny," Madge said inconsequentially, more frightened every minute, "if I had nursed him, and married him, you wouldn't have felt that I was geting him away from you. So—so——"

And you think that was the way I got him?" Fanny asked, in a voice of deathly quiet.

"Well—he said—he told me," Madge faltered.

"I'm going home now," Fanny said, after a silence. She got to her feet. I'm going to the——the slum; where we're going to have jellied tomato soup and peach cobbler—and nothing else, — for supper. And you——you get him away from me if you can."

She swept out. A door slammed. Then for a long time there was Madge softly whimpering, and nothing heard but the sound of of Phyllis's more than audible breathing from the adjoining room.

Fanny walked home in a state of amazement at her own danger. The day was hot and the streets burning and dry; in the Italian quarter women and babies were gathered silent in the shade; around a gushing hydrant children were splashing and screaming. Fanny saw wilted lettuce in a gutter, wilted bedding on fire escapes, wilted wares in the curb carts. The world was dusty and breathless and wilted today.

"Madge—Madge—Madge certainly can—can dish it out, but can she take it?" Fanny stammered o herself, too exasperated to choose her words. "It's dreadful to get so mad she told herself. Calm down. Calm down. Grandma's money—ha! I'll Grandma's money her."

She laughed aloud. There was an amusing side to being as furious as this. It made me feel noisy and common and saucy. It made one ready to stop unashamed to buy apples from a pushcart, and paper napkins at the "dime". Fanny bought two soft pencils; this was Thursday night, and she and Chris always had presents on Thursday nights because they had been married on a Thursday. They were doing crypts and crossword puzzles in these days, and their pencils were getting short. And climbing the hot close stairs Fanny thought that Chris's birthday came along in a few weeks now, and she must add a sharp penknife to his little heap of gifts—that is, if finances permitted.

"I suppose Madge would give him a camera or a dressing gown. I'll not tell her when it is." Fanny thought. I'll not see Madge again for ever so long. She makes me weary. There I go getting vulgar again,—but she does make me weary. It's that sentimentalizing Phyllis who's decided that Madge is pining away for Chris. I'd tell him if it mightn't suddenly make him interested in her—"

"What are you grinning about?" Chris said, when she came in.

"Chris, are you home, darling?"

"Yep. I was up at the library all day—Fan," he said, shuffling papers about, "am I having a good time with the Bucknell case. Listen, I think you and I are going to Boston."

"Oh, Chris." Fanny gasped, sitting down, her radiant face pale. "If things like that are going o happen to us, I'm sorry I quarreled with Madge."

Chris grinned in his turn.

"Did you quarrel with Madge?"

"Oh, I did, and it makes me kind of ashamed. Boston. And look at all the papers you have now." Fanny said respectfully, adding a brief case to her mental list of his birthday presents. "Twice as many as you had last week."

"Mind you, not for about a month," Chris warned her, very busy with pencilled notes. "But the thing is that I thought of course Murphy or Slade would go, or maybe Crum. But today Mr. Millikin wired and said, "Thring's notes highly satisfactory . . .' Wait!" Chris interupted himself, producing a crumpled telegram. "Well," he went on, scanning its hundred or more words scrupulously, "that's all it says about me. But Mr. Mockby said that I'd probably have to go up to see Mr. Millikin . . he has a place at Milton, and why didn't I take my wife? He said, 'You kids haven't been to Boston on the night boat, have you? We'll put you up at a Boston hotel, you see Mr. Millikin and come back next night.'"

"Chris," Fanny asked, in an awed voice, "is there really a chance of our doing that?"

"There's a darned good chance!" of his chair, her forehead resting Chris said. Fanny sat on the arm against his shoulder. Her voice was full of exquisite content.

" I don't want ever to be anyone but us," she said. "When I think of the fun we have . . . I mean like going to the clinic when you got the speck in your eye . . ."

"You have the oddest ideas of fun, Fan."

"You know what I mean . . . the smelly halls at the hospital and having the best eye man in New York fix you for nothing."

"I wouldn't call it fun," Chris offered mildly, as she paused to kiss his temple. "But then it was my eye."

"When, then, the free concerts, Chris, they're fun! And the old bookstores, and the lights on Broadway at night . . and the day we went to Coney . . ."

"You love your city," he said, smiling.

"Don't you? But of course you do!'"

"I think I'm not quite as sure of it as you are, Fan. I'm content to be a cog in a big law mill. You . . you insist on getting familiar with it."

"I'd like every day to be three days," Fanny said dreamily.

"If there were, darling, I could get through this work, and have a whole day to have you and your moist packages sliding into my lap. As it is . . ."

"Money grubber!" Fanny said, gathering up her parcels and pausing for a final kiss on his dark thick hair. "Imagine being mentioned in telegrams! Imagine being sent to Boston on a night boat!"

"Do you know what this might mean Fan? Being taken into the firm. And I haven't been a year in New York!"

"If it's mean to you, it's mean to you . . New York," said Fanny "and if it's nice to you . . IS it nice to you!"

"We'd have to move, Fan."

"I suppose we would. I suppose if you were making actual fees we'd have to move. Oh, dear . . I love our slum, and the Black Hole and the Ruggiero baby!"

"You'd love anything!" Chris said, with good-natured scorn.

Fanny was busy kitchen-ward and made no answer. After a while she might be heard to mutter: "She write poetry . . huh?"

"Who write poetry?"

"Phyllis. She sent a lot over for you to read . . she's going to get a book out of it. I'll bet she pays for it. Leaning Up a Cypress Tree.' Ha!"

"What's a cypress tree got to do with it?"

"That's what shes going to call it.'

"Leaning Up a Cypress Tree?"

"Yep."

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" said Chris.

"If I sat down to a typewriter it'd come out better sense. I'll read you some of it .She's going to send it over. Four lines in blank verse, you know . . the nerve!" Fanny's spoon clicked busily in the yellow bowl in her hands. "I saw the new moon tonight, . . you are the asparagus plant, and I the moon. But who is the rain?' That kind of slush!" she said vigorously.

"Is that one of them?"

"Well, they're like that."

"Those girls have a swell time with themselves," Chris mused. "Smocks and ateliers and affinities . . ."

"I wonder at Madge; she used to have sense," Fanny said tentatively, hopefully. Chris instantly disappointed her.

"Madge doesn't take it seriously, don't fool yourself!"

Fanny carried her salad dressing away; reappearing with sewing and settled down near him. "I am not going to talk, Chris," she announced presently, "but I was thinking how contrary it is that people like ourselves who don't truly mind Avenue A succeed so fast that we are practically forced into moving to better localities. And other people who loathe it have to come here."

Indian Princes Keep Their Wealth But Are Shorn of Former Power

Bombay, July 25—(Reuters)—Fifty-three Indian princes have become titled gentry in the states they rule with absolute power until recently.

Their territory was merged with Bombay province some months ago. Now, they have relinquished for all time much of the wealth they enjoyed as ruling princes.

This "sacrifical ceremony," which took place at the end of April at the Bombay government secretariat, marked what may be the beginning of the last phase in the princely epoch of free India.

In brief two and three-minute interviews with a soft-speaking official from New Delhi, the stately, bejeweled princes signed away the bulk of their fabulous "private property."

The deal has not made paupers of them. But is has enriched the states which they once ruled and their population of nearly 5,000,000 Indians.

The maharajas, who virtually owned the states covering an area of about 34,000 square miles, now may retire on a fortune in keeping with their status. They also draw an annual "privy purse" allowance fixed by the government of India.

The Bombay deal between V. P. Menon, adviser to the Indian states ministry, and the rulers of Deccan and Gujerat States, was concluded in less than 15 hours.

Menon gets down to business immediately the maharaja enters his chamber. Menon appeals to the ruler's sense of patriotism, love for his subjects and duty to free India.

The offer of a settlement is usually liberal. The ruler gets his palace, sufficient land and estates and all personal belongings, including jewels worth millions of rupees in some cases.

The maharaja, however is called on to sacrifice unrestrained luxury and access to state revenue.

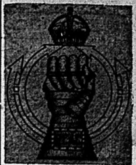
The private property is hereditary. But the private-purse grant lapses with the death of the present recipient.

The Indian States ministry has to conclude such agreements with a total of some 500 princes whose states have either been merged in neighboring provinces or integrated into states unions.

Crews of Girls Aid Farmers in Picking Fruits in Niagara Area

St. Catharines, July 25 — (CP) — The Niagara Peninsula fruit-growing season is in full swing these days. And on all the farms throughout this "Garden of Canada" crews of girls are aiding farmers to pick peach, cherry, plum, apricot and apple trees.

The crop, though affected slightly by this year's drought, is still plentiful, for the absence of spring moisture meant there was little bursting of the skins of tree fruits.



New design for Royal Canadian Armored Corps cap and collar badges is described as follows. "In front of two concentric circles broken and barbed at the top, a gauntlet, clenched, charged with a billet inscribed with the letters RCAC, the whole ensigned with the Imperial Crown." This design is identical to that used by the Royal Armored Corps, with which the RCAC is affiliated, except that it is smaller and the letters RCAC replace RAC.—Globe and Mail.

France's Black Market Disappearing Through Better Economic Conditions

Paris, July 25—(Reuters)—France's black market is tottering on its last legs and is likely to disappear altogether as the country's economic recovery continues.

Free sale of gasoline, with a controlled sale for such priority users as doctors, which began early in June, was a blow which deprived black marketers of their largest remaining source of gain.

Now, the only remaining commodities in short supply in which they can speculate are sugar and coffee (still rationed), foreign currencies, American and British cigarets and vacant houses or apartments.

Few will regret the passing of the black market although it had an honorable birth as a means of defeating the food requisitioning ordered by the Germans during the war. Especially is its passing unmourned because it is a symptom of France's present economic health.

Other symptoms noted by economic observers this summer are:

1 At the end of May, France's international trade deficit in round figures was the equivalent of $54,800,000 as against about $58,,400,000 in April.

2 The franc has continued to maintain a position from which began to improve in the spring. both in relation to gold and the dollar.

3 Rain in early summer helped to alleviate the effects of an earlier dry spell. Ministry of agriculture estimates in late June put the wheat crop at only slightly less than last year's, which was an exceptional crop.

4 In industry, steel output totalled 809,000 metric tons in May compared with 751,000 tons in April—somewhat less than the March 1949 all-time record of 827,000 tons but level with the previous record of 809,000 tons set in 1929.

It was, however, round the relation between prices and wages that signs of economic, and possibly social and political, unrest still persisted. Industrialists, workers and farmers and tradesmen were united in one thing. —their bitter complaints about the relationship of prices to wages.

It is in this opposition of views that political observers have seen a possibility of trouble later this year.

3 PERSONS DROWN WHEN LAUNCH HITS ROCK

200,000 Homeless, 29 Dead as Typhoon Batters Shanghai

Lower Yangtze Rice Crop Is Partially Destroyed

Shanghai, July 26 (AP) — Shanghai's worst storm in years killed 29 persons, injured 23 and left upwards of 200,000 homeless rescuers sloshing through flooded streets it was learned today.

Fourteen died when a house collapsed, 10 lost their lives in a series of fires and five others were electrocuted by power lines blown down in the 25-hour storm.

Property damage appeared heavy. But the worst may have occurred in neighboring farm areas. Badly needed truck crops were either totally destroyed or badly damaged. The lower Yangtze rice crop, due to be harvested in 40 days, was destroyed partially.

The typhoon ended Monday midnight. Earlier it had seriously damaged military installations on Okinawa Island.

Weather observers said it was Shanghai's worst storm since July 28, 1915. Two hundred were killed in that one and 26 were wrecked on the Whangpoo and the Yangtze.

More than half of the small huts in the lower residential district of this city of 6,000,000 were destroyed Monday night.

Exchequer Court Allows Appeal Succession Duties

Ottawa, July 26 (CP)—The exchequer court Monday allowed an appeal by a Brockville man against succession duties assessed by the revenue department.

The judgment ordered return of $26,070.74 in succession duties paid by Edwin Comstock Cossitt, beneficiary of a will left by his mother when she died in 1944.

The will gave Mr. Cossitt the right to the income from the capital and also gave him power to use the capital.

The federal government contended that the power to use the capital put the money in the category of an outright gift and taxed it to the full extent of the succession duties Act.

However, Mr. Cossitt legally disclaimed the part of the will giving him power over the capital. He appealed against the assessment, claiming he now had no control over the capitol. The court agreed and ordered the revenue department to adjust the assessment on that basis.

The difference in estimates between Mr. Cossitt having only the income from the estate and having control of the capital was $26,070.74.

Jap Fishermen Say Unknown Warship Shells Boat, Kills 4

Tokyo, July 26 — (AP) — Four Japanese fishermen came home today and told how an unidentified warship shelled their 75-ton boat in the East China Sea, killing four of the crew. Four others died later.

In a dispatch from Shimonoseki Kyodo news agency quoted the survivors as saying other fishing craft in the same area may have met a similar fate. They gave no reason for being attacked, and said they were in a legal fishing area.

Kyodo reported that the warship took the fishing boat, Akashi Maru, in tow June 10. The next day it sank the captive craft with gunfire.

The eight survivors built a raft from the wreckage. Sharks gathered and only four men managed to climb on the raft. After 10 hours adrift, they were picked up by the Panama ship Cristobal.

The story gave no hint as to the nationality of the warship.

$1,000,000 Loss In Cloudburst

Pleasanton, Tex., July 26 — (AP) — A nine-inch cloudburst sent two normally docile streams boiling into this little South Texas town Monday. Damage was estimated at $1,000,000. The downpour swelled the Atascosa River and its tributary, Bonita Creek, 20 feet above normal. Flash flood waters rolled into the business district.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—Synopsis: Monday was hot again in most parts of Ontario. Thundershowers were reported Monday night in a few localities in Southwestern Ontario.

An extensive disturbance over Manitoba, moving toward Hudson Bay, will bring scattered thundershowers in Northern Ontario today and Wednesday. The remainder of the province will be sunny and hot with increasing humidity.

Claims Russia Has Exploded Atomic Bomb

Paris, July 26 (AP). — A Paris weekly newspaper claims in its current edition that Russia has exploded an atom bomb.

The story appeared in Semedi Soir, a weekly noted for sensationalism.

The newspaper says United States recording devices showed an atomic explosion in Siberia July 10.

This, says Samedi Soir, is the reason President Truman called a top-secret conference of military scientific and congressional leaders.

"The United States," adds the weekly, "which had managed until now to keep monopoly of the atom bomb and of the material necessary for its production is in a frightful scare since the moment it knew the USSR had pierced the secret of the bomb."

Samedi Soir says the United States established a listening post in the Arctic after being placed on the alert by British Intelligence who had received reports from Russian refugees that the Soviets were on the point of unlocking the secret of the atom bomb.

'Footprints on the Sands' Denote Ogopogo's Beach Walk, is Claim

Kelowna, B.C., July 26—(CP)—You can't keep a good Ogopogo down.

"And what," you enquire, "is an Ogopogo?"

A good question. At this Okanagan lakeside city today they're beginning to wonder.

He used to be known only as a cavorting sea-serpent. But the other morning they say, the Ogopogo as having sometimes a sheep-like head, sometimes a serpent-like body and once black coils.

All those who claim to have seen him agree on one point: He undulates!

But the footprints have everyone baffled. Coming out of the water is a trail of prints—cup-shaped imprints with eight toemarks — about a mile south of here. The trail extended along a short section of beach and then re-entered the water.

Word got around and a corps of newspaper men from Vancouver made haste to the scene, made notes and wrote stories for their journals. The reports tallied: eight toemarks.

A United States tourist, W. C. Ulrich of Omak, Wash., claims he heard "a terrific splash during the night."

Though it's only in the last few years that white people claim to have seen him, the Ogopogo is part of Indian legend. The red man named him "Auck."

Years ago a bone 1½ feet long and about a foot through—alleged to have come from the back of one of Ogopogo's ancestors—was found at nearby Rocky Point.

Another time the Indians were hunting deer by chasing them into the water where squaws waited in canoes for the kill. An exceptionally large deer was being pursued by the squaws when it sank "as if drawn under, while the water boiled in a great cauldron."

OBSERVERS STATE ARAB LEAGUE DYING ON FEET

Personal Feuding Among Leaders Blamed

By FRED J. ZUSY

Beyrouth, Lebanon, July 26 — (AP)—Neutral observers say that the Arab League is dying on its feet and has ceased to be an important factor in the Middle East.

Personal feuding among leaders of member states, they say, has blocked attainment of the goal of co-operation set up when the League was organized in Cairo in March 1945.

The seven founding Arab states agreed in Cairo to work for "real collaboration" and to "strengthen the ties" between one another.

Well-informed Arabs privately admit the Arab states are further from that goal today than they were at the time of the League's founding; that the bickerings which hamstrung Arab fighting efforts in the war against Israel are just as evident in the war's aftermath.

Split Into Two Blocs

The Arab world today is split into two blocs — one led by Egypt and including Saudi Arabia, Syria and Lebanon; the other composed of Hashemite Jordan and Iraq, also ruled by the Hashemite family.

The first bloc is strongly opposed to plans by Hashemite Jordan and Iraq for a regional Arab unity. King Abdullah of Hashemite Jordan wants what he calls a greater Syria. This would include his own kingdom, Arab Palestine, Syria and Lebanon. These four areas compose the Syria that existed under the Ottoman Empire up to the First World War.

Iraq favors a fertile crescent scheme, which would unite Iraq, the present Syria and Lebanon. It is believed Hashemite Jordan and Arab Palestine eventually would join this setup, if ever organized.

Some observers believe that during a period of years some kind of greater Syria-fertile crescent combination is likely to be created, possibly under the leadership of Marshal Husni Zaim, new president of Syria and current strong man of the Middle East.

Such an eventuality would leave Egypt and Saudi Arabia off by their lonesome.

Development of Alliances

Interference by Western Powers — strongly disliked by Arab Nationalists — may influence the development of any alliances. Currently Great Britain seems to be backing Hashemite Jordan and Iraq. Observers say France is working to regain its former influence in Syria and Lebanon.

The United States, relatively a newcomer in Middle East politics, apparently is supporting the status quo and the principle that the Arab peoples have the right to freely choose the government or alliance they wish.

Four Youths Lying on Roadside Struck by Car as They Sleep, One Killed, Three Badly Hurt

Midland, Ont., July 26—(CP)— One youth was killed and three others seriously injured early today when they were struck by a vehicle as they slept beside a highway near this Georgian Bay town. The driver did not stop.

Kenneth Byers, 19, died from multiple injuries to the face and body.

Injured are: Harvey Goudreault, 17, Donald Leduc, 17 and Russell Latondresse, 14.

All four were from Victoria Harbour.

Although suffering from severe head cuts, Goudreault walked to a nearby farmhouse to get help before he lapsed into unconsciousness. He told police later that the four boys had stretched out by the side of the road to sleep.

Police said the youths, believed to have been returning from pageant practices in nearby Midland, were on the highway for at least an hour after they were struck. They said that the youths' condition indicated that a car had passed over their bodies.

Police said they found the three lying across the centre line of highway 12 when they arrived.

Hospital authorities described the condition of Latondresse as "very serious." Leduc is suffering from a fractured wrist and right leg. Goudreault was discharged from hospital today.

Police are searching for the driver of the vehicle.

U.K. Exports Board Chairman Says Britain Would Welcome Further Investments by U.S.

Ottawa, July 26 — (CP) — A picture of world trade paralysis that would lead to serious unemployment was drawn by Sir Graham Cunningham, chairman of the British Dollar Exports Board, at a press conference Monday.

Economic stagnation would provide fertile ground for Communist activity, the British manufacturer said.

Sir Graham is visiting Canada and the United States seeking means of increasing the United Kingdom's exports to the two dollar countries in an effort to build up her diminishing dollar reserves.

He said he found Trade Minister Howe "receptive and helpful" and that a private discussion yesterday with Mr. Howe had given him the "greatest possible encouragement."

Unless the situation was remedied, the trade problems that U.K. now was experiencing would reach Canada and the U. S. As it was, the United States would not sell to sterling countries because they hadn't dollars to make payments. Even Canada could not buy all she wanted from the U. S.

With countries unable to trade freely, tariff barriers would be erected in each country and aggravate the situation. Sir Graham intimated that the U. S. was not investing money abroad and said his country would welcome further American investments there. That would help bring more dollars to Britain.

He said the U. K. didn't "want to have to buy wheat from Poland" and wanted to continue buying it in Canada but just didn't have the dollars.

Communism would overrun the U.K., Canada and the U. S. if a solution to our economic problems was not found.

The high level of British prices, considered by Canadians and Americans to be Britain's chief problem, was not entirely the fault of British manufacturers, said Sir Graham.

He chose cotton as an example to illustrate the U. K.'s position. Cotton could not be bought in the U. S. for the same price paid by American manufacturers when British buyers had to consider shipment costs and other factors. And in the other main source of supply — Egypt — cotton was being sold to Americans at a lower price in order to get U. S. dollars.

Increasing Butter Stocks Worry Government Experts; 42 Million Pounds Stored

By HAROLD MORRISON

Ottawa, July 26 (CP).—Government experts are trying to find a solution to the problem of steadily increasing accumulations of top-quality butter which the government has been purchasing during the last three months under a price-support program to keep the wholesale level at 58 cents a pound.

These accumulations, stored at various centres across the country, now total more than 42,000,000 pounds and when the production season is over in September they may have reached almost 60,000,000 pounds.

Besides storage costs, the government so far has spent more than $24,000,000 buying up the surplus butter and expects to spend at least an additional $6,000,000 before production slows up and the supply situation tightens.

Some of the experts believe the government will have little trouble disposing of the butter, selling the product in carload lots at 58 cents a pound.

At this time last year when private industry stored butter, surplus stocks amounted to 30,000,000 pounds and Canada was forced to import 15,000,000 pounds during the winter months to meet a critical shortage.

However, since then margarine has made its legal appearance on the Canadian market and some of the demand for butter has been absorbed by the butter substitute which has been selling at lower prices than butter.

This had led other government experts to doubt whether the accumulations can be disposed of easily without a government loss.

The whole question of disposal and availability during the coming fall and winter months when Canada has to depend on storage accumulations to fill consumer requirements.

In some quarters it was believed that if the Canadian market will not absorb the entire storage accumulations, then Canada will try to export some of the butter to foreign markets.

Cargo Shortage Lays up Ships

Sarnia, July 26—(CP)—For the first time in a decade ships are lying idle here due to the shortage of cargo. Six ships—freighters and barges—were in the north slip of the elevator docks Monday waiting further cargo. All have docked within the past few days.

According to sailing officials it is the first time since before the war that ships have been idle at the height of the sailing season.

Latest arrivals are the steamer Victorious and the barge John Fritz which came in Sunday.

Last Friday, the steamer Maunaloa II and the Bryn barge docked, while the James B. Eads arrived earlier. Barge 137 known as the Glenbogie has been here for some time. All the ships belong to the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company Ltd., fleet.

Canadian carriers in the past have assisted United States vessels carrying iron ore during the middle summer months until the grain crop is harvested. Threat of steel strikes in the United States recently was offered as a major reason for the drop in iron ore shipping.

AIRPLANE PILOT TERRORIZES CITY, DIVES TO DEATH

Crashes into Graveyard Where Wife is Buried

Stockton, Calif., July 26—(AP) An airplane pilot terrorized this city for an hour Monday with repeated buzzing — then power-dived to his death in the graveyard where his wife was buried four months ago.

He was Russell Gilman Higby, Jr., 23, son of a well-to-do produce merchant.

Sheriff Carlos Sousa said the young man was flying his father's Cessna monoplane. Witnesses said Higby's screeching dives over the city often levelled off at tree-top height.

Sheriff's deputies waited at the airport to arrest him. With them were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Higby who told officers their son had been "very despondent" since his wife, Beverly, died April 1 in childbirth.

Higby made two power dives on a cemetery at the city limits. On the second, witnesses said, he started from 2,000 feet and never pulled out.

Higby's mangled body was thrown 80 feet from the point of impact.

He was an ambulance driver in England during the Second World War. He leaves two daughters, two years and four months old.

Spectacular Fire Rages in Bush Near Montreal

L'Assomption, Que., July 26 — (CP) — Begrimed and weary, 300 volunteer firemen Monday night fought a roaring fire burning through pine and spruce in the wooded area not far from this town, 27 miles northeast of Montreal.

At the height of the spectacular fire when it raced out of control earlier in the day, flames shot 60 feet above the tree tops in the forest, tinder-dry from a lack of rain.

A bulldozer, borrowed from St. Jerome, 25 miles away, was used to clear a stretch one mile long and 75 feet wide to force a break in the flames' progress.

Police Chief Maurice Jobin said he believed that this had helped check the fire, but he did not expect that it would be fully controlled until some time today.

The fire was heading northward and already had burned over more than three square miles of timber.

FISHERMEN RESCUE THREE

Buffalo, N.Y., July 26 — (AP)— Two Fort Erie, Ont., fishermen rescued three persons from a sinking speedboat in the Niagara River Monday night. Coast guardsmen said the Canadian, Gordon Moore, 30, and Kenneth Pressler, took the trio off the boat before it sank. Those saved were Harold Keating of the town of Elma and an unidentified couple.

Survivors Spend Hours in Water Before Rescue

Party Had Just Started Trip on Lake at Geraldton

Geraldton, Ont., July 26—(CP). —Three persons were drowned and three survived when a submerged rock ripped through the bottom of a motor launch on nearby Lake Kenongamisis yesterday.

Drowned were: Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Felker, Hamilton; and their nephew, Murray Weekley, four, of Geraldton.

Geraldton is 175 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

The three other occupants of the craft who survived a five-hour ordeal in the wind-swept lake before they were rescued are: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Weekley; and their seven-year-old son, Fred.

Gone Short Distance

The party set out in the boat, owned and built by Mr. Weekley, in the late morning. They had cruised up the lake only a short distance when they struck the rock.

When the collision occurred, the craft was travelling at about 20 miles an hour. It nosed in the air and carried over the rock, sinking in eight feet of water on the opposite side. Its occupants were hurled in all directions.

"The bottom just seemed to fall out of the boat," said Mr. Weekley.

He said he saw Felker struggling in the water just after the crash but lost sight of him after he had grabbed his eldest son and wife.

Mrs. Felker is believed to have died almost instantly, presumably from shock. Her unscarred body was recovered later after it had drifted to shore.

Weekley said he saw his youngest son, Murray, grab a section of the boat, floating on the water.

"I yelled to him to hang on, then swam toward other son to get him near the boat so they could stand on it," he said. "When I looked around again, Murray had disappeared."

The boy's body was found later in three feet of water near the shore.

Occurred Near Shore

The accident occurred more than 300 feet off-shore and, although Weekley is a strong swimmer, he feared to leave his wife and son. He managed to find a footing on the submerged boat and held them above water until help arrived in late afternoon.

Weekley said he tried more than once to start out for shore but each time was held back as the boat tilted precariously and threatened to throw his son and wife off their perch.

They were finally rescued by the Longlac Pulp and Paper Company's tug which was on a routine patrol of the company's log boom.

Mr. Weekley is a surveying engineer at McLeod-Cockshutt mine, which is near Geraldton. Mr. and Mrs. Felker were on their annual holiday visit with the Weekleys, who had come to Geraldton from Hamilton more than 10 years ago.

Claims Missing Will to Vast Estate Found in Bottle Washed up by Ocean

London, July 26 (AP)—A note of fantasy today entered the already fabulous search for a will disposing of the $12,000,000 estate of Mrs. Daisy Alerander.

Her lawyers are investigating a Californian's claim that the missing will, stuck in a bottle, was washed up out of the Pacific —almost half-way around the world—two weeks ago.

Mrs. Alexander, 81, daughter of Isaac Singer, sewing-machine manufacturer, died in London Sept. 19, 1939. No trace of a will disposing of her vast estate has been found.

Ronald Cohen, the lawyer, said Jack J. Wurm, of Palo Alto, Calif., had written him that he had found a note in a bottle reading.

"To avoid all confusion, I leave my entire estate to the lucky person who finds this bottle and to my attorney, Barry Cohen, share and share alike, Daisy Alexander."

Cohen said Wurm sent a handwritten copy of the note, but that the alleged document, dated Jan. 20, 1947, bore no indication of where it was written nor was the signature witnessed. He said he is trying to get a photostatic copy of the paper.

In Palo Alto, Wurm, a 56-year-old restaurant man, said he was going to hang on to the original.

Cohen also said that two friends of Mrs. Alexander and her butler, had told him she had talked of throwing bottled notes into the sea to see where they would turn up.

During the last year the law firm has been systematically taking apart the house where Mrs. Alexander entertained royalty and societies of three continents at the turn of the century in a search for a will.

The search was delayed by the war.

U.S. Arms Plan Designated For Europe's Defence

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, July 26 (AP) — President Truman's arms-for-Europe program is described officially as designed to bring up to combat strength a total of about 1,500,000 fighting men in five countries.

The strategic purpose behind this objective is to prepare the countries of western Europe to defend themselves against any attack by Russia until United States forces could be thrown into the struggle. Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. Together they form the western European union and have already planned the coordination of their own military power independently of any U.S. assistance.

In addition to these five the arms program also is supposed to strengthen the combat effectiveness of the relatively small forces of Norway, Denmark and Italy.

Figures available here showed the nature of the problem that military leaders of the United States and western Europe have encountered trying to determine what the objective of a rearmament effort should be.

Against the 1,500,000 available troops of the western union powers the Soviet Union is reported now to have a total military strength of more than 4,000,000 men, including 2,500,000 in the ground forces.

The Red army ground forces in Germany are reported to total about 350,000 men organized in 20 to 25 divisions. Another 10 to 15 divisions are said to be distributed elsewhere in occupied or satellite Europe.

On the United States side of the picture, the United States now has under arms a total of 1,600,000 men divided among the army, air force, and navy.

Truman administration officials said that heavy, strategic attack weapons such as battleships and heavy bombers would not be turned over to the other countries. The aid plan would run to defensive arms.

U.K. Railway Men Present Terms To Avert Slowdown

London, July 26 (AP).—Britain's 450,000 union railwaymen sent a deputation to Labor Minister George Isaacs today to state their terms for averting a country wide slowdown of the state-owned railways.

The railwaymen, who want 10-shilling ($2) a week pay boost, are expected to demand changes in the government's conciliation board.

Union delegates are standing by for the deputation's report. If Isaacs' reply does not satisfy them they are expected to act on proposals for an immediate slowdown throughout Britain.

Some 3,300 men at 10 freight depots in London, Manchester and Salford already are on a slowdown.

Isaacs set up the conciliation board July 8. The union objects to it.

OAK LAKE WATER PASSES SAFE TEST

Rumors that the water in Oak Lake was unsafe for bathing are completely groundless, it was reported here today by George Whiteman, sanitary inspector, who over the weekend had a sample of water from the lake tested in the laboratory at Belleville General Hospital.

The laboratory report was that the water in Oak Lake was Grade C which was said to be the limit of safety for drinking water and therefore perfectly safe for bathing.

Water from the roadside spring along the highway between Oak Lake and Stirling was also tested, the laboratory test showing the water to be Class A.

LOCAL TOMATOES $1.75 SIX QUARTS

Locally grown tomatoes at $1.75 per six quart basket were offered fairly freely on the farmers' produce market this morning.

Red raspberries were up a nickel to 50 cents the box with black berries being quoted at the same figure. Cherries were $1.50.

Corn sold at 40 to 60 cents the dozen ears while potatoes brought from 80 cents to $1 the peck.

ALLAN'S MILLS

Barn, Pigs, Hay Destroyed by Fire

Allans Mills—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the large barn of Mr. Warren Hay of this district, on Friday evening. A considerable amount of hay was burned as was a sow and young pigs, and a practically new tractor.

Neighbors rushed to the scene but were unable to put out the fire, which had gained a head start on the inside of the barn.

Watertown Club Postpones Visit To Rotary Here

The regular weekly luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club was held in the Hotel Quinte on Monday. President Deacon took over the duties of speaker because an expected visit from the Watertown club was postponed.

Mr. Deacon's short talk dealt briefly with the responsibility of membership in Rotary. He said that Rotary was more than just a luncheon club; it is a classification club. He went on to explain that there is only one from each recognized vocation represented in the club.

Emphasizing the responsibility of each member in selecting, proposing and electing new members, he stated that they were expected to follow the fourteen steps outlined for this purpose.

Following Mr. Deacon's talk, a member asked if a letter could be sent to the city council suggesting that the meters in the hotel area be equipped with two-hour heads as some members had found parking tickets on their cars after the meetings.

Belleville Branch Red Cross Society Holds Exec. Meeting

At an executive meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society held recently, the resignation of Mr. H. V. Lancaster as treasurer was accepted, since he has left the city. A record of appreciation of faithful service by Mr. Lancaster was made.

Mr. S. C. Lowther of the Royal Bank staff was appointed treasurer.

Mr. Duff, the president, reported on a meeting of presidents of branches that he had attended at which considerable cutting of expenditures and combining of offices was reported and advised.

It was reported that the Blood Donor Service Project is going on in spite of the lack of co-operation of certain hospitals. Nothing can be done in Belleville at present.

Mrs. Bulger reported that all quotas of women's work had been finished and shipped by June 15.

Bateman Family Holds Annual Reunion Picnic

Tweed, (Special)—The annual Bateman family picnic was held at the Tweed Memorial Park last Wednesday with 121 sitting down to enjoy the noonday meal. Mrs. Joseph Bateman, of Belleville, who is 83 years of age, won the prize for being the oldest member of the clan in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Edwards, of Creighton Mines, near Sudbury, came the greatest distance to be present, and year-old Jimmy Bedford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bedford, of Trenton, was the youngest member of the gathering.

The new president of the Reunion Association is Dr. J. H. Bateman, of Belleville, succeeding Wilbur Countryman, of Belleville. Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson, of Smiths Falls was re-elected secretary, and members of the executive are: Wilbur Countryman, Belleville; Jack Morrison, Stirling; Scott Bateman, Belleville; W. J. Tanner, Stirling; John Bateman, Belleville; John Courtney, Harold; and Mrs. Margaret Bateman, of Madoc.

'Clustered Red Gold' on P.E. Farm Attracts Many Pickers From District

Clustered red gold is drooping these warm summer days from raspberry bushes in garden and field in this fruit-growing district.

The "dollar-a-drop" rain which fell some three or four weeks ago converted what growers say was a near-crop failure to one that will compare with the best of the past few years.

Take for instance the nine-acre berry field of George Baitley, farmer residing one mile west of Wellington, Prince Edward County.

The fruit hangs in grapeish-like clusters from loaded canes, with green berries promising future yields.

76 Pickers

Seventy-six pickers recruited from all parts of the district and county toil under the hot sun, harvesting the red, juicy fruit.

They come in ancient jalopies, trucks, modern automobiles, with some using the old-time but reliable method of transportation, the horse and buggy.

They bring their lunches in baskets, boxes and paper bags. At noon, some of them putter off to nearby homes. Others sit under shade trees and munch sandwiches.

Some of them bring their families. Tiny tots and those between five and ten years of age play on grassy plots or in nearby shady glades. Teen-agers devote their time with grandmothers helping fill the quart containers.

Periodical cries of "Boxes" ring out in the warm summer air. Men carry 12-box containers to the waiting pickers. They are quickly filled. It being a good crop.

But these pickers work. They get paid by the box, with some taking their remuneration in the equivalent of fruit.

Last week, this small army of fruit gatherers garnered 9,000 boxes from the patch during the second picking. The week previous 3,000 boxes were harvested.

"But," Baitley says, "another rain would do a lot of good." Since he made that statement, however, the rain has fallen.

His crop is contracted to a private canning company a few miles from the Baitley farm. Prices compare very favorably with those of a year ago.

Not All Profit

But raspberry growing is not all profit. There are pickers to be paid, fruit to be hauled, boxes to be purchased, seasonal labor to be hired. Pre-season and post-season care of the patch necessitates a lot of work if the canes are to bear normal crops.

Pruning and "tying" the canes is a long arduous session of labor, but one that is necessary. Weeds are kept at a minimum by constant cultivation. This not only aids growth and development of the canes and fruit, but facilitates the work of the pickers during harvest time.

Indications at present point to the raspberry crop being one of the best in years. But it had a narrow escape. Pre-season drought had growers concerned, but timely rains not only eased the situation but paved the way for a good 1949 yield.

Chimney Builders Like Working On Big Jobs, Have No Fear Of Height Say Two Experts Here

Lou Matte and Noel Monette are two young men who have made a success of their careers by starting at the bottom of the ladder and working their way up. They are, incidentally, chimney builders for the New York firm of Alphons Custodis, at present engaged in lacing the brick, and pointing up the brickwork on the 110-foot chimney of the Corbin Lock Company of Canada Limited on Coleman street.

In addition the two men are repairing the lightning rods on the stack and replacing the water table on top.

"I would rather work on the big stacks," said soft-spoken Lou Matte who had just taken a minute to come down the Corbin chimney. "On these small chimneys there is not enough space to move around in. The planks in the scaffold have to be smaller, and the whole thing is harder on the nerves."

The present scaffold is eighteen inches wide and is supported by triangular steel brackets which are held against the stack by a half inch steel cable, tightened up by a turnbuckle. Every five feet the scaffold is dismantled and rebuilt at a new height. A portable steel ladder in eight-foot sections is used to scale the chimney if there is no permanent ladder. The interlocking sections are held by steel cables also.

Conditions Govern Jobs.

At present the Corbin Lock plant is inactive due to summer vacations so the two builders have not had to contend with chimney gases.

"We work according to the weather and gas conditions around the stack," said Noel Monette, originally from Saskatchewan. "We build new chimneys as well as repair old ones."

Both men admit that they would rather build new chimneys than do repair work, mainly because "the work is not so dirty". They had just finished working on the new 355-foot stack for the Canada Cement Company's plant in Montreal.

"That job used up 800,000 bricks," they stated.

Find Dead Birds

Some of the other work the two have been on, include the mammoth chimneys of the International Nickel Company at Copper Cliff. One chimney is 565-feet high and 40 feet wide at the top, another is 500 feet, and a third, a shorty, is 420.

"Usually there are about 20 dead birds around the stack every morning," the two said, "killed when they tried to fly through the gases at the top."

Another big job is the 512-foot stack at the International Nickel Company plant in Port Colborne.

Generally the men work from the inside out, going up the inside of the chimney. Building in this way simplifies matters considerably they claim, because it does not require any external scaffolding.

Several types of bricks are used in chimney building, and they are put together in such a way that they are self bonding. A large stack might have three courses of brick inside an external shell of concrete. The whole tapers off toward the top until, in the case of the Corbin stack, it is about eight inches thick. This type of construction is guaranteed against 100-mile an hour winds. Lou Matte, who has laid both chimney and house brick, claims that the former is easier to lay. He has laid 1,900 chimney bricks in a day.

Fast Climbers

The men, who necessarily have no fear of heights, have a little fun in their work too. Matte has gone up inside of a 150-foot chimney and come down the outside of the same stack in five minutes. Noel Monette accomplished the same feat on the Port Colborne chimney in 15 minutes.

Chimney builders, who are a rarity to be sure, see a good deal of the country in addition to the views from the top of the stacks. Lou's brother-in-law has worked in Puerto Rico, and recently spent six months in Turkey. Lou himself was in Belleville last year building the 175-foot chimney for the Bakelite plant on Highway No. 2.

Lou started in the business eight years ago when he was 18 years old, and according to his account, "began low down and kept going higher."

He has fallen a few times but is not the least perturbed about it. One time he fell sixty feet, and was pulled up by a rope that tangled in his feet when a few inches from the concrete base. Next day he was back on the job, "with a band-aid on my wrist."

Both men are married. Their wives take a dim view of the job but are resigned to it by now they say.

"Life insurance is not hard to obtain, "but it costs a little more a year," the men state. Life expectancy on this job is fairly good. "There is a fellow in the States who is past seventy and is still active. He does not climb much now, but he does go up the odd time," Lou said.

Payment for such sounds good, though. Both men clear $200 a week, and that includes deductions for income tax, travelling expenses, room and board. They work steadily from the first of April to Christmas time each year, laying off during the winter because weather conditions make life too miserable 500 feet straight up.

Point Anne Man Electrocuted At Cement Co. Plant

In some manner coming in contact with the power conductor of an overhead travelling crane, Walter Hull, maintenance man with the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne, was electrocuted shortly before eleven o'clock this morning.

First-aid personnel at the cement plant applied artificial respiration while firemen from Belleville rushed the iron lung, but efforts to revive the man were fruitless. There was still no sign of life one and one-half hours after the accident occurred.

According to reports the accident occurred some time between 10:30 and 10:45 in a part of the clinker mill. The body of the man was said to have been found lying across the track of the overhead travelling crane and it was stated Hull must in some way have come into contact with the power conductor. Hull was described as being a very careful man.

Plant doctor, Dr. Erle MacDonald of Belleville was at the plant at the time of the accident and directed efforts at reviving the man.

Hull was stated to be about 38 years of age. He was married with two sons.

TV Fans May Get 'Telesquat' And 'Telecrane'

Chicago, July 26 (AP)—Television fans may be getting "telesquat" and "telecrane," spinal ailments, Dr. Martin R. Stone, president of the Chicago Chiropractic Society, said yesterday.

The two ailments were discussed by Dr. Stone at the 54th annual convention of the National Chiropractic Association.

Persons who perch themselves precariously on the edge of their spine by sitting in a slumped position are asking for trouble, he said. They are doing the "telesquat," a name chosen by Dr. Stone.

"They sit on the bottom of their spine and not on their bottom like Nature intended. Sitting on the large bone at the base of the spine can cause a low backache and other physical disturbances," he said.

Sitting in a forward bent position puts a strained effort on the vertebrae of the neck. This is what Dr. Stone calls "telecrane." This practice can cause severe backache, headache, and increase eye-strain, Dr. Stone said. He suggests an absolute upright position with both feet flat on the floor for good health.

PROMINENT DENTIST DIES

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—Dr. George Henry Coram, 72, member of Faculty of Dentistry at the University of Toronto, died Sunday at his home here following a brief illness. Born in Wellington county, he was a member of the Dental Academy and the Ontario Dental Association. He practised dentistry in Walkerton and Drayton, Ont., before moving here 37 years ago.

Former District Couple Observe 65th Anniversary

Of interest to many residents of Belleville district is the fact that Mr. and Mrs. John Haslett, former residents of this area, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary in Edmonton, July 8. Mr. Haslett has one sister, Miss Rose Haslett of Springbrook, Ont. and is an uncle of W. J. Bateman of 223 Bleecker Ave., Belleville. Mrs. Haslett has one sister, Mrs. Bonter of Marmora, Ont. Following is the account of their anniversary as published by the Edmonton Journal:

Memories of her wedding day and of her first very own home, in Rossmore, in Prince Edward County, where you could watch the boats on the bay, stand out as highlights in the life of Mrs. John Haslett who, with her husband, is celebrating her 65th wedding anniversary, Friday, July 8.

Golden wedding anniversaries, or the Diamond anniversary that comes after 60 years of marriage, are occasions of great joy in any family, but to live to celebrate the 65th anniversary of a marriage is truly remarkable. And yet Mr. and Mrs. Haslett, though they hope to have as many of their family with them as possible, have not planned anything elaborate to mark the occasion. There will be a family dinner at their home at 9928, 88th Ave., Friday evening which will be cooked by "the girls", and a few close friends may drop in to offer their congratulations during the evening, but otherwise it will be just like any other day.

Having her daughters cook the dinner will be a treat in itself for Mrs. Haslett, as she regularly does her own housekeeping in her six room bungalow, including the cooking for her husband and herself. It is a charming home they have, too — cosy with comfortable furniture, and photographs of the family, and right now, bright with cut summer flowers from the garden which is Mr. Haslett's pride and joy.

Never Been in Hospital

Mr. Haslett is also very proud of the fact that in all his 87 years he has never been in the hospital, except to visit sick friends. Both he and his wife are deeply thankful that as yet there has never been a death in their family.

Mrs. Haslett used to belong to a bridge club but gave it up a few years ago when she found that looking after her husband and her home was taking most of her time.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Haslett were born near Springbrook, Ont., and were married in Marmora, in the same province, July 8, 1884 by the Rev. Mr. Harris. They never dreamed that day that they would celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary some faraway day in the middle of the next century.

Following their marriage they lived for about eight years in Rossmore, later in Belleville, where Mr. Haslett operated a blacksmith and carriage shop. He still vows, "I'd rather have a nice pony and cart any day."

On leaving the east, where their son and daughters were born, they moved to Bulyea, Saskatchewan, where Mr. Haslett tried his hand at farming. He said he thought he had been a blacksmith long enough, having worked at the trade some 30 years by that time.

Thirty-five years ago their daughter, Mrs. Roy E. Frizzel and her husband, moved to Edmonton where they have made their home since.

Moved to Edmonton

Some six years later, on the first of April, Mr. and Mrs. Haslett retired from farm life, and followed their daughter and son-in-law to Edmonton where they retired. They have lived on the South Side ever since, and though Mr. Haslett has worked occasionally since then, he has considered himself "officially retired."

"It took a lot of hard work and considerable sacrifices to save enough for our old age, so that we don't have to depend on a pension or anything," says Mr. Haslett, but both he and his wife feel that the comfort they enjoy now more than make up for it.

Their other daughter, Mrs. William James and her husband, moved to Edmonton from Saskatchewan, three years ago, when their daughter was married and went to that city to live.

Their only son, Mr. W. M. Haslett, lives in Minneapolis, Minn., and has not visited his parents at their home in the past ten years. However, the whole family is together Friday, for the first time in 37 years.

Three years ago Mr. and Mrs. Haslett visited their son and his family in Minneapolis, and found the long trip bothered them not at all. "Next time I'd like to fly, but he won't have any of it," says Mrs. Haslett, glancing meaningfully at her husband.

She celebrated her birthday last Saturday, July 2, but with true feminine reluctance, would not admit to which one. It is impossible that she could be as young as she looks, though.

Family Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Haslett's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James, are marking an anniversary themselves this month. It will be their 40th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Frizzel have been married 39 years and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Haslett, over 30 years.

Mrs. Haslett says that it doesn't strike her that she has been married 65 years. "It seems like just the other day," she says, "although when I was married I never dreamed I'd end up in the 'wild and woolly west' ".

Mr. and Mrs. Haslett have 11 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren, and they regret very much that not all of them are able to be in Edmonton for the anniversary.

IN MEMORIAM

BLAKELY — In loving memory of a dear husband, William Blakely, who passed away July 26, 1947.

Two years have passed since that sad day,
The one I loved was called away
God took him home, it was His will
But in my heart he liveth still.
A faithful husband, one of the best,
May God grant him eternal rest.

Lovingly remembered by his wife Della. J26

COPE, HARRIET — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away four years ago today.

The depth of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory, we shall always keep.

Ever remembered by daughter Florrie and son-in-law Charlie and grandchildren. J26

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 26—(CP)—Volume was beginning to pick up on the Toronto Stock Exchange today as industrial issues continued to improve slightly. Golds levelled off after making slight gains early in the session. Base metals were also levelling and western oils continued in a fractional decline.

The exchange's 1 P.M. index showed industrials up .06 at 169.80, golds down .54 at 98.68, base metals up .17 at 93.32 and western oils down at .54 at 42.89. Volume for the first three hours was 511,000 shares, about 115,000 shares more than the same period yesterday

Atlas gained ⅛ in the industrial groupings and Canadian Canners added the same amount. Canadian General Electric jumped ahead for a $4 gain. Others ahead in the list included Consolidated Bakeries, Montreal Locomotive, Aluminum and Dominion Foundry, which gained ¼ at 24½. Lower in the groupings were Ford A, Walker's New, Silknit, Great Lakes Paper and Union Gas.

Osisko continued on the upgrade in the base metal list, registering an eight cent gain to 82. Waite Amulet tacked on 25 cents at $9.10. Steep Rock added seven at $1.77 and chromium added five cents at $1.50. Also higher were base metals,normetal, ventures, a holding issue and Pend Oreille. Losers included Labrador, Torbrit Silver, United Keno Hill and Silanco.

Hollinger Mines slipped 10 cents at $9.80 and another senior gold, Kerr Addison, dropped ¼. McIntyre edged ahead for a ¼ increase and Teck Hughes gained 15 cents at $3.25, junior golds were mixed.

Western oils were again lower and included in the losers were Anglo Canadian, Atlantic Oils, Royalite, Pan Western and Calgary and Edmonton.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—Plain quality cattle formed the bulk of the supply on the local livestock market up to noon today. Small lots of good steers sold steady but prices dropped $1 or more on lower grades. Hogs lost $1 for the week.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 650, calves 400, hogs 300, sheep and lambs 220. Left from yesterday's trading were 3,300 head.

Good steers and heifers sold at $20.50-$21 with plain kinds at $16-$19 and boners downward to $13. Good cows sold at $14-$15 with bulls at $14.50-$17.50. A few stockers brought $15-$17.

Calves were steady at $21-$23 for good to choice vealers with plain to medium kinds selling downward to 16 and grass calves for slaughter were $13-$15.

HOGS

Toronto, July 26 — (CP) — Hog prices at Stratford this morning were down $1 from last week. Grade A delivered paid $32.85 to farmers and $33 to truckers. At Hull, hogs lost $1.75. Grade A dressed, were $33.25, delivered.

DISREGARDS SIGN NOT TO PARK

Some people just do not believe in signs.

And that apparently goes double for a Toronto motorist who parked his car overnight on the market square despite the fact signs were posted informing the public that parking was not permitted after midnight.

Today he reported at the police station his car had disappeared only to be informed he would find it at a local garage—on payment of the towing charges.

The market caretaker had the vehicle towed away when this morning it was found to be blocking a farmer's market stand.

No Sunday Ball In Toronto Parks, Vote Postponed

Toronto, July 26 —(CP).— Toronto's city council has decided there will be no organized baseball games in city parks this summer. Council pushed aside a recommendation of Board of Control that two test games be played in city parks between now and Sept. 11.

Council voted 18-3 yesterday to postpone decision until its first regular September meeting. Controllers Allan Lamport and Harold Balfour and Alderman Harold Fishleigh dissented.

Theoretically, council's decision was not opposed to Sunday sport, but it showed disapproval of discussing the issue at the special summer session. Yesterday's meeting was called to collect taxes on a rate of 30.5 mills. The measure was passed.

Sunday Blue Laws

Though baseball has been the alibi, council's September decision will clarify the whole issue of Toronto's Sunday blue laws. Board of Control cannot open city parks for commercialized Sunday sport without violating a federal statute — the Lords Day Act. The act forbids all commercialized sport on Sunday unless local provincial sanction provides otherwise.

However, Don North, president of the North Toronto Baseball Association and the man who asked the city for the two games to test public opinion, discovered there was nothing in the law to prevent a collection being taken. In other words, as long as no admission is charged, says Mr. North, a permit to use city playgrounds on Sunday should be issued.

Controller Leslie Saunders led the assault against the "skeleton" Board of Control in passing on what has become a hot question to council. Both Controller Saunders and Mayor Hiram McCallum were out of town when the proposition arose.

Twice the mayor threatened to eject Controller Balfour from the session if he continued to "harangue."

But the quarrel subsided on the motion that the contentious issue be postponed. However, protests were voiced by Controller Balfour who charged that aldermen had arranged before the meeting to have the matter shelved.

After the meeting, Mayor McCallum told reporters: "Most people I have talked with are opposed to Sunday sport."

Mr. North, instigator of the feud, was not available for comment.

Maintain Patrol On Forest Fire

Lindsay, Ont., July 26 (CP)—Patrol is still being maintained by rangers on a forest fire which swept through 45 acres near a construction camp 12 miles north of Haliburton.

District Forester A. B. Wheatley of Lindsay said eight other blazes in the Trent district have been restricted to smaller areas due to recent heavy rains. Five of the fires were attributed to campers.

Mazinaw L. Fire Being Brought Under Control

Fire, which has been raging over a sixty-acre area in the vicinity of Mazinaw Lake, is gradually being brought under control, officials of the Tweed branch of the Department of Mines and Forests stated today.

The blaze which broke out on July 23rd is believed to have been started by careless blueberry pickers.

The fiery terrain is mostly scrub on a flat rocky country with little timber in the area, it was stated.

Fire rangers have fought the three-day blaze which quickly spread over the tinder-dry countryside until it encompassed approximately sixty acres.

Danger to surrounding areas is now virtually over, and the rangers have the fire in hand, officials said.

Britain May Get Anti-Sub Vessel

London, July 26 (CP)—The Daily Express says Monday in a newspage story that at least one of three high-speed anti-submarine vessels under construction in Canada is intended for Britain.

The newspaper says construction began in Canada because at £2,000,000 ($8,000,000) each Britain could not afford them. Canada recently announced particulars of a new type of "submarine killer" she is building with sleek flush-deck lines, low bridge and a short, stramlined superstructure of aluminum instead of steel. The craft the Daily Express describes is similar.

Britain's ace naval designer, constructor Capt. Roland Baker, is said to be on loan to the Royal Canadian Navy as constructor in chief. He is said to be the new ship's designer.

Rouses from Coma After Ten Days From Fracture

Brantford, July 26 — (CP) — Gerald Rush, 19-year-old Brantford naval rating who suffered a skull fracture in a street accident, has stirred from a 10-day coma in hospital here.

Physicians reported today that he recovered consciousness yesterday and recognized his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Rush, Sr., of Brantford airport, by his bedside.

Though he frequently lapses into semi-consciousness, the youth now is able to take fruit juices for nourishment.

He suffered a fracture at the base of the skull July 16 when thrown more than 30 feet after a motorcycle on which he was riding collided with a car at a street intersection. Both legs also were fractured. Ross Shrum, 19, the motorcycle driver, also injured, is in good condition.

Acting on Hunch Police Get Man Wanted 18 Months

Kingston, Ont., July 26 (CP)—Ross Bowers, 31, sought by police for 18 months, was arrested in the bus terminal here early today by detectives from Toronto and Forest Hill. Police said he fainted as they drew their guns to make the arrest. Bowers came here from Montreal.

Bowers will face charges of armed robbery in Forest Hill, a Toronto suburb, and 11 other charges including car theft and receiving, absconding bail, shopbreaking and dangerous driving.

Detectives trailed four Montreal-Toronto buses in the belief that Bowers would be in Kingston or Belleville to meet the Montreal girl. They said Bowers had just stepped into the terminal to meet the girl when they nabbed him.

Police said the girl would be brought to Toronto tonight with Bowers for further questioning, but that it was unlikely that she would be held.

Police said Bowers cut up 11 stolen cars and sold them for replacement parts. They said very little was ever found of the missing cars. In one case only a frame was found and in another police got the ignition lock.

Plywood Pieces May be From Missing Plane

Watertown, N. Y., July 26 (AP) — Three pieces of yellow-painted plywood found on the Lake Ontario shore at nearby Hayes Point were tentatively identified Monday night by Sheriff Brayton E Peck as wreckage from a RCAF training plane that disappeared over Northern New York Jan. 9, 1942.

Peck said that pieces of plywood appeared to bear green numerals or letters. They were similar to wreckage washed ashore in the spring of 1942, which was identified as parts of the missing plane, the sheriff added.

The plane disappeared with its four occupants, three members of the RCAF and a civilian, while on a training flight. The first bits of wreckage were found April 6, 1942, Peck said.

Bodies of the four occupants have not been found, the sheriff stated.

ATHLETE DROWNS

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 26 — (CP) — First district swimming casualty of the summer season occurred Monday evening when Evo Filipetti, 21-year-old Sault athlete, drowned at Island Lake, 12 miles north of here. The former star of collegiate football and hockey teams disappeared while swimming with friends. The body was recovered today. A son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Filipetti, Evo was employed as drug store clerk here.

PICTON

Army Personnel Injured When Truck Overturns

Picton—Three members of the army were admitted to hospital here early Monday suffering from severe injuries after the truck in which they were riding overturned and was almost a total wreck.

Gunner J. S. Campbell, Nova Scotia, here for Reserve Army summer training, suffered chest and back injuries and was the most seriously injured. Gunner E. E. Paquette, another Reserve Army member from Prince Edward Island, suffered severe scalp wounds and lacerations. Gnr. E F. Wilson R.C.S.A. (AA), Picton, suffered an injured knee. Gnr D. H. Spicer driver of the light truck, was not hospitalized.

The accident occurred on the long hill running from Picton along Macauley's Mountain to the R.C.S.A. camp. The truck was coming down the hill when the driver lost control.

Dr. John Pearce attended the injured whose escape from death is considered miraculous.

No Polio Cases In Prince Edward Health Unit Says

Picton, (Special) July 26 — There are no cases of polio in Prince Edward County the Health Unit here reports. A campaign is being carried on to stress the danger of flies and the need of sanitation.

Two hundred children attended the Vacation Bible School which closed last weekend at the Salvation Army Citadel. Capt. and Mrs John Morrison conducted the classes, which included Bible study, manual training, memory work, music and recreation. Perfect attendance prizes were awarded to Lois Breakenridge and Marjory Wright. L. Breakenridge also won the memory text section and had the best book in the senior group. Dennis Keep had the best book in the junior section.

Miss Helen Jordan, who completed the post-graduate course in Public Health Nursing at the School of Nursing, Toronto University, has joined the staff of Prince Edward Health Unit. She replaces Miss K. Drexler, who is leaving to be married.

Lance Nethery, K.C., is acting Crown Attorney while Major G. T Walmsley, K.C., is on holidays.

Fire Department Puts Out Blaze At Back Door

Picton—Picton fire department's shortest run was yesterday afternoon. The machine barely backed out of the hall doors when it was at the scene of the outbreak in Johnson's machine shop. During the morning wheels from a plane had been bored and some of the material fell on the floor. Later, welding was done there and some of the hot metal landed on the magnesium which had been bored from the wheels. Water caused the flame to burn more intensely and it was necessary to smother it with earth. Little damage was done.

In the Willingdon Cup Gold Tournament at St. John, N.B. last weekend, the Quebec team finished second to Ontario. Member of the Quebec team was Mickey Pyke, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Pyke, Picton. His total for the 36 holes was 154. Among those attending the tournament were Mr. and Mrs. Pyke and daughter, Patricia, Donald Andrews and William Brown, of Picton.

Sunday Anglers Take Musky, Bass From West Lake

Picton, July 27.—Some good fish catches were reported over the weekend. William Reynolds reported that around 75 Pickerel were taken from Hay Bay on Sunday, and one fisherman lost a musellunge there. Vernon Rose of Toronto caught a large-mouth Bass weighing five and a half pounds while casting in West Lake.

George Oetundsen of Connecticut landed a twenty-four and a half pound muskellunge in West Lake. It required 45 minutes to land the fish.

Arthur Steet of Picton took a 22-pound muskie from Picton Bay on Sunday.

Good Bass and Pickerel fishing is reported from East and West Lakes.

H.P.E. Regiment Reunion Oct. 8, 9 In Peterborough

Peterborough, July 26 (CP).—Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will hold its 1949 reunion in Peterborough, Oct. 8 and 9, it was announced today by Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy of Owen Sound, president of the Regimental Association of the famed First Divisional wartime battalion.

The regiment's Scholarship Fund was also discussed at a week end executive meeting. This fund is for the promotion of higher education for children of comrades killed in action. At present 21 girls and boys are eligible. The Hastings and Prince Edward wartime regimental funds have been turned into the Scholarship Fund, so that its reunions like that to be held in Peterborough this fall support the Scholarship Fund rather than drain regimental funds.

U.S. Population Over 149 Million

Washington, July 26—(AP).—The United States population has passed the 149,000,000 mark, census bureau figures indicated today.

The bureau estimated that the population, increasing by nearly 200,000 a month in the first half 1949, totalled 148,902,000 on June 1. No later figures were given, but the rate of increase indicated that the population now is more than 149,000,000.

EARLY EVIDENCES OF CIVILIZATION

The sands of eastern lands cover remains of ancient civilization as students of archeology know. Now it comes to light that there is ground for belief that the earliest evidence in England of civilization is a subterranean chamber made by artisans who came from the East, it is said, possibly Egypt, about 4,000 years ago.

How far the civilizations of ancient Asia Minor, Egypt and prehistoric Greece extended no one can definitely say, though there is plenty of opinion that the prehistoric civilizations extended far to the east and west.

Among those peoples which flourished and extended their civilizations far abroad were the Egyptians who became a great people when much of the rest of the world was very young.

Whatever the amount of interest in the Margate discovery in Britain it does at least hint at very widespread civilizations in the early eras of the world.

If the ancient Egyptians visited Britain as long as forty centuries ago, they were there from two thousand to twenty-five hundred years ago before the Roman soldiers and Roman society. 2,000 B. C. was twelve and a half centuries before the traditional founding of ancient Rome by Romulus and Remus.

So archeology's research in Britain in this age suggests how early the Egyptian civilization had risen and the date given goes far back into the hazy centuries before cultures such as those of Greece and Rome came upon the world.

It however does suggest that eternal spirit of search which is characteristic of mankind from the earliest known days to the present. It was something of the same spirit which prompted Christopher Columbus to defy the ocean and try to find a way to this other side of the world as he was convinced the earth was a sphere.

TRANSMITTED INTO GOLD

Alchemy has been a dream which has attracted many for ages and it has remained for this age to produce gold by artificial means. This was recently revealed by Sir John Cockcroft, who is director of Britain's Atomic Research Establishment, at a meeting of delegates to the Empire Mining and Metallurgical Congress in London. He pointed out however that only small quantities of the precious metal can be produced in this way.

"We are often asked whether we can produce gold artificially," he said. "We can in fact do this. But since we have to start from platinum and the process is rather expensive we are not likely to put the gold mines out of operation in the foreseeable future."

Modern chemistry places metals in the class of elements and has denied the possibility of changing an inferior metal to gold.

If alchemy has not yet produced gold from other metals until this recent proof, alchemy did give rise to chemistry's development which has been one of the great marks of progress for many generations.

BIRDS' IDEA OF FUN

Birds have a quaint idea of fun.

Last year our cocker spaniel's favorite spot for dozing was beside a humus pile just beyond the sweeping lower branches of a mighty spruce. The summer was young when a brash blackbird decided he needed some relaxation from domestic duties and started entertaining himself by dive-bombing the hapless cocker. The bird would power-dive from the top twigs of the spruce to within inches of the dog's head, then bank sharply into a nearby walnut tree and sit there cackling raucously before repeating the attack. All the furious barking, leaping and snapping of the spaniel only seemed to spur the bird on to greater efforts.

By fall, the cocker had learned to ignore the zooming bird, but for a while it seemed it looked as if the pup would need the care of a psychiatrist. — Woodstock Sentinel Review.

NEW ELECTRIC MICROSCOPE

An electron microscope incorporating many novel features has been developed by a London firm. The instrument which is of the magnetic type has, in addition to a normal set of three lenses — condenser, objective and projector — two extra lenses which make possible variable magnification covering a whole range of from 1,000 to 60,000 diameters without the necessity of changing pole pieces. The photographic arrangement is such as to permit the use of an internal camera employing standard 35 mm film capable of recording the screen image at a reduced scale of four times. Up to 40 exposuures can be made without reloading.

GOLF IS A SHREW

The game of golf I'd call a shrew,
At first a joy to see,
Who hides, when man begins
to woo,
How vexing she can be.

The man has started to adore
And taken her for life,
He'll find that golf can plague him more
Than any nagging wife.

With hooks and slices she betrays
Her fondest devotees
And angers every man who plays
With sevens instead of threes.

I write it as a simple fact;
Golf's an enchanting lure,
With maddening ways which Job had lacked
The patience to endure.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ETERNAL SUPPORT

In all the big cities of life we stand alone. No matter how much we may feel ourselves surrounded by the love and support of others, when we really come to big decisions and to circumstances that tend to overwhelm us, we stand isolated and alone.

So while this, of course, should induce within everyone a solemn sense of responsibility, there is not a bit of reason why it should discourage us. We can be absolutely sure that God will never confront us with a situation to become weak, our judgment to be dulled, our powers of mind and body to be impaired — but this is our fault; we cannot blame that on God. It is the will of our Heavenly Father that we be adequate for every situation in life — of that we can be sure.

But if we are not adequate we can make ourselves so. It may take discipline and plenty of it before we are ready to confront life's hard and trying situations. We can be sure, however, that we were not made to be defeated—straw men set up to be knocked down by the hard circumstances of life. We may be alone, but we are adequate to anything we need to confront. If our hearts are made right with God, we can give ourselves into his hands, confident that what we cannot do for ourselves, He will do for us.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Near the gate of a lonely farm, I was puzzled to behold several large rocks, larger than bushel baskets, reposing balanced on top of the sturdy cedar fence posts.

They gave the impression of enormous mushrooms. How anybody could have the strength to hoist these walloping big round boulders up to the height of a fence post had me staggered. How patiently the man must have manoeuvred them and balanced them! And what purpose did they serve? Was it to hold the fence post down firmly in some weird elastic soil?

Being nosey by profession, I drove in the farm lane. A remarkably pretty young woman came out of the side door of the farmhouse when I drew up. She was followed by another, younger and even prettier.

"Is the farmer in?" I requested, in the approved phraseology of that county.

"He's out back," the girls replied. And at that moment, an older woman, their mother, came to the door. She too was a most handsome woman. I confessed to her the sheer curiosity that had brought me up their lane; and the woman laughed.

"Aw, that's my husband's idea," she confined. "He put those stones up, years ago, when we were first married. It was meant as a warning to tramps and strangers to be polite to me if they came in. He wanted them to know a big strong man lived here."

We laughed; and I said I did not blame him in the least. The mother and I glanced appreciatively at the two lovely girls who were smiling quizzically, waiting.

"What's more," said the mother, "he has put up several new ones this last two or three years!"

Whereupon we all laughed; and I drove out without waiting to see the big, strong, jealous man with the quaint—and, I bet you—happy heart.

U.S. Foreign Arms Program Act Of Self Defence

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

President Truman, having signed the Atlantic Pact, forthwith called on Congress yesterday to implement this epoch-making treaty with a foreign arms program running to $1,450,000,000, which would go chiefly to aid the United States' European allies.

Now, that's a lot of money even in these days of astronomical calculations, and there are plenty of signs that United States law-makers will examine the propsal with weather-eyes.

Adverse criticism of the proposal has been based chiefly on the claim that Uncle Sam's economy already is strained to the limit by present United States budget, which includes some $15,000,000,000 for defence alone.

The Truman administration's request for this foreign aid is based on the strategic decision that the military strength of the country's European allies should be increased as quickly as possible to enable them to stand off any Russian attack until American power could come to the rescue.

Preparedness First

President Truman's message to Congress included these explanatory points:

"The better prepared the free nations are to resist aggression, the less likelihood there is that they will have to use the forces they have prepared. . . Their defence is our defence and is of deep concern to us. . . It must be made clear that the United States has no intention, in the event of aggression, of allowing the peoples of Western Europe to be overrun before its own power can be brought to bear. . . The aid we provide will constitute only a minor fraction of what these countries will spend themselves."

So we see that the proposed American aid isn't entirely an altruistic proposition. As President Truman says "their defence is our defence." The United States is acting in its own interests. Its forward defences lie in Europe these days.

Moral Obligations

To my mind Western Europe's best guarantee that the United States means business is the fact that it is indeed acting in part in self-defence.

However, the United States would be doing itself an injustice if it dropped the subject with blunt summary of the position. America does have ideals, and President Truman voiced some of them in these passages of his message:

"Helping free nations to acquire the means of defending themselves is an obligation of the leadership we have assumed in world affairs. . .

"We must keep ourselves morally and materially strong. We must play our part in helping to strengthen freedom everywhere."

FOOL'S ERRAND

London (CP)—An emergency telephone caller told Scotland Yard police of a "mad dog locked in a shed." A squad car hurried to the shed where police cautiously opened the door and found a stuffed fox's head.

Eggs Sky-Rocket, Normal Prices Seen Shortly

Ottawa, July 26 — (CP) — You're paying more for eggs these days because hens, like humans, take their vacations in the summer.

Hens always lay fewer eggs in the summer, boosting retail prices. This year the situation was aggravated by hot weather and widespread drought in many parts of the country.

These factors combined to send prices sky-rocketing as much as 10 cents a dozen in many parts of the country. But poultry experts expect the situation will be back to normal in a few weeks.

At the same time, production for the first six months of 1949 was nearly nine per cent lower than for the same period of 1948.

Consumer prices reached a top of 85 cents a dozen in Montreal last week, 83 cents in Toronto and 82 cents in Ottawa. Prices were lower in the west — 55 cents in Regina and 66 cents in Vancouver — but there have been further slight increases since those prices were reported by the Federal Department of Agriculture.

The department's weekly egg and poultry market report, issued yesterday, showed a drop in egg production and higher prices at wholesale markets all across the country.

The same thing happened, to a lesser extent, last year. Then, the high-priced short-supply period lasted little more than two weeks.

The production drop resulted this year when hot, dry weather caused many hens — due to stop laying this year, anyway — to stop laying earlier than usual.

Egg production for the first six months of the year was 207,884,000 dozen, a drop of 8.9 per cent from 1948 production during the same period, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

Charge is Ruled 'Triable by Jury' In Smallwood Case

St. Johns, Nfld., July 26 (CP)—Magistrate Hugh O'Neill ruled Monday that a charge of intimidation of voters against Premier Joseph Smallwood is "triable by jury."

W. J. Browne, successful Progressive Conservative candidate in the riding of St. John's West, brought the charges against the Newfoundland Liberal premier some weeks before the Dominion election.

Magistrate O'Neill said such intimidation would be "an indictable offence triable by jury unless there was statutory authority to try it in a summary manner." No such authority exists.

Counsel for Mr. Browne asked that the preliminary hearing be held in Ferryland, the south coast district where the premier was quoted as telling a public meeting "not a red cent" of public money would be spent there if it didn't vote for the Liberal candidate. The district voted heavily for the Progressive Conservative.

No decision was made on the matter of the Ferryland hearing — nor on the date — pending a conference between the premier and his counsel, who had asked for the Supreme Court trial.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE DELUSION OF — WHEN

I wonder how very many people have worn out that little word when. We are forever saying that we will do certain things when. When our whimsical ship comes in, or when we get a little more money, or a new car, or when the baby is born, or when we get a better job, or when we get any number of a dozen things done—which we never do get done!

In that little book "Try Giving Yourself Away" I came across this idea, where the author, David Dunn, says: "Doubtless we shall be somewhat happier WHEN—but not as much happier as we think. Life has a way of presenting new complications, and conjuring new wants, as fast as old ones are satisfied."

The time to do anything, that can be done, is when the impulse is on, when the incentive is fresh and full of fire. If you wait, all this early hope and enthusiasm may be totally lost. It's so easy to push this little when around, for it has no life in itself.

You have heard remark that they would do thus and so—when they got ready. The hitch here is that such people never do get ready! Many of the most valuable lessons in life are missed because we failed to do something that we really wanted to do — but didn't. When is a delusion, no matter how you oil it up! Often it is used merely as a foil, and at other times as a mere excuse, or an intention without purpose or meaning.

The young man says: "When I get a raise in salary I shall begin to set aside a definite amount for a rainy day." But the raise comes and he spends that much more. That when takes a swift fly out of his intention window! When my ship comes in. Listen! You are that ship. You are its owner. You are its Captain and its Pilot. You can guide it to any port you wish, if you have decision, courage, and the will. And then it will come in all right, never fear.

Opportunity for great things and much joy and happiness slips by rapidly by always intentioning, by always planning something —then. Unfortunately, when the when comes all incentive has fled!

IT HAPPENS IN EVERY FAMILY

It happens to the rich. It happens to the poor. When it happens to the Reginald Plushbottoms Mrs. P. is expecting a blessed event. When it happens to the Pedro Lopezes Maria is pregnant again.

The prospective mother in the lower income brackets has nutritional anemia and calcium deficiency in 48 per cent of cases (among 881 whose nutritional state was studied by Sturgis and associates). To most people this seems logical enough—lack of good, nurishing food.

The prospective mother in the higher income brackets has nutritional anemia and calcium deficiency in 48 per cent of cases—to most Wiseacres will seem an obvious error, but it is not an error. So far as the nutritional condition is concerned the poverty or wealth of the individual has practically nothing to do with the question. Malnutrition or nutritional deficiency does not mean deprivation or starvation. It means that one or more elements required to maintain vitality, health and normal functioning of the body are not supplied in sufficient amounts by the everyday diet or in the form of supplements for the faulty diet.

Even in ordinary circumstances Mrs. Lopez and Mrs. Plushbottom are likely to worry along measurably below par in vite or functional efficiency because of the shortage of calcium in their everyday diet.

During pregnancy the demands of the growing fetus for calcium and ever more calcium are paramount and must be satisfied even at the expense of depriving the prospective mother's blood, heart, digestive organs, nerves and bones of their already meagre daily calcium requirements. The demands of the growing child may be nearly but not entirely satisfied by thus robbing the mother of the calcium she sorely needs.

The nutritional anemia of 48 per cent of expectant mother may depend on the inadequate daily intake of iron in the refined modern diet, but we know less about iron metabolism than we do about calcium metabolism and so we can say only that the quantity of iron required daily to keep a woman's blood corpucles and hemoglobin (oxygen-carrying) strength at top level is not quite sufficient to supply also the daily requirements of the developing child. Therefore it is generally advisable for the pregnant woman to take not only extra calcium to supplement her refined diet but to take with it a suitable daily ration of iron, particularly in the fourth and subsequent months.

The richest and from every viewpoint the best food source of calcium is milk or milk products, especially cheese of any and every kind you like.

The minimum daily ration of milk for any girl or woman who wants to retain or regain the highest possible level of health, vite, beauty and functional efficiency is three glasses—1½ pints. For the expectant mother the minimum daily requirement is four glasses of milk.

Milk, whole milk, skim milk, buttermilk, (real, not the concoction commercially exploited as buttermilk), separator milk, evaporated milk, condensed unsweetened milk, dry milk powder, plain sour milk, milk or skim milk artificially soured or fermented with special strains of the lactic acid bacillus (Bulgarian, Aidophilus, Yoghurt, etc)—these are all excellent substitutes or equivalents for whole milk in the diet of the expectant mother. As for cheese, there is no sound reason why an expectant mother may not eat any kind of cheese she likes whenever she likes.

In one respect milk is notably deficient. It does not supply enough iron. Hence the expectand mother should take some extra iron along with her daily calcium ration to prevent nutritional anemia. This is one of the lessons the expectant mother learns from studying the booklet Preparing for Maternity—for a copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Good food sources of iron are egg-yolk, dried beans, oatmeal, dried peas, dried prunes, plain wheat (not any refined or prepared wheat product), lean beef, spinach.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Dandruff

Is dandruff really a disease? If so, how can it be cured or helped? (Miss C. W.)

Answer—If disease is "any departure from the state of health," as Webster says, dandruff is a disease. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet The Hair and Scalp.

Brass Specialist

Please advise whether a pediatrician is necessary for the baby's monthly checkup or would an ordinary doctor do? We have gained much help from your column and have learned to rely on your teachings. (Mrs. W. M. J.)

Answer—Unless you feel you simply must keep up with the snooty Joneses, your baby ought to be able to struggle along somehow under the guidance you get from an honest doctor. Pediatrician my eye.

Would Choose Stalin, Socialism Before Church

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Prague, July 25 — (AP) — Czechoslovakia's communist premier said Sunday that if forced to choose between Roman Catholicism or communism, the country's answer would be:

"Moscow, Stalin, Socialism."

Premier Antonin Zapotocky, speaking to 15,000 union members in Trutnov, formerly a part of the Sudetan German region, declared:

"If the pope today excommunicated all communists and with them all the co-operating, believing Christians, then we would be aware of the fact that he is excommunicating nearly the entire Czecho-Slovak working people.

"Our people have found a real friend and ally in the east. We never posed ourselves the question, Rome or Moscow? However, if that question is placed to us through actions from the other side, then we shall leave nobody in doubt that the answer of our nation shall be that there is no other alternative for us but Moscow-Stalin-Socialism."

Reds Denounce Excommunication

Even as he spoke, Czech communist officials were denouncing the church's excommunication of communists as a "devillish means of sowing discord" in communist-ruled countries.

The communist press backed them up in the violent church-state war now raging in Czechoslovakia.

Newspapers linked the Vatican decree with United States foreign policy calling it:

"An essential part of the cold war, a direct follow up to the Marshall Plan . . . for the subjugation of Europe."

Rude Pravo organ of the Czech Communist Party, asked, concerning State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States, who has charged the Czech government with seeking "tyrranous domination" of churches:

"Should defender Acheson consider himself excommunicated because there must be times when he reads, or has someone translate for him, the big Soviet newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia".

Acheson is a Protestant.

Dallas, Tex. — (AP) — "Did you get what you wanted?" the cashier of a grocery asked two young men Friday.

"Yes," they smiled as they left the store.

A few minutes later, store manager J. C. Davis found the good-natured customers had walked out with $417 from a cash drawer.

Oxnard, Calif. — (AP) — Any elephant given away on a radio quiz program would be a white elephant for most participants, but not for Mr. and Mrs. George King.

They filed suit Friday against Columbia Broadcasting System for $3,000 damages, charging that a promised Indian elephant had not been delivered.

King, an elephant trainer, says he's been waiting for the pachyderm since his wife won the quiz show, (Free for All), March 17, 1948.

What did he get? A case of peanuts, a suit of clothes and a ticket to a circus where he could watch an elephant, says the complaint.

Rome — (AP) — Someone in Argentina is reported showering so much money on residents of the city of Modena in Northern Italy that police are getting curious.

The mysterious benefactor calls himself only "an emigrant from Modena." Dispatches say he has been sending postal money orders for $50 each to Modenese — mainly students. So far some $2,500 is reported to have arrived.

The dispatches said none of the recipients has relatives in Argentina.

Friday night police halted payments, while they tried to find out the identity of the "emigrant."

Los Angeles — (AP) — Mrs. Adah Hamman, seeking a divorce from her sixth husband, was embarrassed when he countered with a charge she had forgotten to divorce one of her five previous spouses.

As she stepped to the stand to testify Friday, the husband, Walter Hammond, 48, retired insurance executive, had her arrested.

Mrs. Hamman, also 49, was jailed on a Nevada fugitive warrant charging her with bigamous marriage. She is charged with failing to divorce James Baisinger, whom she married in 1929. Mrs. Hamann said she thought Baisinger obtained a divorce after separation in 1932.

Other Satellites May Follow Tito's Example

Belgrade, July 26 — (AP) — The first communist ruler to say "no" to Stalin seems to be still firmly in the saddle.

Premier - Marshal Tito has defied the wrath of the Kremlin for more than a year now and Yugoslavia is weathering the economic and strategic strains resulting from the cominform blasts at Tito for being too independent. The cominform is the nine - country communist International Information Bureau from which Yugoslavia was expelled.

Tito has had his troubles. Border incidents — shootings, sabotage, spies, short - lived sensations which have become almost commonplace. And there was a belt tightening at the dinner table which has been eased since the winter months by good crops.

Foremost in relieving the strategic situation has been the closing of the Yugoslav border to the Greek Guerrillas. Yugoslav spokesmen claim the Greek rebel cause was sacrificed by the cominform's 13-month anti-Tito campaign.

Of greater long - range importance is the prospect that Yugoslavia will get economic aid from the west soon to ease the Russian squeeze on this country's normal trade. The projected deals would exchange western machinery for Yugoslav raw materials.

There is a general hope here—and some belief — that other Russian satellites will revolt against Moscow's high - handed rule and seek, as Tito did, an equal voice in the policies of the communist states.

A private survey of western diplomats stationed in Belgrade produced an unofficial but apparently reliable evidence that Yugoslavia's bids for western credits will be granted.

Rollins Annual Picnic Held at Crystal Beach

The annual Rollins picnic was held on Wednesday, July 20, at Crystal Beach, Madoc. The attendance was smaller than usual but about 65 sat down to dinner. After a sumptuous repast a short business meeting was held.

The minutes of last picnic were read and adopted. The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand.

Prizes were given as follows: Oldest Lady Present, Mrs. Muldrew, 81, Toronto; Oldest Gentleman, Mr. Dave Rollins, 77, Belleville; Youngest Baby, Billie Tufts, Halloway; Largest Family Present, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Madoc; Person From Farthest Distance, Mrs. Bertha Weese, Toronto; Recent Bride and Groom, Mr. and Mrs. Belcher, Madoc.

The election of officers followed: Hon. Pres. Wm. Woods, Foxboro; President, Elymer Rollins, Ivanhoe; Vice President, John Thompson, Madoc; Treasurer, Mrs. W. French, Ivanhoe; Secretary, Mrs. George Williams, Bonarlaw; Executive, Mac MacMillan, Joe Rollins, Hark Rollins, Carl Rollins, George Harris, Mrs. Lottie Tufts and Mrs. Percy Rollins.

Messrs. Harry Rollins, Harper Rollins, David Rollins, Mrs. Muldrew and Mrs. Charles Rollins spoke briefly.

The next picnic is to be held on third Wednesday of July, 1950, at Crystal Beach.

NARROW ESCAPE

East London, South Africa — (CP) — A resident of this town came back from a twomonth holiday recently to find his water-meter showed a consumption of 893,100 gallons — a bill of £449,000 ($1,796,000). The city council believed his story that the meter was out of order and sent him a bill for only 1s. 11d.

MARMORA

Ex-Major Leaguer Hooks Big Lunge At Crowe Lake

Marmora—Little has been said about maskinonge catches at Crowe Lake this year, partly due to the modesty of the fortunate anglers. It has, however, leaked out at last that a guest at Tipperary Hotel, Elwin Bliss, of Fillmore, N.Y. got a fourteen pound lunge off this resort a week ago while on Thursday, Roger Peckinpaugh, former player and manager of the Cleveland Indians, who has a cottage on the same side of the lake, got a beauty of 40 inches in length, which he was proud to display to relatives who were guests at the time at Tipperary.

Large Collars Seen on Designs At London Show

London, July 26 (AP) — Dress designers for the well-to-do have started to show sweltering buyers what women will wear wner its much, much cooler.

At a week-long fashion show which opened here yesterday Norman Hartnell and Molyneux featured extremes between almost too much collar on top and hardly any top at all. Coolest number of Hartnell's show was a tea dance frock titled "dont dress." It looked as though the manikin had taken it seriously.

The fur flew wildly during the rest of the Hartnell show. He had it on everything, top and bottom and on the sleeves.

Molyneux's new features were huge collars that sloped down over narrow shoulders from the back of the head, and street-length evening dresses with cape-like overskirts that dragged over half the floor.

Molyneux's originals could be had for as little as 45 guineas — ($189) or as much as 150 guineas, "depending on what you want."

Hartnell went in for detachable fur collars and capes. Molyneux showed swirling coats with checked wool linings made of the same material as the suit underneath.

Everything had pockets in it, some for putting things in and others puffed out at the hips to give women some odd shapes. One of Molyneux's pockets was stuffed with a big bunch of artificial roses.

Most of the Parisian's hats looked something like chimney pots with feathers pouring out the top. One had a whole bird on it.

40 years trouble ended—Now Regular

"After 40 years of trouble with constipation, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Now I'm as regular as should be. I take half a cup with milk and fruit twice a day. It's delicious!" writes W. G. Young, 840 Nelson St., Ste. 30, Vancouver, B.C. This is just one of many unsolicited letters from ALL-BRAN users.

Want relief from constipation due to lack of bulk in your diet? Just eat an ounce of toasty crisp ALL-BRAN daily, drink plenty of water. Double your money back if results don't satisfy—send empty carton to Kellogg's, London, Ont.

WEDDINGS

HUNTER—JONES

A lovely wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 23rd, at 2 p.m. in White's Church, Bayside, when Marion Isobel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones, Bayside, became the bride of William Joseph Hunter, Belleville son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter of Belleville. The double ring ceremony was performed before an altar banked with summer flowers and ferns, by the Reverend G. A. Puttenham, of Grace Church, Trenton, Ontario.

Mrs. Lenna Alexander, of Brighton, Ontario, rendered the wedding music, and Mrs. Clare Millar, of Belleville, was soloist, and sang before the ceremony, "I Love You Truly", and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her floor-length gown of heavy white slipper satin, featuring a nylon net yoke, sweetheart neckline and tight-fitting bodice buttoned down the back, with full skirt. Her fingertip veil was held by a halo wreath of satin roses. She carried a shower bouquet of red Bettertime roses and Gypsophelia, tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Jean Mallory, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of mauve taffeta with tight-fitting bodice, puff sleeves, and full skirt. Her matching headdress and tiny veil were held in place by a halo of mauve roses. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow talisman roses.

Miss Marjorie Mallory, of Bayside, cousin of the bride, was gowned in a green taffeta floor-length frock, featuring a tight bodice, puff sleeves and full skirt with bustle back. The headdress was held in place with a matching halo of green chrysanthemums and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow talisman roses.

Little Sylvia Bilham, niece of the bride, was flower girl, demure in her floor-length frock of yellow taffeta, trimmed with white lace, yellow satin ribbon sash, and halo of yellow carnations. She carried a nosegay of pastel tinted sweet peas tied with narrow, yellow satin ribbon.

Mr. Franklin Jones, Bayside, brother of the bride, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Don Dudley, Mr. Garnet Jones, and Mr. Garnet Reid.

Following the reception, which was held at the Lanthorn Inn, Belleville, where the bride's mother, wearing a gown of grey, figured crepe, with black and grey accessories, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy blue crepe gown, with navy accessories, received the many guests; the happy young couple left for a wedding trip to Muskoka and Algonquin Park. The bride chose as her going-away costume a turquoise blue suit with white accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will reside in Belleville.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a Gruen wrist watch; to his groomsman, a leather wallet, and to his ushers, tie pin sets.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor and bridesmaid, matching sets of necklace and bracelets; to her little flower girl, a silver locket and bracelet, and to her bridegroom, a Parker pen and pencil set.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto and Peterborough.

McCABE—BRADDEN

At the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, a pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 16th, at 10 a.m. when Eileen Lauretta Bradden, Belleville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bradden, became the bride of Terrance James McCabe, son of Mrs. Stanley Scott, and the late John McCabe. The Right Reverend Monsignor Nicholson officiated.

The wedding music was beautifully rendered by Sister Mary Bibiana, organist, and the soloist Miss Shirley McCabe, sister of the bridegroom, sang before the ceremony, "Ave Maria", and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Giver in marriage by her stepfather, the bride was lovely in her gown of white dotted organdy, with fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of talisman roses, and bouvardia.

Miss Lenore Bradden, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore gown of blue dotted organdy with blue halo headdress, and carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

Little Jane Freidman, of Granville, N.Y., was flower girl in pink voile, and carried a nosegay of yellow talisman roses.

Mr. Jack McCabe, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Messrs. John Ryan, and Maurice Bradden, brother of the bride, both of Belleville, were ushers.

At the wedding breakfast, which was held at Golden Acres Inn, the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry Freidman, of Granville, N.Y., wearing a gown of navy blue with white accessories, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, in powder blue with white accessories.

For the wedding trip to New York, and the Adirondacks, the bride chose for travelling a rose gabardine suit, with black accessories, and corsage of white gardenias. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. McCabe will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from New York, Toronto and Madoc.

McDERMOTT—BYRNES

A wedding of interest took place at the Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, on Saturday, July 2nd, when Rev. Father Callahan, performed the rite of holy matrimony between Mary Noreen Byrnes, only daughter of Mrs. Frank Healey, and the late Leo Byrnes, and Francis Leonard McDermott, son of Mrs. Mary McDermott and the late Michael McDermott, of Read.

The bride given in marriage by her step-father, was attired in a floor length dress of white slipper satin. The long sleeves formed points over the wrists. Tiny buttons trimmed the back of the bodice and she wore a fingertip embroidered veil and carried American Beauty roses.

She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Theresa McDermott, of Wolfe Island who wore a gown of mauve nylon over taffeta with matching shoulder veil and mittens. She carried yellow talisman roses.

The maid of honor Miss Doris Kearns, cousin of the bride, was gowned in a pale yellow swiss embroidered organdy, with matching veil and mittens. The carried yellow talisman roses.

The groomsman was Clair Kearns, cousin of the bride and was assisted by Harold Buckley, friend of the groom. The ushers were Edward McDermott and Francis Kearns.

Little Mary Kearns was flower girl, attired in a long mauve organdie dress with matching bonnet. She carried a nosegay of baby's breath and sweet peas.

Mr. Ambrose Kidd presided at the organ and Mr. Harry McWilliams brother-in-law of the groom was soloist.

The groom's gift to the bride was a double strand of pearls, with matching earrings to the bridesmaid and maid of honor, pearls, and to the groomsman and ushers, white wool socks.

A reception was held at the Paisley House, Napanee, where about 60 guests sat down to a beautifully decorated table.

The bride's mother received in a flowered jersey dress with a corsage of pink and white roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a grey crepe dress with corsage of pink and white roses.

The Reverend Father Briceland proposed the toast to the bride, and the groom responded.

The bride's travelling attire was a powder blue taffeta dress with net bodice trimmed with a corsage of pink roses. Her shorty coat was light navy with white accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Flint, Mich., Toronto, Belleville and Wolfe Island.

HAPPY HONEYMOONERS

Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Boyce, Belleville, smile their happiness following their wedding at Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Shirley Maxwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maxwell, Belleville, while the smiling groom is the son of Mrs. J. B. Boyce and the late J. B. Boyce, also of this city.—(Photo by McCormick Studio.)

BOWDISH — DALES

A charming mid-summer afternoon wedding of more than usual interest took place Monday, July 25. in Tweed, Ontario, at the home of Dr and Mrs. Merrill G. Dales, when their only daughter, Audrey Gertrude Dales, Reg. N., became the bride of Donald Montgomery Bowdish, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Bowdish, of Ogdensburg, N.Y. The ceremony was solemnized in the spacious drawing room of the Dales' home, under subdued lights, and a white, flower-bedecked arch flanked by tall standards, and baskets of white gladioli, before a background of floral draperies. Rev. A. L. Sisco, of Tweed United Church, was the officiating clergyman and the wedding music was provided by Miss Ruth Watson, of Toronto. The bride's brother, Mr. Merrill Dales, Jr., was the soloist, rendering "O, Promise Me," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride, who was unattended, was becomingly gowned in traditional white satin fashioned with a shirred, fitted bodice, featuring a circular neckline, long pointed tightly-fitted sleeves, and a full floor-length skirt with lace inserts.

Her finger-tip veil fell gracefully from a coronet of pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls outling the neckline of her gown.

Following the ceremony, the sixty guests present were received by Mrs. Dales, gowned in softly shaded floral green mesh, with a grey hat and accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. Mrs. LeRoy Bowdish assisted Mrs. Dales, wearing a dress of white silk flowered in fuchsia, with white hat and accessories, and a corsage of fuchsia shaded roses.

The dining room was attractively arranged with a profusion of cut flowers; the table centered with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake and crystal candelabra holding tall pink tapers.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. A. L. Sisco to which the groom fittingly responded.

For a motor journey to Toronto, and the United States, the bride chose a dress of navy blue silk crepe, with intriguing grey hat, grey shortie coat and accessories. Her corsage was of American beauty roses.

Guests attending the wedding included friends and relatives from Toronto, Belwood, Belleville, Trenton, Newmarket and Smiths Falls, Ontario; and from Ogdensburg, Stittsville and Utica, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowdish will later be "at home" at 10832 Janesville Ave., Hales Corners, Wisconsin.

McCAULEY—LESSARD

The Church of St. Francis of Assisi, Timmins, Ontario, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, July 23rd, at 9 a.m. when the Reverend G. O'Hearn, united in marriage, Georgette Houle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lessard, of Timmins, to Milford Joseph McCauley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo McCauley, of Frankford, Ontario, before a background of ferns and gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor-length gown of white satin with long veil of tulle illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

Miss Bernice McCauley, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid wearing pink satin gown with matching pink shoulder-length veil. She carried an arm bouquet of gladoili.

Mr. Murray McCauley of Frankford, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

The wedding breakfast was held in Trinity Church parish hall where the many guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a grey ensemble with corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in a white crepe dress with corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Sarnia, and Flint, Michigan, the bride chose a grey ensemble with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

Upon their return the young couple will reside in Frankford, Ontario.

MARVIN — HILL

Tall standards of fern and hydrangea formed the setting for a lovely wedding, Saturday, July 16th., at Bridge Street United Church, when Shirley Marie Hill, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Hill, of Belleville, became the bride of James Stewart Marvin, youngest son of Mrs. Marvin, and the late C. H. Marvin, Belleville. The Reverend F. R. Harback, of Tabernacle United Church officiated.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, organist of the church, provided the wedding music, and Mr. Alex Cunningham, was soloist, and sang "Because" before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor-length gown of white satin, featuring a rose design in small beads and seed pearls. The bodice was fashioned with leg o'mutton sleeves coming to points at the wrists, and buttoned down the back to the waistline. The skirt was full and gathered, falling in deep folds at the sides and back, ending in a short train. Her tulle illusion veil was held in place by a braided coronet of satin. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Miss Mary Potter, of Belleville, was bridemaid, wearing an orchid gown, with tight-fitting bodice of brocaded silk, ending in points over the double net skirt. Her headdress and flaring wristed mitts were of matching material, and she carried a shower bouquet of yellow talisman roses and baby's breath.

Little Linda Keel, of Belleville, was flower girl, sweet in her pale green, off-the-shoulder, floor length gown of organdy tied with a large bow at the back. She wore a pale pink headdress and carried a basket of sweet peas and gypsophelia.

Mr. John Marvin, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and Messrs. George Bush and Arthur Heard were ushers.

For the reception in the church parlors following the ceremony, the bride's mother wore an elephant grey gown with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother, who assisted her in receiving the guests, was gowned in navy blue with navy accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride chose for the wedding trip to Toronto, and points east, a suit of white moire taffeta with white accessories, and corsage of red roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin will reside at 72 Yoemans Street, Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from London, Brantford, Kingston Picton and Trenton.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Fred Savage, Boswell Street. She was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

A very pleasant evening was spent in playing cards, and making a bride's book. After the presentation of the gifts, and the guests thanked, a delightful luncheon was served.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO W.A.

Foxboro — The July meeting of the Women's Association was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. Simmons. Mrs. E. Tummon was in charge. Mrs. Rev. F. Gilbert led in prayer and scripture lessons were read by Mrs. J. G. Sills and Mrs. W. Scott. Mrs. Simmons gave an interesting meditation on the text "A Netful of Fishes."

Business was then discussed and the treasurer, Mrs. Hicks, reported $198 raised to date. It was also decided to hold the annual bazaar on the 16 of November.

Miss Joan Churchill favored with a solo, "Bless This House," and a humorous reading entitled "A Sad Mistake" was given by Mrs. W. Rombough. Mrs. Hayton followed with an interesting reading and Mrs. Simmons gave some highlights on the W. A. convention which was held at Trenton. She said "We must make Jesus real, and seek to help all women to be Christians."

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Simmons who later conducted a contest and Mrs. Rombough conducted a Bible contest.

Refreshments were served by the hostess which ended a pleasant afternoon.

Some Peers Go Home Early To Help Wives

London, July 26 (Reuters) — Some British peers go home early from parliamentary debates to help their wives with the dishes, the House of Lords was told yesterday.

Lord Pethick-Lawrence, former Labor Secretary of State for India, said:

"I have heard it said in jest that your Lordships go home earlier than they wourd otherwise because peers have to help their wives with their washing up.

"From inquiries I have made among my fellow peers, there is a good deal of truth in that.

"While we do not neglect our duties, we, in common with large proportions of men throughout the country, find that we cannot expect our women folk to cater for all our needs and that they require some help from us. That is true I believe, of all classes of the community."

He was speaking about married women at work, in a debate on Britain's economic position.

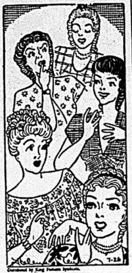
Misbehaving Fingernails

Hangnails and broken nail eaves are the pet peeves of many women. The first of these pests can be avoided. If the nails are kept well lubricated, cream applied every night with light friction, and the cuticle detached, there will be no chance of these horrid little shreds appearing. They come only when the flesh creeps up over the nail and breaks.

Brittleness is likely to develop if the hands come in contact with harsh cleaning agents, though sometimes the trouble is due to malnutrition. Old family Doc will tell you that finger and toe nails often tell something about the health, registering low resistance, anemia, even arthritis.



Nail-Biting Will Cause the Nails to Shrink

In young persons, ridges on the nails may denote a vitamin deficiency or a hidden infection, though more often they show that there has been an injury to the matrix, the soft portion that lies under the flesh at the base of the nail, in which new cells are forming. The habit of nail-biting will cause the nails to shrink. A horrid habit, and a menace to health, as bacteria lurk beneath the eaves.

The nail substance is white and transparent. Because it is transparent, the coloring comes from the flesh beneath it. When circulation is brisk and normal, our nails are colorful.

Each nail consists of four parts—the free edge, which gathers dust and must be kept scrupulously clean to guard against germs lurking there; the body of the nail; the half moon, called the lunula; and the root that extends under the flesh.

From the matrix the new growth pushes out in tiny overlapping scales. Like the skin, our claws are constantly undergoing a state of decay and renewal.

The outer surface of the nail is convex, forming a neat and convenient ornament for every fingertip. In the matrix there is a complete equipment of nerves, lymph and blood vessels. The nail itself is nerveless tissue, like the hair or the feathers of birds.

Now that you have learned your lesson, teacher will tell you how to keep your fingertips in form. Keep a nail white pencil convenient to the wash basin in the bathroom. At least once a day pass it under the nail eaves when washing your hands and while your nails are under water. This saves time, will keep the eaves beautifully white.

After creaming your face at night, give your nails the leavings, frictioning them lightly. When clipping off hangnails with the curved, needle-point scissors, cut from the base to tip so as not to cause a wound.

Fashion Flashes

ITS GOING TO BE DIFFICULT to resist the allure of the new fur fashions. With lower prices, plus beautiful styling, she who buys a new fur coat is really going to get her money's worth. Something different is a three-quarter-length coat of American broadtail dyed a deep but full navy blue. It has a high-rising, curved collar, wide sleeves with turn-back cuffs, and full, rippled back.

CHARM AND COLOR mark dresses designed for informal dining. A beautiful two-piece dress is made up of a pale mauve shantung top, a purple linen skirt, a cerise pink, ribbon belt with a cluster of purple violets. The top is almost sleeveless, with deep, plunging surplice closing. The skirt is full.

IN BETWEEN season hats include many feathered models, especially for hotel roof dining costumes. Beautiful and becoming is a calot of pared coq feathers in cocoa brown that sweeps dramatically into a long, profile-accenting side.

THE SOFT ACCENT of velvet in both clothes and accessories will be very marked next Fall. A delightful touch is a cluster of pansies made ot deep purple velvet and snowy ermine, nice to pick up a simple little hat, dress up a lapel or add charm to glove or handbag.

TO BE RECKONED with as a material for general or even afternoon wear, is leather, especially suede or antelope. Dark brown antelope is used for a handsome suit, the handsome mandarin coat detailed with matching braid frog closing and self-tie cord belt. Skirt is slim with side slits.

SURE AS FATE, one of the most popular, and copied, dresses of the new season will be a late afternoon number of oyster white velveteen. Self-buttoned; snug bodice with medium sleeves; the moderately full skirt has two big patch pockets lavishly embroidered with pearl beads and gilt.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

They Both Want Their Own Way

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am engaged to be married in September, and my fiance and I are disagreeing over extending an invitation to the wedding to my brother and his wife. My family and I have not been talking to my brother for the past three years, but my fiance was best man at his wedding and godfather to his child.

We love each other tremendously, but this issue has caused us to postpone our wedding. We are both strong believers in our point. I don't want my brother there. He does.

C. C.

Dear C. C.:

If you and this man you expect to marry are both such strong believers in holding to your own opinions and desires, I wouldn't bet a nickel on the chances of your marriage being a happy one. Married life calls for constant adjustment to another's point of view and much yielding of one's own, on each side, if it is not to be a cat-and-dog affair all the time. Each of you had better promptly, and radically, overhaul your ideas on this subject of stubbornly holding out for your own way, and realize that sometimes one must give in, sometimes the other, according to whose wishes have the most right and reason on their side. If you can't do this, you had better call off your engagement.

In this case, I think you should be the one to yield. You don't give me any idea of the cause for the break between your family and your brother, but few such things are irreparable, if there is any real affection among the members of a family.

Your letter makes me suspect that stubbornness may be a family characteristic that keeps you all from making peace with your brother and it would seem to me your wedding should be an excellent opportunity for burying the hatchet. But in any case; I am on your fiance's side in your argument, and I hope you will be a sufficiently good sport to give in.

Don't Hold Post-Mortems Over Dead Romances

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and have been going with a boy for quite a while. About a month ago, he just quit coming to see me. I haven't any idea what happened, but I would like to know. He often told me he loved me, but now I'm beginning to doubt it.

I would like to find out what's wrong, but I don't have any idea how to go about it. Please give me your advice.

L.

Dear L.:

All right, here's my advice, but you're not going to like it: Drop the whole thing.

It's very foolish business to try and do a post-mortem on a dead romance to find out what it died of. I'm quite sure that all you'll succeed in accomplishing, if you make an attempt to question this boy, will be embarrass him, and yourself even more. Any young man who "just quits" coming to see a girl, does so for the simple reason that he's lost interest. Do you want to be humiliated by forcing him to tell you so plainly?

If you add too much sugar to meringue it will form syrup drops on top. The correct proportion is from one to five tablespoons of sugar to each egg white. Two tablespoons is usually sufficient for each egg white.

In Midland, Ontario, for the "Salute to Canada" pageant being presented at the famous Martyrs' Shrine from July 27 to 31, Patsy and Pauline McDonough, of Toronto, examine grim relic found near the Shrine and now on display in the Midland museum. Pageant will be a colorful, musical production dedicated to the memory of the Canadian martyrs who were massacred by the Indians while bringing Christianity to this continent.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Here's an easy thought to take with you on your vacation: It's a great comfort to know that there's an Always-Correct form to use when you acknowledge an introduction . . . "How do you do." For "extra added attractions,"

(1) add to your "How do you do" the name of the person being introduced, and

(2) say these words with grace of manner and charm of voice.

Inviting Guests to the Trousseau Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct invitation procedure for a trousseau tea given by the bride's mother? In these circumstances most of the guests coming to the tea will be friends of the bride and her mother and also of the groom's mother. But also to be invited will be some friends known only to one of these three. Is it customary to send a written invitation to everyone? And is it correct for the bride's mother to send all the invitations? Would it be incorrect for the bride to invite some of her friends whom her mother doesn't know? And also would it be proper to ask the groom's mother for a list of friends of the groom's family who might wish to meet the bride-elect and see her trousseau . . . if so, would written invitations be sent to them also?

E. T.

The point is that no type of formal invitation should be sent for a trousseau tea, even though, as often the case, two hundred or more guests are to be invited. It is quite proper, and customary, for the engaged girl to telephone to her intimate friends, inviting them. Then her mother may telephone to the relatives and close friends of the family. All other invitations might best be by notes of invitation written by the bride's mother, the hostess: invitations sent to not-so-well-known friends, all invitations to relatives and friends of the groom's family (yes, it is proper for the bride's mother to ask the groom's mother for this list), and invitations to those who live at a distance. The bride's mother may write her invitations on the inside pages of informals (either as notes or the information-details written like a tea-invitation, with 'Trousseau Tea' designated) or on note-paper or semi-note-paper, or on small folded-over cards with a tea-symbol (cup-and-saucer, afternoon-tea kettle, for example) stamped on the front page.

Don't Write About Yourself First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I love to write letters and we have many discussions about how to write them. Yesterday this question came up: When answering a friend's letter, should I first tell her the 'current news' of our family and friends and our doings, or should I write about her family and friends first, answering any questions she may have asked in her letter?

Bearice F.

This is a gentle-spirited question . . . an important one, too, for it shows your fundamental impulse to make a first courteous bow to the other person. This is what should be done . . . we should write first about the person to whom we are writing, his or her family and friends and activities, answering any questions that may have been asked in the letter to which we are replying, then we write about our own activities and news. It's the courteous sequence, both of writing and speaking — and thinking.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be a bridesmaid in the wedding of a friend of mine. Do I pay for my gown, flowers, and so forth? And as a bridesmaid, should I give the bride a special kind of wedding gift?

T. V.

Yes, you do pay for your costume, although every detail of your costume is planned by the bride-to-be. The only item the bride or her family pays for is the flowers you wear or carry.

And no, there is no special wedding gift supposed to be given by a bridal attendant . . . give the bride-to-be anything which you think "they" will welcome in their own home and which is agreeable to your budget.

The Olive Spoon . . . and Sugar Tongs

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a spoon is placed on a serving-dish of olives, does one have to use it when serving oneself to the olives? And likewise, when sugar tongs are in the sugar bowl, must one always use them?

Thesese M.

Olives are correctly taken from the dish with one's fingers . . . olive serving-spoons are rarely, if ever, seen nowadays. If you're careful not to touch any piece of sugar but the one to which you are helping yourself, you needn't use the sugar tongs. But if you are serving sugar to someone else, you should use the tongs.

Striped gingham sports dress.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The classic sports dress takes on a softer, a more feminine note this year which makes it all the more useful. Striped gingham in pink and white with a black hair-line is used for this crisp, cool looking number, nice for town or country. It has a stand-up collar above the front bodice closing. There are cuffed pannier pockets on the skirt which is gored in back and gathered in the centre front. A black patent leather belt and black edged buttons complete the outfit.

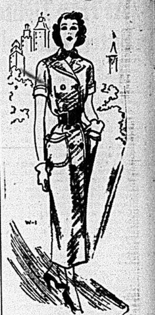
Cool Flannel



White spectator sports dress

By VERA WINSTON

There is fine work with fabrics these days and it all contributes to comfort as well as appearance. For instance, here we have light-as-a-feather flannel, an excellent summer choice that is now available. This model is a handsome spectator sports dress in stark white with pearl buttons for the double-breasted closing. The classic collar, turned-back cuffs on the short sleeves and pouchy top flap pockets are all well-handled details. A wide navy leather belt and navy kerchief with white dots provide the right color accent.

Brooks, Cards Repeat History As They Tighten Belts for Bitter National League Struggle

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

After three months of play, the National League pennant race is just beginning. The same old bitter rivals — Brooklyn's Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals — are in there battling for the flag. And that's been the story in six of the last eight years.

At the moment, the edge lies with the Cards. Back home from a successful 12-game eastern jaunt, the Redbirds find themselves in first place today, a half game in front of the slumping Dodgers. As far as the flag is concerned, the other six clubs in the league can start rebuilding for next year.

The American League race is showing signs of becoming a humdinger, too. It appeared practically over last week when the pace - setting New York Yankees knocked off their most persistent challenger — Cleveland Indians — two out of three to increase their margin to 5½ games.

But things have changed since then. The Tribe went on to win its next five games including the big one Monday night when the Indians whipped the Yankees, 4-2, before 71,354 at the Yankee Stadium. That cut the Bronx Bombers' lead to only three games with the two teams facing each other again Wednesday and Thursday.

Yanks Take Tribe

The Indians delivered a one - two punch Monday night. Not only did they defeat the Yankees, but they turned the tables on Vic Raschi, who had whipped them four straight times this year. The Yankee ace was tagged for 11 hits and went down to his fourth defeat. He has won 15.

Righthander Early Wynn registered his eighth victory against two setbacks, but needed help from Satchel Paige in the eighth.

In the only National League game, the Dodgers had to settle for a nine-inning tie as the Cards overcame a 3-1 deficit in the 6th. The game was called by agreement at the end of the ninth to permit both clubs to make train connections.

Stan Musial's triple, the first of three hits against his Brooklyn "cousins," scored Lou Klein to give the Cards a run in the first, but the Brooks came back with two in the third and another in the fourth for a 3-1 lead. With two away in the sixth, Musial doubled, Enos Slaughter walked, and Ron Northey scored them both with a two - base hit. Rocky Nelson's two - bagger brought in Northey to put the Cards ahead, 4-3. The Dodgers tied the score at 4-4 in their half of the sixth on pinch - hitter Gene Hermanski's home run.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

'Twas away back in 1906 that a tousle-headed sorrel-top wearing the thistle of Scotland on his white soccer jersey won his international junior soccer spurs. Fourteen years of age, the Milton (Scotland) born fresh-faced youngster played a sensational games that started a football career that saw him take part in a dozen international and league championship games before he hung up his cleats, except for officiating.

• • •

Eight years later ,in August 1914, Kaiser Wilhelm got international ideas and the world went to war. The younster donned the sporran and kilt of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders and marched off to battle. Four years later he returned to Scotland, his face marred by the devastating bite of German shrapnel. The youngster of that era, since a resident of Canada and this city is Tommy Sneddon, one of the better soccer referees in these parts today.

• • •

Tommy won his spurs as an international junior for Scotland at the tender age of 10. Born with a haggis in one hand and a football in the other, he has lived, breathed and dreamed soccer even during the dark days of 1914-18.

• • •

Returning from the wars, the Highland laddie turned back to his favorite sport, and immediately was offered a professional contract. He caught on with Armadale a second division Scottish club and from that point was launched a career that took him across two continents, the major cities of Canada and the United States and other soccer-conscious communities. He transferred to the first division Clyde (Scotland) team and remained with it until 1923 when he migrated to Canada.

Tommy "laid off" soccer until 1926 when he turned out with the CNR eleven of Point St. Charles, Quebec. After two seasons with that team he played in the Dominion Cup finals against Westminster Albert of B.C. going down to defeat. He transferred to Carsteel, famous Montreal eleven and played with that team for one season.

• • •

The United States attracted him at this point and he went to Detroit where he signed with the Weevils of that city for a season, New York City beckoned and the next season saw him wearing the colors of the New York Giants of Gotham. He played with the Giants for two years, heard the call of the West and joined the Portland Buckaroos with which team he played for the next two seasons.

• • •

He assisted the Buckaroos to two titles then switched his soccer allegiance back to the Union Jack and played with the Vancouver St. Andrews helping them lift three titles including the provincial championship. He came back east ending up in Trenton where he organized soccer and helped the team win the Eastern Ontario championship from the Peterborough CGE squad.

• • •

He returned to Vancouver where he signed with the St. Saviour's team of the western city and was a member of the team when it won five titles, also including the British Columbia championship. The last game of Tommy's active career was against the touring English Corinthians in 1937 when the British Columbia team gave the starry British amateurs their first defeat.

• • •

Sneddon has not taken an active part in soccer since that day, but his heart and soul is in and with the game. He has refereed several matches in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Football League and is regarded as one of its top-flight officials.

• • •

Tommy is an affable chap, inclined to be on the modest side when talking of his soccer exploits (It took us two years to get the above info from him.) He is an expert landscape gardener and his artistry and design along these lines have beautified the grounds of many a private home and industrial plant is the city and district.

• • •

Things are very quiet on the baseball front and last night's postponement of the Point Anne-Kiwanis Juniors game wipes out the only game scheduled for the week at Exhibition Park. The Ox Point squad however visits RCAF Flyers in their own bailwick at the air station on Wednesday while Juniors take on a heavy assignment at Napanee. Batawa is idle until Saturday next when they trek to Oshawa. The Peterborough game scheduled for tonight was played on June 16 and next Monday's tilt between the Shoemen and Brockville has been laid over until August 13th, so Manager Easton informs us.

They'll be back again. Pat Flanagan advised this corner yesterday that Whipper Billy Watson was far from satisfied with the outcome of his bout with Fred Atkins last Friday night and fairly jumped at the chance to meet the Australian again come Friday. Atkins feels the same way about the matter despite the fact he was entitled to the "four minutes" that eventually ended the bout. It should be a battle to the finish and with feeling running high, fans should not miss this battle of the giants. Two outstanding preliminaries round out another fine wrestling card.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

With an up-hill fairway shot with wood or iron, adjust to the situation by taking your usual stance, but bend your left knee just enough so hat your hips ind shoulders ire level when n the address position. This tance will give ou balance and revent the endency to fall ackward to-vard the right foot as you swing. itrive for that eeling of even balance by the above knee adjustment. And, if opportunity offers for a few practice swings from this uneven stance, take them. With an uphill lie and the foot adjustments as described there is a tendency to hook. If you find this is your tendency, it is best to aim a bit to the right of the intended line to compensate. Until you are accustomed to swinging from a stance that has this bend in the left knee, you'll do better if you're a bit conservative and take the backswing more slowly than usual and start the club down slowly to be sure that you preserve balance. It is better to sacrifice a few yards than mangle the shot by being out of position at impact. — (Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

Ontario Senior Baseball Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

Backed by a sterling performance by pitcher Earl Brandy, the upsurging Creighton Cubs have moved into a first - place tie in the Nickel Belt Senior Baseball League.

Brandy struck out 13 men last night and gave up only three scattered hits as Creighton gained a 5-3 victory over the last - place Coniston Buzzers. It was Brandy's sixth win.

In two Senior Intercounty games, Brantford Red Sox defeated the last - place St. Thomas Legionnaires 5-3 while Galt Terriers took over sole possession of first place with an 11-7 victory over the seventh - place Guelph Maple Leafs.

At Sudbury, the Cubs collected eight hits off losing hurler Bill Soliski, who dropped his seventh game in 11 starts. The Cubs scored three runs in the third frame and one in each of the seventh and eighth innings, while the Buzzers tallied two in the eighth and one in the ninth.

At Brantford, starting pitcher George Fisher limited the Legionnaires to three scattered hits. However, he was relieved in the fifth frame by Nig Parker who gave up only two walks. Opposing pitcher Wagner toiled two innings for the losers and was replaced by Jack Cabot. Wagner was charged with the loss.

Leafs Outhit Terriers

The Maple Leafs outhit the Terriers but they couldn't produce the much - needed runs. They pounded three Galt pitchers for 16 hits while Galt raked opposing hurler Marty Philp for 13.

Bert McCrudden started on the mound for Galt but was relieved in the first inning with only one out by Shelton. Shelton lasted until the ninth, when Don Perkins took over.

One game is scheduled in the Nickel Belt League tonight: Frood Tigers meet the Copper Cliff Redmen. In the Niagara District loop, Buffalo Kiks meet North Tonawanda.

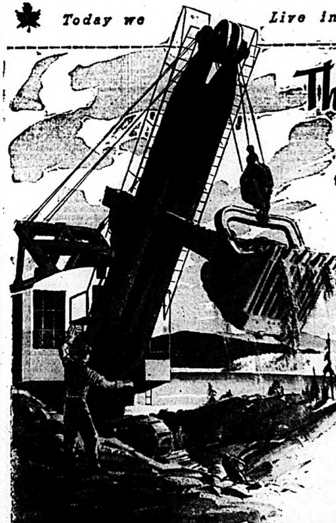
Today we Live in a Greater Canada



They Drained a Lake

to give Canada a Great New Industry

IT HAPPENED in Ontario's Rainy River District. Steep Rock Lake — fifteen miles long and ranging in depth from 40 to 265 feet — was emptied by batteries of giant pumps. Finlayson Lake was lowered by draining from the bottom. The course of the Seine River was completely changed. And one of the richest bodies of iron ore on the continent was uncovered. Providing millions of tons of ore a year — with enough uncovered for years to come — Steep Rock's development has been spectacular, but it is only ONE of many examples of Canada's tremendous modern advance. Today we truly live in a Greater Canada — one with productive capacity vastly increased and diversified, offering to young Canadians greater opportunities than ever before in every field of endeavour.

The iron and steel manufacturing industry presents another spectacular example of development: productive capacity and number of employees have been doubled since before the war, striking indication of Canada's new position as one of the world's great industrial nations.

SO MANY OPPORTUNITIES

"A sound idea and the determination to carry it through — those are sure passports to success in Canada today where there are so many interesting opportunities in so many different kinds of activity"
—says MR. LESLIE BUTCHER, of Windsor, Ont.

Mr. Butcher — member of Canada's 1936 Olympic basketball team — after returning from college in the U.S. and being manager of a local insurance office, started his own Butcher Enterprises. Their development provides many examples of this young Canadian's energy and enterprise. They include: a unique and successful service in the wrapping of products for shipping; and the modernization of the Windsor Arena to present outstanding sports and entertainment events with great success.

Stampeder Star Signs Contract With Alouettes

(By The Canadian Press)

Charles (Chuch) Anderson, star centre with Calgary Stampeders, Canadian Football Champions, Monday signed with the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, it was announced at Montreal.

Anderson, 30, played a prominent role in Calgary's Grey Cup victory over the Roughriders, being the outstanding player on the line.

Prior to signing with Calgary in 1948, he had worked out with New York Yankees of the All-American Conference. Previously his career included a four-year period with Ohio State University, and football squads in the Los Angeles district.

Anderson, who flew to Montreal Saturday from his home in Santa Monica, Calif., agreed to terms after a conference with Lew Hayman, general manager and coach of the Alouettes.

Weston Lions hoisted themselves out of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior cellar Monday night by defeating Peterborough Lumberjacks 21-12 at Weston. The loss dropped the Lumberjacks into the bottom drawer.

Ted Downer shot six goals in Weston's win while J. Hill and W. Chard contributed three apiece. Joe McNulty featured for Peterborough with five goals.

At Listowel, Ont., John Hutton, 19-year-old pitcher, said Monday he had accepted a spring trial offer from Newark Bears of the International League.

He has been undefeated in senior competition this season with Listowel Legionnaires of the Western Ontario Athletic Association League. In 48 innings, he struck out 101 and allowed only 12 hits. Included in his victories is one no-hit game and three one-hitters.

Stratford Kroehlers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Loop Monday accepted an unwritten agreement to become a farm club of the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, it was announced at Stratford.

Cleveland representatives have pledged they will not claim any Stratford player after the regular hockey season opens.

Canada's challenger for the Harmsworth International Speedboat Trophy at Detroit leaves Gravenhurst today for the race site.

Harold Wilson, owner and driver of the challenger, said Monday night he would stop over in his home town of Ingersoll and expected to arrive in Detroit Wednesday with his speedboat Miss Canada IV, ready for the opening of the Harmsworth trials Friday.

Hamilton Westinghouse defeated Montreal Stelcos 5-0 Monday night at Toronto to tie the best-of-three series for the Eastern Canada Soccer Championship at one game each. Montreal won the first game 1-0 Saturday night. Third and deciding game will be played at Toronto Wednesday.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 26 — (CP)—It's not the dyed-in-the-wool anglers, so much as those who fish only a little and don't know too much about the sport, who surround angling with a "bouquet of phoniness."

At least this is the opinion of Izaak (Montreal Gazette) Hunter, a rotund and expert Rod and Gun writer who, as this was written, was representing Quebec in the Interprovincial Bass Derby near Belleville, fishing against Ontario contestants.

"In fishing some of the damndest things can and do happen," writes Izaak, known equally well as George (Chief) Carpenter. "Some of the best fish stories are never heard simply because people who have the experiences hesitate to relate them for fear of being put down as one more piscatorial prevaricator."

And, he adds, the relatively believable stories that do come out have marked all anglers with the brand of Ananias.

Recently Izaak relates, he heard a man who knew not much of fishing, talking about a 24-pound pike caught in Quebec's Lac Des Loups. The fish was described as 20 inches long.

"That," says Izaak, "would produce a pike just about the size and shape of a three - gallon keg of beer." He investigated the catch himself, found the pike actually was 46¼ inches long.

This outdoor writer has noted some lifted eyebrows in Montreal recently over the stories of sturgeon leaping clear off the water in Lake St. Louis, Lake St. Francis and Lake of Two Mountains. On two separate occasions they jumped into anglers' boats. Izaak figures that with so much jumping going on sooner or later a sturgeon had to land in somebody's boat.

Why do they jump Well, Izaak says it may be to rid themselves of lamprey eels, or maybe just from a feeling of frolic.

He doesn't rightly know. But if ever a sturgeon decides to jump into Izaak's boat it had better be a small one. There would hardly be room for Izaak plus a 22-pounder such as hopped into Ted Glendenning's boat a couple of weeks ago.

Five Provincial Tennis Champions Beaten at Start

Ottawa, July 26 (CP)—Competition tightened today as the Canadian junior tennis championships went into their second day after a hard session of early eliminations Monday.

Five provincial champions were beaten in early rounds of the contest, which featured players from seven of the 10 provinces—all but Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan.

Peter Stewart of Toronto, seeded fourth in the tournament, bowed to a dark horse from Montreal, Pete Constable, who made it in straight sets, 7-5, 6-3.

Sally Roper of Halifax, Nova Scotia's hope, was ousted by blonde Vonnie Davis, who is still in the under-15 class, while sailing through her girl's singles matches, Vonnie stroked past Sally's defences with an 8-6, 6-4 score.

The Winnipeg men's singles champ, Jack Thomas, who was seeded seventh in men's singles competition, bowed in the first round to Ottawa's Des McBride by a score of 3-5, 6-4, 6-1. McBride later was trounced 6-3, 7-9, 7-5, by a determined Montrealer, Paul Lefrancois.

Barb Stephenson of Toronto had taken the junior women's singles in the Ontario open easily, but went down 6-0, 6-1 before Diana Lowe, sister of Pat Lowe, Ottawa's Canadian champion for the last two years. Pat had to sit out Monday's play with a minor foot infection but was expected to play today.

Another Ottawa product, Mary Jane Ferrier, downed New Brunswick's Joene Mooers in the opening round with a convincing 6-2, 6-2 score.

Meanwhile the Halifax and Nova Scotia champ, Jimmy Scriven, had a narrow escape when he brushed with Ottawa's Wes Nicol. It was one of the day's longest matches and went 7-3, 5-7, 8-6 before the day's longest matches and went 7-5, 5-7, 8-6 before the decision.

The tournament, one of the most representative Canada has seen, is devoted entirely to the junior stars. Usually the junior play is held in conjunction with senior in the Canadian finals, but for the second time in tennis history, as in 1947, the juniors are taking over the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club this week.

Toronto Leads Home-Run Pack In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Those good old days when the International was known as a pitchers' league are gone. It has become a home - run paradise.

Already 677 home runs have been hit by the eight clubs, Toronto leading the pack with 101. That figure is a Maple Leaf record, bettering their previous high mark of 99 for a single season.

At least five other teams appear certain to pass the century mark soon, with Jersey City and Montreal having a good chance to do it before the season's end.

Twenty round - trippers were blasted Monday night with Rochester's Don Richmond, Toronto's Bill Glynn and Montreal's Bob Wakefield collecting two apiece.

The team totals are Toronto 101, Buffalo 94, Baltimore 89, Rochester 88, Newark 86, Syracuse 80, Montreal 70 and Jersey City 69.

Jersey City and Toronto hammered four homers apiece as the Little Giants won a 12-6 slugfest. Pete Pavlick, Jack Lohrke, Neil Watlington and Pete Milne homered for the Giants, while Ed Sanicki and Chet Laabs, in addition to Glynn, homered for the Leafs.

Montreal Hits Three

Art Hartley threw three home-run balls but managed to pitch Syracuse to a 6-5 triumph over Montreal. It was the Chiefs' third straight over the Royals who now have lost six straight.

Besides Wakefield's homers George Schmees hit one for the circuit for the Royals. Frankie Drews hit a three - run homer for the Chiefs.

Baltimore Orioles moved into sixth place past Syracuse by upsetting the league - leading Buffalo Bisons in both ends of a doubleheader, 10-3 and 3-2. Al Widmar notched his 17th victory in the second game. Ken Wood's 18th homer with a mate aboard was the decisive blow. Hank Arft homered for the Orioles in the opener, Buffalo's homer - hitters were Butch Tabacheck and Gene Markland.

Rochester's runner - up Red Wings moved within two games of the lead, defeating Newark Bears, 11-5. Besides Richmond's pair of round - trippers, Russ Derry poled his 27th for the Wings. Ed Ehlers slammed a 3-run homer for the Bears.

Norm Thompson K.O.'s Bud Pipher In Second Round

Hamilton, July 26—(CP)—Hard hitting Norm Thompson of Toronto Monday night knocked out Oshawa's Bud Pipher at 1.18 of the second round in the main event of an eight-bout Amateur Boxing card here.

Pipher was no match for Thompson and was dropped to the canvas by a hard right uppercut after going down for a nine-count. Both weighed 135 pounds.

In the semi-final, Danny Saunders of Hamilton, scored a technical knockout over Glen Dafoe of Oshawa at 1.05 of the fifth round.

However, Leo Squires gained a victory for Oshawa when he won by a technical knockout over Reg Lovelack of Hamilton.

Other results:

118 pounds — Dave Thurnbull, St Marys, won a split decision over Don Miller, Brantford.

115 pounds — Don Grinton, Brantford, won a five round decision over John Tuck, Hamilton.

130 pounds—Bill Merritt, Hamilton, won a three-round decision over Vic Deplank, Brantford.

115 pounds—Pat Kelly, Brantford, won a three-round decision over Danny Williams, Oshawa.

Frankford Sport

Frankford — Frankford Merchants dropped a 6-2 decision to Wooler on Tuesday night. Roy Beith turned in a nice pitching job, but his team mates just couldn't come through at the plate in the clutches. Frankford had four mis-plays afield, but none of them entered into the scoring picture for Wooler. "Willie" Rankin, right fielder for Frankford, came up with three sensational catches on hard hits by Barney McColl, Wooler's big slugger. The Wooler fans, true sportsmen all the way, gave Rankin a well deserved hand along with the Frankford rooters.

The line score:

Wooler	6	9	0
Frankford	2	6	4

Frankford Merchants dropped a twin bill to Stirling Thursday night. Once again, it was lack of hitting that told the story, as Stirling won on scores of 6-3 and 3-2 Boyle and Beith shared the pitching honors for Frankford, and both turned in fine performances. This was Frankford's third straight setback.

Work is still continuing on the new softball diamond on the school grounds, and this week should pretty well wind up the ground work.

The playoffs in the Sidney League have been postponed temporarily due to the Bata holidays. When playoffs are resumed, Batawa will play in Johnstown, and Centenary in Frankford for the playoff openers. The second games will be in Batawa and Centenary. The third games, if necessary, will be played on neutral grounds.

One of the largest crowds to ever turn out for a sporting event, gathered at the school grounds on Saturday evening, to witness a game of donkey baseball between the married and single men. The married men emerged victorious with a 7-1 win. For over an hour and a half, the huge crowd enjoyed a continuous laugh, as the would-be ball players struggled with their obstinate donkeys.

The producers of the show complimented the players on the way they co-operated with them in putting on the performance.

The Canadian Legion, who sponsored the event, wishes to thank all who took part in making the evening so successful, and particularly the large crowd who turned out for the game.

Morton Cooper Yet to Win Game In Sask. League

By DAVE LEIGHTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Moose Jaw, Sask., July 26 — (CP) — Mort Cooper, who once bore a $100,000 price tag when he was a National Baseball League pitching ace, may not have much whip left in his arm but he knows how to cash in on his personality.

The husky, Independence, Mo., player, a three-time National League All-star while with St. Louis Cardinals, now is pitching for Moose Jaw Canucks of the Southern Saskatchewan Senior League. He hasn't won a game.

The big 34-year-old right-hander still entertains hopes of a comeback but to fans around this prairie circuit — next step down from the bush leagues—it looks as if Mort will have a tough job. Since his arrival last month opposition batters have greeted the sore-armed hurler like a long-lost cousin.

Cooper has appeared in about a dozen games and his longest stint was a six - inning effort. Prairie batters have shown no respect for the slants of the hurler who was the National League's most valuable player in 1942 and the mainstay of the Cards' pitching staff.

Fans Like Him

But fans by the thousands have flocked to parks around the circuit, and 1949 should be one of the most successful seasons financially the league has had and much of the revived interest can be traced to Cooper.

That is one reason why the Moose Jaw club can afford to pay him a reported $125 a game, an astronomical salary in this league but no great shakes when stacked up against the $15,000 yearly Cooper was drawing a few years back.

Mort says the reason he came here is "because I always had a hankering to see this country." He also thinks the hot, dry prairie air might be just the ticket for his ailing arm.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Either you have confidence in your bridge count or you don't. If you will not rely on the count you use, switch to one that you do not fear. But do not abandon a good count just when you need it most.

Comes a letter saying, "I opened the south hand with a club and west stuck in a bid of three diamonds. My partner in north bid four clubs. Now I get cold feet and pass with the six losers staring me in the face."

This was the south hand:

♠K J 7
♥None
♦10 9 8
♣A K Q 9 8 6 3

Six losers- Six schmoosers. The south hand has seven tricks. Count them. Three highs in clubs, a high for the king in spades, and three for the shorts in the heart suit.

Only five of them were promised in the opening bid of one. This hand has a couple of tricks not yet shown. What is it waiting for? This and heaven, too?

North made a free bid of four clubs. The fact that west did not let north bid less has nothing to do with it. If north did not have enough tricks for his four club bid he should have passed.

So, what did north promise by his raise of three levels? Three tricks in addition to his assumed count of two. Therefore, south may expect five tricks in the north hand.

Is south going to sit there and claim his partner did not have the five tricks promised in his bid? Is that the kind of a partner he claims to be? If so, he should play solo.

If north has five and south seven, there are probably 12 in the pair. The very least south should consider is a bid of five clubs. Even if scared stiff. They may have a slam.

What south forgot all of a sudden is that this is a partnership game. Your losers are not losers if partner has winners. And north said he had five of them. Take the count.

Crabb Admits Pro Golf Standing, Returns Trophy

London, Ont., July 26 (CP)—Controversy over the winner of the western Ontario public links tourney here Saturday appeared to have been settled today with the announcement that Herb Crabb, owner of Sarnia's Lakeview golf course, is willing to relinquish his trophy on the grounds that he is officially a pro.

So it looks as if Tom Matlock of Kitchener will be handed the silverware. He won a playoff for second place with Jim Currie of London Highland and Johnny Kovals of Sarnia.

K. H. Kendall, tourney chairman at Thames Valley here, said Crabb told him by telephone Monday night that he was "more than willing to return" the cup, in view of the comment in Toronto Monday of President Gordon Brydson of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association.

Brydson was quoted as saying that a player in Crabb's position as owner of a course is definitely a pro.

"However," said Kendall, "Mr. Crabb wishes to emphasize that he does not consider himself a professional. He told me that recently he applied for an amateur golf card."

With a three-over-par 73, Crabb topped a field of 150 in the tourney. Officials went into a huddle and decided that Crabb was ineligible and called for a playoff between Matlock, Currie and Kovals, who tied with 76's. While they were on the course, officials reversed their decision and called Crabb the winner.

PLAN HUGE FACTORY

Port Elizabeth, South Africa, (CP)—A wool combing factory the largest of its kind in Africa is to be erected here at a cost of £1,100,000 ($4,400,000). But wool farmers must first agree to the plant being with wool profit funds held in trust for them by the Union government.

Stranahan Fails Impress Rivals With Golf Glamor

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Riverside Golf and Country Club, Saint John, N. B., July 26—(CP) — The Canadian amateur golf championship took on a glamorous air today with the regal arrival of defending champion Frank Stranahan although first-round survivors failed to be duly impressed.

There was a capable representation from every province ready to take on the Toledo strong man, who personally requested gymnasium facilities prior to his arrival by private plane.

Stranahan had a first - round bye Monday, along with his valet-golf protege, Ollie Kay, and also Jim Mulcahey of Boston. His second - round opponent today was a far-less known golfer, Bob Davison of Amherst, N. S., who has been invited to the public altar for sacrifice.

From Monday's 18 - hole match play a fairly representative collection of Canadian golfers, any of whom conceivably could bring back the title to Canada, lost for two years because of Stranahan alone.

The actual competing field Monday of 129, with a scattering of Americans, opposition to Stranahan, was reduced to 64. The Canadian survivors were headed by Bill MacWhinney of Vancouver, former junior champion, who all but made a wreck of Riverside's par 70 course in overcoming John Jabanoski of the home club 5 and 3.

Almost a Record

If Bill could have carded a medal score he would have set a course record with his 66. He holed out at every green and had an approximately medal score of 33 each way.

The west coast amateur wasn't alone as a Canadian hopeful. Phil Farley, Toronto Scarboro's veteran, won 6 and 5 over S. E. T. Caughey of St. Andrews, N. B., and met Lorne Smith of Dartmouth, N. S., in the second round.

Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., former Canadian junior champion and now Ontario amateur title holder, came through with an easy 5 and 4 triumph over Art Franks of Montreal LaSalle. Kesselring's opponent today was H. Brynjolfson of Saint John.

Many of the remaining Canadian contestants were members of the Willingdon Cup team competition Saturday, won by Ontario's four-man team.

Then there was young Bob Hall of Montreal, Canada's new junior champion, who came safely through his first round and was sent against Allan Boes, Winnipeg veteran, today.

The favored Americans in Monday's round had little trouble, and Dick Chapman of Osterville, Mass; Buddy Lutz of Reading, Pa., and John Kraft of Denver, advanced to the second round where the opposition appeared only slightly more difficult.

Jim Mulcahey of Boston, variously reported to have scratched and to have started for the tournament late with promise of a bye, was drawn against Bill Pidlaski. Bill and his brother, Mike, are from St. Boniface, Man. Both won yesterday.

Blade Appointed Player-Coach For Kansas City

Kansas City, July 26 — (AP)—Hark Blade, centre for Kansas City Pla-Mors of the United States Hockey League for the last four seasons, Monday was named player-coach of the team.

Owner Bill Tobin announced that Blade would succeed Reg Hamilton, who was promoted to the front office. Hamilton will work with the Pla-Mors during the training season this fall, then report to the parent club, Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Blade, a native of Peterborough, Ont., was voted the most popular player of the Pla-Mors by Kansas City fans last season.

Chicago Yacht Sets New Record For Lake Race

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 26—(AP)—Onkahya, a glistening white yawl from Chicago, Monday won the biggest honor in the Port Huron-to-Mackinac Sailing Race.

It was the fastest voyage since the event began 25 years ago. Each of the first five boats over the finish line Sunday evening cracked the record for elapsed time on the 242 miles.

Onkahya, owned by contractor George Sollitt, finished fifth but had the best corrected time in the entire cruising division made up of 45 craft.

She made the trip in 29 hours, 36 minutes and 17 seconds. She received a time allowance of 2.17:49 and placed first with a corrected time of 27.18:28. This put her 10 minutes in front of Blitzen of Detroit and 15 minutes ahead of Royono of Detroit.

Royono pounded over the line at 5:32 P.M. Sunday to become the holder of the speed record. She took 27 hours, 47 minutes and 41 seconds. The old mark of 20 hours, 31 minutes and 21 seconds was established by Nyala in 1946.

Following Royono were Kittyhawk of Detroit, Escapade of Detroit, Blitzen and Onkahya. But Onkahya had the biggest handicap and won both the over-all and class-A cruising championships. Blitzen was defending champion in both categories.

In Class-B crusing the winner was Medic III, a long-successful cutter owned by Ted White and Dr. Charles Dodonhoff of Detroit.

In the five-boat racing division an eight-metre, Armita, sailed by Gordon Sanders and Joe Hahn of Detroit, had a comfortable hour and 45 minutes over Rangoon of Sarnia.

TWO-WAY APPLE TRADE

Wellington, N.Z. — (CP) — A suggestion for a two-way trade in apples between Canada and New Zealand has been made by the acting High Commissioner for Canada in New Zealand, Dr. W. Clayton Hopper. Owing to reversal of the seasons in the two Dominions, Canadian apples would arrive when they were scarce in New Zealand and the same would apply with New Zealand apples sent north.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 26—(AP)—The champion Cleveland Indians, tangling with the Yankees in another important series, have placed a cruel and unusual burden on their pitching staff. . . The pitchers not only have to perform their regular chores well, but they have to knock in the runs to win. . . "Why, from our 77th game up to last Sunday, our pitchers and catcher Jim Hegan had driven in as many runs as all the rest of the batting order," Marsh Samuel, tribe's public relations man, pointed out. "Bob Lemon has been on a home run streak and early Wynn won a game with a homer the other day. Lemon has been really remarkable. He has only been at bat 55 times, but he has hit six homers, three doubles and two triples. He really looks like a hitter up there, too. The rest of the team still is in a slump. We've scored 200 less runs than the Red Sox—that's an average of about a game—and that's why we're not out in front by five or six games.". . . Come to think of it, Lemon started out as a third baseman—and that's where the Indians need help right now.

One-Minute Sports Page

Some sort of a record must have been established in a softball tournament at Anderson, Ind., last week when the opening game went 23 innings, from 6:30 P.M. to 12:30 A.M. and the three-game program ended at 2:30 A.M. with 100 fans still in their seats. . . Charley Fusari, who'll be spotting Rocky Graziano a good many pounds when they fight Sept. 14, says he doesn't notice the difference when a guy 'outweighs him by only five or six pounds, but when its as much as 10 he really can feel it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing in her room and I was on the floor on my stummick reeding my new lyberry book, Ghost Stories for Young and Old, and I said, Hay ma, do you beleeve in ghosts?

Certainly not, and neither does any other sivilized person in these modern times, ma said, and I said, Well jimminies, ma, there's whole books about them.

If you start beleeving everything you reed, you'll have a fine fund of ignorance, ma said. Ghasts are relics of the Backwerd Ages when science was a thing of the future, but they're just a joke to intelligent people in today's 20th century, she said, and I said, Well then gosh, ma, do you meen you'd think it was a joke if I woke you up some nite in the middle of the nite moaning like a lost sole in disdress and you saw me standing there all covered over with a sheet?

I'd think it was far from a joke, sutch a gassly idea of all the ideas, ma said, and I said, Well then suppose you didn't see me at all? Suppose you just heard me ratteling chains outside your door and making sounds like people dying in cemeteries? What then? I said.

Then you'd get the werst spanking of your career, and that's enough on the subject if you dont mind, ma said, and I said, But G roozalem, ma, you said ghosts were jokes, so why wouldn't there be anything funny about it?

Because when you go to bed you're suppose to go to sleep and grow your naturel scientific growth and not get up and play silly backwerd tricks for land sakes, and if you're not sattisfied I'll take that book rite away from you, ma said.

The result being I was sattisfied.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"On the strength of Mockby's saying that I might have to go to Boston, you have us moved to Park Avenue."

"We-l-l-l! That's a great deal, I think," Fanny said, in an injured tone. "Go on, go on have your old Bucknell!" she ejaculated as Christopher gave her an elaborately patient look. "I'm sitting here stone deaf and dumb!"

Antonio Mario Pio Ruggiero, the familiar "Tony" of the coal and ice sign on the basement steps, now obligingly came upstairs to say that Meest' T'ring wanted on phone. Chris duly leaped downsairs; came up again looking a little sheepish.

"What do you know? That was Madge."

"Madge!" Fanny, lighting the dinner-table candles, paused midway in action.

"Yep. She said you left your book at their place today."

"Oh? Oh, yes I did. Was that all she said?"

"Wanted to know if we wanted to see the Olga Natrovski Ballet. She and Phyllis have seats. I said, 'No'; I'm working, I can't run around to ballets."

"I hear they're putrescent!" Fanny finished lighting the candles, her bared arm young and soft where the light caught it. She was wearing the blue cotton gown tonight; Chris knew them all now, the brown one whose colors had run in the wash, this soft old blue one that was prettiest of all, and the crazy pink one, with the black and yellow daggers on it. She bought them from push carts for thirty-seven and fourty-nine cents, and with her fresh soft skin and bright hair and the shadowy blue eyes and busy hand somehow the ensemble was always, to Chris at least, lovely.

"I may have to run up to the library tonight."

"Oh, Chris!"

"Want to go?"

"I think not. I get too sleepy, and that hurries you. But I'll walk with you to the subway and do some shopping. We need soap and needles, and I'm going to buy two handkerchiefs."

They walked through the street to the subway, and she kissed him good-bye and told him not to be late. Then Chris disappeared in the black hood, and Fanny wandered home, stopping for her purchases, stopping halfway up the stairs for a peek at Dominico, little domain, lighted her reading light, turned down the bed, opened both windows wide, and prepared for a leisurely bath. "I love my life!" she said once, aloud.

But the next morning everything grew twisted up again, when at breakfast Chris said: "I saw Madge last night."

"Madge!" At the library?"

"Yep. She and Phillis were hunting for some Civil War references, right in the room I was in. They whispered and rustled around here till I was about crazy. Finally we all walked out to Millard's and had cold drinks, and then I put them on a bus and went back."

"He must have said over the telephone that he was going to the library!" Fanny thought. Aloud she said nothing, and Chris did not notice that she had grown a little quiet and pale. He was absorbed in his Bucknell case; Fanny told herself that while he was working so hard he had no time for Madge and her foolishness.

One Saturday night when they counted up their resources, they began to talk of moving.

'Not until . . oh, a year from October, Fan, when we have a real bank account. But, darn it, we're saving money."

Fanny opened the little bank book, studied the entries fondly.

"One hundred and eleven dollars,"' she stated. "All my radio money, and the ten for the puzzle, and the twenty-five Mr. Mockby gave you. One hundred and eleven dollars. Last month our table cost us eighteen dollars exactly, rent seventeen. That's . ." her fingers drummed counting . . . "that's thirty-five. Incidentals like newspapers and carfare and sodas and books, two ninety. Ice, two. And your quarter a day, six and a quarter. It comes out forty-six dollars and fifteen cents. You and I are living well within our income, even at fourteen dollars a week."

"Sixteen a week, my pet. Don't belittle what I earn."

"Of course, ordinarily, we'd have tailor bills. That would be about four. And a telephone. But I haven't any use for a telephone, and while I'm taking the shop for Mowkowiz we have no tailor's bills."

"That's the darndest thing for you to do!"

"One day a week . . just Saturday mornings. He likes to go to the Temple. And why shouldn't he, poor terrified mouse that he is? All I do is hand out a few boxes and hang up a few garments. I like it. And the result is that you look like a prince."

"I must," said Christopher dryly.

"D'you know the hardest thing about being poor, Chris?"

"Possibly by this time. But what is it?"

"Your friends, my dear. Thinking what they think about you, and trying to bluff them and hearing your own voice saying that you don't mind econimizing, or neighborhoods, or being shabby . . . ."

"Even I mean, when you really don't mind, Chris, they think you do, and they pity you, and make you feel like a fool!

"Some day, when I'm making a fortune doing Aunt Tabby's hour on the air, I'll remember all this!"

"I'll always remember it!" Chris said, in a tone that brought the happy color to her face, the happy tears to her eyes.

She loved him so that she was jealous of him all the time, that was the trouble. It was rediculous to feel this way; Fanny reminded herself reprovingly that she never had been jealous of anyone before, she couldn't grow into a poor jealous fool watching always suspecting her mate. But derful, dark and gentle and grown-up . . and yet deliciously boyish and gay sometimes, too! . that any woman's heart would wind itself tightly, and tightly about him, and any woman's love try to hold him, throttle him, indeed, if it could. When he talked at dinner contentedly and peacefully, glad to be at home with his wife, interested in his work, amused at everything she had to say, her eyes would dwell adoringly on him, on his smile, and the dark line of his moustache and the rich waves in his hair.

"Chris, do your realize that today is a great day in the family annals?" she said one night.

"No. Is it?"

"It's the first time since we were married that we ever met accidentally! If you knew what you looked like when I saw you just coming up the block with the other men this afternoon! You . . you just seemed to tower . ."

"Naturally," Chris smiled. "I would." He put his arm about her. "Fan, I had a big moment too, he said, "when I suddenly recognized the linen coat and white hat . . jiminy!"

"Wasn't it fun?"

"It's all fun. But, gosh, it's work too."

They plunged into the Bucknell case which was, as Fanny said, "coming rapidly to a head like a boil."

"Chris, how can honorable people make the claims the Jellicoes do? It's disreputable!"

"That's what they're probably saying about the Bucknell's."

"But are most cases as plain as this, Chris?"

"You wait until they get going, my dear!"

"Oh, well, I don't care as long as we win it," Fanny said, and Chris laughed.

Three days later Chris called her to the Ruggieros' telephone. This was important and Fanny flew downstairs at the summons in the blessed expectancy of youth . . . something had happened! She snatched the receiver.

"Chris, . . it's Fanny, darling, I'm just back from Mowkowitz. Where are you?"

Where am I?" said Chris, "In "Oh," gasped Fanny, nodding reasurring to Mrs. Ruggiero, who lingered near, apron crumpled in hand, anxious dark face one wrinkle of fear. "I thought you might be in Bellevue!"

'I will be unless you stop acting like a maniac!" said Chris. "Listen, Fan, this is terribly important. Can you hear me?"

"Perfectly."

'Well listen, Fan. Gerald Mockby wants us to go up to his place at Scarsdale and stay overnight."

"Oh, no-o-o!" sang Fanny. "Oh, glory . . glory . . glory . . glory!

"Please, Fan, be sensible. This is important. Listen, we meet at four at the Grand Central Station, . . . Mr. Mockby, that is, and go up on the four-ten. Are you there, Fanny?"

"Listening attentively, and with a businesslike look in my blue, blue eyes."

"Yes, well, never mind your blue eyes. The thing is that you and I have to be darned efficient and show them what we can do."

"I don't do I?"

"Well, that's just it. You made at the tea, talking about the baby.'

"Chris, what else could I talk about? I knew they'd just lost it."

"I know. But it seems they'd kind of been keeping off the subject, and your horning in made a hit."

cried when she told me abo it, I know that."

'es; well you made a hit. But th thing is now, today. These pe le have this place at Scarsda see? . . and they want us to ine there, and talk business be re dinner with the Jellicoe la er, see? . . and then play brige afterward."

'h, Chris . . fun!"

't's more than fun; it's the bigest break we ever got."

'epend on me, Chris. I'll be efficient as I've never been efficien before."

"anny," said Chris, "don't say tha it fills me with blank terror."

'b, I mean it Chris. I'll play swd bridge. I'll press my figured crep and do all your handkerchies . . ."

"arling, I didn't call you up to dcuss your crepe. Here's the thin . . something has come up, and I'll have to make a lunch date'

"Ÿu said last night you might haveto."

"Vell, I had to. It's something I can'tvery well get out of."

"Vhere'll you be? Maybe I could bring you down a sandwich, or we could go to a restaurar or something."

"N, that's just the thing, Fan . I've gt to . . to see this party . . alone.'

"Dzling, it sounds immoral."

"It', perfectly moral."

"Ye, but your laugh then sounded completely immoral, Chris"

"Yu poor sap! Listen, Fan, here'; the point. You know the notes we've been making on the Bucknell case, in the big envelope?'

"I should hope I might!"

"Where are they?"

"Vhere are they? How oddly you talk! They're just where you put them last night in the table draver . . unless you have them with you?"

"I wanted to see if you knew."

"Why, you old fox, trying to trap me."

"Well, anyway, will you put those in your bag, now, and bring them to the four-ten train . . . right by the information bureau, on the upper level at the Grand Central . . be there at four, Fan . . right by the information desk . . you know, where we met Mac that night . ."

"I'm putting them in the bag now, sweetheart!"

"You can't be, you're down at the Ruggiero's. But at any rate, do, and meet me at four , at the infor . . ."

Fanny stopped downstairs only long enough to thank the baby's mother and seize a kiss from the baby's little mottled waving fist. Then she went up to glorious hurrying planning and dreaming orily at last. Phyllis and Madge might buy their way into exciting contracts; Chris and Fanny would work their way in.

It was just one o'clock when she went out to market, and to keep an appointment with Mack.

Mack was back with the broadcasting company again, and he often found little odds and ends for Fanny to do. She might have only three lines of ringing patriotism one night, but there was always pleasant moments at the cashier's desk to follow; four dollars for Mrs. Thring, seven dollars for Mrs. Thring; and Fanny loved the atmosphere of the place anyway, and would have been glad to do all Mack had asked her . . and more, for nothing at all.

"Everythings happening today!" she said, thrilled, when Mack put before her a real program . . what the boys in the office called a "racket". The Barbour Tea Company was presently going to want fifteen minutes every afternoon at six for the dialogue Mack had written for "Tom and Jerry."

"I'm Tom . . you're Jerry, Fanny. It was your laugh in that Labor Day thing, that did it. Mulgrew says there's no woman in the place who can laugh like that."

"But, Mack, dear, it's impossible! I'd love the money like mad and we'd have no end of fun, but the hour . . it's an impossible hour. I'm always right in the midst of getting dinner."

"But, good heavens, can't you change your dinner hour?"

"Not with Chris getting home so tired, Mack. He works like a dog."

"I never saw a dog do anything except lie around in the sun. . . Say, what are Chris and Madge conferring about today?"

It struck her like a blow; made her feel cold and sick. But she showed nothing; just looked at him thoughtfully.

"I don't know; she consults him now and then. Where'd you see them?"

"She's crazy about him." Mack said darkly.

"Much . . much good may it do her!" Fanny said.

"Oh, I don't mean there's anything wrong," Mack went on disgustedly. "But it's so silly. What does she want to bother Chris for? . . I mean, it was all of us or none of us for a while, but now you've married Chris . ."

"I think Phyllis Maitland puts her up to it," Fanny said slowly in a voice she hardly knew for her own.

"I don't know that Maitland woman," Mack said simply.

A few minutes later Fanny went out, a little dazed, cold. Oh, where was the fun, where was the triumph of Chris's success, of her own flattering opportunity in the radio work, if this heart-breaking sort of thing was going to happen!

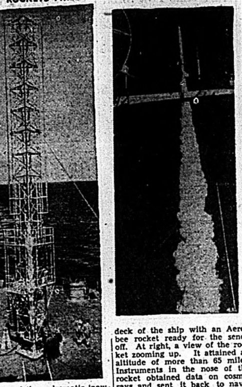
ROCKETS FIRED FROM WARSHIP'S DECK



In one of these dramatic 'now-it-can-be-told' moves, the U.S. navy announced that it successfully fired rockets from the deck of the U.S.S. Morton Sound some 700 miles off the west coast of South America last March. At left is the launching tower on the deck of the ship with an Aerobee rocket ready for the send-off. At right, a view of the rocket zooming up. It attained an altitude of more than 65 miles. Instruments in the nose of the rocket obtained data on cosmic rays and sent it back to navy ships. One bit of knowledge gained by scientists from the rocket flights is that cosmic ray intensity above the atmosphere at the geomagnetic equator is twice as great as had been estimated. —C.P. Canadian

Do You Know...

what WHITE COAL is?

'White Coal' is a term commonly used to describe falling water that can be converted into electrical power. Originally used in France 'White Coal' is a translation from the French 'houille blanche', suggested by the fact that falling water, because it is filled with frothy air bubbles, appears clean and white.

Do You Know . . . that 'White Coal' is the greatest single contributing factor to the remarkable industrial development of Quebec Province? Because of its mighty resources of 'White Coal' Quebec has been transformed from a once wholly agricultural area into a vital centre of light and heavy industry!

Do You Know any interesting and unusual facts? Our "Advisory Panel" will pay $25 for any authenticated readers' submissions if they are usable. All letters become our property. Write Black Horse Brewery, Station L, Montreal, P.Q.

TWO TORONTO MEN MURDERED DURING NIGHT

Four Young Boys Go on Trial for Ottawa Sex Crime

Laugh and Joke as Police Book Them on Charges

Ottawa, July 27 —(CP)— Four young boys — the oldest 12, the youngest eight — today go on trial for what Ottawa police have called the most brutal sex crime in the capital's history.

They are charged with indecent assault, in connection with the attack on 26-months-old Marie Giselle Lachance July 11.

Ravished, naked and half-strangled, the little girl was found hanging from the beams of an old shed on Brutere Street, in Ottawa's lowertown district, just west of the Parliament Buildings.

Three of the boys are brothers. All of them live within a few doors of the Brutere Street apartment of the little girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Telesphore Lachance.

Police said all four boys are known as "troublemakers" in the thickly-populated district.

The brothers are eight, 10 and 12 years old. A nine-year-old companion was arrested with them.

The four laughed and joked Tuesday night as they were booked at police headquarters. Their mothers, worn and haggard, were with them.

The day after the attack, Marie Giselle, propped up in a hospital bed, told her mother that some "bad little boys" had hurt her. Police said then they discounted the theory. They believed the whole attack was the work of an adult sex fiend.

A seven-year-old boy, attracted to the ramshackle shed by a barking dog, found the little girl, bound up with fishing line and a man's necktie. Doctors said she would have been dead in another five minutes.

She was bruised and lacerated, her clothes scattered about the shed and in a yard behind it.

Ottawa police, led by morality squad inspector Ubald Sauve, questioned more than 100 persons following the attack.

"I am certain there is no one else implicated in the case," Inspector Sauve said Tuesday night. He and Constable Armany Lecours arrested the boys at their homes.

Marie Giselle was released from hospital a week after the attack.

ESCAPEES CAUGHT AFTER 8 HOURS BRIEF FREEDOM

Stony Mountain Long-Term Convicts Found Hiding Under Bed

Winnipeg, July 27, (CP—Two prisoners are back in police custody today after their bid for freedom was cut short eight hours after they broke out of Stony Mountain Penitentiary, 18 miles northwest of here, Tuesday.

A concentrated search of underworld haunts paid off for combined forces of R.C.M.P. and city police. The two convicts, John Krywiarkchuk, alias Holland, 41, and Peter Stepanoff, 30, were arrested hiding under a bed in a home in the northern section of the city.

Both men were still wearing prison pants and undershirts. They discarded their prison shirts before they left the automobile in which they made their escape bid. Police found the shirts along with the automobile about two hours before they caught the two.

Neither put up any resistance to police who converged on the house with drawn revolvers.

Police would not say how the convicts made good their escape or how they managed to commandeer the automobile, located a good distance from the prison.

Although prison officials refused to confirm the information, it was reliably reported the convicts had been at large for at least 10 minutes before the escape was noticed.

Stepanoff was serving a 10-year term and Holland a 20-year sentence for armed robbery. Both men were recently transferred to Stony Mountain, one from Kingston and the other from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, just outside Montreal.

An R.C.A.F. Harvard plane aided the search, flying at tree-top level over the Stony Mountain-Oak Point area, 50 miles in length in the afternoon. Six more planes were standing by when the men were arrested.

PEAK EMPLOYMENT

Detroit, July 27 — (AP) —With more than 400,000 employees on its payrolls, General Motors today reported a new peacetime employment peak. Average employment for the first six months of this year was 400,002, compared with 381,995 for the same period in 1948.

Dispute Over Wearing Only Underwear Indoors Ends in Fatality

Chicago, July 27 — (AP)— A packinghouse worker was killed Tuesday in a violent dispute over the "immorality" of wearing only underwear indoors during the hot weather. Alex Funick, 47, was killed. Funick's roommate, Karl Moizrini, 74, was held without charge. He told officers he struck Funick in the mouth with a coffee cup during a fight which started after he told Funick to "put some clothes on."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 27 (CP)—Synopsis—There is no sign of relief from the sweltering current heat wave which affects not only Ontario but also the central and eastern states. By way of contrast to this sticky weather, an Arctic weather station reported snowflurries Tuesday night.

Although slightly cooler air has moved into Northern Ontario, and gave lower minimum temperatures Tuesday night it will have little if any effect on daytime temperatures.

It is likely that Tuesday night's isolated thunderstorm activity will be repeated tonight and again Thursday evening.

MATTAWA MAYOR WANTS DEBENTURE ISSUE APPROVED

Would Cover Cost Water, Sewer Services

Mattawa, July 27 (CP).—Mayor Albert Huot today sent a telegram to Hon. George H. Dunbar, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs asking for approval of a $437,000 debenture issue to cover installation of complete water and sewer services to every part of the town.

Mayor Huot's move followed receipt of a telegram from Mr. Dunbar Tuesday night. The telegram ased: "Is there anything that I can do for Mattawa situation?"

(Eleven babies died here recently in an epidemic of dysentery.)

Immediately Mayor Huot prepared a telegram asking Mr. Dunbar to rush approval of waterworks - sewer scheme submitted to the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs last February.

"I have asked Mr. Dunbar to have these plans approved immediately and get a government guarantee to back our debentures," the mayor said. "In my telegram I asked him to rush me word by wire as soon as possible."

There were two alternative plans for water and sewer construction on a smaller scale. One called for expenditure of roughly $250,000 and the other was estimated at $125,000. But Mayor Huot believes that the only way to do the job is to have it complete—and this will cost $437,000.

Should approval be received from Mr. Dunbar the Mattawa council is prepared to award contracts and have work started within 10 days.

Two Negro Brothers Hanged at Fredericton

Fredericton, July 27 (CP). — Two negro brothers died on the gallows today for the hammer slaying last January of taxi driver Norman P. Burgoyne, 34.

George Hamilton, 23, and Rufus, 22, lost their last hope of reprieve when defence counsel John E. Warner and Joseph F. Kane received word that the governor-in-council would not intervene in the death sentence pronounced May 19 by Chief Justice J. E. Michaud.

It was the first double hanging in the history of this quiet city, bordering on the St. John River.

The execution was also the first in Fredericton since 1925 and York County's second in 188 years. Last hanging in the city was that of Harry D. Williams in 1925 for the murder of his two young nieces.

Refueling Bases Deep in the Arctic Greatly Interest U.S. Air Force

Washington, July 27 — (AP)— The United States Air Force is talking about forward air bases deep in the Arctic at which bombers could refuel on strikes across the Polar cap.

A cautious official reference to this hitherto - secret plan for stretching the reach of bombers operating from airfields within the United States came to light today. In a report on plans and money needs for the new heavy bomber base at Limestone, Me., the air force says:

"A typical Polar operation might involve aircraft taking off from United States air bases, the staging of topping off of these aircraft at forward bases in Northern Canada, Greenland, or even the Polar ice cap."

This project may explain how the U. S. A. F. can make good its claim that the huge B-36 bomber can strike virtually all "significant military targets on the earth from bases in the Western Hemisphere."

The new strategy suggested in the report indicates that the missions would operate like this:

A B-36, whose home field was Limestone or some other airdrome in the United States, would load up with bombs — and a comparatively light load of fuel. It would fly two or three thousand miles to a staging base on the North American continent, in Greenland or elsewhere in the far north. There the bomber would "top off" its fuel tanks (fill them to capacity). That would carry the intercontinental bomber to the target and back to the staging base or to friendly territory beyond enemy territory.

Strategists say the advantages of such Arctic staging bases would include:

A. Operation of forward airfields with a minimum of personell and equipment. No refueling equipment would be needed. There would be no hangar or major repair facilities. The number of men required would be small.

B. At no time would there be concentration of big bombers at the forward fields (as there would be if they were major airdromes) to present a profitable target for an enemy air raid.

C. The striking reach of the smaller B-29s and B-50s, as well as the B-36, could be extended.

Britain's Secret Jet Airliner Flies for First Time in Trials

Hatfield, England, July 27—(Reuter's) — Britain's latest "top secret" airliner, the four-engined, all-jet Dehavilland Comet, flew for the first time today during taxiing trials here.

Group Captain John Cunningham, chief test pilot of the company, lifted the machine for a 500-yard hop six feet above the ground. After checking braking, nose-wheel steering and ground handling he reported the first trials were "very promising."

The Comet, a low-wing monoplane, is the prototype for a series of jet passenger planes ordered by the ministry of supply and British Overeas Airways. She will carry 36 passengers and a crew of four at 500 miles an hour above the weather at 40,000 feet.

The cabin will be pressurized and air conditioning will completely change the air every three minutes.

Built behind locked doors, the aircraft is having its first engine, taxiing and braking tests this week. It is not likely to be in commercial use before 1952.

Canada's Bid in Air Race

At Toronto's suburban Malton, pre-flight tests are still being made on Canada's bid for the new field of air transport, the Avro Canada 40-passenger C-102 jetliner. The sleek silver machine is expected to go aloft in late August.

The race to test-fly the world's first pure-jet civil airliner has been waged between England and Canada for three years. Work on both sides of the ocean has been obscured by the closest commercial secrecy.

Officials at Avro Canada expressed regret that the Canadian aircraft could not have been the first in the air. No definite test-flight date has yet been set, they said, since ground trials are still unfinished.

The Avro Canada jetliner is of approximately the same capacity as the comet. The jetliner is the first four-engined domestic design attempted byCanada's aircraft industry. Powered by four Rolls Royce Derwent Turbojets, producing 3,500 pounds thrust, it will have a cruising speed at 35,000 feet of 430 miles an hour—100 miles an hour faster than the newest commercial transports in the United States.

The pressurized cabins will accommodate 36 passengers and a crew of three or four, depending on the nature of the flight.

Nfld. Village Whose People Saved 600 Americans in 1942 Will be Given Hospital by US

St. Lawrence, Nfld., July 27 (CP).—Courage and Christianity mean the same for the inhabitants of this Newfoundland village. That's why Uncle Sam plans to build them a hospital.

President Roosevelt was the first to broach the idea following a tragic night in February, 1942, when the United States destroyers Pollux and Truxton were crumpled against the rocks here in a storm. The villagers dangled on ropes over icy cliffs to rescue 600 survivors, but 104 American Navy men never got up the 100-foot cliffs alive.

The some 1,500 inhabitants of this isolated south coast mining area received the news of the hospital "with great happiness". But said A. A. Gioannini, a storekeeper:

"We only did what any Christians would do. It was during a blinding snowstorm we heard them there so we hurried to take them in. The snow and wind choked us at first when we stood on top of the cliffs, but then we got used to it.

"The women got out of bed and began to make preparations for the shipwrecked men. Once the ropes were let down the Americans — mostly powerful lads — hauled themselves up alone. We helped others but there were still others whose time had come."

Most of the villagers are fluorspar miners with large families earning about $150 a month. The hospital, to be constructed by the U.S. Navy for $275,000, would be "like something from heaven".

A letter of thanks was planned to President Truman. Gionnini wrote the Secretary of State some time ago asking about the hospital. It may be named after Roosevelt.

Shoulder and Hips Broken in Accident

Galt, July 27 (CP).—John Coleman, 18, suffered a broken shoulder, broken hips and a possible concussion Tuesday night when he was struck by a motorcycle as he was walking on the road near his home.

Police said the youth was discovered lying unconscious by the side of the road. He was taken to Galt hospital for treatment.

WILL HOLD NAVY EXERCISES

Rome, July 27 — (AP) — The shrunken Italian navy will stage its biggest post-war manoeuvres beginning Aug. 1. Eleven warships, totalling 50,000 tons, will take part in exercises in territorial waters. The once-proud fleet, sharply reduced by war losses, was further cut by the peace treaty to two battleships, four cruisers, four destroyers and a small number of auxiliaries.

Privy Council Ruling Re-opens Oleo Battle

Ottawa, July 27 — (CP) — A battle appears to be shaping up between the women who buy margarine and the dairy farmers whose golden butter product is being hit by the lower-priced substitute. The battle is expected to take place next autumn in London where the Privy Council awarded the first round in the bout to the farmers.

It granted the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, who represent the dairy men, leave to appeal the Supreme Court of Canada ruling on margarine which swept aside a 62-year ban on the manufacture and sale of butter substitutes.

Decision Gratifying

H H. Hannan, president of the CFA, said the Privy Council decision was "gratifying". It would mean that the CFA "in co-operation with the dairy farmers" will be able to pursue their original objective to restore the margarine ban and so protect the farmer and his product.

The decision was not so gratifying to the Canadian Association of Consumers, representing some 35,000 or more margarine buyers —mostly women — which wants Canada to continue having the privilege of buying the lower-priced product.

Mrs. F. E. Wright, president of the CAC, said the association would make "every effort" to continue the fight against the CFA appeal. "We'll do everything in our power to make sure the manufacture and sale of margarine remains legal."

She stated that an association representative —probably Miss M. P. Hyndman of Toronto who did the original arguing for the CAC before the London judical body—would appear during the hearing of the appeal and state the case for the consumer.

Legal Until Ruled Otherwise

While the battlers shaped their defences, a Justice Department official said until the Privy Council decides against the Supreme Court ruling, the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, margarine, butterine or other butter substitutes remain legal.

"The Privy Council can either uphold or throw out the Supreme Court ruling,' he explained. "If it decides against the Supreme Court opinion, then it is certain the ban on butter substitutes will be restored."

STRIKERS PICKET MASSEY-HARRIS AFTER WALK-OUT

4,500 Leave Jobs When Union President Fired

Toronto, July 27 — (CP) — Picketing continues at the farm implements plant of Massey-Harris where some 4,500 production workers walked out over dismissal of their union president.

The men, members of Local 439 of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.), left their jobs late yesterday. A mass meeting of workers voted to remain away from work until a management-labor bargaining committee meets and until Steve Anco is reinstated as president of the local.

Picket lines were thrown around the three entrances of the big west-end factory on King Street West. Some of the pickets carried placards reading "No President, No Work."

C. Norman Appleton, Massey-Harris vice-president, said in a statement that Anco was discharged "because of repeated and flagrant infractions of the rules laid down in the union contract."

He added: "To meet the urgent demands for the shipping of combines to Western Canada, it was necessary to complete the loading and packing of these machines on the night shift. The men assigned to this work were instructed by Mr. Anco, on his own admission, not to proceed with it."

Union spokesmen claimed it was a violation of the management union contract to change workers' shifts without agreement of the two groups.

No One Injured As Cruise Ship, Freighter Collide

Montreal, July 27—(CP)— The lake freighter City of Kingston and the cruise ship Island Queen collided in Lake St. Louis Tuesday night but there were no casualties and no apparent damage to either vessel.

The Island Queen had just left her berth at Lachine wharf with 75 passengers aboard when she was sideswiped by the freighter which was moving abreast of her.

The passenger vessel was pushed out of the channel and ran aground but Capt. Sydney Robinson brought her back into deep water and returned to the wharf. The City of Kingston continued on her course.

There was no panic among the Island Queen's passengers.

Londoners Enjoy High Summer In 'The Briny' or in Capital's Parks

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 27 — (CP) —High summer has come to London Town.

While millions are migrating to the coast, eager for a dip in what they affectionately call "the briny," millions more are looking for sun-tan in their back gardens or in London's many green parks.

Hyde Park's famous Lido is a shrill tumult of shouts, squeals and splashes, within sight of grazing sheep, amateur cricketers and aspiring baseball players from Canadian and American offices. Tennis courts are in perpetual use and the whang of the golf club is heard beyond the city limits.

Even the crowded city has a holiday air. Strawberry barrows are abundant; lawyers' foreheads are damp under their wigs; cart-horses are wearing straw hats; taxi drivers are taking down the tops of their cars — and any day now blonde, 20-year-old beauty queen Maisie Puffington will fry an egg on the pavements in fashionable Regent Street.

On week days the Londoner's summer pastimes may be simple. He may spend the long warm evenings throwing bread to the birds in lush St. James' Park. He may go out in a rowboat on the Serpentine. He may be content to putter around in a two-by-four garden, or sit in a drab bed-sitting room watering flowers in a window box.

But at weekends he tends to spread out. Thousands take trips down the River Thames in flat-decked pleasure steamers, bound for Kingston, Richmond or Royal Windsor. Multitudes swarm through the trim green gardens of Henry VIII's palace at Hampton Court, or feast their eyes on the riot of flowers in famous Kew Gardens.

Rambles into the rural outskirts of London, where the wild rose blooms and the nightingale sings, are a delight to many. And even the return to the harsh city is softened when the long slow twilight fades tranquilly from gold to silver-grey and the drab chimney pots are etched, sharp and black, against the darkling sky.

One Man Beaten To Death, Second Shot Through Head

Brother-in-Law of One Victim Held by Police

Toronto, July 27 — (CP) — Arthur Wickert, 38-year-old department store employee, was shot to death today in a basement apartment of a Walmer Road nursing home in central Toronto.

Philip Gendron, 29, Wickert's brother-in-law, arrested on a charge of murder, was remanded until August 4.

Police said the shooting occurred after an all-night drinking party in the Walmer Road nursing home, near Bloor Street, of which Gendron's wife, Edith, is part owner. The party was to celebrate Mrs. Gendron's birthday.

Wickert's body was found early this morning by an undertaker summoned to the home by Mrs. Gendron, who reported a "sudden death in the home." He reported the shooting to police.

Police said that Gendron and Wickert were married to sisters who were left interests in two rest homes in the city, by their mother. One of these rest homes was the scene of the shooting.

Police believe the two men were quarrelling over Mrs. Gendron and that Gendron fired one shot from a 7.65 millimetre German automatic. The bullet entered the left eye of Wickert and pierced the brain. It came out the base of the skull and was imbedded in a mattress.

Single Shot Fired

Wickert's fully-clothed body was sprawled crosswise on a bed, police said. A single bullet from a 3.75 automatic had entered his face below his left eye, pierced his brain and lodged in the pillow. Police said the weapon was found on the floor beside Wickert's body.

Anna Bonloff, a practical nurse at the home, told police that the shooting came after an all-night drinking party to celebrate Mrs. Gendron's birthday today. The nurse said she awoke about 2:00 a.m. at the sound of shouting and swearing in the bedroom next to hers.

"Then there was a shot," she said. "There was just one.

"I was foo frightened to come out of my room. I stayed in until two policemen knocked on my door, and I knew I had some protection."

Frequent Caller.

Mrs. Bonloff said that Wickert, manager of the men's clothing section of a downtown store, often came and stayed at the home when he had been working late. She said he formerly lived in the home but moved to a farm near Stouffville a year ago.

Mrs. Gendron, wife of the accused, was released by police today after being held for several hours as a material witness

Toronto, July 27—(CP)— The body of a man, tentatively identified as Leonard Hearn of Toronto, a railway dining-car steward, was found early today under the boardwalk of Toronto's eastern beach, and police said he had been beaten about the head and body.

The dead man was dressed only in a shirt. A pair of trousers and a bathing suit were found nearby.

Alfred Davis, park attendant in the beaches area, said he heard a call for help coming from the park about 2 A.M., the time police said the slaying took place. Davis said he "heard a man's voice calling."

Heard Cry For Help

"It sounded like a cry for help at first, then it became a moan. I think I heard the noise again, then everything was quiet."

About 200 yards from the beach boardwalk, police found a new model car owned by Hearn. The driver's window was smashed.

Police said they also found a 25-cent piece on the grass near the car. Investigators believe Hearn was killed or knocked unconscious in the auto and then dragged to the beach. They said the broken car window indicated there had been a struggle.

Two men and a woman, who said they came from Montreal discovered the body and were taken to headquarters for questioning, police said. The trio told officers they had no money and were sleeping on the beach.

Found Man Dead

About midnight, they said, they saw a man lying near the boardwalk but thought he was sleeping or drunk. A few hours later, they left the beach for a while, and when they returned the man was still there. Investigating, they found the man was dead.

Police said they telephoned Hearn's mother and told her "your son's car had been broken into and its contents stolen" but gave no more details.

Mrs. Hearn said her son, employed by the C.P.R. as a steward and waiter on trains to Sudbury and the west coast, was home on a three-day holiday.

To Save Even Few From A-Bomb Is Worth Effort

London, July 27 — (AP) — A study of British scientists has decided there's little that can be done in civil defence against an atomic-bomb attack.

"The likely number of casualties caused by an atom bomb is so large that to save even a few per cent of them is an objective worth a considerable effort," their report says.

The report on civil defence in atomic warfare, prepared by scientists from Birmingham University, was published today in the Atomic Scientists' News, organ of the Atomic Scientists Association.

They estimate a single atomic bomb on a British city would cause 100,000 casualties. They assume one-half would survive.

The scientists say their studies showed "the magnitude of the problem created by an atomic attack is such that civil defence measures are quite useless unless they include preparations on very large scale, and unless details of the situations liable t arise are carefully thought out advance. . ."

OIL AND WATER DO MIX

There is a knack to it, of course, but oil and water can be mixed to form a smooth, uniform liquid.

Actually, there is more to it than a knack. It is a technic known to pharmacy as emulsification. With a mortar and pestle, the pharmacist first mixes the oil with a vegetable gum. This separates the oil into tiny globules and coats each with a thin film of gum. Adding the water slowly, with brisk stirring, the pharmacist suspends the gum-coated globules of oil and produces a smooth, white liquid which resembles milk. As a matter of fact, milk itself is an emulsion of butter fat in water.

Physicians often prescribe emulsions for patients who dislike the taste or sensation of swallowing an oily liquid. An emulsion can be pleasantly flavored, and is a form of medication well suited to children.

When your physician prescribes an emulsion, or any other special form of medication, you can be confident that your pharmacist possesses the specific knowledge necessary for its preparation. He has devoted long and continuing years of study to drugs and their behavior under varying conditions. No matter how complicated or difficult the prescription, this rigid scientific training has prepared him to compound medicaments into the precise form requested by your doctor. Your pharmacist is a professional man, thoroughly conscious of the responsibilities and obligations of his calling.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

S.A. Features New Series of Broadcasts

A new series of Salvation Army transcriptions is now being carried by sixty Canadian stations, and is heard locally over station CJBQ, each Sunday at 4.30. The elements of band and vocal music are combined with drama under the program title "This is my Story" and make for an inspirational thirty minutes of listening.

A composite band and chorus, whose members have been handpicked from the best of Salvation Army bands and vocal groups, provide hymns old and new together with some of the stirring martial music for which army bands are well known.

The dramatic portions of the program bring to life actual incidents from the Salvation Army's voluminous record book. Stories of material need met or human redemption assisted illustrate the Salvation Army's "human touch and understanding heart" in action. Most of the dramatic portions prove, without particularly attempting to do so, that "truth is stranger than fiction."

This is a new venture for the Salvation Army. They are anxious to share their gladness of spirit, their music and their message, with (to use a phrase from the program sign-off) "everyone everywhere."

Police Blotter

Automobiles do not of their own account go on cruises about the city without the knowledge of their owner, but just this apparently occurred Tuesday evening.

James Cornell, South George Street, had parked his car on Pinnacle Street and when he returned for it the vehicle was missing. He reported the matter to police and a short time later the car was found right where it had been originally parked. Questioning of a party suspected of taking the car proved fruitless.

Two young Thurlow township boys, Kenneth Jeffrey and Stan Sanderson who had parked their bicycles at the curb on Station Street had their bikes damaged by a passing car which failed to stop. The licence number of the car was secured but the owner said he had loaned his car to another party for the afternoon. The matter is being investigated further.

Several residents in various parts of the city reported prowlers being seen around their premises. When police officers searched the areas in question however, no suspicious characters were seen.

Unemployment Shows Some Increase Here

The slackening off in construction work in the immediate Belleville area has resulted in considerable job scarcity with about 320 persons of both sexes being on claim with the national employment office at the present time.

This number, according to Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the local employment office, included the whole of Hastings there being about 75 unemployed outside of a twelve-mile radius of the city.

"I could put 100 laborers to work tomorrow on construction work," stated Mr. Reed today.

At the present time there are from 50 to 60 semi-skilled carpenters out of work who could be put to work should a construction job of any major importance commence. When the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation started their project of 100 additional rental homes on the former county home property south of the highway, it was expected most of these men would be put into jobs.

Mr. Reed stated the 320 persons unemployed in the county was not as bad as it would at first appear because this included a number of persons with low medical category who could do only light work.

Walking Stick Insect Found

Ever see a walking walking stick?

One of these rarely seen insects which closely resemble a bit of dry evergreen branch, was picked up this week in the Frankford district by Mr. Herbert Clare, 41 Baldwin Street, who with Mrs. Clare and their son Paul are camping at a cottage along the Trent River.

He had never seen such a specimen before so he visited the local Dominion Parasite laboratory where it was identified as a walking stick. The insects are two or more inches in length and have legs and body almost as thin as toothpicks.

It was stated the insects have been used for cancer research at the Banting Institute, but are seldom seen in the Bay of Quinte district.

'ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR'

London, Ont., July 27 (CP) — An "absent - minded professor" gave city detectives considerable work Tuesday night when he reported he had lost a sports jacket containing $320 in American and Canadian checks.

Police investigation early today found the man, George J. Drassos, of Chicago, a professor, had left his jacket at a city garage. The contents were not touched.

ANTWERP MONKS COMING

Lacolle, Que., July 27 (CP). — Monks of the Roman Catholic Abbey of Tongerloo in Antwerp are expected to arrive at nearby St. Bernard in September to establish the first Canadian House of their congregation—Ordre des Premontres.

Preliminary plans for the new monastery—to be built entirely by the Monks themselves—were made following the recent arrival in Montreal of Rev. Gom Van Den Broeck, prior of the Abbey of Tongerloo.

War Devastation in Germany Worse Than World Imagines, Kiwanis Told

"No one who has not visited Europe has any idea of the devastation of Germany," stated Dr. Owen Davies, international good-will ambassador from New Zealand, radio commentator, and movie actor, in an address to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon meeting held Tuesday afternoon.

"I thought Coventry was badly bombed but it was nothing compared to Germany. One city of 80,000 people had half its citizens and 98 per cent of its business area wiped out in thirty minutes. This is general for cities of its size in Germany. I am 42 years old now, and I do not expect that in my lifetime Germany will be rebuilt."

Dr. Davies, who spent 12 months in Germany as an aide to UNRRA went on to give the members some of his impressions of the Nuremburg trials which he attended, and an account of the concentration camps and horror chambers which the Nazi regime maintained.

"Everything which you read about the camps at Dauchau and Belsen, were true," he asserted. "The death inflicted on thousands of helpless persons was turned to commercial purposes with the manufacture of soap from human fat, and the stuffing of mattresses with human hair."

Hitler Alive

The speaker continued, "I would not be surprised if Hitler and Eva Braun were discovered to be alive. At one time he had seven doubles touring the Reich and in all probability it was one of his doubles who was found in the Berlin chancellory.

"So terrible was the destruction of Germany that there are 6,000,000 surplus women in that country today. There are more than 2,000,000 German males held captive by the Russians behind the Iron Curtain, whose chances of being returned to their mother country are slight. For this reason, any German woman whose husband has not returned by the end of this summer, will be free legally to marry again.

"UNRRA was one of the most satisfying works done by the United Nations at the war's end, and it did its work well."

Milk and Honey

The speaker then turned to a discussion of New Zealand and Australia. He termed New Zealand, "God's Own Country", and a land of "milk and honey", where unemployment is unknown and where people live to a long and happy old age, protected from life's stresses by a benevolent government that cares for its citizens with a liberal hand.

"A children's allowance of two dollars a week for all children to the age of 16, and old age pensions of $10 a week, plus employment of four dollars a week, together with beneficent insurance plans and a free educational system to university level is provided by the government."

Under questioning the speaker stated that the average tax paid in New Zealand per person is $268 annually, from a population of 1,700,000.

"Australia and New Zealand are the Gibraltars of the East," Dr. Davies remarked. "And today the problems of the Pacific are grave. The Communists are gaining control of the East."

The speaker warned against letting minority groups gain control of government because the majority of the citizens are apathetic. "The terrible conditions in Great Britain and Australia are the result of minority groups gaining control of government and crippling the countries because the masses are apathetic."

The speaker concluded his remarks by outlining some of the attractions to be found in the Antipodes including their abundant game, and unusual animals.

Dr. Davies was introduced by Harry Trepanier and received the thanks of the club as expressed by Frank Creeggan.

Ghosts of Dead Sailors Haunt Moira, Talk With Pals; Sink Boat, is Claim

Ghosts are haunting the lower stretches of the Moira River.

S'help me, it's true. That is if you believe the story of two nautical neophytes who swear by the tail-light of the great god Bud that they have not only seen these mist-shrouded visitors but have talked with them.

And that is not all.

The ghostly visitors, claimed to be the shrouded counterparts of two sailor heroes who sank with their Canadian destroyer in a World War II naval action, also quaffed beakers of suds, and to prove their seagoing ability scuttled and sank the good ship "Dingmanus" off the Government Dock a few days ago.

That is the story unfolded by two gentlemen of the stilson wrench, furnace-repair industry, who returned from a bay cruise, scared but sincere in the narration of the yarn.

It seems they chartered the seagoing tug "Dingmanus" last Saturday afternoon. Armed with fishing gear, five gallons of gasoline, a full tank (fuel, that is), two fishing poles, 16½ minnows, a box of brew, and a lot of optimism, they cast off from the "Dingmanus" river pier and set sail.

A Pleasant Afternoon

The afternoon passed pleasantly. The motor purred like a well-fed kitten. The fish weren't biting. They couldn't. No bait was offered them. The sun sank slowly in the west. And our Drake and Nelson, unperturbed by approaching darkness, cruised slowly on the placid waters of the bay.

The shadows fell. It was nearly dark when they turned the prow of the "Dingmanus" toward her river bed. Then it happened.

Two figures, shadowy in the failing light stood on the government dock. A voice hailed the drowsy homecoming heroes.

Then one of them snapped into sudden life. "My G . . . , Murgatroyd," he yelled, "do you see what I see "

His pal gazed in astonishment at the figures on the dock.

Now let him tell it.

Ghost Talk

"S'help me, as we neared the dock we could make out the boys we sailed with on the destroyer . . . . . It was them as sure as I'm a foot high. We pulled over to the dock and they climbed aboard. We sat there staring. They talked and laughed of the old days on the battlewagon, and other wagons. It was five years ago that they went down with the ship.

"Then they looked aft. They grinned and reached for two containers of malt-'n'-hops. They drank them. One, Jack, then took over the wheel and the first thing we knew there was a resounding crash, and the boat started to sink. They roared with laughter and disappeared over the side. The boat sank in shallow water and we stood hip-deep trying to hold the boat afloat. But it was no go. She settled. We came ashore."

That is the story told to the owner of the "Dingmanus."

Meanwhile the boat settled — but the "sailors haven't". The engine was found full of water, but the sailors weren't. The boat was sunk — and so is the owner as far as immediate fishing is concerned. The sailors were left holding the boat by their ghostly companions — the owner is left holding the bag.

Now he is looking for a brand new boat, and the water - logged heroes should look for a new brand.

Two Constables Join City Force

Two new constables were taken on the Belleville Police Force this week, the new men being sworn in Tuesday by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The new officers are Constable Cecil Cook and Constable Harry McKee, both of this city.

Both men are veterans of the last war, Constable Cook having served five and one half years. He enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment later transferring to the 14th Field Regiment and served four and a half years overseas. He is 34, married with three children and lives at 20 Henry Street.

Constable McKee is 27 years of age and was born in Warkworth, his family having lived in Belleville for the past eight years. During the war he served with the Canadian Provost Corps and served overseas for 11 months with the RCASC. He is also married with three children and lives at 248 Foster Ave.

OBITUARY

JAMES A. MURRAY

James Agnacious Murray, 112 Cannifton Road, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday afternoon. He was in failing health for the past seven months.

Born in this city the late Mr. Murray was in his 47th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Murray. All his life was passed here and at one time he was in the employ of the Canadian National Railways; of late years he was employed at the Stephens-Adamson plant. He was a member of St. Michael's Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Adeline Hudgins; one son, Donald at home; two sisters, Mrs. Roy (Catherine) Covert, California, and Mrs. William (Mary) Pomeroy, Kitchener; four brothers, Leo Murray, Jack Murray and Frank Murray, all of Belleville, and Joseph Murray of Toronto.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until late Wednesday afternoon, then at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Dan Murray, Byron Street, off Cannifton Road; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

WALTER PERCIVAL HULL
(Point Anne)

Walter Percival Hull, who died as the result of electrocution at the plant of the Canada Cement Company, Point Anne, on Tuesday morning, was born in England and was in his 44th year. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hull now reside on Herchimer Avenue, Thurlow township. For the past thirty years he was in the employ of the Canada Cement Company and of late years served as a repairman. He was a member of the United Church at Point Anne and was well respected in the community.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Hannah Guthrie; one son, Harris, at home; his parents; two brothers, William of Herchimer Avenue, Thurlow township, and Robert, of Point Anne; three sisters, Mrs. Arthur Woods, Toronto; Mrs. William Guay, Point Anne, and Mrs. Ted Stewart, Point Anne.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Wednesday afternoon, then at his late residence, Point Anne; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE
MELZER EDWARD FERGUSON

The funeral of Melzer Edward Ferguson, late residence, 143 West Moira Street, was held Tuesday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. C. A. Perkins, minister of Holloway Street United Church.

The bearers were Blake Cross, Roy Wardle, Norman Hickson, Thomas Beninger, Gordon DeMille and Roy Peters.

Inquest Opens In Hull Death

The preliminary inquest looking into the death of Walter Hull, 43, Canada Cement Company maintenance employee at Point Anne, was held at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home Tuesday evening. Following identification the hearing was adjourned until August 4th., at 8 p.m. in the county buildings. Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennent conducted the preliminary hearing with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown.

Mr. Hull died yesterday when he apparently was electrocuted by coming into contact with the power conductor of an overhead crane.

Fall Wheat Yield In Quinte Area 25 Bu. Per Acre

Yield of fall wheat in the Bay of Quinte area is very satisfactory, it is reported by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in their weekly crop report. In Prince Edward county the yield has averaged about 25 bushels per acre, while reports from other areas have been equally as good.

In Hastings county it is stated that oats are possibly about 50 per cent of the normal crop, but in Prince Edward some early oats have returned as high as 50 bushels per acre. However, the drop is generally light.

Farmers in the immediate Belleville area have had no difficulty in securing suitable farm help for the summer due principally to the slack in construction work. Most of the men working on farms for the summer have farming experience but have been working in construction since the war. Seven western farm laborers and 12 from Nova Scotia were brought to Hastings this year as farm help.

Wages for outside farm help is $75 per month, with local laborers being paid as high as $3 per day.

"Due to the slack in construction work, we have had no difficulty in supplying farm laborers this year," stated H. H. Reed, manager of the local employment office.

In Prince Edward county the milk flow is falling off as result of dried pastures. The tomato crop is reported as growing well.

SAYS HE DROVE 26 YEARS WITHOUT LICENCE

Cooksville, July 27 (CP). — Telmer D. Johnson, 44, of Hamilton who told police he had driven some 26 years without a licence when arrested near this Toronto suburb last July 11, was fined $10 and costs in court here today. Police said a check of Highway Department records failed to reveal any record of a licence in Johnson's name.

NOTICE

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the hundreds of citizens and business people of the City of Belleville for their support in our efforts to bring added first class hotel accommodation to this city. However, due to the attitude shown toward us by some of the members of the City Council and a minority of citizens and the fact that both the council and the Chamber of Commerce of a very progressive city have, for the past few weeks, been negotiating with us to locate there, we have decided to remove our capital from Belleville for investment elsewhere.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Chas. H. McGee express sincere thanks and appreciation to Doctor Bateman and Doctor Carleton; also special and staff nurses of Belleville General Hospital for their kind attention during his illness; to the many friends who visited with him, sent flowers and cards, and in many other ways showed sympathy. To Rev. W. H. V. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. A. J. Anderson of St. John's Anglican Church, both of Stirling, and Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple of George St. United Church, Peterborough, for their sympathetic understanding during our recent sad bereavement. J27

PRESS PRAISED

Washington, July 27 (AP). — President Truman who in the past has had some biting things to say about the American press spoke a good word Tuesday. He told a group of German and Austrian editors and publishers that the United States has a "great many wonderful newspapers". Truman did not name any he had in mind.

Missing Boy Found By Father on Farm Four Miles Away

Maniwaki, Que., July 27—(CP)—Victorin Drouin, 12, who has been missing from his home in Maniwaki since last Saturday, was found Tuesday by his father on a farm four miles north of here. Maniwaki is about 70 miles north of Ottawa.

A full-scale search was being organized when his whereabouts was made known. He apparently left home for personal reasons.

Meanwhile, no trace has been found of another district resident, Xavier Villeneuve, 77, who has been missing from his farm home for the last 10 days. Parties of Indians from a nearby reservation are combing the area for his whereabouts.

Cousins Scalded When Water Pots Upset, One Dies

Peterborough, July 27 — (CP)—Bruce Oakley, 19 months, and his cousin Maureen Oakley, 21 months, upset two pots of boiling water over themselves Monday night while playing in the kitchen of their home. Tuesday night Bruce died from the burns and Maureen is still in critical condition.

Baby Bruce was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Oakley. Maureen is the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Oakley. Both families live in the same wartime house in the southwest section of the city.

It is believed the children were tussling together in the kitchen while the parents were in another part of the house. Apparently they caught the cord of a small electric stove on which potatoes and carrots were boiling for the evening meal, and pulled the pots of boiling water and stove down on top of them.

Bruce was burned from the neck down. Maureen had burns on her back, legs and one arm.

Bruce's mother had just returned from the hospital where she had had an appendicitis operation.

Boy Who Grasped High Tension Wire Makes Progress

Woodstock, Ont., July 27 (CP) — Hospital officials today reported that nine-year-old Douglas Campbell, who suffered arm, leg and chest burns when he grasped a 8,000 volt high tension wire last Monday, is making "good progress."

The youth on a picnic with two friends suffered the burns when he grasped the wire while climbing a maple tree. His brother, Donald, 10, noticed smoke, climbed up and knocked Douglas loose. Hydro officials said a few seconds delay in the rescue would have killed the youth.

Gophers Found Infected With Bubonic Plague

Lethbridge, Alta., July 27 — (CP)—Gophers infected with Bubonic Plague have been found in the Lomond district, 50 miles north of this southern Alberta city, it was learned Monday. J. H. Brown, entomologist for the Provincial Department of Public Health, said in an interview that laboratory tests of gophers found in that area revealed the menace. Surveys have shown that gophers in the Gleichen area, southeast of Calgary, are also infected.

NEW ALLERGY FOUND

Los Angeles, July 27 (AP)—Here's a new allergy—a husband.

"Every time I was near him I would break out in a rash from head to toe," Mrs. Joyce Holdridge, 27, told the court in seeking a divorce. "Physicians and psychiatrists finally told me I would have to leave him."

Mrs. Holdridge added the rash doesn't bother her now, as she lives here and her husband, Nolan H. Holdridge, 26, in San Francisco.

But Judge Ray Brockman denied a decree. An allergy doesn't constitute grounds for divorce, he ruled.

Ottawa Hospital Given Clean Bill of Health

Ottawa, July 27—(CP)—Ottawa Civic Hospital was given a clean bill of health Tuesday by Judge A. G. McDougall.

Charges of inefficiency and maladministration contained in Ottawa Citizen editorials published earlier this year were found to be "not substantiated by the evidence" of a judicial investigation conducted by Judge McDougall. He found the charges "do not exist in fact."

In an editorial today, the Citizen says the former patients who testified at the inquiry had "two strikes against them."

Illness a Factor

It notes that Judge McDougall reported there was always a possibility "that their physical and nervous system would be so upset as to make it difficult for them to form reasonable conclusions."

"It would appear, therefore," the editorial says, "that it would be difficult if not impossible for former hospital patients to establish before a judicial inquiry, proof in a form satisfactory to the presiding judge, of conditions they experienced or saw. For it is obvious that their testimony would be heavily discounted in advance by any member of the judiciary who holds the opinion expressed."

Hearings of 70 witnesses during seven day of March, April and May constituted the judical probe into editorials published Feb. 28 and March 4, 1949.

List of Complaints

Complaints were made that rooms were dirty, that nurses had been seen dancing in the halls of the hospital and that women in the labor room of the maternity ward could see patients in the delivery room.

The report said that three or four complaints out of an estimated 2,500 cases a year did not seem very serious. It summed up: "having in mind all conditions that affect that institution, it is efficiently operated and maintained."

Atlanta Judge Wounds Lawyer Opponent in Suits

Atlanta, July 27 (AP)—An Atlanta judge early today shot down a lawyer, his opponent in a tangle of divorce suits and other legal actions.

At about 2:30 a.m., police reported, Judge Robert Carpenter, 44, pulled his car alongside one driven by lawyer John Lockwood, 53, and fired at him five times with a pistol.

One shot wounded the lawyer in the face. He ran from the car and tumbled into a muddy, 40-foot-deep hole. A hospital later reported his condition was fair.

Carpenter and Lockwood were former business associates, out in recent months had become bitter opponents in nine court actions.

The judge was sued for divorce by his wife, Mrs. Helen Carpenter, who charged cruelty. She also filed a $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Estelle G. Manful, alleging the judge was in love with her.

Carpenter in turn filed a divorce action against Mrs. Carpenter. In it he alleged Lockwood had joined with Mrs. Carpenter in an effort to defraud him of control of a hotel. He also charged that Lockwood, whom he described as one of his best friends, and his wife planned to be married themselves.

Lockwood filed a suit against Carpenter, claiming the judge owed him $10,000 for legal services in filing income tax adjustment claims. He also filed a $100,000 slander suit against Carpenter.

Police said the judge freely admitted shooting Lockwood. Police said they found a blackjack and a .38-calibre pistol in Carpenter's car. They said they found a .25-calibre automatic in the lawyer's. It had not been fired. Judge Carpenter was released on $500 bond.

SHAW AT 93

George Bernard Shaw has lived to the age of 93 years and is still a creator of literature. It is a matter of great importance that such a man should live to this age, all the while he is creating something new in his chosen field.

At 93 Shaw can look upon a longer career and life than most men. Many great writers have passed early in their careers while others have lived the usual span of years. But Shaw has passed them.

Millions who have read his works and seen his plays will wish him long years ahead. As for himself he has not appeared to weaken with his entrance into the nineties. In his great age he has produced works that appeal and that he will be remembered after he has ceased to write and after his course has run, seems certain, whether one likes his doctrines or not.

Though he has said that "death, now knocking at my door, is not an unwelcome guest," he on the mountain peaks of life, has made his contribution to modern thinking and has achieved in the drama some of the finest works of the past generation or two. He has helped to mold men's thoughts and his satire has made him one of the wits whose every word is preserved and cherished.

Shaw, whose wit is one of the most brilliant in the English language, is assured of a futurity of fame for the volume of the work he has achieved is something of which the English-speaking world is proud. He has spoken fearlessly for his ideals and cannot fail to leave a mark on his times and later.

THE RAILWAYS

There is at present running a series of advertisements by the Canadian Car and Foundry Company, Limited, in respect to the railways of the Dominion and their importance in Canada's national economy. Important as the people realize the railways are, they cannot but be surprised by the traffic which the rails bear. How these lines link up this extensive land stretching from ocean to ocean is a contemplation which cannot fail to surprise those who take the time to look into the achievements which can be credited to the railway lines.

These articles are doing a service to the country in bringing to newspaper readers how great are the systems of railway lines which cover the country in so effective a manner. Canada is one of the greatest producers of agricultural products, lumber and mining products, all factors which have a world value in this age of international trade. The railways transport these products to their destination in Canada and to the borders and the ports for exportation abroad and they also bring to the people in every part of Canada products and imports from other nations.

In every sense the railway lines are the vital sinews of strength which tirelessly labor to serve the people and the country. One has only to think back a few years to realize how the rail lines served in a manner which did yeoman service to the United Nations by carrying to them products of food and materials needed for the conduct of the struggle.

A look around Canada shows how vital the railways are to the Dominion. Distribution is a vast problem and the rail lines are doing magnificently in the development of the country by the efficiency with which they face and meet these questions.

Our railways are the Dominion's greatest industrial adventure as it is pointed out in this series of advertisements which the Canadian Car and Foundry Company Limited, the great builders of railway rolling stock and cars of every type, has been publishing, doing a national service in first of all serving the needs of the railways as builders of equipment and in drawing public notice to the system of railway lines which have done so greatly to develop Canada. Healthy, adequate railways are a first necessity in a country so great as Canada. They carry 25 million tons of food in a year and they spend for wages and purchases the equal of 13 cents out of every dollar of the revenue of Canada.

The Vatican's excommunication of Catholics who give belief, aid or comfort to communism creates no new sin and enunciates no new dogma. It is but recognition and assertion of a self-evident truth: The truth that inasmuch as communism is atheism, so professed and so glorified by its prophets and propagandists, no Christian can in fact profess communism and remain a Christian. The two faiths are irreconcilable.—Ottawa Journal.

A lovely song was lost.

The microphone and radio
In some strange way were blent,
A prize fight broadcast, blow by blow,
Into the hall was sent.

The shrieks which fell upon the ears
The strains of music drowned,
Nor all the skillful engineers
Could check the fearful sound.

Machines, it seems, as humans err
And pitiful the cost!
Order and beauty banished were
When two small wires were crossed.

The outing of the employees of the Ritchie Company, which took place yesterday at Twelve O'Clock Point was enjoyed. The steamer William Booth conveyed the party to the Point. Mr. W. H. Gordon, a member of the firm, was present and the staff expressed to him their appreciation for the pleasant holiday.

Mayor J. W. Johnson and family left today to spend some time at the Sand Banks.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE POWER OF CONFIDENCE

Doubters never build anything. One pessimist can tear down the patient achievement of a dozen hard-working men. If we do not believe we can do a thing, we are probably right. Success depends upon many things, but above everything else it depends upon our confidence that success is possible. Start any project with a conviction that it will not succeed, and your worst fears will come true.

The reason for this appears to be that the spirit of the whole universe is positive, not negative. The rising of the sun every day the rotation of the seasons, the springing of new life, the discovery of eternal truth—all these events are positive in their nature rather than negative. The essence of the universe is affirmation, not denial. Jesus declared that if we pray for something and believe that we have received it, we will soon discover—perhaps to our amazement—that we have actually received it.

Success stories without number have stemmed from the theme that you can't keep a good man down. The man who believes he can do a thing has already won half his battle. Confidence is not the only quality we need for success, but we may be sure that without confidence success is impossible.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Something that is puzzling the philosophers of science—if there are such—is that in many instances, quality comes out of poverty.

In fact, if you eliminate the poverty, the quality vanishes too.

The example I have in mind is the Shetland sheep with its incomparably silky wool. Until the Norsemen began roving the North Sea and founding colonies, the small wild Shetland sheep provided a wool that was already famous. The Norsemen introduced a bigger sheep; and in modern times, the Shetland has been crossed with the famous Blackface and Cheviot strains. But enough of the old wild native sheep and the Norse introductions remains to give the Shetland wool a character all its own. Every modern introduction only cheapens and coarsens it.

Now, these Shetland sheep live on very harsh and spare grass and on the "tangle" along the sea shores of the isles. Poverty actually describes the food conditions upon which these famed sheep have to survive. Here comes the payoff: if these old Shetland sheep are moved onto good green pasture, their character alters, their fleece, within a couple of generations, loses its silky texture. Out of poverty comes their quality.

Science, so completely sold on quality, is trying to find out if the idea that quantity means there isn't something in the chemical nature of the Shetland soil which is responsible for the beautiful texture of Shetland wool.

But the fact appears to be that a high standard of living does not—in the case of sheep, anyway—result in an improvement of quality and character. Maybe one of the reasons races of humans rise and fall is that they get their standard of living too high. We have a lot to find out yet.

Ex-Premier Hopeful of Japan For Future

(Associated Press News Analyst)

The great metropolitan air and sea port of New York is the gateway through which pours an endless stream of the world's striking personalities.

I've just spent some time with one of the interesting transients—Tetsu Katayama, Japan's first Socialist premier who came to power in the country's first postwar election. He is out of office now and has been making an intensive study of socialism's progress in European countries, in preparation for a fresh Socialist campaign in Japan.

Nippon's Socialist leader is a 62-year-old lawyer who was elected premier in May, 1947, by an almost unanimous vote of the House of Representatives under the new constitution. However his party didn't have a majority.

His government fell after some ten months before a combined Conservative and Communist assault, aided by the desertion of his own left wingers.

No Compromise

He was emphatic in declaring that Socialism and Communism couldn't work together—that there could be no successful compromise. The Japanese Socialists, he said, would develop along their own lines, quite apart from the Communists.

Katayama said he believed that moral rehabilitation must be an integral part of Japan's recovery. He reminded me that he is a Christian, whereupon I asked him if he felt that the principles of the Sermon on the Mount could be applied in his country in view of the fact that most of its people belong to other religions.

He said that those great principles could be accepted by any religion, providing theological arguments were left out. In short, a person needn't subscribe to Christianity to be a believer in those principles. With that I asked him:

"You recently asked the forgiveness of Japan's late enemies for her attack on them in the World War, didn't you?"

An Apology

He gave a start of surprise, and then nodded with a grin. Yes, he had apologized. Japan had been wrong.

Katayama's apology, which probably was unique among statesmen, was made June 11 at Caux, Switzerland. It was tendered during an address before the world assembly of the moral rearmament movement, which was attended by delegates from many of Japan's former enemies. Katayama told them:

"I would like to take this opturnity of asking forgiveness for the great crime committed by us against our neighbors, especially the people of the east. We are fighting to build a new Japan, a peace-loving and democratic nation."

So he is going back home, he told me, to battle not only for the economic but for the moral rehabilitation of Japan. He thinks these two things must go hand in hand if the country is to succeed.

Letters to the Editor

Owns Old Coin

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I was interested in the letters printed in your paper regarding old coins.

I have an old half penny of George III reign and dated 1774, which I found while working in my garden when I lived in Fort Erie.

I also found some small iron shot that were used in cannon shells, probably in the war of 1812 and some flint arrow heads used by the Indians.

Child Coaxes 'Doggie', Mother Looks Then Flees

Ansonville, Ont., July 26 (CP).—Anything that has four feet and fur is a "doggie" to 15-months-old Donna Powers.

That's why she tried to coax a 175-pound black bear to come to her while she was holidaying at the family summer camp in this Northern Ontario community, 35 miles northeast of Timmins.

Walking along a trail with her mother and friends, the child suddenly stopped and called: "Doggie, mamma, doggie." Her mother looked around and saw a bear just 15 feet away amid a clump of poplar trees. Screaming hysterically the group ran to the summer cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Cutten, while little Donna kept calling to the "doggie".

The bear approached the cabin and scratched at the door. Mrs. Cutten, an amateur photographer, snapped several pictures.

Mustering her courage, Mrs. Powers ran to call her husband, Edward, who was cutting a trail nearby. Powers returned and killed the bear with one shot.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOVE'S INTIMACY

We do not love another because of a fragile face, but because of something that is already our own. As Sir Thomas Browne has so well said: "We forget their looks, nor can our memory retain the idea of their faces; and it is no wonder, for they are ourselves, and our affection makes their looks our own."

A great love keeps creeping into every crack and crevice of our consciousness. Like that of a mother's. So that it may well be said that we are nourished with an endless stream of love, to a greater or lesser degree, from all with whom we have come in contact. To every one met we owe a gift of gratitude. A mere glance of the eye may have been a ray of love that just had to find a landing!

There is a flavoring of love in every kindness, every generous act, and every high purpose it cements the world together. Love only cracks and falls apart when it has taken flight because of neglect or banishment. The song that serenades you upon awakening is merely expressing its joy of life, and translating it all into a love song.

Think how inexpensive it would be to set out to conquer the world through love! No great taxes to pay for that kind of conquering, and every nation would be the winner. That would be a demonstration of the intelligence that the Creator has endowed us with, but which we have failed to recognize as our greatest heritage. Christ's ministry was one of love, but they crucified Him. Love and happiness have a difficult time edging in on trade and gold.

Henry Drummond many years ago wrote a famous little book on "The Greatest Thing in the World," which he designated as love. It is still the greatest. Too many things in our daily lives, however, crowd it out. It has to be watered and nourished to keep it warm and intimate, and when this is done, no other investment in the world gives back such large dividends in happiness.

No earthly grave can bury love. Love lives forever, as it is buried in the hearts of those to whom it has been given. And it is transferable from generation to generation. It is the one thing that is everlasting, influencing all time.

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

THE TONSILS AND FOCAL INFECTION

The concept of "focal infection" was introduced to practice by Drs. Frank Billings and E. C. Rosenow in the first decade of this century. Billings ascribed endocarditis (inflammation of heart lining and value covering membrane) to such infection in Archives of Internal Medicine, '09 and Rosenow reported his study of Pneumococci from cases of infectious endocarditis in Jour. of Infetious Diseases, '10.

Focal infection, in plain words, means that one or another type or strain of disease germs gains entrance, a foothold, say in a tonsil, the root of a tooth, a pocket in the gum, the pharyngeal tonsil (adenoid), nasal sinus, middle ear, pelvic organs, anywhere in the body. The germs multiply and thrive in the newly established colony and sooner or later are likely to break out from the original beach-head and travel in the blood stream to some distant part of the body and establish a new colony there, say in the lining of a joint (arthritis, rheumatism) or the lining of the heart (endocarditis, valvular trouble).

Physicians had long since known that acute diseases such as "inflammatory rheumatism" (rheumatic fever) and septicemia (acute blood poisoning) followed some such primary and generally minor ailment as repeated sore throat or neglected minor wounds. Drs. Billings and Rosenow showed that the same course of development in characteristic of much chronic disease, such as chronic arthritis, chronic nephritis (Bright's disease), neuritis (inflammation of a nerve), myocarditis (degeneration of heart muscle).

As nearly as I can learn, there are two reasons for removing tonsils, first, obstruction of breathing, and second, the deliberate opinion of the patient's physician that the tonsil harbors a focus of infection which is or may be the source of systemic infection. In either case no specialist, surgeon or other doctor is as competent as the patient's own doctor to decide whether the patient's condition warrants a major operation (for tonsillectomy, the attempt to remove the entire tonsil, involves risk of life), a minor operation (which tonsillotomy, the instantaneous excision of the obstructing portion of tonsil, may be fairly called) or conservative treatment such as diathermy (electrocoagulation) to disinfect or pasteurize or sterilize the infected crypt or other are.

The surgeon, specialist or physician who examines the throat for the first time and advises removal of the tonsils without consultation with the patient's family or regular physician is hardly worthy of popular confidence.

The focal infection theory or principle of practice is scientific and sound, when it is applied as Billings, Rosenow and their followers taught. It is no excuse for the bumbling "surgeon" or "specialist" risking the very lives of gullible customers who undergo tonsillectomy in the hope that their rheumatiz, gastric ulcer or gall-bladder trouble will get better. In a few instances such hope may be fulfilled, but in most instances the operation has no effect on the systematic trouble.

It is not scientific pathology, although it makes an effective talking point for the ever ready operator to attempt to "get" or remove every bit of tonsil tissue, except in rare cases of malignancy when the lesion is limited to the tonsil (tuberculosis, actinomycosis, Hansen's disease, syphilis or cancer).

In any case when the question of focal infection arises the judgment of the patient's regular or family physician outweighs the opinion of any surgeon, specialist or "clinic" employe in regard to the course of treatment and the fate of the tonsils.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Homesickness

We moved here less than a year ago, and I was terribly homesick—until only the other day when I was delighted to find our old friend Dr. Brady in the paper here. You may not realize it, but this is just the medicine I needed. My homesickness is gone now! (C. W.)

Answer—I am delighted too.

Brittle

Does calcium make bones in an elderly person brittle? (Mrs. M. L. M.)

Answer—No, lack of calcium in the bones of elderly persons accounts for such brittleness.

Itching

Can pruritus be cured without an operation? (E. H. C.)

Answer—Pruritus is itching without apparent cause. In most instances no operation is necessary. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet on Pruritus.

Not a Long Distance

Have trouble with bleeding gums. Also eyes frequently redrimmed. Digestion fair. (R. F. B.)

Answer—This is not a long distance diagnostic institution, but just a health column.

Sunday School Has Enjoyable Picnic at Wellington Park

Burr's — Upwards of 40 gathered for dinner at Burr's Sunday School picnic at Wellington Park Thursday. Games and prizes were arranged for the younger classes. The Misses Doris Clark, Eleanor Clark, Donna Parks, Lois Squire and Paul Squire were among the successful competitors.

The superintendent, Donald Parks, treated all the children to ice cream.

Following the afternoon's activities supper was enjoyed, supplemented by generous servings of ice cream.

Guests at the picnic included Miss Helen Eleanor Herrington of New York; Mrs. A. Adams, Wellington, and Miss B. Dick of Gilead.

On Wednesday evening Bowerman's W.A. sponsored a successful ice cream social at Allisonville Hall, also served pie and cake. A well arranged program completed a delightful time.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harns attended the Wallbridge family picnic at Presqu'Ile on Sunday.

Miss Barbara Dick, Gilead, is a holiday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burr. Sunday she was the dinner guest of Miss Lois Squire.

Mrs. L. Burlington, Wellington, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Val Squire and family this week.

Several from this way attended the miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dempsey at Crofton Hall on Friday evening. Mrs. Stanley Werden read an appropriate address after which they were assisted in opening the varied gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Glenn, Stirling, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Osterhout.

Mrs. Lucy Powers, Vancouver, is the guest of her son, Mr. Harry Powers and family, Allisonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vincent, with Frankford friends, enjoyed a recent cruise around the Thousand Islands.

Mr. C. Fulford has recently had hydro installed in his barn. Mr. W. Morton has his home wired for electricity.

Miss Eleanor Harrington, M.B.E., was the guest of Mrs. Earl Anderson, William Street the past week and guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burr on Thursday.

Mrs. Ross Burr and Mrs. Ronald Burr, accompanied by Mrs. Earl Anderson and guests, Miss Helen Herrington and Miss Lenora Herrington, enjoyed a drive to Batawa.

No Divorce Law In Newfoundland Until Union

By JOE MacSWEEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's, Nfld., July 27 (CP) — Divorce was one of the things that came to Newfoundland with Confederation.

Although the new province has no divorce law of its own, applicants may petition the Federal government in the same manner as is done in Quebec. Previously, it was impossible to obtain a divorce in Newfoundland.

At least one notice of application already has appeared in St. John's newspapers. The application — like others of its kind — will be considered first by the Canadian Senate and, if approved, referred to the House of Commons. There divorces are granted by acts of parliament.

All provinces except Quebec and Newfoundland have their own divorce mechanism — varying in different places.

The issue of divorce was hotly debated in the National Convention, leading up to consideration of and eventual union between this island and Canada.

Premier Smallwood said there is no possibility whatever that divorce legislation will be introduced at the current session of the Newfoundland Legislature.

At present there were only about 12 divorced couples in this island of some 325,000. They had broken their bonds in other countries before Confederation.

Another authority said the factor of religion likely would go far to weaken the cause of any move for local untying of the knot. This city — with nearly one-fifth of the total population — is approximately two-thirds Roman Catholic and likely would frown on any such suggestion, in line with the tenets of the church.

OIL CUT SUGGESTED

Calgary, July 26 — (CP)— A drastic cut in production allowed wells in the Leduc oilfield was recommended to the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board Monday by the Imperial Oil Company. Making the company's submission to the board, E. D. Wilson, Imperial's Divisional Petroleum engineer, said the cuts would protect and extend the life of the field.

Community Welcomes Young Couple With Handsome Gifts

Halloway — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson, Halloway, was the scene of the happy get-to-gether on Friday evening, July 15th, when a large number of friends, relatives and neighbors met to welcome Laurison Ketcheson and his bride, the former Margaret Bateman, of Tweed.

After a social visit, Mr. Roy Sills called the gathering to order, and on behalf of the assembled friends, welcomed the bride and bridegroom to the community. Miss Margaret Anderson then read a fine address, and the presentation of a lovely walnut chime clock, and end table, was made to the young couple by Mr. Morden Brough, and Mr. Clifford Ray, on behalf of those present.

Laurison and Margaret graciously thanked each and all for the handsome gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home at Smiths Falls.

Several responded when called upon by the chairman for brief speeches, all speaking highly of the young couple, and extending to them their best wishes for a happy married life.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and a social time enjoyed by all.

Toronto Constable Is Drowned On Honeymoon

Orillia, Ont., July 27 — (CP)— Constable John Andrew Johnson, 30, of the Toronto Police Department, was drowned in the Severn River, 15 miles north of here, Monday night while his bride of two days watched helplessly.

His body was recovered 15 minutes after he had fallen from the bank into the fast-moving waters of the river at Wasdell's Falls where the young couple was spending a two-week honeymoon.

Constable Johnson was married in Guelph, Ont., last Saturday to his childhood sweetheart, the former Helen Bradley, a native of Guelph. They arrived here Monday night and planned to take a swim when the mishap occurred.

Three holidayers dived into the water to search for the officer's body, recovered a short time later by Miss Lynda Cartwright.

In Toronto, Chief Constable John Chisholm said Officer Johnson had joined the force two years ago and was "a wonderful young man and a good police officer."

Besides his widow, Johnson is survived by his mother and other relatives in Guelph.

WEDDINGS

LEWIS—SEDORE

College Street United Church, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, July 23rd, when Reta Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sedore, of Point Anne, became the bride of Sidney Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis, Toronto. The Reverend C. A. Gowans officiated.

The bride wore a rose crepe gown, with lace yoke, white accessories, and corsage of white rose buds.

Miss Jeanne Sedore, of Point Anne, was her sister's only attendant, wearing a powder blue crepe gown, white accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Clorth Sedore, Toronto, uncle of the bride, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, where the bride's mother, in grey with navy accessories, assisted by the bridegroom's mother in blue crepe with black accessories, received the guests. A buffet supper was served.

For travelling to "Happy Holliday Lodge" at Bracebridge, Muskoka, the bride wore a wine gabardine suit with white accessories. Upon their return, the young couple will reside at 113 Mavety Avenue, Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were from Point Anne.

GORDON—GARRETT

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Church of St. Michael, the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, July 16th, at 10 a.m. when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garrett, of Belleville, Rosemary Garrett, became the bride of Charles Edward Gordon, Napanee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Gordon, Napanee. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Father John Carley.

The bride was becomingly gowned in powder blue jersey with navy accessories, and corsage of red roses and bouvardia.

Miss Betty O'Neil, of Belleville, attended the bride wearing a white jersey ensemble with navy accessories.

Mr. Joseph Garrett, of Belleville, and brother of the bride, was groomsman.

For travelling to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Hamilton, the bride wore a navy blue ensemble with navy accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon will reside in Napanee, Ontario.

Presentations Feature Reception at 35th Wedding Anniversary

A reception of exceptional interest was held on Saturday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Buck, 323 Albert Street, in honor of their 35th wedding anniversary.

It was in the parsonage of the Methodist Church, Sydenham Street, Kingston, that Lottie Pearl Sears and Arthur Buck were married by the Reverend W. Brown. Witnessing this ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Buck, brother and sister-in-law of the bride and bridegroom, and it was at their home that the wedding reception was held. Mr. Buck died some years ago, and Mrs. Buck greatly regretted her inability to attend this occasion.

The home was beautifully decorated for the event with sweet peas and baby's breath. Mrs. Buck, wearing a wine-colored crepe de chine dress, and corsage of roses, was assisted in receiving the many guests by her husband; her daughter, Mrs. C. Bushell; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. S. Buck, and Mrs. G. Grant. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Le Heul, sister of Mrs. Buck, who were present on that memorable day thirty-five years ago. Other guests who were unable to be present during the afternoon, came in the evening to extend their good wishes and congratulations to the highly esteemed couple.

The dining room was charming with its daintily appointed table having a lace cloth centered with a silver basket filled with pink and white carnations, flanked by silver candelabra with pastel pink tapers, and a three-tiered wedding cake. Mrs. S. Carthurs, and Mrs. A. Le Heul presided at the silver services, and were assisted by Mrs. C. Bushell, Mrs. S. Buck, Mrs. G. Grant, Mrs. Revell and Mrs. Newcombe. The wedding cake was cut in the traditional manner by the bride and bridegroom of more than three decades.

Previous to the luncheon, the bride and bridegroom were asked to take the place of honor in the archway of the living room, where they were presented with a lovely tri-lamp from the family; a beautiful tea service from their son and daughter-in-law, and Mr. Sears; many other useful and lovely gifts from friends, who were graciously thanked for their good wishes and the tangible evidences of these wishes.

The bride also received a fine Gibbard coffee table and Gibbard rocker from her bridegroom.

The afternoon was spent enjoying a short program of various humorous numbers, including readings by Mrs. B. Clark, entitled "Advice To a Young Man Who Looks for a Wife," "A Young Woman Who Looks for a Husband," and one a more serious vein, "It Pays To Be a Well Wife."

After a few more readings and well-known song of the long ago, the happy gathering dispersed to their individual homes, all feeling that they had had a perfect day together, and again wishing Mr. and Mrs. Buck much health and happiness in the years that lie ahead.

For some years Mr. Buck was employed as fireman on the Grand Trunk Railway of that time, later becoming a locomotive engineer of the Canadian National Railways. His son is following in his father's footsteps as fireman on the C.N.R. here.

They are the proud parents of three children, two daughters and one son, and grandparents of three granddaughters, and two grandsons, all of whom were present at the anniversary reception.

Among those present were friends and relatives from Edmonton; Stratford; Toronto; Verona; Port Hope; Corbyville and Kingston.

Fall Hats Styled to Make Women Look Much Taller

Paris, July 27 (AP).—Women will look pretty tall next fall if they wear some of the hats now being shown by leading French milliners.

High-crowned creations shown by Claude St. Cyr are molded to the head at back but merge into a halo-like Norman arch in front. The towering effect often is produced by a brim which starts from nothing at the sides and develops into a beak which protrudes aggressively upward and outward in front.

The height of these hats is further accentuated by cock, egret or paradise feathers stuck on top.

Height also is obtained by turret crowns, but the tallest creation is a toque of gold satin stabbed with matching 18-inch-long spear garnished with the same length of pheasant plume.

Tough horsehair veils that stand up to wind, hail and rain are being shown by Albouy in his fall hat showing.

They are set on black velvet cloche and beret types in such a way that they stand several inches away from the face.

One of these, called "Carmen" is a black velvet bun-beret. It is worn wide-tilted with two huge crimson roses covering the right ear. The black horsehair veil is nose-tip length.

Women's Activities

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.

West Huntingdon — The July meeting of the West Huntingdon Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. George Cooke, taking the form of a pot-luck dinner. The various members acted as hostesses to the combined Mission and Baby Bands, with a large number in attendance.

After the dinner hour, the meeting was opened by the president with the call to worship. Mrs. G. Cooke read the scripture lesson from Matthew 7:13. The roll call was answered by 15 members and several visitors. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. A letter from the supply secretary was read which stated that a bale was not required this year. Mrs. J. Gay and Mrs. W. Fitchett were appointed to prepare the next program, while Mrs. P. McInroy kindly offered to prepare the study book.

A song, "The Lily of the Valley," was rendered by the Mission Band, followed with readings by Mrs. J. Moorecroft, and Mrs. A. Wright. Mrs. R. Gray read a prayer from the Missionary Monthly. This was followed by a period of silent communion, after which Donna and Sharon Hammond gave a duet, and "I Come to the Garden Alone" was sung by the Mission Band.

A welcome was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Clarke by the W.M.S. ladies, to which Mr. Clarke responded on behalf of Mrs. Clarke and himself.

After the close of the meeting, the Mission Band enjoyed games, and races under the leadership of Miss Joan McCurdy, and Mrs. F. Hammond.

Fashion Flashes

Neat way to dress up that little straw bag for afternoon duty is to treat it to a cluster of flowers, with a repeat thrust through dress belt or a lapel or on a hat or in the hair.

Hands out for handsome gloves being readied for next season. Velvet is used for an eight-button length, hand-sewn glove with a jersey palm. Beautiful in black, in pastels or in brilliant colors.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

She walked a few blocks without knowing where she was going. The autumn day had a soft haze drawn across it; there were red leaves in the park now, the night would be deliciously cold and fresh.

"Oh, Chris, why?" Fanny said aloud. "Why didn't you tell me? He said he had an important engagement! He always comes home to lunch Saturdays, and we have such fun, talking about things. And he was going with me to see Mack, too. But she has got him!

"He couldn't tell me he loves me, the way he does, and be seeing Madge on the side, be liking it! But then why didn't he tell me . . ."

"I'm glad he likes Madge; I want him to. She's the oldest friend I have, after all; she's the only woman friend I have here. I wish she was dead; I wish she was blind. I wish she'd lose every cent of money that she's so proud of . . ."

Here was the big library; Fanny had Christopher's enormous tome On Torts to return. She stood blindly at the desk while the woman accepted and checked it, started apologetically.

"'I'm sorry, I didn't hear you!"

"This fell out of the book."

"Oh, thank you!" An open letter . . one sheet. Madges' handwriting.

The big room revolved around Fanny in sickening circles. She walked away, stood near a great window, looked down at the scribbled lines.

"Chris Sweetheart . . ." it was Madge, writing to Chris, "Chris sweetheart, I'm the one that should be sorry . . what a long wait that was! Saturday, then, at the library at one, and I'll tell all . . all. I can't wait!"

It was signed, "As it was in the beginning, Madge."

Fanny folded the note carefully mechanically, and put it into her purse. She walked down the great library steps, between the lions, into the warm September haze, her mind in a fog. She could not make herself think.

It was all blank. Life was big, hurtfull frightening. It wasn't fun any more; It wasn't anything to laugh at, Madge's case on Chris, and Phyllis's ridiculous fastering of it, They had caught Chris between them, and he was stumbling in deeper and deeper . . . simple, gentle, fine Chris, who believed everthing any woman ever told him, and thought all women were true.

"I can't stand this!" Fanny said aloud, walking vaguely eastward, toward the homebound subway. She stopped at a drug store, telephoned Mack. "I will do that 'Tom and Jerry' stuff Mack; I've thought it over. Chris can . . Chris can wait for his dinners!"

"I thought you were going to Scarsdale?" Mack said, when he had expressed enthusiasm.

"I am. But not until four." How little the Bucknell case mattered now!

"That's right. It's only three-fifteen now. What's the matter? You sound kind of lifeless."

"Three-fifteen!" screamed Fanny, suddenly alive. "Oh, it can't be . . good heavens, and I've got to go home and get our bag."

Smashing the telephone into place, she ran for the subway, missed a train by seconds, walked up and down the littered platform in an agony of impatience until the next one roared in. It was twenty-five minutes to four when she reached her own corner; there were four dreadful blocks to walk or rather run; Fanny naturally did not think of taxis, even if there had been a taxi in this neighborhood. Her face was scarlet and her forehead wet when she entered her own hallway; she was panting so violently as she opened the door that she had to put her hand tightly to her side. The suitcase was packed and waiting; Fanny took the long envelope from the table drawer and put it into the inner flap; looked about. Then after a glance at the gas stove, to be sure that no light was burning, she bolted the inner apartment, accessible only from this room, pulled down the shades picked up her bag, and going into the hall, locked the door. There had been sneak thelves in the house; Fanny and Chris had little to be stolen, but clothes cost money, and the bolt a former tennant had left on the outside of the kitchen door did give them some protection. The fire escape outside the kitchen window would give a marauder no access to the main room, anyway.

"Am I being efficient, and thinking and acting reasonably?" Fanny asked, half aloud, completing these preparations for departure. She ran down the stairs, ran a hundred feet to look in at the drugstore clock; twelve minutes of four. It couldn't be that horrible time had been slipping at this rate . . it couldn't . . couldn't be! She was conscious of breaking fervent prayers as she ran back to the subway; no time to think of Chris and Madge now; only one thing was important, that she make the four-ten train and get the Bucknell notes to Mr. Mockby.

The subway smelled of earth, and sweating plaster, and dust, when she reached fourty-second Street; there seemed to be miles to run. The only clock she saw brought her heart choking into her throat; six minutes past four . . and even in the sick second during which she glanced at the big minute hand fell ahead . . . seven minutes past four.

Running, her hat slipping, carrying her bag and gloves, she was at the Information Desk at last; she was panting to the clerk.

"The Scarsdale train at four-ten?"

His dispassionate glance at the clock; his instant response.

"On Track Fourty-two, downstairs; I doubt if you can . . ."

She was flying in the direction of his nod, rushing through groups of home-going Saturday workers, gulping with a dry throat, counting track numbers wildly. 'Thirty-seven . . .five over . .forty . . forty one! Oh, let me get it!"

The gate was closed. Na Chris, no anybody, except two officials leisurely strolling along together, and the comfortable folk who were wandering toward the four-seventeen on Track Forty-four.

Fanny went upstairs to the Information desk. Her head ached now; She felt unutterably weary. The next train for Scarsdale would be the five-twenty-one. On Saturdays there was no four-twenty-two and no four-fifty. Slowly she walked to the telegraph station, slowly wrote a wire it was all nauseating; it was inefficient; it was failure. Chris had failed her and she had failed Chris, and all the taste had gone out of life.

"Missed four-ten taking five-twenty-one bringing papers Fanny Thring," she wrote.

It was quarter past four; a whole hour to wait. Fanny sat down limply, despairingly, on the great curve of a high-backed wooden seat.

"An hour won't make them or break them," she said, half aloud. "What's an hour? It won't make them or break them."

A square-shouldered dark man went by in a suit like Chris's suit; her heart leaped. It wasn't Chris. She was sick to get to Chris to find him somewhere. She needed Chris! Instead she was sitting all alone here in this horrible station, and Chris and all of them in Scarsdale were thinking how completely irresponsible she was. Or maybe Chris was thinking of Madge . . .

"An hour! What's an hour? They probably won't get started for an hour anyway. I don't care; if he's going to treat me so horribly, I'll treat him horribly. Why should I care.

"I wish I was dead and buried."

Everything was slow, maddening slow today, and every waste instant seemed to be beating on her heart like a pulse. The subway trip uptown half an hour later had seemed to stop meaninglessly in the dark between stations for endless, precious seconds; now the big Scarsdale train was dwalding, starting, stopping again . . .

Fanny put that mental, moral, physical pressure she could upon her impatience. The train was hot, crowded; she looked at her reflection in the dusty window; reasoned with herself.

"You might as well be calm. Whatever is going to happen will happen. Things like this seem terribly exciting when they are going on, and in a few hours they seem unimportant. In a few hours you'll have a bath in the Mockby's spare room, and you'll have your crepe on and be going down to dinner and to play bridge . .

NOW! Dental Science Reveals a Startling Discovery in the Fight Against Tooth Decay

HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY with Colgate Dental Cream

X-RAYS SHOW HOW PROPER USE OF COLGATE'S HELPS STOP TOOTH DECAY!

Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for over a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate's right after eating. The other group followed usual dental care. X-rays were taken at regular intervals.

The average of the group using Colgate Dental Cream as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities —far less tooth decay! The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate!

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone; nor can it stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started!

The Most Important News in Dental History! Exhaustive Research on Hundreds of People by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before It Starts!

NOW dental science offers scientific proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than a year's continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

For now—the same toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—offers a safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

Colgate's Is Safe—Not An Experimental Formula!

Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums!

The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula that was used in the tests.

You can use Colgate's with confidence. And using it as directed is a safe, proved way to avoid needless cavities—actually help stop tooth decay at home!

To The Dental Profession

The research described here was conducted in leading dental clinics under the supervision of some of America's foremost dental research authorities.

A detailed report of the tests is now in preparation and will be available for your use and study in the near future. If you wish a copy, send your request on your own professional letterhead to Colgate, Toronto 8, Ontario.

These studies represent the most exhaustive evidence ever offered to the dental profession of actual reduction of cavities. They present scientific proof that always brushing teeth right after eating is one of the most effective ways yet known to help stop tooth decay before it starts. And Colgate Dental Cream is the only dentifrice that can prove the statements reported here.

NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR, FOAM, OR CLEANSING ACTION!

Millions know that Colgate Dental Cream cleans their breath while it cleans their teeth. That its wonderful wake-up flavor is preferred over all other dentifrices tested. That no other toothpaste does a better job of cleaning teeth. And there has been no change in Colgate's famous flavor—its marvelous foaming quality—or its safe and thorough cleansing action!

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy to Start Them On The Colgate Way To Reduce Tooth Decay!

9 out of 10 children have one or more decayed teeth by the time they enter school. So don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor—so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

Harley Monsell Catches Seven Pound Pickerel

Marmora—Good fishing is reported at the Crowe Lake resorts. At Marble Cliff Lodge, whose proprietor is Mr. Donald Gunn, guests were all pleased on Monday to get fair sized catches of bass and pickerel. Highest honors went to Mr. Harley Monsell, of Ottawa, who captured a seven pound pickerel, after getting one weighing nine and a half pounds on Saturday, plus a seven and a half pound bass.

At Tipperary Hotel, the guests also have some good fish stories to tell.

Trinity Anglican Ladies Entertain Four W.A.'s

Frankford—On Thursday afternoon the ladies of the Trinity Anglican Church opened their newly-decorated Parish Hall, by entertaining the ladies of four W A.s of the surrounding district. Frankford, Stockdale, Scott's and Zion W.As of the United Church were guests.

The president, Mrs. Caskey, opened the meeting and read the scripture lesson, while Mrs. Hubert Foster welcomed the visiting ladies. Mrs. Gordon Chase, of Zion W.A. replied to the welcome She stressed the fact that there should be more inter-denominational gatherings held such as this.

Each of the visiting organizations furnished two items for the program, after which the Rev. A. J. Anderson gave an interesting talk on his work as a minister in Kingston penitentiary.

After the meeting closed the ladies of the Guild served refreshments.

Canadian Legion Holds Carnival And Street Dance

Frankford—The Canadian Legion Street Dance and Carnival was a great success Wednesday night. A full evening of games and entertainment was provided, and the largest crowd seen in years turned out for the event,

Entertainment highlight of the evening, was a half hour ventriloquist act put on by LAC Frank Hockaday of the RCAF Station in Trenton.

Dance music was provided by Sherwood Reid and his Circle R Rhythmers.

At 12:00 the lucky draw took place, with the following persons winning prizes:

A Mixmaster, won by J. Sleeper, of Stirling; a trilight floor lamp, won by Jack Madill, of Frankford; an electric fan, won by John Loshaw, of Frankford, and a toaster, won by W. H. Young of Wellington.

The carnival was designed to provide entertainment for the children as well as the adults, and from all reports, the spectators thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

Proceeds from the street carnival will go toward the new Legion club room.

Boy Scout News

The local Scout troop held their weekly meeting in the Community-Memorial Hall Thursday evening. Following the opening exercises, a period of recreation in the Memorial Park was enjoyed. The troop then re-formed, and spent some time in morse code and semiphore instruction. After the closing ceremonies in the hall, the patrol leaders and seconds remained for a Court of Honor. Plans were discussed for a camping trip in a short time.

Plans are being laid for an eight team bowling league from Frankford this fall and winter. The league will be mixed, with three men and three women per team. Anyone interested, is urged to contact either Claude Moran or Gene Lohnes. The teams will bowl Thursday evenings at 7:00 in Trenton at Scalettas. Whether or not you have bowled before, you are welcome to try out for this league. The aim of the league is to provide good wholesome recreation for Frankford folks, and bowlers are not expected to perform miracles.

Plans are going ahead for the annual Legion Decoration Day and Service on August 14. Once again the Peterborough Salvation Army band will be in attendance to provide their fine music.

CANADA NEEDS HEALTHY RAILWAYS TO SERVE HER PEOPLE

THE OIL INDUSTRY relies on the railways to move

THREE MILLION TONS OF GASOLINE...

And that's only part of the story. The total handling job which these mighty carriers do for the oil industry alone totals well over six million tons a year.

BOTH as producers and consumers, Canadians look to the railways to perform the heavy hauling on which their very lives depend. They must transport, for every Canadian every year, an average of about twelve tons of freight a distance of 400 miles.

And the railways are at it, twenty-four hours a day. That faraway whistle in the quiet night means a heavily-loaded freight is rushing goods to the morning market—moving materials to a waiting factory—carrying food to a distant seaport for shipment overseas. In this land of great distances, our existence depends on railways—railways which are efficient and adequate to our needs.

The Railways are Big Oil BUYERS, too

Fuel oil for locomotives, gasoline for trucks, lubricating oils—they all add up to a healthy sum . . . many, many millions last year. The railways are major users of the products of Canada's farms and forests, factories and mines—in fact their purchases cover over 70,000 items. They are the country's biggest buyers.

This advertisement is one of a series pointing out the railways' key place in Canada's economy. As Canada's largest builders of railway rolling stock and equipment, this company and its employees are directly concerned with the railway industry. Canadian Car & Foundry, operating eight modern plants, turns out thousands of railway cars of every type. The company is fully equipped to supply Canada's railways with the latest type passenger and freight cars to meet the growing needs of our expanding economy.

Joe's Motto Could Be 'Always Forward'

Newark, N.J., July 27 (AP) —Joseph Pistolese, 74, wanted to make good in his new job.

He began Monday pushing his broom and street-cleaner's cart on Frelinghuysen Ave.

He pushed and he pushed and he pushed.

By nightfall police in nearby Elizabeth spotted him still pushing forward.

A radio patrolman told him he was 2½ miles from his assigned area in Newark.

Inebriate Asks For Police Taxi, Gets Fined $13

Kitchener, July 27 (CP) -- One Kitchener man took the expression "servants of the people" too literally in calling the police department for taxi service.

Transportation for himself and two bottles of wine were urgently required, he told the police department. The wine was for a woman friend.

Police ignored the first summons but when the gentleman called for a cruiser five times in as many minutes, they responded with a car.

Arriving at the man's home, police had not long to wait for their passenger. He shuffled out to the police car clutching the bottles of wine with an air of alcoholic nonchalance. Before a Justice of the Peace he was fined $13.50.
